Shallowater Pack 515 Holds Blue and Gold Banquet Monday

Pack 515 met for its monthly meeting and the Blue and Gold Banquet on March 29 at the Club House.

The Webelos presented the colors and led the audience in the pledge of allegiance. Den 3 told in their own words as to what they thought we would be wearing and driving in the year 2000. Joe Hickox gave the prayer and then everyone enjoyed a very good meal.

Robby Hickox and Steven Usrey were welcomed as new Cub Scouts.

Awards were presented. Receiving one year pins were Mrs. Phyllis White, Wayne White and Joe Hickox. Two year pins went to Mr. Gene Usrey, Mrs. Peggy Usrey, Mark Usrey and Mr. Wayne Oliver. Mark Usrey moved from Bear rank to Webelos and he received his colors. Also receiving Webelos colors was Lupe Gonzales. Todd Kohler received his naturalist badge and also the Arrow of Light. Jesse Morales earned the citizen award. The Arrow of Light is the highest award that a boy can earn before he becomes a Boy Scout and Tim Chandler, Todd Kohler have finished their badges for this honor. Tim, Todd and Jesse Morales also received their Boy Scout scarves and slides.

The boys are working on some different bicentennial badges, and to earn the Horizons '76 they had to study a service club in the community, so it was a pleasure for Mr. Clois Cobb, president of the local Lions Club, to speak to us. There are also plans for the boys to plant a tree in the community for this badge.

Back in the early fall, we held our local Pine Wood Derby race, and the boys that placed were able to go on to district and council derbies. Todd Oliver did go on to the Longhorn District Derby on January 31st, and placed third. Then on February 14 he entered the Webelos Division of the South Plains Council and also placed third, and received a nice trophy.

Over 150 Turn Out for Giles Anniversary

by Dardie Williamson

Over 150 relatives and friends called on Mr. and Mrs. J.K. Giles last Sunday afternoon. They came to help the couple celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The setting could not have been more appropriate. The Giles' home is furnished throughout with lovely antique furniture, pictures, lamps, and ceramic figurines. The items depict the couple's favorite hobby, antiques, a pastime they have been involved in since 1950.

As the guests entered the home, each registered at a beautiful antique table originally from Germany. The table, made of rosewood and walnut trim, stands on cherub legs. It was covered with an antique linen cloth, enhancing the open book which featured the couple's open house invitation. Mrs. Sue Taylor, a daughter of the couple, hand-antiqued the book in gold.

In another room, a beautiful square oak serving table, dating back to 1900 and capable of seating 24 people, stood under the cover of a beautiful white medallion lace cloth over gold taffeta. Mrs. Giles had purchased the table from Mrs. Jane Gettel's family in Phoenix several years ago. The table was originally made in Detroit.

On the oak table rested a tapered silver candelabra containing the flowers of spring and white tapered candles.

Nuts were served from glass cut in a daisy pattern, a piece of china more than 100 years old and originally designed by Libbys. Inside the glass was a nut spoon which had been a family heirloom for three generations. Fruit punch was served from a bowl and cup set previously used for all the showers in the Giles and Sullivan families.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

Indiana or Michigan? Everyone else knows, but at this writing, I can only guess, and the guess would be, Indiana. The Hoosiers showed more than enough Saturday to make believers of all.

It is rare for any team to go through a season undefeated, but a tremendous achievement if accomplished. And there's no reason to think that the Hoosiers let Michigan, a team it beat twice in the regular season, spoil their season.

It's a tribute to Big 10 basketball that the finalists for the national title came from the same conference. This is a rarity, as is a conference runnerup making it to the finals. You would think that, somewhere along the line, the runnerup would lose.

But Michigan proved that it was no fluke. The Wolverines showed speed and quickness, strong defense and a balanced scoring attack that others couldn't stop.

The NCAA playoffs, unlike those in other years, have not produced close, tight games a rule. Most of the games have been close for a while and then one team would assert its superiority. When that happened, only the final score was in doubt.

There have been few thrillers, and you would have expected the semi-finals, in particular, to be cliffhangers. Instead, Indiana whipped UCLA and Michigan toyed with Rutgers.

Rutgers? Here was a team that hadn't lost a game all season, and yet it was the underdog quintet against a conference runner, not even the No. 1 team. The coach was mad about the role and, presumably, used it to psych up his team.

The effort failed. The Scarlet Knights were as tight as Tech against Missouri and, after initial success, fell farther and farther behind. It was a major blow to Eastern basketball.

Certainly the best teams in the nation this year did not make the NCAA playoffs, with Virginia the prime example. When that situation exists, the playoffs are going to be less even.

That is to take nothing away from the teams that managed to fight into the four playoff sites. They either won their conferences, or a playoff, and they won the right to compete. It appears that the balance is not as strong in the 1975-76 season.

The spring sports program is in full swing at Texas Tech and, as usual, the Red Raiders are not faring well. The golf team played at Galveston as though that tournament was designed for it, but it hasn't done well otherwise.

The baseball team is stumbling along without a win in conference play and a mediocre record; tennis isn't doing too well; and only track has shown an upswing.

The irrepressible Corky Oglesby has taken a lacklustre Tech squad and transformed it into one that can compete. It's been a long time since anyone can remember Tech track teams doing well.

But Corky has given spring sports a shot in the arm. People might even get so interested that they forget spring football, an exercise that is needed, but attracts little general notice. After all, Tech plays only against itself.

But, football is about to start its annual spring stand and it will be interesting from several standpoints. The biggest question, of course, is who will replace Ecomet Burley?

Ecomet headed up a defense that, at best, was mediocre. His loss will not help the situation. There are not many worries about the offense, but a vast amount of work needs to be done with the defense. If Tech can come up with a strong line, it would be a contender.

Baseball? The major league season is right around the proverbial corner and it will be interesting to see what happens. The early games could be disasters—or normal.

If games are normal, the argument that major leaguers need six weeks or more of spring training will be shot. And it could make a change in future training by big league teams. Bad early games will be laid to the lack of regular length sessions.

Meanwhile, the players and owners appear to be fairly far apart on key issues and there will be many playing out their options because they will not have contracts.

If Andy Messersmith is not able to sign a big contract, though, it might have a sobering effect. Andy, as of this writing, had not been able to sell his service for as much as he thinks they are worth. Unless he does, other players might pause to consider what would happen to them.

One of the big questions before a game has been played is whether the Boston Red Sox can repeat. Everything indicates that they have strengthened their club and should.

Would anyone bet against the Oakland Athletics? Probably not, but Cincinnati might face problems, although the likelihood of their not winning is remote.

The Rangers? The Astros? The Cardinals? None of them seem strong enough. Many trades have been made and it will take time to see what happens. One thing is for sure; it should be another interesting season.

Championship gym hockey teams from the 5th and 6th grade Shallowater physical education classes are pictured. The leagues organized six weeks ago to participate in the game, a new one to the students.

Ag Centennial Week at A&M

A special tribute to agriculture will highlight Agricultural Centennial Week at Texas A&M University, April 5-9. Theme of the week is "Agriculture in a Century of Change."

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

A film that cannot help but recall last season's stunning "Murder on the Orient Express" is the newest Charles Bronson starring vehicle, "Breakheart Pass," currently showing at Cinema West, which uses a wonderful old steam powered train as its principal setting.

"Breakheart Pass," both western and whodunit rolled into one, is an exciting and active film with above average casting and performances. The film is adapted from Alastair MacLean's novel (he also did the screenplay) and is 95 minutes long, carrying a PG rating.

The basic plot evolves around ole No. 9 as she steams through rugged country and snowy landscapes carrying medical supplies to an Army Post caught in a diphtheria epidemic.

Action sparks from the very beginning as two Army officers are missing. Along the trip all communication is lost, bodies are strewn out of the train and tumbled spectacularly down the terrifyingly high trestles over deep gorges, a section of the train is uncoupled and slides downgrade for total disaster for the troops aboard. One realizes gradually that the truth of the plot is not a medical emergency but a band of murderous villains bent on joining with the Indians to get the gold and silver hoard from the fort.

Charles Bronson poses as a villain in the marshall's custody but we learn that he is a government agent after the gang. Craggy Bronson turns in his usual action portrait without too much effort. Richard Crenna is the unsuspected governor, while Jill Ireland as his assumed paramour plays her usual pretty self. (She is Mrs. Bronson and co-stars with Charles most every outing).

A good stock company of season players includes Ben Johnson as a crooked marshall and Ed Lauter as the honest Army colonel. Completing the roster are well-knowns David Huddleston, William McKinney, Charles Durning, Roy Benson, Casey Tibbs, Archie Moore and Joe Kapp.

Top tunesmith Jerry Goldsmith's score is neat and the photography all through is beautifully handled.

With such stalwarts as David Niven, Darren McGavin, Don Knotts and Hershel Bernardi topping Walt Disney's "No Deposit, No Return," at the Fox 4, is a G-rated, 112 minute romp that features a self-kidnapping, fast auto chase, aerial tricks and a fairish plot. The family film is lightweight but it has its entertaining moments.

Last Sunday was a double-header for me. Early in the afternoon I was present in the new studios of KTEZ-FM (Music all the time) at the Tower of the Plains while station personnel conducted tours of the facility and Mayor Roy Bass snipped the traditional ribbon. Having appeared on the station some four times in the past six months or so, I have fond feelings for Art Christensen, account executive and my host, and was pleased to meet the others of the enterprising staff.

From there it was a dash to Greater St. Luke's Baptist Church for an afternoon of glorious spiritual music from the Federation of Choirs, 110 strong, in the 22nd Anniversary service. Lyons Chapel Baptist Church was the host and that big church was jammed to the rafters, literally. It was hot inside and the shouting and singing went on without a slip.

What a thrilling emotional experience this day is each year, and A.L. Smith, president of the Federation, Mrs. Joan Ervin, secretary, Director Elder Levi Lenley, Directresses Desma Moore, Yvonne Perry, pianists Mae P. Jackson and Martha Haynes, and organist Prof. William Shumate, all deserve a thumping hand of congratulations. As, of course, do the soloists and the solid choir, all of whom worked so hard and did so well in the singing worship of the Lord.

The Federation of Choirs service is a wonderful event on the annual calendar and deserves to be heard by persons in all walks of life, race, color and creed. This is simple devotion and meaningful.

There was, I thought, one flawed moment in this otherwise shining afternoon. Midway in the service several of the political candidates were introduced and allowed their pitch. It was a show-stopper and a break in the emotional mood. It was a forum in the wrong time and place, to me. It broke a mood so important to maintain. I hope next year there will be no tub-thumping to mar this brilliant event.

Well, the 48th Annual Awards of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences came off as usual Monday night, colorful, peppered with bright stars and handsomely staged production numbers and, as usual, ran a bit overtime on the network.

In our guesses made in this column last week, we did not hazard the Best Song category, but it was a pleasure to hear and see young Keith Carradine cop the Oscar for his singing and playing of his own composition, "I'm Easy" from the memorable "Nashville." Papa John Carradine, veteran player, watched his offspring's top moment with pride, and well he might. The young man is personable, talented and his acknowledgement of his mother and father ("who made it possible") was warming.

The film segment of Mary Pickford receiving her special Oscar at Pickfair was a bit saddening as the 83-year-old movie great endured the ordeal of minutes or so. Long an ill recluse inside the lavish estate, Miss Pickford is the legendary last of the true motion picture titans and the clips from some of her silent and talking screen successes were true nostalgia bits. She won the second Oscar given to an actress (for "Coquette"), and the Academy's homage was in good and right order. (Heavens to Betsy, can Miss Pickford and Charles "Buddy" Rogers have been married 39 years already!) Incidentally, Rogers co-starred in the first Oscar-winning Best Film, the memorable "Wings" away back when! Ironic that the other co-star Richard Arlen died Sunday at 75, just one day before the mention of the film on Monday's broadcast.

Those who read last week's forecast of the proceedings will remember that I divided my choices into three categories for the six leading nominee blocks. I had probably, dark horse and personal choice. How'd I do? In the probabilities, I called Jack Nicholson for best actor; Louise Fletcher for best actress; George Burns for best supporting actor; and Milos Forman for best director. Four out of six, not bad. My single "dark horse" winner was Lee Grant, best supporting actress.

But now look at my personal choice! Jack Nicholson, Louise Fletcher, Lee Grant, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest", Milos Forman. Five out of six, darned good. I admit I lost on the first category (probable) when I thought "Barry Lyndon" would take the statuette. I did that because of the vast technical accomplishments in an otherwise tediously long film. Well, "Lyndon" got a number of awards in the technical division, all right. But "Cuckoo's Nest" was a perfectly fine choice for me.

It is too bad that we don't ever see the best shorts and documentaries, but that's the way it goes.

Randolphs Attend Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Randolph attended the birthday celebration for Randolph's older sister, Ola Randolph, Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Ford in Post, with all seven of the Randolph children present.

A delicious dinner was enjoyed by the twenty-five Randolph family members present and pictures were taken in the afternoon.

The honoree was presented a lovely birthday cake made by Mrs. Sue Randolph of Shallowater, which was served to all present. Everyone reported a very enjoyable day of celebrating.

Giles Anniversary ...

a bridal centerpiece designed by Mrs. Giles. The piece was crowned with an archway of silk and satin gold tone rosebuds from Japan, with tiny gold wedding bells in the archway center. The bells had been used in all the family's showers also.

Mrs. Giles said that when she began making the centerpieces she never dreamed that one day she would be making one for her own 50th wedding anniversary.

But, there was a centerpiece on the serving table as well. A beautiful four-tiered cake topped with wedding bells, white doves, and the lettering "50" crowned the oaken table.

Another antique piece, a baby grand piano, served as a source of entertainment for the gathering. A family friend played the piano as Mrs. Giles sisters, Gladys Tartar of Midland, and Doris Pate of Lubbock sang lovely songs. Two of the Giles' grandchildren also sang, accompanied by Tim Sinclair on the banjo.

Though it did not actively participate in the celebration, a deep well open pendulum clock, made over 200 years ago in Berlin, Germany, quietly surveyed the scene. Near the clock was a Rose Console table, also over 200 years old. On it was an insignia from the Tudors, the royal family of Tudors, the royal family of England from 1495 to 1603. The table sat under a wagon wheel window personally by Mrs. Giles for the house when the couple redecorated a few years ago.

One of the many interesting features to the Giles' home is the Gone with the Wind lamps restored and designed by Mrs. Dale Knight, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Giles. One of the lamps dates back to 1887.

Lighting in the home is also supplied by lovely chandeliers suspended from the ceiling. The many antique furnishings that so beautifully grace the couple's home can only depict their love and taste for an unusual hobby which requires many hours of hard work. But the work is rewarded by restoring the original beauty to the furniture pieces, beauty which only hours of effort can find.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Giles have lived in Shallowater since 1946. In 1949, they moved to their present home. Their four children are graduates of Shallowater High School. Mrs. Sue Taylor of Lubbock graduated in 1945; Mrs. Betty Knight of Tucson, Arizona, graduated in 1947; Mrs. Shirley Crabtree of Kansas City, graduated in 1952; and Charles Giles of Shallowater graduated in 1956.

All of the children were among the top students in their classes, both in grade school and high school. Mrs. Giles credits her children's achievements in school to the teachers and the school program.

Mrs. Giles said she would never forget the day she was married. March 27, 1926, was one of the most hectic days in her life she said. She and Kermit went to the courthouse in Lubbock to obtain their marriage license, but could not convince the clerk on duty that they were both 18 years old. So they returned to their homes and got their fathers, James Giles and Pete Sullivan, to accompany them back to the courthouse. They got the license, but it was almost 6 p.m. and they didn't know who would marry them.

Mrs. Giles said she remembered glancing up to see a longtime family friend—and Methodist preacher—the Rev. Ross, walking in the courthouse. He agreed to marry them, and their vows were exchanged in the courthouse lobby in the late hours of the day 50 years ago.

Kermit Giles, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Giles, came to the Lubbock area with his farming family from Collin County. Mrs. Giles, the former Lorene Sullivan, came to the area from Childress County with her family in 1924. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sullivan, had worked the Elwood Farms, where the famous barbed wire was used. Mrs. Giles has a strand as a keepsake.

Mrs. Giles reminisces about the past, and recalls that her family was the first to arrive at the Santa Fe depot in Lubbock after it had been constructed. At the time she was 12 years old, and her family had come from Amarillo to greet her cousins who were returning home in 1919 from fighting in WWI.

The paint was still wet on the building when they arrived, she said.

But other pleasant memories revolve around the 50 years she and Kermit have spent together.

"How and what has been done with 50 years of married life," she said. It was all climaxed Sunday by the many precious friends and relatives who came to extend the best of wishes to the happy couple. She remarked that she knew now why they had spent so many years in Shallowater. It was a great community with so many good and wonderful people living here.

Also in her memories is the time she and her sister, Mrs. Doris Pate, nursed Shallowater's best loved citizens, back to health, in 1926. At that time, Mr. and Mrs. Todd were suffering from pneumonia. Both Doris and she took turns sitting with the couple until they were well. The Todds would always hold a special place in her heart, she said.

All four of the Giles' children and their families were in town for the happy event, with the exception of four of their nine grandchildren. The children presented their parents with a beautiful new color console television which was specially delivered at noon Saturday while all the children were present.

Out of town relatives attending the celebration were Giles' sister, Mrs. Catherine Adams and his niece, Mrs. JoAnn Dearman of Cooksville, Tenn. All of Mrs. Giles' brothers and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Pecos, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sullivan of Odessa, Mrs. Gladys Tartar of Midland, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pate of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibson of Seminole, nieces and nephews, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hatchett, and Jerry Gibson of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Herron and children of Sylvester, Mr. and Mrs. Joe B. Pate, Jr. of Lubbock; and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Scott of Clyde, and the Rev. W.J. Martin of Lubbock, who had married all three of the Giles' daughters.

At the end of the glorious day, the relatives present were honored with a delicious evening meal at the patio of the Holiday Inn in Lubbock. Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Pecos hosted the event.

As the day drew to a close, the Sullivans presented a special tribute to the couple, a fitting climax to the celebration of 50 years of marriage. Lorene and Kermit Giles, may you both see many more years of wedded bliss together.

Who bailed out the Navy in 1798?

We were still paying off the Revolutionary War. Then we were faced with yet another war, this time on the seas.

How could we afford to build up our Navy?

Well, Congress called for help through the issuance of government securities. And the citizens came through to the tune of $711,700. Enough to make the down payment on 10 new ships.

Their investment paid off. And you can follow their example today.

When you buy U.S. Savings Bonds at your bank or through the Payroll Savings Plan at work, you're investing in your country.

And as if that weren't enough, you're helping yourself to a safe and generous return.

What better way to stay afloat?

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

"Extension Update"

From Georgia Doherty
Lubbock County Extension Office

Has this been a long hard winter as far as your food budget is concerned? I have had more requests for programs and general information on ways to cut food costs than anything else in recent months. Therefore, I hope the following hints will be helpful in your shopping:

—Check weekly specials in foodstore advertisements.

—Prepare costs and buy food in the form—fresh, frozen, or canned—or the weight of package—that gives the most servings for the money.

—Shop carefully for low-cost foods within each food group.

—Take advantage of seasonal abundances. Radio, television, and newspapers call attention to foods in plentiful supply, as listed each month by the USDA. These foods will be at their peak of quality, and sometimes will be offered at lower prices.

—Limit perishable food purchases to amounts that can be used while they are in top quality.

—Prevent food waste by proper storage and by cooking methods that conserve nutrients.

—When buying meat, consider the amount of lean meat in the cut, not the cost per pound. Some cuts contain gristle, bone, and fat waste. For example, ground beef and beef short ribs may cost the same per pound but ground beef will give twice as many servings or more per pound as short ribs. Bacon, which is largely fat, is one of the most expensive foods you can buy in terms of protein value.

—Chicken and turkey have a large proportion of bone to lean, but are often bargains compared with other meats. Fish is high in nutrients often low in cost.

—Eggs are usually a less expensive source of nutrients than most meats. Dry beans and peanut butter are inexpensive alternates for meat.

—Study bread labels before you buy. Choose bread for weight and food value, not by the size of the loaf. Look for bread that is whole-grain or enriched, and that contains milk.

—Buy packaged cereals or any other packaged food by weight, not by the size of the package. To compare prices, first look for the weights listed on the labels and not the prices. Then figure the costs for an ounce or a pound.

—Ready-to-serve cereals in multipacks of small boxes may cost two or three times more per ounce than the same cereal in a larger box. Sugar-coated, ready-to-serve cereals cost more per ounce than many common, unsweetened ones, and furnish more calories but less other food value.

—Cereals you cook yourself (particularly the kinds that take longer to cook) are nearly always less expensive than the ready-prepared ones.

—Nonfat dry milk and evaporated milk cost considerably less per quart when reconstituted than whole fluid milk, and supply comparable amounts of calcium and protein. For baking and preparing many other foods, nonfat dry does not need to be reconstituted before using. A glass of whole fluid milk usually costs three times as much as a glass of reconstituted nonfat dry milk.

—Consider your time and the quality of the finished product in deciding whether to buy convenience foods (those partially or fully prepared). Also consider price in deciding if it pays to prepare a product yourself from basic ingredients; sometimes it does not.

We have pamphlets available on food budgeting here at the Lubbock County Extension office. They may be obtained by calling 763-5351, Ext. 235.

There are several major events coming up on the 4-H scene. We would appreciate your support in any way—by attendance at these functions, by serving as a volunteer leader, or just by encouraging young people to participate.

The county 4-H rifle contest will be held on April 17 with those 4-H'ers exhibiting the greatest amount of skill being selected as members of the Lubbock county
