By and by Mohammed Achmed got a call to rise up William Riley and gather went to them and told them in confidence that he was the only genuine, all-wool prephet on the Nile, and if they wanted some fun to get their double-barrel shotguns and join the gang. They did so. None of them ever did anything at home to obtain a livelihood, so they could go away on the warpath all summer and their business wouldn't suffer at all.

They then proceeded to murder the king's English, who had come there to conquer and acquire their sand pile.

The Arabian style of warfare is peculiar. It consists largely in drinking alkali water on their part and in requiring their enemies to do the same for ninety days. So it becomes simply a question of who has the firmest and most durable Bessemer steel bowels.

No one but a Bedouin would have thought of such a style of warfare. It is not, therefore, a question of courage or everlasting justice, it is a question of who can drink concentrated lye all summer and take his alimentary canal home with him in the fall.

> About Widows. Exchange.

I have a vague idea that a widow to be natural, should always be plump. I can't give any reason for it. I have long had a conviction that grief over a departed husband is fattening. Iknow that stage widows are always wan and pale and faint at the sight of any relic of the deceased. But that is a dramatic license and only in comedies where true love and devotion are made funny, not to say ridiculous, do they make widows plump. She has nothing to worry about. She is heroine man. #### The Ouray Agency.

Stanley Stokes has written a very interesting letter descriptive of the Ouray agency in Utah, which is the headquarters of the Uncompangre and White River Utes. When the Indians were first removed, it was a point of much interest, but latterly the old bucks and squaws have been -drifting into an oblivion which will excite the envy of Rutherford Hayes. The letter recalls to memory many names once familiar in San Juan and of such we will speak:

The agency is located on the site once known as Fort Thornburgh. The buildings occupied by the troops were turned over to the Indian department and with a few changes constituted the agency. The reservation is located in a basin surrounded by ranges of mountains and it is watered by the Green, Du Chesne, White, Bear and Uintah rivers. The White joins the Green half a mile below the agency and the Bear only a few miles above it. The soil is rich and highly productive and on the streams are cottonwoods of considerable growth. Last season the Indians raised good crops of oats, potatoes, onions and cabbages, and the melon is a luxury which they will have. Old Shavanaux sold his crop of oats to the agency and was quite proud of it. He is an industrious old relic.

Sapinero is head chief and so long as he is listened to there will be no trouble, although there are some who would kick up a muss if they could.

There are none of the Indians who live right at the agency, but they are scattered for 25 miles out along the streams, and so they enjoy going to town on Saturdays to trade as much as much as "Mericats" do.

We went to the Agency with the annuity. The news having spread of its arrival, early Friday morning they began to arrive from every direction. The most of them came in on ponies, and the squaws, mounted on huge bundles of teepe outfits and papoose boards to their backs which swayed from side to side with the motion of the pony. The younger Indians were gaily attired in flashy The rate from Denver to New Orleans beleggings, moccasins, blankets and ing $52.75 for the Exposition and $60.00 painted faces. The squaws were very gaudy, and at noon fully 200 of them were in the meadow under the mesa playing "shinney." It was a Orleans. pretty sight. All around the edge of the mesa were the men sitting and sleeping car accommodations, will say taking great interest in the game. The squaws were dressed in their gayest bright-colored shawls, clean to New Orleans, about $6.00, or about buckskins, beaded moccasins, green, $16.00 from Durango to New Orleans. yellow, blue and red dresses, and their long black hair floating in the wind-all had a charming effect, and to one at a distance appeared like a field of bright, waving flowers, as they chased the ceaseless rolling ball. Brightly burned the camp-fires all about the agency that night. The older Indians were gambling for money, blankets, ornaments, etc. Chipeta, Ouray's widow, was soon | call on the undersigned any time during pointed out. She was a prominent figure among them as an intelligent, good natured squaw, fat, forty and frisky. She has married again and her Saratoga trunk, which she once brought home full of silverware from Washington, is in the store-room. Douglas, the old White river chief Train leaves at 6:30 a. m. who was incarcerated at Leavenworth after the Meeker massacre, is here and is crazy. Sometimes he is very quiet and reticent. Again when THE WHITE IS KING a crowd of Utes is around him, he still imagines he is chief of a powerful tribe, and harangues them about Washington affairs and the wiles of the whites. Picking up a paper, he pretends to read 'Washington news,' no matter which side up the paper may be. The Utes pay no attention to him except to joke him. His squaw has left him and he has no property. He dresses in citizens' clothes and wears his hat band full of long black feathers. Old Colorow passed through to-day en route to the Uintah agency for IT IS THE BEST MADE, his annuity. He still persists in remaining on White river and says it is his home, only going to the agency once a year. NEVADA has just adopted a law to prevent treating. A fine of $50 or imprisonment in default of payment is the penalty. This is evidently the work of the temperance people, and is destined to make Nevada in the course of time a prohibition state. No man ever drinks Nevada liquor Needles, oils and parts for machines. unless he is treated .-- Graphic.
