School and Safety Go Together Iowa Park schools will open for business Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, at 9:00 for approximately 900 children, about 90 of whom will be in the first grades. When we think of school, we naturally think of safety for our children. This year the Evening Lions club with the co-operation of school officials, is sponsoring an all-out safety program.

Ross Chapman, safety chairman of the club and chief of police, and his committee Earle Denny and Wayne House, has mapped out a safety program which with cooperation from all citizens and parents should make our school zone one of the safest traffic terminals. City offciials and state highway department are co-operating in the Jane Waters has chosen Texas Wesleyan college at Fort Worth. Lenora Brown is interested in a business course and has chosen to attend Draughon's. Corsicana, with its Navarro junior college, has attracted Jimmy Harris and James Low. Linda Holmes has elected to attend Texas Tech at Lubbock. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Webb of Tommy Starkes will matriculate Chattanooga, Tenn., are visiting his brothers and families: Clar-at Wayland Baptist, Plainview. There may be others to add to the list.

"As you sow..." Andy!

You realize, of course, that Sputnik opened the door to a new era. That the Space Age is not a thing of the distant future, but is upon us today, and that Main Street, Our Town, is feeling the effects.

To keep up with the times, to profit from these developments, you and I as businessmen must 'take stock.' We must re-evaluate our present systems and methods. We must stay informed and alert. Above all, Andy, we must act collectively to improve constantly our business conditions, and to make Our Town a better place to live in and to work in.

Our local Chamber of Commerce, of sourse, is the best vehicle for that organized action. And, if we are going to do more this year, naturally it's going to cost us a little more. The rewards will be that much greater.

You asked me why our membership dues are slightly higher this year. Let me tell you, Andy, it's a healthy thing that they are, because it indicates an up-to-date program. Effective. Hardhitting. In tune with these challenging times. And with sights set on the future of the community. Our community, Andy, couple by Miss Kidwell. Mrs. Swim had charge of the guest book whose cover, painted by Miss Helen Reed, featured a moving van bearing in huge letters on its side the words "Mena or Bust." A familiar Iowa Park landmark - Tanner's Corner and a drawing of the Owens' new home among the hills and pines of Arkansas completed the cover. Mrs. Elms presided at the re freshment table where a red and white color scheme was used in appointments and food. A large floral arrangement of red and white garden flowers in an antique crystal holder graced the table. This centerpiece was flanked by crystal candelabras holding red tapers. Ruby-colored punch was served from a milk-glass bowl.

High point in the festivities occurred when Miss Kidwell read to the honorees and guests a letter of thanks and appreciation from the local Lions club for the generous and unselfish service rendered the community by Mr. and Mrs. Owens through their work in school, church and community projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens moved to Iowa Park in the summer of 1946 Russ was employed as an engineer at Gulf Oil's pipeline installation southwest of here known as Waggoner station. Maudie was hired to teach English and music in the high school.

SALUTE TO CONGRESS

The 85th Congress heads for Home and the election campaigning with a record of accomplishments that has earned the respect of everyone who has worked closely

Few Congresses in history have faced up to more critical problems, or worked more strenuously to solve them. At the start of the second session early this year the most urgent problems were the Russian sputniks and the deepening economic recession.

Congress was caught in a dilemma between the two. There were urgent demands for more government spending to meet the Russian missiles threat and, at the same time, an insistent public clamor for tax reductions to counter the recession.

Growing unemployment was a serious problem. More than five million people were without jobs. Industrial production was declining. There were demands for increased unemployment and other social security benefits.

Foreign Aid

With economic troubles at home and growing communist activities in nations friendly to the U. S., Congress debated whether to continue spending billions of dollars to bolster the economy and military strength of the alliance of Western

The decision to expand our missiles research and, at the same time, continue economic and military assistance to friendly nations, meant (1) no general tax reduction and (2) a substantial increase in the national debt.

Those were difficult decisions, and more especially in a year in which all of the House members and one-third of the Senators must face voters in re-election campaigns. It took statesmanship of a high order to make them.

The crisis in which we sent troops into the Middle East during the latter days of the session brought closer the threat of World War III. The decision to defend the freedom of friendly small nations was one in which the Congress concurred with the President.

Record Work Load

Even without those major decisions to be made, the 85th would have been one of the busiest on record. More than 17,000 bills were introduced during the two years it served.

Among them were bills to reorganize the Pentagon defense setup, raise the pay of government workers, new farm legislation, antiracketeering labor legislation, extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, a $2.5 billion public works program, and a $40 billion national defense budget. Each of those bills received careful consideration by committees. Some involved weeks and months of hearings, then long debate in the Senate and House. Congress did a tremendous amount of work in the seven and a half months between convening in January and the end

"God Working in Men"

Paul closed the Hebrew letter with this petition, "Now the Got of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is wellpleasing in his sight through Jesus Christ; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen." The whole purpose of God in the plan of salvation is to work in men that which is wellpleasing in his sight.

And then Paul said, "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure" (Phil. 2:12,13). God does not work in us by force. He does not work in us by magic. God works in us by the power of his word.

What God works in us, we must work out. God works his will into us by means of his word, and we must work his will out in our lives. We see many religious people working things out in their lives that God did not work into them. What the Christian does is a "work of faith and a labor of love." Love moves men, while faith guides them. Love causes man to want to do something, and faith guides him in doing the right thing.

Working out salvation is a serious matter. It must be done with fear and trembling. It is the most important thing we have to do, and we should not give it second place. The kingdom of God is the first thing to seek. All other things are secondary to it. In the din of life many lose sight of the main thing.

And when we work for the Lord, we must do our work right. When Paul became a Christian, his supreme purpose was to please Christ. He said, "For if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ" (Gal. 1:10). Men did their best to persuade Paul to do things their way, but he could not be influenced to go contrary to God's way. Paul preached what God wanted him to preach, not what men wanted him to preach. He often displeased men by his way of preaching, but that did not cause him to change his course.

At the last day we shall give account to God. Therefore, in all our work, let us have a "thus saith the Lord," and live as only his word can direct. . . .
