Ike Stockton.

The following letter was written to the Denver Republican by C. O. Ziegenfuss, city editor of that paper from Durango. This paper has done more injury to Eskridge and Stockton than all other sources combined in days gone by. The spirit of justification which this paper shows now is to be commended. The correction appears much more graceful coming from the source which has done most harm:

While in Durango a few days ago a representative of the Republican was confronted in his rooms at the Inter Ocean hotel by a pleasant faced, mild-mannered gentleman, who said he had a grievance. He was asked to be seated, and in the meantime his measure taken. The visitor was but twenty-nine years of age; but looked five or six years older. He measured five feet four inches, was compactly built, and weighed 164 pounds. He wore a neat goatee and moustache, and had grayish-blue eyes. The face was a mild one, and rather attractive. There certainly was nothing repulsive or brutal about it. The man was neatly dressed, in his shirt he wore plain round gold studs and carried a silver watch secured by a silver chain. He was an innocent-looking man and totally unarmed.

WHO HE WAS.

This man proved to be the famous Ike Stockton, an alleged murderer and criminal. His grievance was that the press of the country had branded him as a murderer, thief and outlaw, and a desperado of the worst type. Turning his face full upon the writer, he said: "You have come down here into my home; you will mingle with the best people here; all I mingle with the best people nere; and ask is an inquiry into my character and my conduct since here, and publish what you find without prejudice." The proposition seemed like a fair one, and during till 8:30. HIS CAREER.

Stockton is a Texan, a man brought up on the plains among cattle and cattlemen, and in early years took part in sev eral scrimmages with the Comanches. Cleburne, Texas, is his home. He removed thence to Colfax county, New Mexico, in 1874. Here he was engaged in various enterprises, but was never known to have committed a criminal act. In 1879 he settled on the lower Animas. in Rio Arriba county, New Mexico, about forty miles from Durango, following stock raising and living in peace with his

BEGINNING OF THE FEUD.

In November of last year Stockton returned to Texas for the purpose of buy-ing stock, and expected to be absent all winter. Near his old home on the Ani mas lived his brother, Port Stockton, with wife and three children. In January a party of lynchers stopped at Port Stock ton's house, killing him outright by shoot ing, and wounded his wife so that she is a cripple for life. Learning these facts, Ike at once returned to Durango, for the purpose of investigating into the matter.

Stockton declared he was not a thief. or a murderer. He had never killed a man unless Ute or Comanche, and then in warfare. So far as stealing cattle was concerned he had never done any of it. He had never sold a pound of beef in Colorado. Never sold a cow in Durango. There were lots of thieves in the country who did steal, and did it under cover of this feud. But Stockton's party had no more to do with these than they had with the Ute murderers or Allison's stage rob-

Then follows a history of the Farming ton troubles, with which all here are fa miliar, and the correspondent proceeds: Stockton and Eskridge are anxious for a speedy and fair trial. They have offered to surrender themselves on these condi-

In Durango public sympathy is entirely with Stockton. He is regarded as a quiet peaceable and enterprising citizen. s looked upon as a persecuted man. He has so often displayed great bravery and noble qualities that no one believes him capable of a mean or cowardly act. The avenging of his brother's death has become a fixed purpose of his life, and unless the law interposes, Ike may, too, die a violent death, or deal it out to the murderers of his brother. He resides in Animas City, a few miles from Durango, and has a pleasant home, over which a fair ests. He says he has about forty assessfaced and pleasant young wife presides, and has two children, one six years old and the other eighteen months. Hunter has left the country, but he never belonged to Stockton's party. Public sympathy is so decidedly with Stockton that he can never be arrested in La Plata county unless a fair, honest trial is guaranteed him. If he should be arrested and taken to Rio Arriba county it would be equivalent to executing him, and the people of La Plata will not permit it. The writer found Stockton anything but a ruffian, and was impressed with the truthfulness of his story.

Gov. William Gilpin, who responded to a toast at the recent banquet, was one of the earliest explorers of southern and southwestern Colorado. During the fall of 1846, in the midst of the Mexican war, he led two companies of United States troops over about the same territory that is now traversed by the San Juan division of the Denver & Rio Grande, and thus gained substantial victories for his government. All this section was then Mexican territory. The freight receipts at the Denver & Rio Grande Railway, in this city, have been enormous, during the past week. Three freight trains, consisting of from twenty-five to thirty loaded cars each, have come in daily, and the men employ-ed at the freight office have been over whelmed with work. The average daily freight receipts, during the week, have been $3,000. The freight house is full of goods for our merchants that the draymen have not yet been able to haul off.

From the Lake City Register. On the Ulay good headway is still being made in the drifts east and west on the sixth level; 120 feet of drifting has been done since June 1. In the drift west of shaft 58 feet have been driven through a splendid vein averaging 21 feet of mineral. This drift is now past the line of winze sinking from fifth level. It is expected to connect this winze in about two weeks; two splendid blocks of stoping ground will then add their production to

For years a few old prospectors have known the existence on the Ute reservaion of some of the richest gold digging in Colorado, but owing to the Utes hav ing control of the valuable mineral lands, it has never been developed, hence the extent of it is not generally known only o those who have ventured to explore the hidden treasures. But now the fields will soon be open to all, and the prospectors will flock in and open up this counry, the development of which will astonish even those who are most familiar with that section.

True, the first accident of any special magnitude is yet to occur, but there is constant danger which grows as the confidence of train men become more established and leads to indifference of reckless daring. Some Points in the Early History of Rico. From the Durango Record.

We are indebted to J. L. Pennington, Begole, subsequently the discoverer of the celebrated Mineral Farm, near Ouray, prospected all over the present site of Rico, and found large bodies of ore, par taking rather of the character of galena, but they seemed to carry so much zinc, and to be so poor in silver, that after spending the summer in that neighborood, he became discouraged, and came over into what is now San Juan county, Having still the recollection of the fall before. fresh in his mind, he took a short cut from Silverton, to the point, since rendered famous as the site of Rico, the Rich, where he located the Grand View, and the Valley View, on what is now known as 'Nigger Baby" hill.

His work on these veins, developed such richness, that their fame attracted the attention of the public, and by the 1st something like two hundred cabins were abroad and attracted the attention of can italists both east and west, and within six months, from the location of the Grand View mine, Sandy Campbell and his partner, Mr. Humaston, had sold out to a California company, of which Senator Jones is one, for $125,000.

In the spring of 1879, the California company commenced developing the Grand View on a large scale. The output of the mine and the richness of the ore, eemed to justify the farther expense of building what is now known as the Grand View smelter, but through the incompetency of the management, both scientific and financial, it has been a failure, up to the present time.

This season, under a new management, it seems to promise more favorable results. The mines now being developed, such as the Grand View, the Puzzle, the Puzzle Extension, the Wabash, the Newman, the Chestnut, the Swansea and a dozen others all of which are well known as large producers of rich ore, to say nothing of hundreds of good prospects, which are daily developing into mines, assure a brilliant future for Rico, and will without doubt, render her a second Leadville, in the near future.

Journalism.

For young and unknown men journalsm is what it always has been—a stern and pitiless stepmother. In England the field is very crowded; the opportunities of advancement few and scarce; and, if I had a son to "place" in the world, I would do all that I could to dissuade him from choosing a career fraught with so many uncerta sies and dangers. Whatever may be its drawbacks, it manages to obtain a very tight hold upon its votaries, high and low, rich and poor. It may satisfy one's ambition or disappoint it; it may pay or it may not pay; one may praise it or abuse it—but as for abandonng it when once you have got married to it—you cannot do it. I have known men to take to newspaper writing when they were very poor, and become rich; not, alas! by newspaper work, and they never lost their love of writing. The rattle of the spring press is to the journalist who has once "taken" the complaint, what the smell of the footlights is to the ld actor. The actor's feeling is intelligiole enough, for he gets instant recognition and applause; his reward is immedi ate. The journalist has no such golden chains to hold him to his calling, and yet e does hold to it and work very hard at t, through many sore discouragements. Such men I have known, in New York as well as in London; men whose whole souls were in their work, and who would have succeeded in any profession, and done honor to it. In the office which I knew best in New York there were at least a dozen such men, some in comparatively hard and thankless positions. They might have made more money at some other business, but I doubt whether any of them would voluntarily have forsaken their first choice.—London Correspondence N. Y. World.

RICO, COLORADO,

UNITED STATES COURT.

The people of the several towns throughout the San Juan and Southwestern Colorado should consider the labors and heavy expenses attached to attend ing the United States Court at Del Norte Del Norte doubtless covers a sufficient scope of territory in and near to the San Luis Valley, to justify the establishment of the U.S. court at that point, but the place is so far from the territory embracing Lake City, Capitol, Silverton, Howardsville, Eureka, Ouray, San Miguel City, Durango, and Rico, and other San Juan towns, that it is wholly impracticable for the accommodation of the several thousand people residing at the various seats of mining litigation. The number of people interested in mining in the San Juan will equal if not exceed the male population of its territory, thus giving us a large number of foreign corporations and non-resident mine owners, of whom ninety per cent invariably carry all litigation to the United States court for de-

Proper persons should immediately take steps to procure the establishment of the United States Court at some point most convenient to the greater number of San Juan residents.

While Rico is as suitably situated and deserving as any other town, we will not make a claim; we have but little other than our share of the richest mines in the world, and ask for but little more. If Southern Colorado shall have but one place for holding the United States court the News suggests Durango as the most convenient place for all; if we shall have two places, which the circumstances de mand, Rico will gladly submit to the popular desire of San Juan's people, as to where the new or second location shall be. How do our neighbors feel?

From the Surveying Camp. IN CAMP ON WEST DOLORES, }

August 9, 1881. EDITOR DOLORES NEWS:

"A southerly wind and a cloudy sky" took the trail about the same time that I did on Monday last and kept pace with me until I crossed the range and had reached that most beautiful valley, the valley of the West Dolores. Humboldt is time he gazed on the tropical splendors of the Amazon, "beautiful, beautiful, and beyond that beautiful past all whopping." I was not there, so I can't vouch for the quotation, but the same sentiments repeated themselves to my mind a hundred towards camp, every turn bringing some per ton. w beauty in sight only to be eclipsed self, is far from devoid of natural beauty, but the main valley cannot compare with this hunter's paradise; this prince of trout streams. From its source in Mount Wilson its windings will probably cover some forty miles, and there is not a mile but has its own charm, whether one looks with an artist's eye on the dense mass of variegated foliage, which rises on either hand till a bold line of rocks cuts the sky line, 2,000 feet overhead; or with the eye tracks, the fresh beaver and bear signs; or with the eye of fisherman or gourmand on the long shell reaches, the foam freckled riffles, or the deep pools, as the probthousand pities, its beauties should only be known to a few hunters and trappers. The sun was just behind the western bluffs as I made camp and was assailed with a hundred inquiries after old friends; these, and numberless others answered, I found time to ask after the state of the stream and gleaned the following: Mr. Dana had, on the day previous, trolled up stream and accounted for 61 fine fish, a dozen of which would have weighed as many pounds. On six separate occasions Mr. Dana landed two fish at once; his best fish would scale over 11 pounds. Mr. Hunter, being also a mighty nimrod, returned on the same occasion with a heavy string, whilst our mutual friend, Harry Requa, upheld Chicago's honor with a good catch of speckled beauties. Alas, history repeats itself, the children of Israel had quails on toast until their olfactory nerves were offended, and we were reluctantly compelled to bury a good twenty pounds of fresh trout for fear our noses would be offended. Nicely brown ed trout, a side dish of deer's liver, a pan of fresh gooseberries stewed in milk, me back to camp, and were it not that rebellious thoughts would fly backward and recall the warm welcomes of Rico's many friends, I should have been the most contented of men, as it was, when we gathered round the fire and regardless of prowling Ute made the hills echo with some of our old time songs. "How can I leave thee," seemed to go straight home, and "Soft o'er the Fountain," was ren Springs on the 9th inst., the Silver Cliff 1 6 Blue lode

The infer ence to be deduced from this, is, that after the 1st of September no use will be made of the Los Pinos agency, and the 1 Uncompangre Utes will then be en route for their new reservation in Utah.

The Dolores Valley Co. is making very extensive improvements about their office 500 and grounds. An addition has been built on their already large building and a piazza is now being built around the entire front of the main building and wings. A large building, 75 feet long, has been erected to be used as a stable, carriage house, granery and assaying room. The house and outbuildings will be enclosed by a neat picket fence, making it the prettiest place in Rico.

A GOOD MINER WANTS a First-Class Pick

AND AN EQUALLY GOOD SHOVEL.

His experience is that is next to impossible to get them in a new camp. We have handled such goods for thirteen years, and through the acquaintance we have had with the best miners in the United States we have been able to obtain the best patterns and induce manufacturers to make the goods as we want them. The "Collins" Pick and "Moore" Shovel are made after these patterns, and are perfect in shape and quality.

The Pick has four inches of best steel on each point, not a small bit as most picks have; and the Shovel is made stiff, half spring and full spring, and with a "hang" that will deliver its load in the easiest manner for the miner.

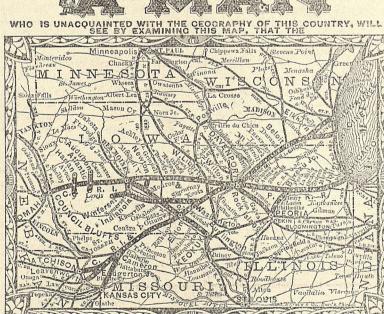

We are the only house in the state that carries a full stock of GROCER's and BUTCH-

ER'S HARDWARE for fitting up stores; Scales, Trucks, Oil Tanks, Coffee Mills, Meat Cutters, Stuffers, Saws, and everything else needed. We shall be glad to hear from any Miner, Grocer or Butcher, in regard to these goods, as well as from anybody requiring anything in the Hardware or House-Furnishing lines.
