Motorcycles Collide Monday

Two persons were injured, one seriously, at 9:15 p.m. Monday when the motorcycles they were riding collided at the intersection of Loop 388 and Avenue L.

Injured in the mishap was 15 year old Wesley Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker of Shallowater and Clarence Eugene Dunn, Jr., 19, stationed at Reese Air Force Base.

The pair was rushed by ambulance to University Hospital where Walker was hospitalized and Dunn was treated and released to the base hospital.

At press time, a complete account of Walker's injuries was not available, but according to a local report, he had a dislocated shoulder, crushed left arm and severe face lacerations. Due to his condition, the doctors were unable to treat his injuries, at the present time, but it is reported he is to undergo surgery today to repair his shoulder and arm if at all possible.

Complete details of the accident were not available, due to the fact there were no witnesses, and the injured youths weren't able to be questioned by investigating officials at press time.

Officers investigating the accident were Police Chief Don Rackler, night patrolman James Harris, two officers from the Department of Public Safety and the Lubbock County sheriffs office.

Members of the Shallowater Fire Dept. stood by and washed down gasoline that spilled from the vehicles following the collision.

Damage to both motorcycles was heavy.

The 65th Annual Field Day and Open House of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station north of Lubbock has been set for Tuesday, Sept. 10. Highlighting the occasion will be a comprehensive review of recent developments in agricultural research.

Announcement of the upcoming field day activities was made by Dr. George McBee, resident director of TAES at Lubbock, and Dr. Darrell Rosenow, field day committee chairman and TAES associate professor in grain sorghum breeding.

According to Rosenow, members of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, ARS-USDA, National Weather Service and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be on hand to explain and demonstrate research efforts being conducted on the sprawling 320-acre site known as the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center. These agencies are based at the center, except for NWS whose agricultural meteorologist is officed there.

The site is located 7 1/2 miles north of Lubbock on Highway 87, just north of the Lubbock Regional Airport.

Field tours will begin at 1:00 p.m. with special evening tours from 5:30 to 6:30, said Rosenow.

Stops along the 35-minute tours of the station's research plots will include new developments in soil water research, soil fertility, short season, narrow row cotton, weed control research, and sorghum insect pest management.

The tours, via tractor-pulled trailers, will depart from the station headquarters every 15 minutes throughout the afternoon, allowing visitors to get on or off at any of the five field stops, Rosenow explained. A five-minute talk will be presented at each of the five stops.

The field day chairman added that weather equipment and farm machinery will be added attractions for public viewing. The ARS-USDA research gin just down the road also will be open to visitors.

Special evening tours from 5:30 to 6:30 will be staged for those unable to make the afternoon events, he said. Businessmen, agricultural industry representatives, and consumers interested in agricultural research are invited to take advantage of the special tours.

"We especially hope that urban-oriented citizens will come out for the field day since the efforts of agricultural scientists benefit them as much as the farmer and agri-businessman," Rosenow urged.

"Due to the recent problems arising from the increasingly critical water situation, insect damage and weather-related problems, many High Plains citizens will be particularly interested in what is being done in agricultural research," he concluded.

The field day annually attracts over 1,000 visitors. Free refreshments and parking assistance are provided.

Caran Conner Is New Reporter Here

Starting with next week's issue, Caran Conner will be taking the news for Suburban Today. She may be reached at 1111 8th Street or call 832-4479.

Caran is a junior at Shallowater High and attends First Baptist here. She enjoys playing the piano and being a spectator at high school activities.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Conner and is looking forward to writing the local news and encouraging anyone who has news to bring it to her or call after school hours.

believe it could do such a big job."

In addition to its daylight runs, the Cumbres and Toltec Scenic schedules a moonlight trip on evenings when there is a full moon. This particular ride is especially delightful as the train approaches Phantom Pass. Towering rocks surrounding the pass cast eerie shadows about the train and its passengers, thus the title, Phantom Pass. By the time the steam engine with its twenty-one cars rolled into Cham, Cheryl had fallen fast asleep and Celeste was not far behind her. They had spent about eight hours aboard the train. Normally the journey is made in about six hours, but because of the condition of the track, the constant rain, stops for rocks on the track, et., the shorter schedule could not be kept. Buses provided by the railroad were waiting to take passengers back to Antonito.

If you enjoy reliving the past and doing the unusual, this would indeed prove to be a most enjoyable trip. The company is young, and still in the throes of establishing itself, but this in no way detracts from the beauty and pleasure of journeying through rugged mountain country in a leisurely manner.

Woosley Reunion Held Sunday

The annual Woosley family reunion was held Sunday in the Community Club House with 30 relatives attending from Corpus Christi, Wichita Falls, Denver City, Plains and Sundown. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Stalle and Roy Stalle were from Shallowater.

The group enjoyed spreading a noon meal, touring the county antique tool yard with Gerald Clifton, playing ball and swimming.

Services Pending

Word was received Wednesday morning of the death of Danny Parrack's father, V.E. Parrack, 64, in Houston, at 11:40 p.m. Tuesday night.

At press time funeral arrangements were pending in Houston.

Surprise Coffee

Mrs. Ozella Chestnut was honored with a surprise birthday coffee Friday morning by her sister, Mrs. Corene McAuley at Vardeman's Cafe.

The table was covered with a white cloth, centered with a lovely bouquet of red roses, flanked by tall tapered blue candles. Blue mint cups and white napkins trimmed in blue completed the decorations.

Others attending the happy occasion were Mesdames Peggy Lawson, Inez Redwine, Jewell Stanton, Bertha Hardy, Pearl Balkman, Bama Wright, Edna Findt, Sue Corley, Velve Johnson and Pat McAuley.

Potter Girls Take Train Ride

by Dora Potter

Cheryl and Celeste Potter, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Potter recently climaxed a weekend vacation trip with a day's journey aboard the Cumbres and Toltec Narrow Gauge scenic train in Northern New Mexico.

On the eve of their trip aboard the little train the girls, accompanied by their mother, drove to Las Vegas, N.M., to the home of Mr. & Mrs. Hoyt Roy and Curtis who were to be their hosts for the weekend. Also accompanying them on the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Pat Lewis and their son Wade, of Boot Hill, N.M.

Early on Saturday morning the girls and other members of the party drove to Antonito Colorado, where they were to board the train. Enroute Cheryl and Celeste saw much of the rustic atmosphere of New Mexico in little towns and villages such as Buena Vista, Mora, LaCueva, and of course, Taos.

Shortly after leaving Taos and just before arriving in Tres Piedras (Three Rocks) Cheryl was delighted to find beds of lava rock and persuaded her uncle Hoyt to delay their journey long enough for her to add a piece or two to her rock collection. She was surprised to learn that there had been active volcanos in this part of the United States many centuries ago.

They boarded the train at 10 a.m. in the midst of drizzling rain and a rather cool climate for West Texans, but spirits were in no way dampened by the inclement weather. There were 497 people aboard the train for this first journey by steam engine for the 1974 season. It took twenty-one cars to carry these passengers on the sixty-four mile jaunt across Cumbres Pass to Chama, New Mexico.

Among the highlights of the trip was a barbecue luncheon served at Osier, New Mexico. Mountain flowers in a profusion of colors were scattered over the mountainsides throughout the trip. Of particular interest to Mrs. Potter was a monument erected on the side of the track in memory of President Garfield. Memorial services had been held there by members of the National Association of Gen. passengers and ticket agents.

"I really like the crossing of the Toltec Gorge," said Celeste. "We had just come through a long tunnel and looked way down the mountain side to the bed of the gorge where a rapid stream of water could be seen. My aunt told me that through the centuries that rushing water had cut that deep gorge in the mountain. The creek looked so small I could hardly

WASHINGTON AND SMALL BUSINESS

AS HEARD BY HEARD

Education for What?

One of the paradoxes of the times is that the unemployment rate continues to climb.

Special research conducted for the National Federation of Independent Business by Faculty Associates, headed by leading economists from the University of California and Stanford indicate that approximately 15 per cent of the independent firms have jobs open that they are unable to fill.

These jobs are for people with some type of skills.

But only 2 per cent of the respondents report they have jobs for unskilled labor.

This, then, develops into one of the most paradoxical questions of the times. Although the Federal government spends great, and in fact, huge amounts of money for education, a proper question arises.

What is this money for education being spent on? Education for what is perhaps the most germane question.

One of the major problems contributing to inflation and the American slippage in the world economic pecking order is the declining productivity of the nation.

There are many reasons given for this such as expensive welfare, which is a factor.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

Well, sir, the football pros still have their freedom, even though it's not the type they've been fighting to achieve. The average pro hasn't had to go through the grind of summer training.

He's lost some money, probably nothing approaching that which the owners have lost, but money still is money and no one likes to lose it. That, probably as much as personal moral conviction, is why so many players have begun to trickle into camp.

The long, hot summer drags on and the end of the strike technically isn't in sight. But just as actual games start to bring out the competitive spirit, so does the pride every man has in doing a job and doing it well.

It will be remarkable if the pros are able to stay out of action when they see actual competition. Sure, it isn't quite the same, but worse football has been seen (like on Thursday nights).

Last week, while working in Big Spring, I got a bonus, if you can call it that. I saw the Wednesday night WFL game that pitted the Houston Texans against Portland, I think it was.

Johnny Odon, former Tech player, did the punting and caught a couple of passes. The game went into overtime, much to the delight of the broadcast crew, and I went to bed. It was hardly enough for anyone to lose any sleep over.

Despite the efforts of the broadcast crew to make it appear that the WFL is the greatest thing since bottled beer, the new league still isn't any kind of competition for the NFL.

In fact, the broadcast crew is about as inept as the players and, while they undoubtedly have been paid well to sugarcoat what they see on the field, even they can't make the public swallow the pap they dish out. A little honesty would be refreshing.

Oh, well, a late report on TV (Sunday night, as time is being written) says that the pros are going to return to camp, even though Ed Garvey says that the strike isn't broken. Maybe it isn't, but what will you bet that the strike talk gradually fades out?

Anyway, the college game is almost with us. I was slightly shocked out of complacency to find that Houston opens its season Sept. 7. Gracious, that's only three weeks from this Saturday—and Texas Tech opens a week later. Friends, it's almost here.

I was saddened this week more over the release of Norm Cash by the Detroit Tigers than I was the release of Richard Nixon. And there was absolutely no comparison between the two.

Norm, born in Justiceburg and a star at Post in football, never was a colorful player. All he did was perform and do it well. He had one outstanding season, 1961, when he won the batting and home run titles.

I had hoped that Tech would grab this Antelope star. Instead, he went to Sul Ross, where he was outstanding in the backfield and then used his baseball ability to jump to the major leagues.

They had a day for him in Post following his great season in 1961 and I enjoyed seeing the love and affection showered on him and his family. Through it all he was the same modest, unassuming young man he had been in high school. I hate to see the end come.

The other day I dropped in on the Big Spring Herald, where Tommy Hart has toiled for lo these many years. Tommy was a good, solid sports writer, nothing flashy, but accurate and steady.

He is now the managing editor and happy in his work. He was getting ready for a big resignation issue, with a newsroom that is being torn up, because the Herald, like so many papers, is going offset. Still, he had time for a good visit.

Tommy was interested in the WTNM Baseball Assn. that Jackie Sullivan started here four years ago and I suggested that maybe Tommy, or some former player or manager, could start a similar one featuring former Longhorn League players.

But, Tommy says that, unlike Lubbock and Amarillo, most of the players moved on after their careers. Some have died and the others have scattered. Still, he's going to try and get in touch with some he knows of and tell them to contact Jackie.

In the quiet of my motel room, I watched the game between Cincinnati and Los Angeles Monday night on the tube. It was a good game, one of the better offerings of the season.

Ken Gullett pitched a strong game, but he was rocked for a pair of home runs and the Reds were down. They came back to win the next two games, but it hardly helped them in their quest to overtake the Dodgers. The Reds are good, but they face an uphill battle.

Indeed, none of the races are too close at this point and time is starting to run out. Oakland and Boston appear to be taking strong grips in the American League, while Los Angeles is taking charge in one National League division.

The Cards and the Phillies are waging one of the better division battles and who knows which will win, with Montreal an outside chance to win. Even the Mets aren't out of it.

Remember Donnie Moore, former Monterey High pitcher, who took the Plainsmen to a state title? Local media seem to have forgotten him, but I'm glad to report Donnie is alive and well.

He recently was sent to Midland in the Texas League and was due to have pitched Monday night's game. From all reports, he is a better pitcher and still considered a good chance to go all the way. It's always good to see a hometown boy doing well.

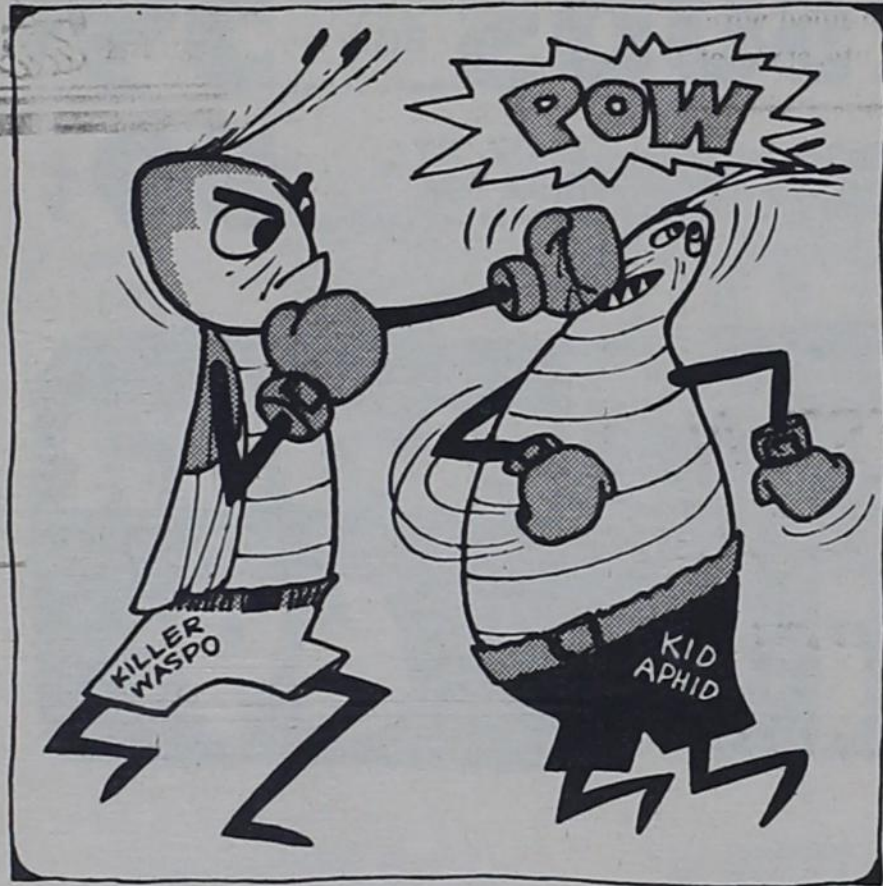

Sorry to see Lew Harris leave the Red Raider corral, but the former assistant SID received a nice promotion. He's capable of giving the Memphis Storm good publicity and public relations.

Poor Ralph Carpenter. It seems that all the Raider SID does is train men for better positions. Bob Condron is doing well at SMU and Bob Brewster left for Rice, which he left for a better job. It's all a tribute to Ralph, though, and the type of program he runs.

I've been on the run so much of late that I haven't seen the new Tech brochure, but from what I've heard, it's a beauty. I'll wait for my Red Raider Club brochure to come to the house, I guess.

The Southwest Conference Record Book is out and it is nifty. No real football fan in the Southwest should be without a copy, which he can obtain by sending three bucks to the league office in Dallas. The book is crammed full of valuable information. You'll spend hours pouring through it.

Youths Learn Good, Bad About Insects in 4-H Program

There's not really a "battle" among insects, say youths involved in the national 4-H entomology program, however, some insects seem to give the rest a bad reputation. The 4-H'ers, supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, with an assist from Hercules Incorporated, learn all about the good and bad habits of insects, along with studying other traits and characteristics of the insect world.

Some insects are giving their fellow creatures a bad name, say 4-H'ers in the national 4-H entomology program sponsored by Hercules Incorporated.

And to prove their point, the youthful entomologists point to the gypsy moth, boll weevil, citrus thrips and mosquitos as prime examples. These kinds of insects and their resulting damage frequently overshadows the efforts of the "good guys", like the honeybee, preying mantis and dragonfly.

In the Cooperative Extension Service supervised program, the youths learn much about a variety of insects, both good and bad. Starting with the collection and identification of the different species and orders, the young people move on to life cycles and control measures. They identify host plants, exchange insect specimens with other youths and adults and even rear some insects helpful to man and his environment. And the 4-H'ers are equally determined to fight harmful insects as well.

Among the insect pests getting the attention of 4-H members this year in the Northeast U.S. is the gypsy moth. Increasing in numbers and its area of operation, the larval stage is particularly damaging as they defoliate trees and other plants. The 4-H'ers this summer will be encouraging travelers to be careful not to take the hitchhiking gypsy moth larvae into non-infested areas.

Across the cotton growing area of the South, the young entomologists will continue their fight against the boll weevil. And everyone joins in efforts to rid their respective areas of mosquitos.

Adding encouragement to the 4-H'ers efforts is Hercules Incorporated. The company offers up to four medals of honor in each county and a $50 U.S. Savings Bond to each state winner. From these winners, 16 are selected for sectional awards of an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago. There six receive scholarships of $700 each as tops in their field of endeavor.

What do their entomology experiences mean to o-H members? To Dennis Williams of hartford, Ala., it means new career plans. He now hopes, in a year or so, to enter Auburn University and major in entomology.

John Bryson, 17, of Tupelo, Miss., has accumulated a collection of some 15,000 insects. He also has given several collections to schools and found a part-time job checking experimental plots for insect damage.

Youth seeking an exciting project offering a variety of opportunities may try entomology. Information is available from the county extension office.

Rays of Hope

The Bible tells us that every chapter, verse, and book written within its pages is inspired by the divinity and nature of God.

Therefore, we can assume that the very heart of God is contained in what we now call the Holy Bible. God created man in his own image in such a way that it is possible for mere man to actually talk and correspond with God.

God's love was so great that he showed his true likeness in the son, Jesus Christ. His love for his created man was so strong that he allowed his diety to be lowered to that of human flesh and likeness (John 3:16, John 1:14).

The life of Jesus Christ in the flesh is a tremendous story of true love and grace. The grace and flow of God's goodness came to earth on the wings of glory.

Jesus taught all men how to act and re-act in all situations. He was full of grace and truth.

As we read the Bible from day to day, we can actually receive more of the nature and likeness of God. As we meditate and allow the spirit of the scriptures to be more and more at home in our hearts, we are allowing our spiritual nature to dominate our body, mind, will and emotions.

The Psalmist wrote in Psalm 1 that the man who meditates day and night in the word of God will prosper in all things. This is how powerful and life changing that God's word is. Psalm 138:2 states that God honors his word even above his name. Proverbs 4:20-22 declares that the reading and application of God's word actually brings life and health.

Read the Bible daily. Apply it's truths and you will find something new and exciting happening in your life. Leave off the study of God's word and you will find your mind filled with fear, anxiety, and the life style of the world.

Hockley County Extension Agent CONSERVE MOISTURE

Proper Cultural Practices Can Conserve Moisture!

The prolonged drouth conditions experienced throughout Texas calls for special care of lawns and woody plants in the landscape. Certain cultural practices will aid in conserving moisture and reducing the amount of irrigation water required.

First of all check the mulch on flower and shrub borders. If less than two inches deep, add additional material. Shredded pine bark, pine straw, wood chips, chopped wheat or oat straw or other readily available organic matter will make excellent material for mulching. A good mulch will reduce evaporation loss from the soil surface, lower the soil temperature, reduce weed growth and cut down on soil cultivation.

When applying irrigation water do a thorough job, soaking the soil to a depth of 6 to 10 inches. An iron rod or spading fork make an excellent probe to determine the depth to which the moisture has penetrated. If the soil surface is sloping or the soil is compacted, reduce the rate of water application to prevent excessive run off. It is wasteful of water to apply it faster than the soil can absorb it.

Avoid applying fertilizer, insecticides, or fungicides to plants unless there is moisture in the soil. Severe foliage burn can occur if these materials are applied to plants under water stress conditions. Apply chemicals only when the soil is moist. Any fertilizer applications should be followed with a thorough watering. Don't be afraid to use fertilizer when needed as a well fertilized lawn will make more efficient use of water and will require less water to keep it alive.

It is to your advantage as well as being beneficial to your plants to do most of your yard work in the early morning or late afternoon. Watering, spraying, and dusting during the heat of the day can be harmful to the plants as well as being disagreeable for the individual performing the work.

Raising the height of the cutting blade on the lawnmower 1/4 to 1/2 inch during hot weather is helpful also. The slight increase in length of the leaf blade will provide shade and cover for the roots of the grass plant thereby reducing the water needs.

The frequent application of small amounts of water to landscape plants encourages the development of shallow root systems. Once this occurs it is difficult to bring the plants through extended drouth periods without considerable damage. It is best to soak the soil as deeply as possible, then wait until the plants start to wilt before watering again. Deep watering encourages deep root penetration and provides a greater reservoir of moisture for the plant.

The strength of the nation is no greater than the strength of families within it.

South Plains College to Begin Women's Varsity Basketball Program This Fall

The board of regents of South Plains College voted at its regular monthly meeting Thursday evening to start a women's varsity basketball program this fall on a limited basis.

The regents also approved a five per cent reduction in the 1974-75 tax rate, okayed a budget increase of 6.8 per cent an approved payment of accounts, financial and tax office reports.

"The board felt that women have as much right to participate in varsity athletics as men do," said Dr. Marvin Baker, SPC president.

Dr. Baker added that between $4,000 and $4,500 was set aside for uniforms and travel for the new team. "The board also felt that women ought to handle the women's varsity program," he said. As a result, a woman member of the physical education department will be asked to assume duties as coach of the team.

Players from the student body will be invited to try out for the new team. And SPC officials will begin immediately to arrange a schedule with other junior colleges and perhaps Texas Tech, West Texas, Wayland and the universities in Abilene. Howard County, Clarendon, Western Texas and Ranger currently field women's basketball teams.

If it can be arranged, most of the women's games will be played prior to men's varsity games, Dr. Baker added.

In other business, the board voted to reduce the tax rate three cents from 56 cents to 53 cents per $100 valuation—a five per cent decrease over last year. An estimated income and expenditures budget of just over $2.37 million also received the board's approval. The new budget is $161,518 more than the 1973-74 budget, or an increase of about 6.8 per cent.

Elbert Harp to Head U.S. Feed Grains Council

Elbert Harp of Lubbock was named chairman of the U.S. Feed Grains Council during the council's annual membership meeting in Stratton Mountain, Vermont, last week.

Harp is Executive Director of the Grain Sorghum Producers Association and The Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board, both headquartered in Lubbock.

The U.S. Feed Grains Council, which represents virtually every sector of feed grain production and marketing, is one of the major organizations responsible for the development of foreign markets for U.S. agricultural commodities.

The council was formed in 1960 by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association and other agricultural groups. The USFGC, a non-profit organization, works under contract with the foreign agricultural service of the Department of Agriculture to increase dollar sales abroad of U.S. feed grains.

The council has developed and is currently implementing marketing programs in 20 countries and has generated more than $2 billion in direct sales during the past fiscal year.

Harp toured the council's marketing areas in Asia early this year and will travel worldwide later this year as a representative of the council.

Other executive officers of the USFGC are Harold E. Noren of Dekalb, Ill., Alan J. Noble of Wayzata, Minn. and Lyle P. Campbell of Chicago, Ill.
