WATER FOR A CONTINENT

One of the world' biggest engineering construction firms has proposed a detailed water and power development plan to serve virtually all of North America.

It would meet much of the continent's foreseeable water needs for 100 years, including those of northern Mexico.

It would pay for itself in half that time at an estimated cost, including financing, of $100 billion.

It would make possible eight times as much new irrigated land in Mexico as the Aswan High Dam will be giving Egypt.

WATER FOR CANADA

It would give extra water to two Canadian provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan, as well as big blocks of power clear across Canada to Quebec.

It would double California's water supply, give large additional supplies to Texas and to the mountain states, and even send some to the Eastern Seaboard.

It would increase by 50 percent the hydro electric power output of Niagra Falls, lifting the water level of the great Lakes in the process.

It might, indeed, open up the Northwest Passage that history says was a lodestar to the exploration of this continent and make transcontinental ship navigation really possible.

ALLIANCE FORPOWER

The Ralph M. Parsons Company of Los Angeles, since its organization in 1944, has been building space faciliies, water transmission systems, electronics equipment, petroleum and nuclear plants, and mining operations all over the world. Its staff of engineers, scientists, draftsmen, technicians, etc., numbers 2500. Its 5000 field construction workers bring its total force to 7500.

It wants to help North America develop a water plan of the dimensions just described.

It calls its water project, the North American Water Power Alliance (NAWAPA).

While Parsons wants to play a leading role in the project, the company recognizes there must be complex operations, international treaties, many private participants, and doubtless much government action.

RESERVOIR PROPOSED

Briefly, the plan would convert the so-called Rocky Mountain trench of British Columbia, adjacent to Banff and Jasper National Parks, into a 500 mile long storage preservoir. It collects about 20 percent of the surplus water from the Frazier, Yukon, Peace, Athabasca, and other rivers.

The canal system would cut across Canada to Lake Superior, providing a navigable waterway from Vancouver, B. C. Another, by an intricate series of lift pump systems, would flow south. It would parallel the Colorado River at one point. It would bridge across it at another. In all it would form the basis for water distribution into Mexico, Texas, the mountain area and the West Coast region.

All in all, the plan would bring supplementary water to 33 of the United States.

TOTAL CONCEPTION

Parsons engineers feel that, while the ultimate execution of this does not depend on any one set of detailed plans, the important thing is the total conception. It must be planned and carried out, they say, as a single project. In view of indications that water development now costs the United States approximately $10 billion annually Parsons people do not see cost as a real obstacle. One hundred million kilowatts of power, yielding about $4 billion in gross income, would be produced. Even this big output, Parsons people say, would equal only 10 percent of the additional power that North America will be needing by 1980.

2. Augment flow of Rio Grande at El Paso by return flows from NAWAPA, irrigated New Mexico famlands. This flow is assigned entirely to El Paso and Cuidad Juarez. Chihuahua.

3. Increase and stabilize flows of the Pecos River and Rio Grande River, permitting generation of approximately 1,400,000 Kilowatts of power.

4. Make feasible a barge canal from El Paso to the Gulf of Mexico via the Rio Grande.

5. Increase Agricultural income approximately $400,000,000 annually.

6. Increase total income at least $1,000,000,000 annually, considering direct benefits only.

7. Support an additional population of 2,000,000.

NOTICE Mrs. Joe Chase called The Independent and asked that an appeal be made to friends and the public to assist them in this time of need.

Mrs. Chase has a neice, whom she has raised and who has spent most of her life in the School for Retarded children in Abilene. Beth is sixteen years of age. A new treatment for retarded children and stroke victims has come from Philadelphia and now Texas has a center at San Antonio. The Hindergardt's son responded well to the treatment which is a pattern treatment and for a person as old as sixteen, it takes five adults to exercise the patient twice each day. The As many of you know, treatment is very simple and isn't strenous.

The Chases's need teams of four to come each morning for one hour and for one hour in the afternoon. Beth will be taken back at the end of two months for re-evaluation. If you can help, you may call FI 7-2627. They live about 15 miles northeast of Gruver.

Weather Report

A.W. Evans, official Weather Observer for the area reports that .85 inches of rain was received on Tuesday evening. This represents most of the moisture that has fallen during July.

This will be especially helpful to the maize, soybeans and other crops that were beginning to show signs of needing rain after the heavy rains in June. In the Morse area, .55 inches had fallen previously Sunday afternoon. On Public Service in Gruver, Wednesday the sky was still overcast as the paper goes to press.

by Pastor Robert Cordes

CAN I BE CERTAIN OF MY SAL VATION?

"THE WAY I SEE

This is and has been a problem of many down through the ages. The answer is yes, you can be sure of your salvation.

Such certainty rests upon the completed work of Jesus for our salvation. "It is finished!" He cried on the cross. His work was done. Faith accepts the completed salvation and enters into possession of it. That ends uncertainty.

This faith rests upon the promises of God, and can be joyful and secure only as long as it abides in Christ. It does not rest upon feelings or emotions. They vary from day to day. The Word of God and its Promises never change. To the Word I must constantly return if I am to have a true certainty of my salvation. Emotions and feelings go up and down like a roller coaster. One day we feel close to the Lord. The next day we've acted sinfully and feel God could never love us.Then, my friend, get your eyes off of yourself, off of your feelings and emotions and gaze again at God's promises. "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are the sons of God" (Rom.8:14); "The Spirit bears witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." (Rom-8:16). "For God so loved the world that He gave His fee and cake was served.

only begotten Son that whoever believes in Him will not perish but have everlasting life." (John 3:16) Hundreds of other promises are given in God's Word. We are the Lord's because the Lord makes us His child --- not because of the way we act, or the way wefeel. Our feelings can fool us. So rest in the promise of God. Get your eyes off of your feelings and know for sure you are His child--baptized into His name, believing He died for you, Why should you doubt?...unless you listen to the devil who wants you to doubt and feel fearful. Now our life will daily be brought more and more under the harmony of God's ways.

Peaches must look good to bo good. Select peaches that are firm, plump, free from blemishes, well-developed in size and yellowish in color. At this stage, they will continue to ripen.

Handle peaches with care, for they bruise easily. A bushel of peaches yields about 20 quarts when frozen.

An easy method to peel peaches is to cover them with boiling water. Let stand for a minute. then with a paring knife strip off the skins.

Many of the peaches now on the market are brushed and washed before packing. Generally, these do not really need peeling before they go into a pie or are eaten out-of-hand.

Peanut butter must nowcontain at least 90 percent peanuts according to a revised food standard just announced by the Food and Drug Administration.

There was no standard regulating the peanut content of products mark eted as peanut butter until this revised ruling. In the past, it has ranged as low as 78 percent, FDA officialshave a request for a public hearing based on legally valid objections. "hardened." In the event that the peanut butter is made from unblanched, peanuts, the label must bear a conspicuous statement such as "Prepared from unblanched peanuts (skins left on)."

The standard also provides that the common names of suitable optional ingredients shall be set out on the principal display panel so that they will like-

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

The new standard allows 10 percent for optional ingredients which, with proper label declarations, may be used to create products with eating qualities accepable to a wide variety of consumers. Such in gredients include seasonings and hydrogenated peanut and cottonseed oils to reduce oil separation and counteract the tendency of peanut butter to stick to the roof of the mouth.

All optional ingredients used, however, must be declared on the label. The new standard will become effective 60 days after the announcement was made July 8, unless there's
