Business For Ladies.

The opportunities for ladies to find employment that is both suitable and re-munerative are limited; their pay is usually poor as compared with the salaries paid to men in same line of occupation. But there are some very noted exceptions: journalism, the drama, music and platform offer equal advantages to men and women, and one occupation in which women are sometimes more successful than men, and that is in the management of agencies. In this line The Queen City Suspender Company, of Cincinnati, O., are offering inducements to ladies that we think ought to attract attention. They are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and Children, and their unequalled Skirt Suspenders for Ladies None should be without them, our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praise. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some re liable and energetic lady to introduce them in this county, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary, and have an exclusive agency. We advise some lady who is in need of employment to send to the Company her name and address, and mention this paper. Address Queen City Suspender 177 and 179 Main Street, Cincinnati,

An Arizona Incident.

At Bisbee, Arizona, last Saturday was pay day at the Queen mine. After the miners received their money they went to Bob Clark's saloon, where a faro game was in progress. A Mexican was seated near the players. His arms were upon the table, his face being buried in his hands. One of the miners demanded that the Mexican be moved. This not being complied with, the miner undertook to perform the task himself. He threw the Mexican heavily upon the floor and then relled him into the street. The greaser went to the house of another Mexican, where he tried to borrow a rifle, but was refused. He then asked to sleep in the house. This being granted, he threw himself upon the floor and feigned sleep. About 11 o'clock, when the other members of the household were asleep, the Mexican arose and stole the rifle and went to Clark's saloon where the men were still playing faro. Pushing the muzzle of the gun through an open window, he fired into the crowd until the ammunition was expended. Four of the miners were shot -two fatally. The Mexican then fled down the street. A soldier hearing the trouble fired at the retreating figure, but as it was very dark, the Mexican escaped. On Sunday the miners scoured the town for the assassin and found him with a greaser family. Without further ceremony, they dragged him from the house to the canon, where they suspended him from a limb.

Uneasy Lies the Head That Wears a Crown.

It is stated that the czar's morbidness and that as a result his mind is almost unhinged with dread. He gives no credence at all to the persistent assertions of the police that Nihilism is stamped out. It is related that during the recent imperial conference at Kremsier the czar and czarina had different sleeping apartments prepared for their use and that they never occupied any of the rooms thus set apart for their use, but used others in order to avoid all possibility of being located by the enemies whom the czar believes perpetually follow him, and his imperial majesty, it is declared, continues to follow this precaution and allows no one to know beforehand where he will pass any par ticular night, and never permits any of his attendants, but his necessary body servants, to know where he is sleeping.

Why Don't You Work Your Mine?

Denver Mining Review. "If you have such a rich property, why don't you work it yourself?" is the question so often asked by the desired purchaser. Mr. Watson is getting his mines at Rico into good shape for operation, and he has more confidence in Rico than ever. He prefers camp life at Rico to the cooped up living in the sultry air of Kansas, and he prefers mining to politics, especially being a democrat in a state as largely republican as Kansas, where he was elected four times county treasurer by over two thousand majority. He carried all the money in Douglass county at one time, being county treasurer of Douglass county, city treasurer of Lawrence, and treasurer of that, the largest school district in the county and state. Politics and panics reduced him several thousand dollars, and he is going to more than make it all back at Rico. - Durango Idea.

Chief Douglass' Head.

One of the most interesting relics of modern times is the skull of Douglass, the Ute Indian war chief, which is used as a paper weight on the table of the Glenwood Echo office. It should find its way to the Smithsonian Institute, but Editor Riland says it takes "big" money to buy it. He delivered himself of the following in a recent issue of the Echo over the memento of rape, rapine and

"After a long and vigorous life of rapine and murder, Douglass, at one time 'war chief" of the Utes, knocked at the outer lodge of the Happy Hunting grounds ties of the Peak, if it were not for the and was admitted. He was murdered example of Sergeant O'Keefe, who was last May by people of his own blood and consigned to Mother Earth. In an idle and while there attained the reputation moment some "pale face" plucked his of being one of the most accomplished poll and tanned it with the hide and hair liars in the country. His rat story was off. After knocking about for months published the world over, and told how in the country that had been the scenes a party of tourists were overtaken by a of his exploits, it has at last found its horde of mountain rats and gnawed to way to the Echo office, and now reposes death. It may be an easy matter to awe on a little shelf over our private tablean editor into telling the truth, but when guarding our exchanges and letters (peoa signal service man is tackled, a signal ple who travel with their gall will please note this down and finger our personal effects at their peril.) In the days agone JAMES E. WATSON, the Rico mining Douglass ran against White River Colorow for the war chieftainship of the band, and "snowed" William H. under. Immediately after qualifying he evolved the idea of cleaning out the White River valley, and the incidents of 1879 are due solely to this mug on exhibition. He visited the Agency, ate dinner with his victims, had his braves armed, and at a given signal opened on these present; he had a few braves stationed down the road to ambush the messenger sent for troops. and they succeeded in killing him; he also planned the ambush for the soldiers of Thornburgh's command, and made a good fight there, considering that they were invisible; he took the women at the agency prisoners, and held them as hostage for his personal safety, and acquired his liberty through them. The prominent bump of caution now visible will explain all the caution displayed by Douglass during the period just spoken of. This bump never betrayed him but once, viz: "Jack" was arrested for participa tion in the massacre and taken to Fort Leavenworth; he put the burden of it on Douglass, and promised to deliver him to the authorities. He returned to White River, had a caucus with Douglass, explaining that he got away by denying participation, and that they had a hearty laugh at the "pale faces" expense; he then advised Douglass to go to Leavenworth and do the same thing; Douglass went and was confined in the prison, and Jack had fulfilled his promise and was considered a very good Indian by the authorities. On his return he (Douglass)

THEY have sociables now in Iowa where the patron is weighed before entering the dining room and again directly when he leaves it, and then pays fifty cents a pound for increase in weight. This calls to mind the old story of the Western railroad eating house which adopted the same plan. On one summer day a shrewd drummer prepared himself for the meal by filling his coat pockets with stones. He was weighed and seated himself at a table near the open window, where he managed to throw all stones away without being observed. When he was weighed and came to settle up, it was discovered that the house owed him $3.75. This would seem to indicate that the eating house man had invested in a "blind pool."

An Unfilled Programme. Cleveland Voice.

At a country dance where printed programmes were in use for the first time, shortly after supper a young man approached a lady and said: "Is your programme full, miss?"

"Do you want to insult me, sir?"

"No, indeed, miss. I only wanted to know if your programme is full."

"Well, you're not a gentleman, sir, or you'd mind your own business. Full! I should say not. I didn't eat anything but a very small piece of ehicken and just a few bites of cake."

A FRENCH chemist has invented a method of preserving bodies at a DO NOT BUY ANY OTHER BEFORE much less cost than embalming, by rubbing tnem over with plumbagine and then exposing them to a bath of zinc, copper, or even silver and gold. If desired, the bath can be prolonged until the corpse is as hard as granite: Needles, oils and parts for machines. It will save the expense of wakes and funerals, and every man can be his own statue. By this means families can be preserved from generation to generation.
