1 See It!

Lessons in life are sometimes hard to explain to young children, some are hard for we grown-ups to understand and accept. My daughter had such an experience last Friday.

Last Friday between the hours of 9-11:30 a.m., she became the victim of theft. Her babydoll and baby furniture were stolen out of our closed storeroom. Nothing else was taken, except her Cabbage Patch baby carrier and Little Miss Rainbow swing, high chair and baby bath, and her doll named Meme. The furniture were Christmas gifts and Meme has been in the family for about 9 years.

How do you tell a child that just because you think you know who took the items, and even though they are your toys, you cannot go into someone's home and look? You cannot go peeking around their house, you can not hassle them about stealing your things; all you can do is report it to the authorities. The person, or persons, have their right to privacy, while it's you, the victim, that has been violated.

Well, she did report it . And to my surprise, she gave a very detailed description of each article missing, right down to the finest detail. She was a little apprehensive talking to Deputy Garvin Speed in an official capacity, but she had to do it. He treated her complaint in the same manner as he would have any adult; it was a theft of personal property, not just toys. She then wanted to know how soon she would recover her toys; that's when she learned about the judicial system.

Hopefully, someone will remember seeing someone carrying the toys away, and report it.

Harmon Home From Hospital

Medical testing has been completed on eighteen year old Robby Harmon at Park-land Memorial Hospital in Dallas.

He entered the hospital Sunday, July 9, 1989, for tests and was dismissed Wednes-day, July 12.

The collected data will be reviewed by a Board of Doctors associated with the University of Texas Health Science Center in mid-August. At that time, decision will be made concerning the continuance of this course of treatment for Robby, reports his grandmother, Mrs. Phyllis Cheatham.

Saturday Meeting The Quitaque Senior Citizens met Saturday, July 15, 1989, at 8 a.m. for their monthly breakfast a.m. for their monthly breakfast of this course of treatment for the commission signs off on the plans, the PRPC and other Texas councils of government will begin development of the systems. The law calls for all systems to be in operation by January 1, 1992.

The systems will allow callers to get emergency help immediately where in the region by dialing 9-1-1. The call will be routed to the PSAPs by phone company equipment. A police department or sheriff's dispatcher will answer the call and relay the information to the nearest police, fire or ambul-

Existing seven-digit num-bers in the Panhandle will not be affected by the new service. The 9-1-1 system will be faster because a person will only have to dial the three digits. Each PSAP will be equipped with a monitor which will list the calling number. The auto-matic number identifi-cation (ANI) unit will also allow the dispatcher to hold the number on the screen even if the caller has hung up. The dispatcher can either call back and get further information or send a law enforcement officer to investigate.
