Cotton Inc. Prexy To Visit Lubbock

J. Dukes Wooters, President of Cotton, Inc., New York and seven top executives of the firm will be in Lubbock July 24, 1974 at the South Park Inn to present a program on the marketing and research programs of Cotton, Inc.

Cotton, Inc., with offices in Raleigh, N.C. and New York, is the dollar-per-bale program to which 98 per cent of all cotton farmers throughout the cotton producing states are contributing. The dollar-per-bale goes into research and marketing activities aimed at increasing cotton producer profits.

The program, which is open to the public at no charge, is sponsored locally by the District Women's Cotton Promotion Association, with representation in ten counties on the High Plains and Rolling Plains.

According to Mrs. L.E. McDowell, publicity chairman of the women's group, the program is to give the West Texas cotton producer a better understanding of how the dollar-per-bale contributed to Cotton, Inc., is spent.

In addition to Wooters, speakers from New York and Raleigh will include: Dr. G.A. Slater, Dr. W.H. Wessling and J.K. Jones, Agriculture Research; Hal Brockman, Textile Research and Development; Dave Cox, Economic Research and Development; J. Nicholas Hahn, Marketing; and Don Kleckner, Advertising.

As an extra added attraction, a demonstration on belly dancing featuring the "dance of the seven veils" will be presented. The veils are of "all-cotton" material, of course. The program gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

SALMONELLA

Remember the last time you thought you had the "flu" or your stomach was upset? Well, that's all it might have been. Then again, you might have been suffering from "the bug" known as Salmonella. It causes a disease called salmonellosis which is one of the more common types of food poisoning. How common? Some guesses have gone as high as two million cases per year.

The bacteria that cause it are practically everywhere. Yet, with a little more care by everyone, especially in handling food, the number of "upset stomachs" in this country could be greatly reduced.

Salmonella food poisoning is not new on the scene, nor did it arrive with the increased processing of foods. It has probably been around since men first set foot on this earth, though it's often mistaken for something else.

Salmonella bacteria can live and grow in the digestive tract of man, once contaminated food is eaten. When this happens these symptoms may occur in 12 to 36 hours: severe headache, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and fever. Because of the similarity of symptoms, it may be mistaken for "flu" or other stomach disorders. The condition is rarely fatal except among infants or elderly persons whose resistance is low. The illness usually lasts from two to seven days.

Insects, rodents, and pets, especially turtles, birds, dogs, and cats, are the main carriers of salmonella. Humans get salmonellosis mainly through eating contaminated food or through contact with an animal or human carrier.

Yet, while these pesky bacteria can be spread easily, they can be controlled just as easily through proper personal hygiene and care in handling of food.

Heat and cleanliness are the two strongest weapons against salmonellosis:

—Heat, because salmonella bacteria in food are destroyed by heating it to a temperature of 155° F.

—Cleanliness, because clean hands, clean counters, and clean utensils stop the spread and growth of salmonella bacteria.

Here are some important steps you can take to protect yourself and your family:

—Although cooking kills the germs, do not use the same platters and utensils before and after cooking. Ingorning this can result in recontaminating your food with salmonellae in between the raw and cooked food. To safeguard against this "cross contamination", always thoroughly wash your hands, kitchen counter tops, utensils, dishes, and cutting boards with soap and hot water after contact with raw meat, poultry, and other raw foods. You might even use separate cutting boards for raw and cooked meat. Never use the board for any food that will not be cooked unless you first wash the board thoroughly in soap and water.

—When defrosting meat in the refrigerator, do not put it on top of or in contact with other food.

—After cooking, do not allow meat, poultry, and other foods to stand at room temperatures for longer than two hours. Bacteria grow well under these conditions and really thrive at temperatures between 45° and 115° F. It is important to remember that foods infected with salmonellae may not have an odor or off flavor.

—Be on guard for pets with symptoms of salmonella infection. Pet feeding dishes, toys, or bedding should not be allowed in the kitchen or near items in contact with the family's food. Wash your hands thoroughly after handling pets and before preparing food. Teach your children to wash their hands, too, before they enter the kitchen—and insist that they do this "religiously."

Little League Ends Season

Season for the Shallowater Little League ended recently with the Braves coming out in first place. The Dodgers captured second place with the Giants and Cubs ending the season in third and fourth places respectively.

Great enthusiasm was shown during the entire season by both players and fans. The season began with the tryouts in April with the first game played May 7th.

All players were outstanding in both conduct and playing, but the highlight of the season was when two players, Robby McKinney and Bobby Gomez slammed home runs clear over the fence, surrounding the playing area.

Approximately 100 boys were signed for the Little League program with eight girls signing up to participate.

Officers of the association this season were: President, Joe Cox; Vice President, Birl Holleman; Sec. Treas., Clois Cobb; Player Agent, Don Craig; Umpire, Charles McClure; Safety Officers, Richard Hopson and Harry Leonard; and Director, Jake Powell.

Financing of the Little League was done by selling fence signs and profits from the concession stand by the Association.

Sponsors for the teams were: Giants, First State Bank; Dodgers, County Line Co-op Gin; Braves, Shallowater Co-op Gin. The Cubs played the season without a sponsor and one is urgently needed for next years play.

There was also a minor league which consisted of ages 8 thru 11 with two teams in play for the season, the Jets and Colts.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

The strike goes on, or at least it does as of this scribbling, with neither side apparently willing to give in. When you come right down to it, it's a foolish situation.

The owners, if they were willing, could give some and the players, by the same token, also could yield. And yet both stand firm, convinced, apparently, that the other side will give in. At this rate, it may be 1975 before any progress is made.

But I'll predict one thing: the public will get fed up more with the players than it will the owners. For some crazy reason, the average working stiff, faced with inflation and more than his share of problems, can't get excited about players' "freedom."

In fact, the guy making up to $10,000 a year probably will have a slight sneer on his lips over someone making five times that complaining about his pay, benefits and freedoms—for a six month job.

Probably the most ridiculous demand is the freedom issue. Discipline is the basic ingredient in any organization, and if it means curfews, bedchecks and "do as I say, not as I do," to obtain it, so be it. That's part of the price for having a unit.

There were a lot of free swingers in Army uniforms who went through Taps, bed checks and "do as I say" without being hurt. And somehow, those men lived through it and came out better for it.

On the home front, get out and see the finals of the National Baseball Congress tournament at Lowrey Field this weekend. You will see some pretty good amateur baseball.

The winner and runnerup both will play in the state tournament slated here later, and that tourney should be even better. The top teams in the state will be here. It would be great if both the old and new Hubbers were in the final field.

The annual major league all star game is approaching and, as usual, both teams probably will have some players in the lineup, as voted by fans, who haven't earned the right to be there. And a number of those who should be in action will be golfing or fishing.

That really won't detract from the game. It's always interesting to see the top names in the game in action. Pitching usually dominates, although good hitters are going to have their say.

I always get a little stunned when, in July, I get the pocket Tech football schedule and, after looking at the dates, realize suddenly that the opening Raider game is only nine weeks away.

It doesn't matter that we haven't had rain and that it is hot; football season is only nine weeks away. It seems close and, to the coaches, who have a limited time to drill the squad, it probably is. I still go with the Raiders to win all the marbles this fall.

It hasn't always been a break, but it could be this season—getting both Texas and Arkansas in Lubbock. At least it is a moral advantage in having two of the toughest games at home.

In the past Tech has had a measure of success against both of them here, but then stubbed its toes against someone like TCU or Baylor. That is doubtful this year, but the A&M game in College Station is going to be critical. The Aggies ought to be loaded.

I got a "sneak" preview of the World Football League in action Wednesday night, as probably many others did. I was in Graham and the motel had cable TV. The Houston inaugural was carried.

Then, Thursday night, along with thousands of others, the official first nationwide telecast was carried.

Far be it from me to cast ice water on the noble efforts of those engaged in the action, but it did leave something to be desired.

I'd have to say that the action was a cut above the best college game, better than the first games of the old American Football League and a far cry from the polished performances of most NFL elevens. It wasn't bad football; it just wasn't real good.

At the same time, give credit where it is due. The WFL teams had no exhibition schedule. They were playing "cold turkey" and many of the errors they made will be eliminated as time goes on.

Still, it isn't what the TV viewer has come to expect. Defense generally dominated and the offenses didn't look sharp. If the NFL players strike isn't settled and that league plays with its mixture of pros and rookies, it will be a tossup between the leagues.

In fact, the WFL probably would have the edge in such a situation. Anyway, it leaves the armchair fan with little, really, to choose. And it could be the biggest boost the WFL could get.

I stopped in Coleman for gas the other day and asked about the fishing in the area. Pretty poor was the response. They blamed hot weather, wind and sand on the situation.

Over in the Graham area things didn't seem to be much better. It's been dry and hot there, too, and the fish are apparently in hibernation. In fact, no one seemed to be raving in either place about the fishing this year, although there were plenty of fishermen.

I've been nostalgic the past few weeks for Saranac Lake, N.Y., and my son-in-law didn't help much when we talked with him. He brought the subject up and said that he was ready to go next year.

Well, sir, next year is 365 days away and that is no help now. In fact, no vacation this year doesn't look like the most appetizing dish you could serve up. I keep thinking about all those trout, and bass and pike just waiting for my cast.

Now, admittedly, I didn't exactly put other fishermen out of business last year. I caught my share of trout, but it was the Little Woman who caught the pike, while I was skunked. She reminded me of that the other day, too. Talk about dirty pool!

Anyway, without my being there this summer, all those fish will grow that much more and a year from now, look out! In the meantime, I'm trying to find time to get even to White River.

Heard a good joke at our conference in Salado. seems that the woman libbers objected to the low number of women senators.

Their protest was taken up by an independent businessman, who agreed. He said he thought that half the male senators should be forced to quit and their places taken by women.

That would make the Senate half man, half woman, a fair ration, he declared.

"Then they could get together and do to each other what Senators have been doing to us for years!" he opined.

Shallowater School Offers DE Program

Members of the Shallowater School Board recently hired Mr. Gordon Jones as Distributive Education teacher for the school, which will be the first year the school has had this program offered.

A native of East Point, Georgia, where he finished high school, Mr. Jones has taught Distributive Education at South San Antonio High School for the past three years.

He has a Bachelor of Science and a Masters Degree, both in Distributive Education, from the University of Georgia.

Mr. Jones and his wife have two children, Caroline, 2 years old and Pete, six months. They reside at 5525 17th Place in Lubbock.

The purpose of the Distributive Education program is to train students for employment fields in retailing, wholesaling and servicing.

The program for the school will be divided into two sections. First type will be the cooperative program where the participating student will attend usually three hours in school each day and hold a job during the school day too, directly related to retailing and also what the student is learning in the classroom. The objective of this is so the student can have theory in the classroom and practical experience on the job, to better prepare them for a position in the business world.

The second type program will be pre-employment laboratory. Here the student does not work, but gets the classroom experience. Purpose of this type program is to prepare the student, first, to being in the cooperative program, so they can work, and second, if they don't ever get in the cooperative program, they are still prepared for the business world.

Mr. Jones anticipates approximately 40 students in both sections of the program. To qualify the student must be 16 years of age, a junior or senior student. Sophomores may participate in the pre-employment program. A three credit course will be given the person participating, one credit in pre-employment and three credits in cooperative.

In the cooperative program the employer (called the training sponsor by Jones) will grade the student on the job, and the grade received by the employer, helps to determine their school grade for the three credits.

Mr. Jones also emphasizes that the Distributive Education training is not a program for students, desiring only to get out of school early, or a program just to earn money, but a program for students desiring to learn the business world field.

For more information on the course, anyone may call Mr. Jones at the high school 832-4531 from 9 to 12 each morning.

Mr. Jones stresses that when the student leaves the school ground to attend their training station, to and from, and while there, they are just as much a part of the school as when they are on the campus grounds.

Donor Support of 4-H at All Time High

These two 4-H'ers were among 268 who received scholarship awards, provided by 4-H donors, in 1973. Donor support for 4-H has nearly tripled in the past 20 years, along with 4-H involvement. In 1974, $1.6 million dollars will be provided by some 60 4-H donor companies to provide incentive and recognition awards; educational aids and technical and public relations assistance to aid 4-H, through the National 4-H Service Committee.

Over 200,000 awards are being offered to 4-H boys and girls, in 1974, in 34 national and regional 4-H programs, according to the National 4-H Service Committee, Chicago.

These awards, include 265 scholarships valued at $184,100, over 1,400 trips to National 4-H Congress and other events, more than 100 medals of honor per county which are outlined in the recently published 60 page 1974 Handbook for Local 4-H Leaders. Designed for use by volunteer adult leaders, the publication contains information on 4-H programs, supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by some of America's largest corporations, organizations and foundations.

While program emphasis is on recognition of individual accomplishment in 4-H and community activities, there are opportunities for groups to share in numerous 4-H awards. Group recognition is provided for outstanding work at the club and county level, in the automotive program, sponsored by The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company; conservation, John Deere; health, Eli Lilly and Company; and safety, General Motors.

Twenty-two of some 60 national 4-H donors provide medals of honor to county winners, trips to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Dec. 1-5, for state winners and scholarships ranging from $600 to $1,000 for national winners. Among the programs and donors offering such recognition for excellence in specific programs are: International Harvester Company, agricultural; Eastman Kodak Company, photography; Celanese Chemical Company, beef; Moorman Mfg. Co., swine; Coats & Clark, Inc., clothing; General Foods Corporation, food-nutrition; and a new, in 1974, 4-H donor, Insurance Company of North America, dairy.

Encouraging 4-H youths to general 4-H achievement and leadership are the Ford Motor Company Fund and Reader's Digest.

More corporate "friends of 4-H" which also provide a full schedule of incentives and recognition in a variety of programs include: Standard Brands Incorporated, bread; Montgomery Ward, consumer education; Carnation Company, dairy foods; Simplicity Pattern Co., Dress Revue; Westinghouse Electric Corporation, electric and Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp., food preservation.

And other awards donors and programs they support are: The S&H Foundation, home environment; Tupperware Home Parties, home management; and Amoco Foundation, tractor and small engines projects.

For more information on national and regional 4-H awards programs and the 1974 Handbook for Local 4-H Leaders, contact the county extension office or a local volunteer 4-H leader.

Bicentennial Medallions May Now be Purchased at Security National Bank

The Bicentennial Association of Texas has announced that the official bronze and fine silver medallions struck in commemoration of the American REvolution are now available for purchase in more than 200 banks across the state.

Mrs. Bill Hobby, president of the Association, said that royalty revenue from medallion purchases will be a major source of financial support for official American Bicentennial activities authorized by the Legislature.

In Lubbock, medallions can be purchased at the Security National Bank.

"We greatly appreciate the help of so many members of the Texas Bankers Association in marketing the medallions as a public service," Mrs. Hobby said.

The American Bicentennial in Texas medallion commemorates the founding of the United States and pays tribute to the peoples of Texas.

The official emblem of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas is struck on the front of the medallion.

The converging arrows represent the ethnic groups that have come together 200 years and more to form the Lone Star state.

A two-headed figure of man on the reverse side dominates the design. One face looks to the past and the heritage of a bountiful land. Man's other face looks through a space helmet to a new age with bright promise of an even greater future.

Each 50 millimeter (1.97 inches) diameter medallion in both bronze and silver is serialized with a number stamped into the edge. The recipient may register his medallion's number along with his name in the Archives of the American Revolution Bicentennial in Texas.

New Application Forms Now Available For Purchasing VA Headstones

Persons applying for headstones or memorial markers for deceased veterans can get faster service by making sure they use a new application form that recently became available at Veterans Administration hospitals and regional offices, VA announced recently.

Formerly administered by the Department of the Army, the memorial program was transferred to the VA with the establishment of the National Cemetery System last fall.

The new monument application form (VA 40-1330) replaces a similar Department of Defense form which will continue to be accepted until supplies are exhausted. Persons using the old form are cautioned to forward the application to the following VA address instead of that provided on the form:
