Home Town Tales

by Mack Stanley

We all know girls are spice and everything nice, but what is a boy? When a man-child outgrows long dresses and Pampers and dons man-like trousers, along with freckles and so much dirt even a mother is careful about kissing, he becomes a boy.

A boy is nature's way of correcting the mistaken belief that there is no perpetual motion. A boy is a growing human of indefinite promise who can climb like a squirrel, run like a deer, swim like a fish, balk like a mule, eat like a pig, and act like a looney jackass, according to his inclination.

A boy, if not washed too often and kept in a cool place after each accident or mishap, will probably survive bruises, lacerations, broken bones, mumps, and schoolyard fights. A boy is a skin stretched over an appetite; a noise covered with smudges.

A boy is the problem of all times, one of the great hopes of the world.

Every boy born is living proof God has not yet given up on man.

Bank Construction Nears Completion

Construction on the First State Bank building is nearing completion and plans are being prepared for open house to be observed April 6th.

Groundbreaking ceremonies on the beautiful Spanish style structure were held last July and construction of the facility has progressed steadily since that time.

The 6,400 square foot building will be supplemented by large parking lot facilities and will also have a night depository box and drive in window service.

Glazed floor tile will enhance the service lobby and a wood burning fireplace accents the north wall of the lobby. A large community room specially designed for after hours use will feature a private entrance.

Landscaping of the spacious grounds are in progress and will be completed this week. Also the entire parking and drive in area has been paved for convenient parking.

The new bank building is located just east of the White Stores Inc. Regional Distribution Center.

Mabry Brock, bank president, announced this week that plans are being made to move into the facility this weekend and they will be open for business Monday in the new location.

State Golden Gloves Championship Bouts in Fort Worth Draw 125 Boxers

Some 125 boxers participated in the State Golden Gloves Championship at Fort Worth's Will Rogers Coliseum March 13-17, before a record crowd. The first night alone was a capacity crowd of over 10,000 several hundred persons were turned away.

Most of the boxers were from South Texas where boxers start their career as pee wees, much like our pee wee baseball. By the time they qualify for the state tournament, they have had an average of 150 matched and tournament fights. By contrast, the Texas panhandle boxers have had only a fraction of that number. El Paso, Fort Worth, Odessa, and Wichita Falls also have good boxing programs.

To win at State, a boxer has to be one of the most skilled boxers in the nation; he has to be in perfect shape, he might have to fight once or twice each night for four nights; and he has to have luck in drawing an opponent each night.

Many times the boxer who is picked to go the farthest at state, will draw the toughest opponent the first night. It's best if a boxer draws easy or a bye, and watches the tougher opponents for a couple fights, he will have the opportunity to figure out his opponents style giving him a much better chance.

The two most skilled boxers from this area, Mark Martin and Herbert Martinez, both lost out to South Texas A.A.U. champions, was presented by Mrs. Donald Martin in imaginary form.

Delicious refreshments of cherry cream pie, coffee and nuts was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, April 1, at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Howard Preston, with Mrs. E.L. Corley as co-hostess.

A program will be presented on a "Patch of Green" and all members are urged to attend.

Arthor Shields and Ronnie Shields. Mark Martin drew Arthor Shields the first night, and lost to him over a split decision. Arthor Shields went on to win each night and fought the only National champion in the tournament, Mike Ayalla, on the final night. Fans booed when Mike Ayalla was given the decision over Shields.

Herbert Martinez drew Ronnie Shields on his second fight and lost a very close decision. Ronnie went on to win the State Championship.

She was a teacher in Shallowater from 1944 until her retirement in 1970. Followed by teaching two years in the Silverton School System.

She married Jerry C. Putman on Nov. 5, 1931. He died in 1962. She was named "Outstanding Shallowater Citizen" in 1974 in recognition for distinguished service to the Shallowater community.

Mrs. Putman taught school for twenty-six years in the Shallowater School system and was hired to teach English in 1944, but prior to the opening of school that year, she was asked to serve also as high school principal as it was during the war, and it was hard to find a man to serve that capacity and she promised to fill in until a man could be found to fill the job. This position lasted for two years.

She was a faithful member of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the First United Methodist Church.

She leaves many, many former students from the local school system with fond memories in her teaching capacity. She was a civic minded person and strived for the betterment of the community, and will be deeply missed by all who came in contact with her during her lifetime.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Sue Pair, two granddaughters, Maureen and Beverly Pair, all of the home; two sisters, Mrs. Opal Vaughan and Mrs. Julia Vaughan, both of Shallowater; three brothers, Garland Boozer Sr. of Shallowater, H.M. Boozer of Hereford and Eli Boozer of Salinas, California.

Pallbearers were her nephews, Jack Bell of Houston, Monty Boozer of Dimmitt and Scott Vaughan, Garland Boozer, Jr., and Jeff Vaughan, all of Shallowater; and Jimmy Clark of Dumas.

Honorary pallbearers were Floyd Epperson, Bob Grice, Bobby Blackburn, Jay Stanton, G.T. Doggett and Walter Hutton, all of Shallowater; Bill Thompson and Neff Preston of Lubbock and Sonny Sims of Goldwithe.

A Shallowater resident for 31 years, Mrs. Putman died at 3:20 p.m. Saturday in Lubbock Medical Center Hospital after an extended illness.

A native of Alabama, Mrs. Putman moved here in 1944 from Denton County. She attended the University of Alabama and received her bachelors degree in science from North Texas State University and finished her masters degree there also, and

4-H Is A Modern Day Success

A quarter of a million young people can't be wrong! And 125,000 Texas boys and girls are part of the modern day 4-H program.

"As the nation's largest youth serving organization, 4-H continues to provide educational experiences for young people in a variety of ways," says Miss Yvonne Garcia, 4-H and youth specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Youth between the ages of 9 and 19 can learn new skills and interests in short-term project groups, clubs, camps, special interest groups and other activities. Fairs, contests, field trips and tours are also a part of every 4-H member's program.

"With the help of 4-H volunteers, youth can select which projects they want to learn and how they will learn them, notes the Texas A&M University System specialist. "Youth make their decision by considering time, available resources and their particular situation."

Practicing good citizenship and developing leadership talents are important activities in 4-H. Public appearances, speeches, committee work and officer elections are just some of the ways 4-H'ers learn the important skills of decision making, democratic behavior, social competence and self esteem.

"It's not all work either. 4-H means making new friends, going places, helping others and sharing talents, skills and hobbies," points out Miss Garcia.

"Being a part of this action program is easy," she adds. "Young people can visit a local 4-H club meeting and talk to the volunteer leader about membership opportunities. Or they can call the local county extension office which is usually located in the courthouse or agricultural building."

REMEMBERING...

By BILL D. BROOKS

STORM CELLAR

At one time the storm cellar played an important role at many homesteads across our land. Serving a dual purpose, they were a welcomed refuge from threatening storm clouds and were useful storage places for canned goods and other supplies.

In its simplest form it was nothing more than a hole dug in the ground, timbers and boards or tin placed across the top, covered over with a mound of soil. It usually had a door of some sort which could be closed and latched from the inside. More resourceful persons sometimes plastered the dirt walls of their cellars and some folks even went so far as to construct theirs entirely of concrete, though there weren't many people living close to us that had that kind of money.

All cellars, whether dirt, plaster, or concrete, had the same forbidding odor. This was probably one reason, among other things such as possible snakes, assorted spiders, etc. why children were not allowed to play in them. The atmosphere of the dark chamber coupled with the fact that it was usually taboo to play in it made the cellar a perfect hideout when playing cowboys. Three youngsters, I heard about, pretended the cellar was a wild-west saloon and sampled some of the jars of "whiskey" (sour plum juice stored there for who knows what purpose). Of course none of them would admit the stuff tasted terrible though the fact became very clear within a few hours.

© Duane 1974

Some cellars are still being used for the same purposes they were always used though most are now being made of concrete. At abandoned homesites remains of the old dirt type can still be found, usually caved in, giving some substance to parent's reasons for not wanting their children to play in them.

After April 1st Deadline Motorists Face Question, "Are You Plated or Belated?"

That's the question motorists may be facing after midnight April 1st, deadline for motor vehicle registration in Texas. After that time, law enforcement agencies have been instructed to stop motorists not displaying the 1975 plates to remind them of their licensing responsibilities.

Since February 1, county tax offices and selected substations throughout the state have been conducting registration business as usual. Early reports indicate the annual procedure, required of the state's 9.2 million motor vehicle owners, is running smoothly. However, many registrants traditionally wait until the "last minute" to react, resulting in longer lines and necessary delays.

According to a Highway Department spokesman, public response to the new five-year license plate, being issued for the first time in Texas, has been good. In fact, motorists have shown an uncommon interest in the "label" their motor vehicle will wear through 1979.

In lieu of annual replacement, motorists will be issued an adhesive type sticker beginning in 1976, that will update their plate for another year of driving. The sticker will be placed in the debossed upper left corner of the plate. The following year, the tag will be stuck in the upper right corner to cover the debossed "75", and alternate for the ensuing years. Once in place, the tags cannot be easily removed without deterioration, a part of the plan to discourage vandalism or theft.

County tax offices will continue to issue annual plates to certain classes of motor vehicles.

Economic Indicators Hint Better Market for Cotton

The economic recession shows signs of bottoming out, and that should mean a better market for cotton producers.

That is the substance of a study of several economic indicators reported in the February "Cotton Summary" published by Cotton Incorporated, the research and marketing company of U.S. cotton producers.

"Cautious optimism" is the way David Cox, vice president for economic research and development at Cotton Incorporated, views the situation for cotton producers.

Cox points to continued consumer purchasing of apparel and other textile products, textile industry efforts to control inventories, and strong anti-recession measures by foreign governments as indicators of a brighter future.

"The textile industry is still reacting very cautiously," Cox said. "Everyone is afraid to resume normal business operations as long as the overall industry and general economic situation remain clouded."

But while cotton buyers are cautious, the wait and see attitude cannot last forever. "Retailers and mills both realize that goods should be on the shelf when consumers want them," Cox said.

One factor lending optimism to the picture was a study by the Market Research Corporation of America showing that 1974 unit sales were down only 3.2 per cent from 1973 and that textile and apparel items were reasonably strong during Christmas and January.

Cox explained that as consumer sales continue to cut into retailer inventory, a trickle down effect will eventually reduce mill inventory and rekindle production. Mills will then begin buying raw cotton in earnest.

About one-half of the 1974 cotton crop is still in the hands of producers, as things stand now, and producers may be right to hold their crop until the market improves, Cox advised.

"Given the wait and see attitude of the textile industry and others, producers must adopt similar tactics," he said.

Cox suggested for 1975 planting that cotton producers evaluate market alternatives of various crops in depth. "Make firm plans only when attractive opportunities are available," he advised.

Cox urged all cotton producers to seriously evaluate the efficiencies of all inputs and all trips through the field in order to cut production costs.

Services Held for Ray Thomas

Funeral services for longtime resident, Ray Thomas, 72 years old, were held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist Church.

Thomas died at 10:05 a.m. Friday at Jewell's Hospitality House following an extended illness.

Officiating at the services was Rev. Boyd Pearce, interim pastor and former pastor, Rev. Allan Cartrite, now pastor at Roby First Baptist Church.

So Indiana and North Carolina didn't make it to the NCAA finals and another prediction went down the drain. It does prove one thing: only the uncertain is a sure thing.

Maybe it proves more than that. It might just be another indication that, on a given day or night, almost any top team in the nation can beat another, that perhaps there isn't that much spread in basketball from one section to another and that college games are on the level, although there never was much about.

At any rate, there are a couple of outstanding matchups this week in the semi-finals when Syracuse and Kentucky, two teams not expected to make it this far, clash in one game and UCLA and Louisville collide in the other battle.

UCLA pretty much was expected to get this far, even though the Bruins are not quite as strong this year. Louisville also was not expected to gain this rung.

Fortunately basketball fans in this area will see both the semi-finals Saturday and, on Monday night, the championship game. It should be great basketball.

An all-Kentucky finals is entirely possible. Kentucky should have the momentum and desire to go with an impressive record. But don't count Syracuse out. The Orangemen weren't given a chance, but here they are after beating nationally ranked teams like LaSalle, North Carolina and Kansas State.

Louisville, which has lost only two games all season, carries a glittering record into the semi-finals, with wins over Rutgers, Cincinnati and Maryland.

UCLA has three losses, beat a good Michigan team, edged Montana and then dominated Arizona State. It might be worth nothing that John Wooden's Bruins changed their style against the Sun Devils and may have a surprise up their sleeves.

The Uclans, of course, have the most tournament experience of the four semi-finalists. Kentucky has the prestige of past tournaments. Louisville comes from a hotbed of basketball, while Syracuse has tradition in its section of the country.

These should be three excellent games and the team with the fewest turnovers and best defense should win. Hot shooting, of course, won't hurt any of the teams.

Spring football training starts soon at Tech and Steve Sloan already has his problems. Unless they change their minds, center Jim Frasure and tackle Jim Kitzpatrick won't be on hand. They are red shirts foregoing their fifth year.

The word coming here is that one of the new assistant coaches was a terror during the off-season conditioning drills. Finally, the two vets—and maybe some others—decided it wasn't worth it.

The loss of these two experienced players is no help. An outstanding 6-5, 240-pound prospect from Snyder quit a long time ago and, even without experience, players of his heft are needed.

Sloan apparently got the situation straightened out with a few words in the right direction, but it may have hurt player morale. Spring training could be interesting. Hate to see a new coach start with problems not of his doing.

Recently, in driving through the Hayton-Aspermont area, I started becoming conscious of the wild life. What really brought it to a head was, while driving up State 70 from Rotan, I saw a deer on the road side of a line fence.

As I neared, he gracefully leaped over the fence and loped out of sight. I thought that maybe I had been seeing things, until I talked with a rancher at Jayton.

As soon as I told him about the deer, he named the rancher on whose property the deer grazed and allowed as to how there were a few head of deer in the area.

I frankly didn't know there were deer in the area. It's not uncommon to see a coyote run across the road and, at times, coyote carcasses are strung from fences in the area. I counted nearly 100 back in December.

The rancher said that, contrary to what some others said, he wasn't convinced that coyotes didn't attack cattle. He thought that they did and his further remark that the coyotes were packing up had him worried for his cattle.

But that's quite an area for wildlife. I've seen tremendously big owls, prairie dogs, roadrunners, quail and other wildlife in the area. Wonder if we really know all the wildlife that is virtually in our backyard?

College Level Examination Program Tests Scheduled April 19 at SPC

Completed registration forms for the April College Level Examination Program (CLEP) should be returned to South Plains College by the end of March.

The CLEP exam will be administered on April 19 by the guidance and counseling staff at SPC, a CLEP test center. Applications should be returned to the office of Don Melton, director of guidance and counseling at SPC.

CLEP is a national program of credit-by-examination that offers students the opportunity to obtain recognition for college level achievement. The College Entrance Examination Board sponsors the program.

Two basic types of exams are given, general and subject.

General exams are objective tests which measure achievement in five basic areas of the liberal arts: English composition, humanities, math, natural sciences and social sciences history. Each test has a time limit of one hour.

The subject examinations measure achievement in specific college courses, such as computers and data processing, general psychology, introduction to business management and microbiology, to name just a few. Each is a 90 minute objective test.

Contact Melton's office at 894-4921 for further information.

A Tribute

I would like to dedicate this column to the memory of a beautiful life. Varina Putman will long be remembered as a woman of high integrity and firm discipline. She was loved by many through the years and has given countless hours of devotion to students and friends alike.

It was 22 years ago that Mrs. Putman became my next door neighbor as well as one of my school teachers. In the three years that followed, my younger brother and I ate many meals (feasts) in her home and on occasion spent the night.

In the classroom, I remember the determination within her to get the very best out of every student. I personally remember the times that she would urge me on to greater goals and she always gave me the feeling that she trusted me.

Through the years, we have visited on numerous occasions and she would continue to urge me on to greater things. And always as before, there was still that feeling that she trusted me.

This past summer, she told me how she knew that many friends were praying for her. She would tell of the great physical strength that she felt in her body. She told me about the day that she stood

Synthetics Burned, Spurned in Cotton Incorporated Testing Program

Firefighters in New York will soon wear uniforms made of flame retardant 100 per cent cotton.

A long awaited decision from Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan specifies "Fire Stop" cotton uniforms for the city's 11,000 firemen.

The choice of cotton follows a nine-month search by fire department officials and union leaders for the safest fabric to replace a polyester-cotton blend rejected by firefighters last year.

The final decision on the new uniform lay between "Fire Stop" cotton and "Nomex", a flame retardant nylon made by E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Co., the nation's largest manufacturer of synthetic fibers and fabrics.

Modacrylic fabrics from other synthetic manufacturers were also in the running earlier.

"Cotton won, hands down," said J. Dukes Wooters Jr., president of Cotton Incorporated, the fiber marketing company of U.S. cotton growers.

"The decision marks the first time in history that synthetic fibers have been dramatically set back in a head-to-head battle with cotton."

Adoption of a 65 per cent polyester-35 per cent cotton uniform standard on January 1, 1974 ignited a burning controversy within the rank and file of fire officers and firefighters.

Tests of the polyester-cotton shirts and trousers showed that they passed federal flammability standards. But firefighters suffered serious injuries when wearing them.

"We found that the synthetic fiber in the blend melted during firefighting operations," said Commissioner O'Hagan. "It caused deep, painful, serious burns."

The polyester-cotton standard was rescinded last May, after being in effect less than five months. The new order setting "Fire Stop" cotton as the standard fills a void that has existed since then.

"Fire Stop" is a registered trademark owned by Cotton Incorporated in behalf of America's cotton producers.

A fact-finding delegation of New York fire department officials and leaders of firefighter and fire officer associations spent a full day last September witnessing laboratory demonstrations of "Fire Stop" cotton at the Cotton Incorporated research center at Raleigh, N.C.

The demonstrations played an important part in the final decision, said Chief John R. Travell of the division of safety, a member of the delegation to Raleigh.

"We determined that 'Fire Stop' cotton was superior to, or at least equal to, every other fabric tested," said Travell.

"We found that flame retardant cotton provides the best protection to men who fight fires. In addition, cotton uniforms look neat and presentable at the station house or in public. And the cost is about half the cost of the Wooters also paid tribute to America's cotton farmers, who created Cotton Incorporated and who support the company's work with a voluntary contribution for every bale of cotton they sell.

Wooters said the competition between cotton growers and the chemical industry giants that manufacture synthetics might be called a "David cersus Goliath" confrontation today. But he said it won't always be like that.
