GAS REGULATION AT THE CROSSROADS

I urged my colleagues in the House and Senate this week to take a fresh look at Government politics regulating the natural gas industry—the Nation's sixth largest and certainly a keystone industry in our Panhandle economy. I addressed myself to the matter because this week marked the tenth anniversary of a decision by the Supreme Court that independent natural gas producers selling in interstate commerce are subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

For ten years, the Federal Power Commission has engaged in experimental regulatory actions affecting the natural gas industry. The result has been confusion and uncertainty working to the detriment of the industry and to the consuming public.

Government, I reminded my colleagues in an address which appeared in the Congressional Record, cannot play games with business and expect business to survive, to grow, to expand in the future. The situation involving regulation of the natural gas industry today is the condition which destroys public confidence in our governmental process. It gnaws at the very vitals of Government because it demonstrates monstrous inability to govern.

The most significant of this 88th Congress was enactment of the tax cut, a reaffirmation of the ability of our free enterprise system to provide capital and stimulus needed for economic growth. While Congress took this important step, surely one of the most historic in the field of economic policy since World War II, it continued to neglect steps to correct abuses in the areas of regulatory policy.

Natural gas is assuming increased importance both in our daily lives and in our modern technology. Today, there are more than 25,000 industrial uses for natural gas and in many industries it is absolutely essential to operations. New uses are being developed constantly. And yet, the ten years of confusion over regulatory policy affecting natural gas has been accompanied by a decline in the ratio of natural gas reserves to production to its lowest point in history at the end of 1963. The price of natural gas at the wellhead has increased markedly under the wavering FPC policies. Consumers are paying the bill, just as they have paid for and are paying the bill for long and costly hearings on litigation which seeks to clarify the matter.

I believe it is essential that Congress take a fresh look at the role of regulation and its effect on the future of natural gas. We must create an effective, stable, sound policy which will serve the overwhelming public interest of adequate supplies at reasonable cost. It is time for new thinking and new action.

The "Festival of Gas" pavilion at the New York World's Fair is a dramatic example of research progress being made by the natural gas industry. The pavilion is heated, cooled and electrically-powered by a "total energy package." The gas industry is making it possible for large areas—industrial complexes, shopping centers, apartment houses, airports—to provide in one package all the energy needed for heating, cooling and electricity. Scientists are now working on a "fuel cell" in which gas is employed in the chemical manufacture of electricity, and this research looks to a day when a householder, with a "fuel cell" in his basement or garage, could provide from that single unit all his power requirements.

Both the electric and gas industries have become so vital to the American economy, and competitive with each other, that we must seriously question whether policies affecting their future development should be left to the regulatory handling of a single Government agency.

Either the regulatory process must be divided to reflect today's realities, or Congress must spell out in detail a modern concept for natural gas regulation which will acknowledge all factors and pierce the artificial dam of confusion which now exists. I believe the objective of modern regulatory policy can be achieved.

2.54 Rain Falls Here

Gentle, soaking rains came to the Panhandle last weekend, and Quitaque received very beneficial amounts. As far as has been reported to The Tribune the rains were general, with around the same amounts reported in all directions.

James Brunson, who keeps the official gauge for the City, reported that 2.54 inches was caught in the official gauge.

Quitaque fortunately missed the severe weather that plagued some of the Panhandle area. Early last Thursday morning lightning struck the high line between the Charlie Gowin and E. J. Hamilton farms, knocking the lines down and leaving everyone west of there without electricity for about an hour and a half. When the lightning it knocked a hole in the gas line in the E. J. Hamilton kitchen and also set the gas spewing from the break afire. Tubby said the only thing that kept the house from catching fire was the fact that the kitchen walls are constructed of tile.

Most gauges, however, measured more than that amount, but regardless of which gauge you look at the rains were of the million dollar variety, for it was dry here, and many farmers did not have any seed in the ground and time was running out.

Some had cotton up when the rains came and that is looking good. Some had cotton in the ground that has come up since the rain, along with the weeds. Some of the farmers have indicated that they will plant this cotton over in order to get rid of the weeds, while others have preferred to keep their cotton and fight the weeds rather than taking a chance on having to plant over if more rains should come. Farmers are grateful to have a choice in the matter. It was beginning to appear to some that they were not going to get a choice.

It would perhaps be incorrect to say that the drought here is broken, but at least it can be said that it has been at least temporarily halted and our valley is turning green and the streets of Quitaque have been almost deserted all this week except for those who work in town.

MRS. STROUP HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Dora Stroup returned home Saturday after spending another week in Plainview Hospital and Clinic. She is reported to be feeling much better.

HIGHWAY PATROL REPORT

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated one accident on rural highways in Briscoe County during the month of May, according to Sergeant W. E. Wells, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

This wreck accounted for an estimated property damage of $20.00.

The rural accident summary for Briscoe County from January through May, 1964 shows a total of 8 crashes resulting in no persons killed, 4 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $6,395.00.

The Sergeant expressed serious concern over the increase in fatal motor vehicle traffic accidents and deaths throughout the state.

"For the first five months of 1964, 1025 persons have died in traffic, compared to 871 for the same period of 1963," the Sergeant stated. "This 18% increase is very alarming and when you realize our heavy volume traffic months are still ahead, we must anticipate increasing problems in the accident picture. There is an increase in all types of accidents throughout the state and it is something that merits our greatest concern," he said.

"The driving public must assist in the reduction of this trend if we are to turn it downward. Otherwise our death count at the end of the year will far exceed the record number of 2,729 deaths in Texas traffic during 1963. If you are driving, your life literally is in your hands so won't you help yourself and others by resolving not to become one of our statistics?" the Sergeant asked.

Mrs. Eldon Lyles spent Monday and until Tuesday afternoon in the Hall County Hospital last week. Some of the visitors to see her since her return home include her mother, Mrs. John Fuston of Turkey, who came Thursday; Mrs. Billy Lyles Tuesday afternoon and Mrs. Eugene Ferguson who came to pay her a visit on Friday. Both women are from Turkey.

1965 WHEAT-FEED GRAIN SUBSTITUTION ANNOUNCED

To permit greater flexibility in farm operations, substitutions between wheat and feed grains will be authorized under the 1965 programs, Louie Kitchens, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today. The program determination is announced early so that summer fallow operations for next year's crop may take place promptly.

Agricultural legislation provides for such substitution in the 1964 and 1965 wheat and feed grain programs, but it could not be put into effect for 1964 because of the lack of time.

The Chairman explained that the substitution will apply on individual farms only if the farm has a feed grain base or oat-rye base, and a wheat allotment. The substitution provisions may be used by producers who meet at least the minimum diversion for both wheat and feed grains.

As under this year's wheat program marketing certificates will be issued in 1965 to program cooperators; however, the number of certificates allocated to a farm will not be increased because of the substitution of wheat for feed grains. The certificates will be provided for the smaller of (1) the normal production of the wheat acreage allotment, multiplied by the domestic and export allocation percentages—which will be announced later, or (2) the wheat acreage planted for harvest multiplied by the normal yield.

The total wheat production of producers who carry out wheat program provisions will be eligible for price support loans even though the wheat acreage is in excess of the wheat allotment because of the substitution provisions.

When feed grains are grown in place of wheat, the feed grain production of program cooperators will be eligible for price-support loans. If price-support payments are authorized as a part of the 1965 feed grain program, substitution of feed grains for wheat will not increase the payments available; the price-support payments will be limited to the normal production of the feed grain base less the diverted acreage (at least the minimum diversion under the feed grain program).

If a producer requests it, an oat-rye base will be established on the basis of the farm's 1959-60 average oat-rye acreage as adjusted. Wheat may be substituted for such crops. However, corn, grain sorghum, or barley may not be planted as a substitute for the oat-rye base acreage. If an oat-rye base is established, the producer will need to meet the minimum diversion for it also.

ACCENT ON HEALTH

AUSTIN — Officially, summer doesn't arrive until the later part of June, but you couldn't tell it by the weather.

Hot weather is here for the summer, but if you follow a few simple health rules your summer can be a bit more bearable.

First of all, avoid heavy, fat-loaded meals. They are difficult to digest during hot weather. Emphasize fruit and vegetables on your summer menu rather than protein foods—eggs, fish and meat—which your body needs for fuel during the winter months.

Perspiration helps cool the body, but at the same time it drains the body of vital fluids. To replace these fluids, drink plenty of water and other liquids. Fruit juices are a pleasant way to make up the loss. But don't gulp down large amounts of ice water when you are overheated.

The body also loses salt through perspiration. Replace your salt loss at meals, or if your work or exercise causes you to sweat profusely, take salt tablets—about one every half hour with a glass of water.

Parents can place extra salt in children's diet with salted nuts or crackers plus a little added salt during meals.

portant role in keeping cool. Loose, light clothing is highly recommended for summertime wear. Normal body temperatures are dependent on the evaporation of sweat.

Avoid wearing clothes that inhibit evaporation. Also, remember that white or light colors are cooler than dark ones, since they do not absorb hot sun rays so readily.

Exercise is an essential part of a well-rounded, healthy life, but it can easily be overdone in the summer. Use common sense and start gradually if you are initiating a summer exercise program. Also, confine any long periods of hard work or active tennis games to the cooler parts of the day.

Swimming is one of the best summer sports, provided the proper safety rules are followed—including not swimming alone, getting chilled, waiting at least an hour after meals and avoiding tiredness.

All in all, summer can be one of the most enjoyable seasons of the year... provided you use your head as well as your body.

Two major items of business will be before the 8-state South Central Jurisdiction of The Methodist Church when it meets June 29 in Dallas at the First Methodist Church and the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

The conference will elect a bishop to fill the vacancy to be created by the retirement of Bishop Wm. C. Martin, who has served the North and Central Texas Conferences of The Methodist Church for 16 years. Bishop Martin also headed the Northwest Texas Conference for 12 years.

Also before the conference will be the General Conference Recommendations for integration of the geographical or "white" jurisdiction with the Central or "Negro" jurisdiction. The knotty problem before the delegates will center around the degree of integration to be recommended to the annual conferences.

Some favor transferring the Negro conferences as conferences into the South Central Jurisdiction. Others favor transferring the Negro congregations into the White annual conferences within the jurisdiction. A few whites and negroes may push for integration at the congregational level, but since Negroes may now join white congregations if they choose, a strong effort to merge existing white and negro congregations is not likely to develop.

The Jurisdictional Conference, which will be presided over by each of the bishops of the 8-state area, is under a mandate to develop a plan of voluntary integration of the Central Jurisdiction into the geographical jurisdictions by 1968. If integration has not been achieved by that date, the General Conference has asked a committee of 36 to bring a report to its 1968 session outlining mandatory abolition of the Central Jurisdiction. Acceptance of the report, however, would depend upon the action of the General Conference, and the acceptance of a constitutional amendment by the several annual conferences.

According to the rules adopted by the General Conference which met in Pittsburgh in April, the newly elected bishop cannot serve for at least four years in the area from which he was elected. A minister now serving in the North or Central Texas Conferences, if elected to the episcopacy, could not be assigned to the Dallas - Fort Worth area to succeed Bishop Wm. C. Martin. Assignment of bishops to the Episcopal Areas is made by the Committee on Episcopacy composed of laymen and ministers.

NEWS from the High Plains Research Foundation

Research results from mechanical topping of semi-open boll varieties of cotton indicate that the practice can be profitable to cotton producers in the High Plains of Texas, according to James Valliant, Water Engineer at the High Plains Research Foundation. Increases in net returns have approached 50 dollars per acre when compared to standard grown stormproof varieties of cotton.

The staple length was increased by topping, which may help expand the cotton market of the High Plains. Fertilizer response was increased when the cotton was topped. Other benefits obtained from mechanical topping are the elimination of the top foliage and small immature bolls which furnished food and shelter for insects. There is also uniform crop height for harvest.

Research tests indicate that topping of stormproof cotton is not considered profitable, Valliant said. Details of the cotton topping results on Gregg, Lockett 88-A, and Paymaster 88-90 for 1963 are available in the 1963 Foundation Research Report No. 112 on the "Comparison of Yield and Quality of Mechanically Topped Cotton with Untopped Cotton." Cotton topping research has been underway at the Foundation for the past three years.

"Farm Centered Research" on cotton topping is underway on a small acreage basis at the following farms, according to Valliant: Terry Green, Earth; Charles Frye, the Easter Community south of Hereford; and James Stair, Providence community northeast of Plainview. The following farmers are testing this practice in the immediate vicinity of the Foundation farm at Halfway: James McDaniel, Don Graham, and Claude Fargason.

At the Foundation, Valliant has enlarged the cotton topping research program to include 7 varieties for the year 1964. Five semi-open boll varieties in the research work at the Foundation are as follows: Paymaster 88-90, Paymaster 111, Austin, DeKalb 108 and Lockett 47-89. The long staple cottons in the cotton topping experiment include: Acala 442 and Acala 1517-BR2. These two varieties are popular in New Mexico and California.
