FARMERS UNION FAVORS JFK FARM BILL

Denton — Texas Farmers Union President Alex Dickie, today endorsed the principles of the Kennedy Farm Bill. Dickie stated that in effect the enabling act for the agriculture in 1961 does for farmers what the government did for business and labor many years ago.

Farm Bill gives the farmer authority for marketing orders for all farm commodities marketing quotas, production payments, commodity loans, commodity purchases, incentive payments, or any of the several devices that might be used by the farmer to price his commodity in line with cost of production and a return on his labor and investment.

The bill is enabling legislation and only entitles the farmers to use the various devices if they so desire. It is not mandatory and is left entirely to the commodity committee as to what devices, if any, they choose to use in attaining an equitable bargaining position. Once the proposed legislation for a commodity is drafted, approved by the Secretary, President and Congress, it is then submitted in referendum to the farmers for a minimum of two-thirds favorable vote before it becomes law. This would eliminate guessing whether a majority of the farmers approve the legislation or disapprove.

Dickie stated it was totally unconceivable to him how any group professing to represent the best interest of farmers could oppose this free choice, do-it-yourself type of approach encompassed in the Kennedy Farm Bill. "No doubt there will be compromises in some of the details of the proposed en-

Mr. and Mrs. George Boyles and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McKay of Amarillo spent Sunday with the Everett Boyles', Mr. and Mrs. Dud Watters and Mrs. H. G. Boyles of Silverton also visited their parents Mr. and Mrs. Everett Boyles Sunday.

MRS. J. R. SCOTT RITES HELD MONDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. J. R. (Bob) Scott, 68, were conducted at 10:00 A. M. Monday morning in the First Baptist Church of Memphis, with the Rev. Fern A. Miller, pastor, officiating.

Mrs. Scott, a long-time resident of Hall County, died at noon Friday in Baylor Hospital in Dallas.

She was born July 19, 1862, in Aspermont in Stonewall County. She was Prudie Beatrice Crowder until her marriage to J. R. Scott on December 12, 1909 at Aspermont.

The couple came to Hall County in January of 1914. Mr. Scott died in January of this year. She lived at 1615 W. Brice in Memphis.

Mrs. Scott was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. Gladys Smith of Memphis, Mrs. Vona Williams of Dumas, Mrs. Bessie Lee Staples of Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Gwendolyn Brownlee of Lancaster, Texas; three sons, Courtney D. of Idaho Falls, Ida., W. O. of Memphis, and Leroy of Quitaque; 20 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery under the direction of Spicer Funeral Home of Memphis.

abling legislation by in basic principle believe that almost all farmers in the United States are in basic agreement with the principle of the bill."

The only opposition voiced so far to the bill from among farm organizations has been the Farm Bureau, and of course, such other non-farm groups as the National Association of Manufacturers, Chamber of Commerce, and the Republican Party. Mr. Schuman, President of the American Farm Bureau, before the House Agricultural Committee did not suggest any amendments to the bill, but flatly stated that the bill was not consistent with the objectives of the Farm Bureau and that it would be useless to try to suggest improving amendments.

Many of the national farm organizations have agreed to support either by testifying or filing of statement in behalf of the general objectives of the Agricultural Act of 1961. This joint statement was signed by the following organizations: American Cotton Producers Association, American Tung Oil Association, Association of Virginia Peanut and Hog Growers, Grain Sorghum Producers Association, National Association of Wheat Growers, National Corn Growers Association, National Farmers Organization, and the Plains Cotton Growers.

The basic objective of the Kennedy Farm Bill is to increase net farm income consistent with a balanced program for the betterment of all our citizens.

Proposed increases in money order and special delivery fees starting July 1, 1961, were announced recently by Postmaster General J. Edward Day.

No changes for special delivery fees for first class mail are planned.

Special delivery fees for second, third and fourth class matter will be increased by 10 cents in each of the non-first class fee brackets.

The increases for this service are expected to yield about $25 million in additional postal revenues, based on the current special delivery volume.

Money orders upto $5 and over $50 will be increased by 5 cents. The new money order schedule will combine the present 15-cent and 20-cent fee brackets into one at 20 cents. It also splits the present 30-cent bracket at the $50 level, raising to 35 cents the fee for denominations up to $100. This change will effect over 100 million money order transactions. Based on this volume, new revenues would total about $5 million.

These proposed changes can be put into effect by Postmaster Gen. Day under his existing administrative authority. Similar action was taken recently to adjust postal rates for mail going to foreign countries.

These actions are part of the Post Office Department's program to place the Postal Service in a more favorable fiscal position, in accordance with the Postal Policy Act of 1958.

The Postmaster General is also requesting the Congress to take legislative action with regard to first, second and third class mail to eliminate the revenue deficiency gap of $741 million.

Litter tossed on Texas highways and roadsides has to be hand-picked. No machine can do this chore. Last year the clean-up and mowing bill for 57,500 maintained miles of Texas highways totaled more than $7,000,000.

Texas Highway Department

AUSTIN, TEXAS, May 18 — The Texas Highway Department today launched a new slogan in its anti-litter campaign: "Be a neatnik, not a litterbug."

This plea comes from Texas Highway Department maintenance crews all over the state as they haul mountains of cans, bottles, paper, decaying food, and other litter from Texas highway right of way.

"Spring houseclean our Texas highways all year long by fighting that urge to toss litter from your car," they recommend.

Throwing litter on highways and roadsides is prohibited by law. Last year 281 cases against litter-throwing were completed in Texas courts. Of this number, 269 were found guilty and were fined or punished by other means.

Highway maintenance men point out that litter is local for the main part, coming from resident litterbugs and not from out-of-staters or from phantom travelers from "up the road." Surveys reveal that the litterbug is a local person, possibly a civic-minded citizen in all other phases of his life, but he fails to see the multiplication factor when he tosses out an empty cigarette package, wad of paper, or soft-drink bottle. He would not toss these objects down in his own yard, or in a friend's; but he will thoughtlessly take over the highway as his own private trashbasket.

Other evidence of the "resident litterbug" is sometimes a can-and-bottle trail. Maintenance foremen report that the biggest dead-soldier tossouts are about a drink away (by car) from the nearest local emporium. Cost of removal has been estimated at one-half cent per can. Maintenance crews join poet Richard Armour in his hurry-up order to science for an edible beer can.

Maintenance men point out: No machine can pick up litter. It has to be hand picked. That makes it an expensive operation. Last year the clean-up and mowing bill for 57,500 maintained miles of Texas highways totaled more than $7,000,000. This included picking up, hauling, and unloading rubbish. Another chore for maintenance men is the removal of dead animals, removal of rocks and rock piles. Wrecked cars must be hauled off. Advertising signs in the right of way must be taken down. Maintenance crews are also responsible for mowing the grass, removing brush, and keeping vegetation from the highway markers and guard posts.

A maintenance foreman explains, "We could do our job so much quicker and save money if we did not have to pick up all the cans, bottles, and litter before we start. A heap of litter hidden in the grass can wreck an expensive machine or an automobile. Cutting grass is more than just trying to keep a neat highway yard. Mowing reduces fire hazard and prevents spreading of weed seed to nearby farms. Tall grass and brush can also distort sight distances and result in expensive and tragic automobile smash-ups."

"Take a count of the litter objects you see the next time you are on the road. Even though we have regular maintenance crews making periodic litter pickups, that busy litterbug is still way ahead of us. Help us out. Be a 'neatnik.' Litter? Don't throw it; stow it—till you get a proper disposal unit."

Prepared by American Foundation for Animal Health

A livestock disease which was widespread on American farms a few years ago is again staging a comeback, and farmers will want to keep up to date on it if they own horses, ponies or mules.

The disease is encephalomyelitis or "sleeping sickness." It has shown such a sharp increase that one state now requires annual vaccination against it.

What are the signs of sleeping sickness which a farmer should watch for? Chief signs include listlessness, sleepiness, incoordination and paralysis. Generally the first thing noticed will be sluggishness. The horse's lips may be loose and droopy. Muscle spasms also may be seen. Later, affected animals stand dejectedly, move reluctantly and awkwardly, grind their teeth, stretch their necks. Just before death, sick horses may lie on their sides and make bicycling movements with their legs.

If any of these symptoms are noticed, a veterinarian should be called at once. Speed in treatment is vital if the animal is to be saved. Also, encephalomyelitis can be passed on to the farmer and his family, making precautions doubly important.

There are two types of the disease. The Eastern type may cause deaths in up to 80 per cent of the cases, while the mortality rate with the Western type usually ranges from 20 to 25 per cent.

There are vaccines to provide immunity against each type, and in areas where both types are found, a combination vaccine is used.

Annual vaccination is the chief means of preventing encephalomyelitis. Although the disease is chiefly one of horses, ponies and mules, it also affects certain other animals, as well as humans and birds.

The virus causing the disease is transmitted by mosquitoes. Reservoirs of the disease include wild birds, ducks, chickens, ticks and chicken mites. Besides protective vaccination of horses, ponies and mules, preventive measures should include a mosquito control program and the use of spraying on animals with insecticides.

HI-PLAINS HI-LIGHTS

The High Plains Research Foundation is extending its private enterprise research program into the field of grasses and legumes. The Board of Trustees of the Foundation, realizing the need for additional grasses and legumes that could be used in farming and ranching throughout West Texas, recently approved the new research program.

This research endeavor is being initiated to develop improved varieties of grasses and legumes that would be adapted to both dryland and irrigated farming and ranching.

The Foundation has received international recognition through the cooperation of scientists from all over the world. These scientists have sent direct to Halfway not only the grasses and legumes but also many varieties of crops for the Foundation's research program. Included are: cotton, grain sorghum, soy beans, sesame, corn and peanuts.

Sixty-six different crop and range grasses, and one-hundred and fourteen legumes have just been planted in the new research program. Some of the seed came from the Central Rainland Experiment Station in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Others from Amman, Jordan; Montpellier, Herault, France; Morocco; and Johannesburg, South Africa. Included also are grasses and legumes from throughout the United States.

"These new programs are a part of the search for new crops for the area," Dr. Earl H. Collister, Chief Agronomist, said when he announced that the grasses and legumes planting had taken place.

"Finding new grasses and legumes for West Texas is of interest not only to the livestock industry, but also to farmers searching for additional crops. Deep-rooted grasses and legumes will be beneficial by adding humus to the soil and also improve the tilth and structure of the soil," Dr. Collister said.

Dwain Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Owens is recuperating from a collapsed lung at their home this week. He suffered this attack last Tuesday morning.

Mrs. John Rogers took her grandson, Walter Wayne Taylor, to Plainview Saturday to have his glasses repaired.
