By Helena Rodriguez

Rain showers in Bailey County this past week have been a welcome sight, especially amongst area farmers.

According to R.G. Bennett of Muleshoe, the city received about .20 inches of rain as of 12:30 p.m. on Friday. Bennett said the latest string of rain showers began last Saturday, when the area received about .93 inches of rain. On Thursday, rainfall was about

.05 inches.

Bennett said that since last Saturday, Muleshoe has received about 1.38 inches of rain.

Calvin Meissner, manager of the Muleshoe Co-op Gin said, "The rainfall will probably delay the cotton planting by just a few days. Very little cotton has been planted so far and most people are fixing to start planting."

"The rain will help because it will give the field moisture," Meissner said.

J.K. Adams of Muleshoe keeps track of local rain counts on a regular basis.

Adams said that prior to April 20, the area had received less than an inch of rain since January.

"That is pretty low," Adams said. "I know that Amarillo and Lubbock have received

Library names Tipps Family of the Year

By Annette Bottelman

The David Tipps family was recently named Library Family of the Year, by members of Friends of the Muleshoe Area Public Library.

David and Liz Tipps have lived in Muleshoe for approximately 6 1/2 years. David has been an insurance agent and manager of Bailey County Farm Bureau, since moving here in October of 1987. Liz is the school nurse at DeShazo Elementary.

The family comes from Midland, but wants everyone to know that their hometown is Hereford.

The Tipps' have three daughters, Megan, age 10, a fifth grader at DeShazo Elementary; Hillary, a six-year-old kindergarten student at Dillman Elementary; and Kelsey, age four.

David and Liz Tipps and their family make good use of the Muleshoe Area Public Library. Librarian Ann Camp said the family is a regular visitor. "Liz comes just to sit and read to the children while she's here," she said.

David, who reads approximately two books a month, just for his enjoyment, claims his favorite type of book to read is aviation and spy books.

Liz enjoys biographies, along with re-reading some of the old classics like "To Kill a Mocking Bird" and "The Grapes of Wrath". She said, "I decided to read all of those books they made you read in school, and you just hated reading them." But says now she really enjoys them. She also reads around two books a month.

The Berenstain Bears hold Kelsey's attention as her favorite books to read along with mom and dad, while her sister, Hillary, likes to read stories about ballet or numbers.

Big sister, Megan, who dad refers to as "the bookworm of the family," reads probably two books a week.

"As soon as Megan finishes her homework, she's opening a book to read," Liz said.

David and Liz say they always find the time to read. They read to the children every night before bed, and after everyone settles in for the night, they read their own books.

MHS to change structure of classes

By Helena Rodriguez

A committee composed of teachers, parents and students at Muleshoe High School believes they have found a way to help improve student achievement.

On Monday night, a block scheduling plan was presented by the committee to the Muleshoe Independent School District Board of Trustees. The plan, which was approved by a consensus of the committee, will go into effect at the beginning of the 1994-95 school year.

Block scheduling is similar to what many colleges and universities use. While the proposed scheduling will not change the actual curriculum, it will change the daily structure of classes.

Al Bishop, MHS principal, told the board Monday night, "We have spent a lot of time visiting with other schools who have gone to block scheduling and we feel that we should not just make a change for the sake of change. We feel there will be actual benefits for us and students."

Under block scheduling, students will have eight classes per semester on a two week rotation basis. They will have four classes a day, which will meet every other day for 90 minutes. They will then rotate the following week, and have four different classes.

Some advantages to this type of scheduling, according to Bishop, are that students will have more concentrated time in the classroom, a less amount of homework and they will have more time to do their homework and plan schedules since classes only meet every other day.

In many cases, block scheduling will allow students more flexibility in scheduling classes and will allow the school to offer more sections of classes. Classes will be smaller since teachers will teach three classes a day, six sections a semester, and have a one section prep period a day. Currently teachers only teach five sections.

Bishop added, "It would be

Cancer society contributions hit record high

Last year, the Bailey Unit of the American Cancer Society served 20 patients for an estimated dollar value of $4,929. The Bailey Unit also reached 3,843 adults and 3,765 youths with education materials for an estimated dollar value of $15,101. Last year $8,961 was raised by the Bailey Unit. Approximately 30% of this amount ($2,688) was used to fund American Cancer Society national research programs.

County approves closing of roads

The Bailey County Commissioners Court on Friday approved a request by James W. Meason of Progress to close a portion of roads and alleys on his property.

According to Commissioner Bennie Claunch, the roads and alleyway are all on private property owned by Meason.

The property is located in Precinct #1 close to that portion of 5th Street and all alleys in Block 4 and 5, lying between Apple Street and Prune Street; and that portion of Pear Street lying between 4th Street and 6th Street.

According to county regulations, Meason was required to post notices on these roads and at the courthouse about a month ago.

Meason posted notices as required. The petition the commissioner's approved Friday state that "the said land affected shall be reverted to the abutting property owners."

quite a bit more rain than that."

Adams said, "It (the rain) has been pretty nice. A lot of dryland farmers were starting to wonder if they would even be able to plant cotton if nothing happened. Now, it looks like there might be spots in the county where they can start and the cotton planting may go on schedule in early May."

Adams keeps track of area weather with a federal gauge that catches snow, rain and hail. He said it is different than other area rain gages used in the area since it is powered by solar energy.

"I thought that it was kind of interesting that the April rain has exceeded rain we have gotten for the whole year," Adams said.

According to Adams, rainfall for the year has been .29 up until April. Rain received during the month of April alone so far is 1.25 inches. The total amount of rain Muleshoe has had for the whole year is 1.9 inches.

"We may have been the driest place in the Panhandle up until this month," Adams said. "The wind that we had a while back took away a lot of the rain alright, but I believe that the rain we received now is just replenishing what the winds took away."

Comparing the rain count for the year to last year's rain count at this same time, Adams said the area received .1 inch more rain that last year.

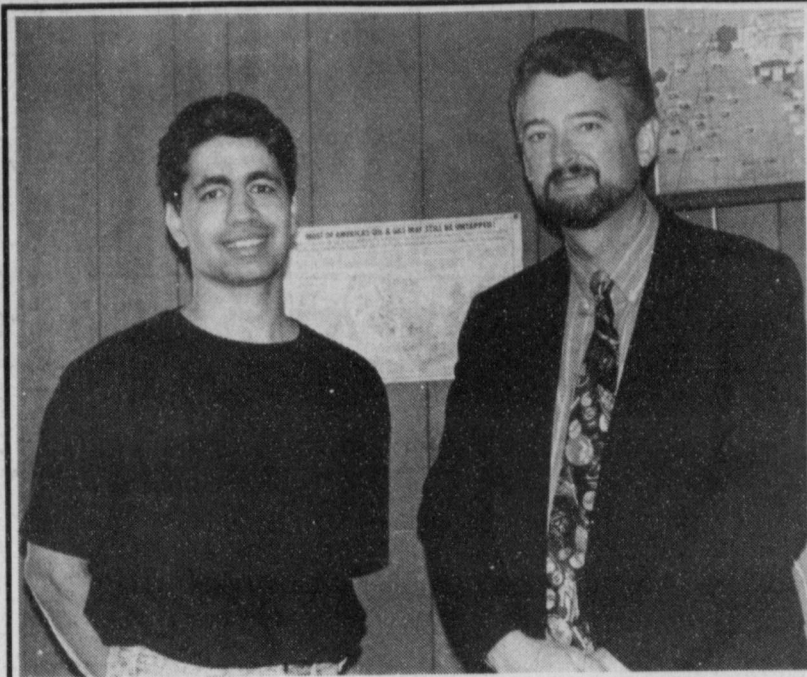

He said, "Last year at this time, the city had received 1.8 inches of rain, so we have gotten a little more rain than last year. So everybody should have something to smile about."

Bailey County Extension Agent Curtis Preston said, "We will take all of the rain we can get. We still need several more inches to get off on the right foot during the planting season."

Preston added, "This inch of rain that we got though should get us close to where we'll have enough moisture to plant."

Preston said that most of the dryland at the southern end of the county may not have received as much rain.

"The cold weather should not hurt the corn that has already been planted unless it freezes. Hopefully, it won't freeze."

Library

David's all time favorite book is "Red Storm Rising" by Tom Clancy. Liz said "The Client" by John Grisham, which she read last summer, which would have to be her favorite so far.

The Tipps' love to snow ski. Even though Liz says her favorite pastime is just doing things with the kids, they all claim that skiing would have to be their favorite family pastime, along with going to Ute Lake in the summertime to water ski, fish, and play board games.

Family members are also pet lovers. They have three cats, Elwood, Tippy, and Pat and one dog, Brutus.

Megan wants to be a veterinarian when she grows up. Hillary has decided she wants to teach basketball and ballet, and right now Kelsey just wants to grow up and be a bride

The few things the Tipps family says they would change about the library if they could would be to expand it, have more books, and see more people using it, especially parents with small children.

"It's a great resource," said Liz.

located at the Muleshoe Police Department. Class C offenses include misdemeanors, such as thefts under $20, disorderly conduct and issuance of bad checks. Huckaby said she is unsure at this point when she will be able to generate reports from the new computer system.

Huckaby was appointed to the Municipal Judge position in 1977. Huckaby works part-time and is a one-woman operation at the Municipal Judge's office.

As a result, she is having to feed all of the information into the new computer system and plug information into the new software program herself, as well as continue to handle her normal load of outstanding cases.

"I have to see defendants for traffic tickets and do some of my other duties that takes away from time I have to get the computer system going," Huckaby said. "I am working on it when I can, but it is a slow process."

Huckaby said she is also attempting to produce quarterly and monthly reports out of the new computer system. She is required to produce mandatory reports and conviction reports that all go to the State Department of Public Safety, which are what she considers the most pressing items to work on right now.

The Journal will publish information on Class C offense sentencing when they become available.

MHS

a benefit to a lot of students who are in extra-curricular activities because it will allow them to plan better in terms of when they need to do their homework. It will allow them to plan their own schedules."

Right now, students at MHS take eight classes a day, for 45 minutes. The change would not cut any classtime.

Board member Edwin Cox questioned the effect the longer classes would have since some children may have limited attention spans.

Bishop said, "Teachers will have to use more varied teaching techniques since classes would be longer," Bishop said. "They will have to be able to do a better job of presenting material. But I think that in the long run, it will make us better at presenting material."

MHS students currently take seven classes. They will have eight classes under block scheduling. Bishop said they will therefore need to come up with more electives students can take, as well as more freshmen-level classes.

Considerable discussion

Monday night also centered around how the change will effect students involved in both band and athletics.

Under block scheduling, students taking band and athletics will have these classes everyday.

The plan states that in order for MHS to accommodate students who want to take both band and athletics director and band directors will have to work closely with the principal to develop a plan that is in the best interest of the student.

Bishop said that the original idea for block scheduling came from students. He said that he feels the change may also help the school in improving TAAS scores, raising them to an exemplary range and possibly reduce dropout rates.

The drop out rate at Muleshoe High is around 2 percent.

The committee's proposal for the first year is for students in athletics to have six blocks of classes and two blocks of athletics for a total of seven classes. The same will be true for students in band.

The day the ranch changed hands

By Baxter Black

I first met the crew in the bunkhouse the day that we brought the 4 D's. I'd come in that night after supper and found 'em all takin' their ease. My job was to count all the cattle and stay till the transfer was done. I offered my hand to the cowboys and asked how the outfit was run.

"My name is Man'well Palamino. Vaquero. I came here to ride. The boss said eef I was illegal, I only could work the outside. He put me down there on the desert, at Cow Creek. Eet wasn't a crime. They brought us the grocery on Tuesday an' that wass how we tol' the time.

Four hunnred cows. Yus me an' a kid whose name I remember was Yak. Eet wass col'. I come from Chihuahua but no way wass I goin' back. Jew remember Yak, doan jew, Tombstone? Jew wass here back then, ces por sure."

Yeah. I's here when you hit the country. You was green as a pile of manure.

You couldn't say nuthin' in English. Pore Jack, he'd forgot how to speak. When you guys come in for the brandin' he wouldn't shut up for a week! I wonder where Jack ever wound up. He didn't stay long around here. All I know's that Spring I'd been workin' the 4 D's for over a year."

Hell, Tombstone that must be a record! The boss says and swears that it's true That you've worked more times for this outfit than anyone else that he knew!"

"You stuff it, Mick! You burnt out ol' wreck. You spend half yer life underground. Catlow Rim's been dug up so much it looks like a prarie dog town. All winter you live in that line shack, prospectin' and minin' fer gold. But...sure be nice if you hit a vein before we all git too damn old."

"Say, Mister, my name is Phil Duckett. I guess I'm the new buckaroo. You reckon the new 4 D owners will keep the same guys on the crew? When some of these ranches change owners they come in and clean out the place. It ain't no big deal if they do it, it's just that it seems such a waste.

Like Manyul, he knows every canyon and Tombstone he knows every cow. Them hay meadows needs to be watered and Mick, he's the man that knows how.

Even Pete, back there in the corner don't say much and always looks grim But he's a mechanical genius and nuthin' don't run without him.

Besides, he's been courtin' ol' Hazel, the cook that you'll meet in the mom, Aw, now Pete, don't look at me that way. You know I'm jus' blowin' yer horn.

Joe Ben's livin' down in the small house. He's young but a real top hand And his wife's expectin' this summer. Her home grown tomatos are grand."

Library News

By Anne Camp

Library Week has come and gone, but it was great! All those who brought books, magazines and puzzles for the sale, and all those who came and bought books and other items were appreciated.

It takes a lot of people working together to get the job done, and all gave of their time and efforts for the Library.

The remainder of the books and other items will be for sale until May 14th, so if anyone didn't make it last week, they are welcome to come, browse and buy. Of course, all the proceeds from the sale will go right back into the library.

Appreciation goes to all the wonderful people who responded and wrote comments on how libraries have helped them.

We are happy to say we have the required amount to submit to the American Library Association and will receive the multi-media encyclopedia for our library. They have been on display on the bulletin board during Library Week. "Libraries Do Change Lives".

From now till May 14, you can buy a book and get one of the same price free. How's that for a bargain?

Gandhi was example of a true Christian

Mahatma Gandhi, the great Indian leader, was not a Christian, but if even half of what is written about Gandhi is as much as half true, he was one of the best men who has ever walked this globe.

He led his people to independence from Britain, "without ever drawing a sword or firing a gun." And this strange little man, a Hindu, succeeded in living out the principles Jesus taught in the Sermon on the Mount in ways few Christians have ever equaled.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

Leroy Garrett writes that "when Gandhi died, someone asked (missionary) E. Stanley Jones if Gandhi was in heaven. It was a loaded question, for Christians would have been offended if he believed a good man like Gandhi to be in hell. Jones reply was unoffensive and classic.

He quietly responded, "If Gandhi is not in heaven, then heaven is the poorer for it."

Good answer. So is Garrett's when he adds that, "If Gandhi is in heaven it will be for the same reason that anyone else is in heaven, by God's mercy."

But I was most interested in what Garrett writes about Gandhi's message. It was always, he writes, "A plea for unity."

He appealed to his people to be united as Indians while differing in religion. He urged Christian missionaries bringing their sectarian differences to India to return home and unite, and then return with a message of love and tolerance.

The Indian people would then be more likely to listen, he assured them."

It is useless for a man to preach a message of love and grace if his fractured relationship with his own brethren belies everything he says.

As John writes, "Anyone who claims to be in the light but hates his brother is still in the darkness" (1 John 2:9), and "If anyone says, I love God, yet hates his brother, he is a liar," (4:20).

On that point, the Christian Apostle John and Hindu Mahatma Gandhi completely agree.

Curtis Shelburne is the minister of the 16th and Ave. D. Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

Texas schools lauded as innovators in middle school practices

Research and recognition of the state's middle school practices show Texas in the forefront as an innovator in implementing meaningful programs that promote learning and reduce violence among young teen-agers.

Last month, the U.S. Department of Justice singled out the Texas Middle School Network as a model program to "encourage the prevention of violence among youth at risk."

The network, led by a select group of mentor schools, shares research-based initiatives, successful practices and innovative programs with campus-level educators at other network schools.

The Department of Justice will include the middle school initiative in its resource guide of meaningful practices that help promote safety in the classroom. U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno will distribute the resource guide nationwide.

Middle school practices also have been the focus of research with the completion of the first comprehensive study on campus practices and programs. The survey reports that more than half of Texas middle schools are making significant progress in carrying out recommended reforms.

The survey, conducted during the 1992-93 school year by the University of Houston-Clear Lake, was distributed statewide in March 1993 to all 1,116 middle schools in Texas. A total of 911 surveys, 82 percent, were returned, and 80 percent of those were completed by members of a campus site-based committee.

Among its findings in assessing progress in meeting specific goals for middle school education, the study found that:

* One third of the campuses said their staff had participated in 18 hours or more of professional development in effective middle school practices during the 1992-93 school year.

* More than half of the schools have included instruction related to ethnic and multicultural diversity across the curriculum.

* About 40 percent of seventh, eighth and ninth grades and 60 percent of fifth and sixth grades have courses on higher mathematics, integrated science, interdisciplinary units, life skills, integration of literature and reading and multicultural instruction.

* Regarding health issues, 80 percent of the campuses report that they are smoke-free, and two-thirds said their students have access to school-based or school-linked health services, such as immunizations or physicals.

* Two-thirds report a program of business and professional partnerships, and almost 60 percent actively engage their students in community activities.

Parental involvement has a significant impact on student achievement, the study found. The higher the parental involvement at a campus, the higher the number of students who passed math, reading and writing tests.

* Widespread attention was focused on middle school education in 1989, when the Carnegie Corporation released a landmark study, Turning Points: Preparing American Youth for the 21st Century. "Middle school offers the best chance to turn a child around personally, socially and academically," the study concluded.

The Carnegie study prompted the formation of the Task Force on Middle School Education in 1990, which conducted a year of intense study and research. The task force published its findings and recommendations in Spotlight on the Middle. One result of this work was the establishment of the Texas Middle School Network. "Texas has come farther and faster with the Carnegie grant money than any other state in the nation," said David Hamburg, president of the Carnegie Corporation and chairman of the Carnegie Council on Adolescent Development.

Mini Summits to examine citizen ag concerns

Consumers, environmentalists, government officials and educators will join agribusines leaders and crop and livestock producers in five regional conferences across Texas in May to discuss critical concerns facing food and fiber production and protection of natural resources.

The meeting dates and locations are:

*May 16, University Center, Texas Tech University, Lubbock;

*May 18, Frank Mayborn

Center, Temple;

*May 24, Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Dallas;

*May 25, Hoblitzelle Auditorium, Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Weslaco; and *May 26, Holiday Inn, Odessa.

The regional "mini-summits" are followup to the Texas Agricultural Summit held last October at the Texas A&M campus in College Station. More than 450 leaders representing a wide diversity of interests identified high priority issues that will impact agriculture in the 21st century.

Each mini-summit will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Following brief overviews of the Texas Agricultural Summit process and issues, and the Long Range Extension Planning process for identifying local needs and concerns, participants will divide into work groups.

Each group will develop strategies for resolving five key issues. These key issues are: Protecting the environment and natural resources; competitiveness of Texas agriculture; public policy for agriculture and rural areas; education and information needs of consumers, and developing leadership.

After lunch, each mini-summit will again divide into work groups to address specific issues of importance to that region. Each work group then will report their findings and lead discussion on their reports.

EMPTY BOWL

This little girl is holding a hollow, empty bowl. In the days when the Bible was being written, a bowl was also a large drinking cup, and many were the references to a cup full and running over, or a cup being empty, or the cup of God's wrath.

In speaking of the restoration of Israel, Zechariah prophesies, "The Lord of hosts shall defend them and they shall devour; and they shall drink, and make a noise as through wine; and they shall be filled like bowls and as the corners of the altar." Zech. 9:15.

He also promises, "In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD; and the pots in the Lord's house shall be like the bowls before the altar."

And this day, if we follow Him, he promises that we will be filled like bowls with blessings and with His Spirit. We will also find that even a seemingly dry (and they never are, really) sermon heard in the house of the Lord, will bear fruit in us eventually, just as though it had been uttered from the very mouth of God in the Holiest of Holies.

We earnestly invite you to attend church this week. A blessing full and wonderful awaits the seeking soul.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

HAVE A NICE DAY

Small Business Week to be observed

"Small Business Week", celebrated this year from May 1-7, has become a notable annual event because their's really nothing small about small businesses' contributions to America's economy. Small businesses provided 100% of the net new jobs in the last five years and that trend is expected to continue.

The U.S. economy is expected to add 25 million new jobs by 2005, and the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) estimates that small businesses will contribute approximately 68 percent of these new jobs.

Total employment in the U.S. is projected to increase by 24.3 percent by 2005. About 60 percent of this employment increase--about 13.3 million jobs--is expected to come from small business-dominated service industries.

With government and corporate downsizing continuing, and many more younger workers preparing to enter the job market, it makes sense to examine industry growth trends into the 21st Century. What are the fastest growing industries and where will the jobs be?

Nine of the fastest growing small business dominated sectors will be service industries. Only one rapidly growing industry--passenger transportation--is not in the service sector, but in the transportation sector. The fastest growing small business-dominated industry is projected to be residential care facilities. Employment in this industry is projected to increase by 150 percent by 2005.

Employment in medical and dental laboratories is projected to increase by 90 percent, making it the second fastest growing small-business dominated industry. These two sectors reflect the continued aging of the baby boom generation, as well as the need for more retirement housing and life care communities.

Eating and drinking establishments--restaurants and bars of all kinds--are the small business-dominated industry projected to add the most jobs during this period. The Bureau of Labor Statistics anticipates 2.2 million more jobs in this sector by 2005, an increase of 33 percent, and about 10 percent of all new jobs to be created during the next 11 years.

These numbers reflect a greater tendency to consume meals away from home, saving time and serving as a major outlet for discretionary consumer spending.

Stores selling building materials and garden supplies are expected to be the industry adding the second largest number of jobs--about 1.4 million--by 2005.

Physicians offices will also account for many new jobs--perhaps as many as 1.2 million new jobs by 2005.

Seven of the additional fastest growing sectors are also in the service sector. These include: equipment rental, credit reporting, accounting services, job training and family counseling.

The fastest growing large business-dominated industry is projected to be in personnel supply services with an increase of 56.5 percent (932,000 jobs) by 2005. The large business-dominated industry adding the most new jobs is projected to be hospitals adding 1.3 million jobs by 2005.

Small businesses will also continue to experience the broadest employment growth in the economy during the next 11 years. While all ten of the top ten fastest growing small business-dominated industries are projected to increase by more than 50 percent, only three of the top ten large business-dominated industries are projected to increase employment by that large a percentage.
