Miss Tops Gilreath, president of the Childress Chapter, gave a few facts about Jefferson Davis. She told the group, "Show me a hero and I will write you a tragedy," which illustrates the life of Jefferson Davis. He was introduced by Willian Yancey when Davis was sworn in as President of The Con-Mandia. "Kathy Green." The first place was won by Jena Sue Mullin of Turkey, who could not be present. In the fifth and sixth grades the topic was "Sam Davis—The Boy Hero of Tennessee" and little Miss Rieta Sue Garvin, fifth grader in the Turkey School, using the name "Mary Beth" won first place. Cash awards of $10.00, $7.50 and $5.00 were presented by Miss Willian Yancey when Davis was sworn in as President of The Confederate States as "The Hour and the Man have met." His private life was invaded by grievous callamities including the death of all four of his sons. But doom did not break his faith in a higher Power. Hodson Strode said of Davis, "I can find no fatal flaw in his character unless it is a passion of "An almost fanatical Belief in Freedom and Government." Ours is now one nation.
