Rosemary Haley is one of the attractive young women who a booklet entitled WHAT'S THE WEATHER? distributed by Air France, she decided to investigate how airlines and the weather work together for the benefit of the air traveler. Always inquiring and thorough, Rosemary New York's Idlewild airport to hear the briefing of Captains George Libert and Alfred Dombreval before the departure of Air France's "Golden Parisian" flight 010. She witnessed, and later reported on her daily show, how a transatlantic pilot maps out three alternate routes before take-off to decide on the one which insures the most advantageous weather conditions She learned how tempera-tures altitude, and jet streams are narnessed to insure speed and the ultimate in flight comfort; how a team of technicians in North America and in Eu-rope follows the flight of Interond, from take-off to landing. Mrs. Haley also inspected sensitive electronic weather instruments at Air France's meteorological center and studied how information is processed onto weather charts.

Not only does Rosemary mastermind her own show, Haley's Comment, but this mother of three small children also reports child features on the Flair show, ABC-TV network. Weather buffs interested in

"Can I pick my own Army training?"

You sure can. As a matter of fact, the Army will guarantee your choice of training before you enlist. You can qualify by passing aptitude and physical examinations. You take these tests before you enlist and with no obligation on your part. If you pass, you get a written guarantee for the training you want. The Army can give you excellent on-the-job or school training in the field of your choice. Some of the fields you may choose from include surveying, radio repair, metalworking, electronics and precision

If you're interested in making the most of your military obligation, drop in and let's talk about it. The Army can offer you topnotch training which you can use for the rest of your life. You benefit your own career while serving your country when you enlist in the Army.

Deadly Menace In Your Medicine Chest?

A cluttered medicine chest invites death into your home especially if there are small children in the family.

Most toddlers will eat or drink any substance they can reach, regardless of appearance or taste. As a result, of the 822,000 Americans poisoned each year, more than 300,000 are children under five years

Bauer & Black, in conducting its fifth annual "Clean Out your dicine Chest" campaign, urging all persons to protect their whole family by following a few simple rules:

1. Keep all drugs and medicines far out of reach of children. 2. Label all containers and mark prescriptions with date, dosage, and patient's name. 3 Do not keep cleaners or other toxic chemicals in the medicine cabinet. 4. Get rid of all old or unlabeled medicines by pouring down the drain — never by throwing in the wastebasket. 5. Before administering any drug, read the label in a good light.
6. Paste the day and night phone numbers of your physician, druggist, and poison control center (consult your Public Health Office) to the wall of your cabinet. 7. Safety-check your medicine chest at least twice a year.

As a public service, Bauer & Black is distributing through retailers a pamphlet on the proper organization of a home inedicine chest.
