ASCS Disaster Payment Program Announced

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will administer a crop disaster assistance program to compensate eligible producers for crop losses caused by drought, flood, and other natural disasters in either 1990 or 1991.

"To be eligible, producers with crop insurance must have had losses greater than 35 percent," said ASCS official Jerry Harris, Chairman of the Texas State ASC Committee. "Producers without crop insurance must have had losses greater than 40 percent."

Program applications may be filed from February 3 through March 13.

The 1990-91 crop disaster

program provides cash payments for production losses on participating program crops of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, extra long staple cotton, and rice; non-participating program crops; peanuts, soybeans, sunflowers, sugar beets, sugarcane and tobacco; and all commercial non-program crops.

Producers who intend to file should begin to assemble their records now, so they will be ready when the program opens. Farmers will receive a special mailing with specific information on the program this month. If a producer does not receive the disaster program information in the mail by February 3, he or she should call the county ASCS office.

A producer may not file on one crop on a farm for one year and a different crop on the same farm for the other. However, the producer may request benefits for 1990 on one farm and for 1991 on another farm.

The ASCS official said disaster payments would be computed according to the 1990 Farm Bill, and expects to begin issuing payments to farmers by April 16. Further details of the disaster payment program may be obtained from the local ASCS office.

Ava Hawkins Has Birthday

Briscoe Lady Celebrates 102 Years

Ava Mae McFall Hawkins celebrated her 102nd birthday December 31, 1991. She now resides at the Lockney Care Center in Lockney.

Mrs. Hawkins was born in 1889 in Snyder, Texas the eldest of eight children born to William Oliver and Epsie Adeline (Byrd) McFall. Growing up on a ranch in Kent County, Ava attended school at Elkins between Snyder and Clairmont.

She became the bride of Will Ware in 1906. They had two children, Ira Earnestine who died in 1918 and Oliver Kieth Ware who still resides at Quitauque. Earnestine was buried in the Silverton Cemetery as there was not one at Quitauque at the time. The Wares had come to Briscoe County in the mid-teens. Ava worked for A. L. Patterson in his dry goods store for a number of years.

In 1936 on March 29, Pierce Hawkins and Ava were married in Quitauque. He was a farmer and cabinet maker. Pierce died in 1962 at Matador.

From 1962 until 1989 Ava lived in Quitauque taking care of her own home and yard, sewing many pillow cases, aprons and pot holders. At one time she raised chickens and had her own fresh eggs along with a garden of fresh vegetables.

She spent endless hours working with her flowers in her yard, and mowed her own grass until she was 95 when she began to slow down a bit and let someone else do it for her.

Mrs. Hawkins has seen quite a few changes in the world during her lifetime. When she came to Briscoe County with her family, she traveled by wagon; today she looks out her window to see jets streaking through the sky. She cooked on a campfire to feed her family on the journey; now a micro-wave heats a cup of coffee in a couple of minutes.

Clothes were washed by boiling in a pot of hot water over a hotter fire; now, just chuck them in a washer. They were dried on a fence or bush or whatever was handy in the 1920's; now you push a button and they are dry.

Mrs. Hawkins has faced many heartaches, disappointments, problems, and sorrows in her lifetime. In conquering these she has become the strong person she is today. Today she recalls many wonderful memories of yesterday.

American Cancer Society Warns Of Misleading Study

Texans may be wrongfully misled by a study released by an East Coast group that is a self-proclaimed "watchdog" organization with politically motivated views, and that may be trying to discredit the American Cancer Society because of its anti-tobacco advocacy efforts.

The Capital Research Center began criticizing the American Cancer Society, along with other major health organizations like the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association, who during the past three years have increased anti-tobacco advocacy efforts on state and federal levels.

When officials of the Capital Research Center have been asked if these studies were funded by the tobacco industry, they would not deny affiliation.

The author of the study claims to have used public documents, such as annual reports, to conduct his research. But, he admits he did not talk to an official of the Texas Division of the American Cancer Society.

The American Cancer Society, Texas Division, is a state-wide, community-based and grass roots organization. Over 200,000 Texans volunteer to help fight cancer. These volunteers reside in virtually every Texas community, and have organized nearly 300 local units of the Society with boards of directors.

WE THE WOMEN TO MEET

by Mary Stark
We The Women will have their monthly meeting Tuesday noon at the United Methodist Church. Lunch will be catered by Linda Stark. The program will be presented by Briscoe County's new Home Economist, Ronda Alexander.

If you haven't been coming to the We The Women meetings, January would be a good time to start. It is a great time of fellowship with other women in the community, good programs, outstanding food, and an opportunity for service in the Quitauque community.

WTU Instigates New Items

Customers of West Texas Utilities may notice two new items on their electric bill beginning in January. Both result from changes required by state officials and affect every investor-owned utility in Texas. "One item will not cost customers any more money but the second item will slightly increase bills" according to Keith Edwards, WTU's area manager.

The first item involves the customer charge which has been part of the electric bill for several years. By order of the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas it now must be listed as a separate item. The charge includes basic costs such as reading meters and processing the bills. It does not change each month and is currently set at $6.50 for residential customers. The customer charge has not increased and this change does not affect the amount of a customer's bill.

The second new item involves the tax increase bill passed by the Texas Legislature in 1991. The PUC recently decided how utilities should collect the new state tax. The tax will be collected for each kilowatt hour a customer uses. The total tax for a month will be listed as a separate item on the bill. A typical WTU residential customer who uses 600 kilowatt hours will see about a 30 cent increase on their monthly electric bill as a result of the new tax. The factors used to collect the tax will vary according to the type of customer. For example the amount of tax a commercial and a residential customer pays will be different.

These recent actions cap off a year of activity involving the PUC and WTU. Most of the activity was initiated by WTU and centered around reducing customer's bills or stimulating the West Texas economy.

In June and October customers received good news from the company in the form of reduced fuel factors and a fuel credit. These reductions were a direct result of the company's efforts to reduce fuel costs.

In December the company filed a request to offer three new services designed to attract new business and help existing businesses. The three new services were in the form of tariffs or rates which cover economic development, interruptible service and curtable service. If approved by the PUC, these services would strengthen efforts to maintain a viable West Texas economy.

WTU serves almost half a million people in a 52,000 square mile area that stretches from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

THEN & NOW!

by Eunice McFall

Well the time has come and gone for making those New Year resolutions. Did you make them or not? They do help us to get our life in focus sometimes. It helps us to put first things first and to concentrate on perhaps the most important items in our lives that are not as we want them to be.

Resolutions do not have to be a big major upset in our lives to make a good difference for us. Sometimes a small change in our life style can make a major difference in the quality of our lives. But to have the courage to change a bad habit is always commendable. But courage it does take--regardless whether the resolution is a big change or just a minor one--

Anytime we set out to do something new or different it will take more time, more thought, perhaps much more energy and a big heaping bucket of courage to stick with the change. Especially if you are trying to change something that "The whole crowd" ALWAYS does.

But it is very rewarding when once you gather up the courage to stand up and be counted and make the changes you set out to do. As you make one change, others may present themselves to you to help make your life even more enjoyable.

One resolution I would like to carry out is to send more cards to those who are ill this coming year.

A couple who come to mind today are:

Good News Department

There may be nothing sadder or more painful than losing a loved one to a debilitating disease such as Alzheimer's, an age-related neurological illness. Caregivers struggle to cope with the physical and emotional challenges involved in providing love, care and a secure environment for their loved one.

A new booklet from the American Bible Society called "God's Love For Us Is Sure And Strong" brings comfort to many who care for a relative, friend or a spouse with Alzheimer's disease. This booklet brings together a collection of Scripture passages from which a caregiver can draw strength and comfort through the power of God's Word. Key verses are highlighted throughout the text and serve as reminders that God cares and promises to support you in your role as a caregiver. Reading and listening to God's Word is an activity both caregiver and Alzheimer sufferer can do together.

Those who are parents of young children must now confront the tasks involved in getting them ready for the new school year which is approaching. In addition to clothes, eye examinations and a refresher course in discipline, unfortunately one more preparation is needed in today's world. In light of all the recent horror stories about kidnapping and other dreadful crimes perpetrated against children, be sure yours are safe. You must caution them to beware of strangers who might offer them a ride or some candy, and encourage them to tell you of any unusual occurrence. However, your children should be taught common sense and discretion without the trauma of unnecessary fear. Your house of worship can help guide you in this, along with its Sunday school, which can balance your warning with the faith in God that they will need right now; as well as all the rest of their lives.

"The most important thing that parents can teach their children is how to get along without them."
-Frank Clark

Many households are quite diversified these days in the lifestyles and interests of the members, as well as in the biological sense because of step-children and half-brothers and sisters living under one roof. Indeed, many families find it hard to remember the last time they all had dinner together. Some of this is unavoidable, as in the case of a father who must travel on business or a mother involved in committee work for a worthy cause. However, the family members should make an effort to be together whenever possible, to discuss problems or just to have some kind of fun that spans the generation gap. Moreover, they should attend their House of Worship regularly, for this will help to cement the bonds. The family circle should be an unbroken one; a center of love and a haven of refuge from the outside world.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Psalm 133:1

Bridges For Education

Every school district in the nation may eventually benefit from one woman's efforts to build bridges between private enterprise and our troubled public schools, educators agree.

Margarita Colmenares, a 34-year-old environmental engineer at Chevron U.S.A., is one of 16 Americans selected for the 1991-92 White House Fellowship program that, since its inception in 1964, has provided gifted and highly motivated Americans with firsthand experience serving in the White House and other branches of the federal government.

The fellowship is far from the first leadership challenge for Colmenares. For the past ten years, she has been a trail blazer for a new generation of women and minorities entering leadership positions in corporate America. She's one of the first Latina engineers ever hired at Chevron, a company that backs a number of efforts aimed at improving elementary education and encouraging minority youth to study math and science. The Stanford University-educated Colmenares also served as the first woman president of the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers and is the first Hispanic engineer to become a White House Fellow.

Fellow.

As a Fellow, Colmenares will work in the Department of Education helping to implement "America 2000." Among its goals: to boost the nation's high school graduate rate to at least 90 percent; make U.S. students the world's best in math and science; and create a comprehensive system of adult education and training programs.

Just as important, Colmenares hopes to bring private industry into the educational process. "Business involvement is essential in creating a better educational system," she says. "The private sector needs to contribute not only financial resources but human resources as well to our public schools."

Colmenares, who credits her Mexican immigrant parents with instilling in her an understanding of the value of education, requested the Department of Education post because "education is at the core of the many domestic issues that our country faces. Education is the basis upon which democracy will flourish."
