by George R. Huckaby

The know-it-alls in big cities are displaying their great capacity for throwing the Queen's English around, so yours truthfully feels the urge to make up a few local "Tom Swifties" for your entertainment and education.

Forgive us, but we hope you will like them:

"Gracie Hughes, you and your husband should be more circum-spect," the preacher said archly.

"While my wife is out of town, I'm going to have fun," said C. Weiler ruthlessly.

"Yes, we have what vou need, either in stock or on order," replied Dwain Holmes automatically.

"We will fix your drain immediately," promised Ray Fortner succinctly.

"Wet wash is better than no wash at all," admitted Ben Hildebrand drylv.

"There's no car more popular than a Ford, unless you prefer a Chevrolet," bragged Dick wryly.

"You said it well," replied Bob Gibbs salesmanly.

"Sugar is still one of our best selling items," Clyde said sweetly, "but we'd rather you'd buy a cantaloupe," he continued freshly.

"Hoorah, school's out!" shout-ed John Sibley, as he stared at the campus vacantly.

"If you want to shop late Thursday come and see us," said Bogan six-to-nine-ishly.

"Thirty!" shouted the reporter as he slammed down his type-writer cover cuttingly on his left little finger.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Keeter went to market at Dallas, Sunday morn-ing and returned Monday.
