Mrs. Jeffie Barnes of Sweetwater, mother of Mrs. Paul A. (Jan) Ramsey, has a believe-it-or-not. She has recently had a new granddaughter, Lindsey Perry of Abilene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Perry, born on February 28, 1984, and the baby made the fourteenth daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter in Mrs. Barnes' family. (Mrs. Barnes is the 15th "girl" in the family.) Jan says the only way they can get a boy in the family is to marry one.

Congratulations again, Mrs. Barnes!

A large part of the new curriculum Plan (House Bill 246) for Texas schools has already been approved by the State Board of Education but there are some issues still to be resolved. One issue still being considered has to do with student absences for extracurricular activities. Those types of activities include something which may keep a student from attending class and may be anything from athletic contests to stock shows to subject related UIL events.

The proposed rule in question states that a student will not be allowed to miss more than five days from any one class to participate in any specified activity which may take place below the district level within the 175 day school year. The Amarillo area people had an opportunity March 1 to appear before the State Board in a public hearing to voice an opinion concerning the five day rule. A large number of parents, vocational, 4-H, and school people appeared at that hearing to give testimony about what they did not like about the rule and also to offer suggestions for alternative solutions. If those who testified are any indication about how people feel about the rule, apparently not many are in favor of the five day limitation. Of those appearing, not one person was in favor of the proposal; in fact, all of them wanted at least 10 days or more. Some suggested that such a rule is unnecessary and that limitations can be controlled at the local level.

Looking at the question from the Valley School point of view, we see that five days may be too restrictive in certain situations where quality students would be forced to choose between activities. A highly involved student may wish to participate in livestock shows, UIL literary activities, athletics, music, vocational contests, or the many other worthwhile programs which may interfere with classroom time and even go beyond the proposed five day rule. Even though these students are very involved they still often make the best grades in school and profit from their involvement. Ten days for Valley are more than necessary. We can easily live within a ten day limitation with minimum interference with our existing program.

Whatever rule the State Board adopts it is essential that it contain certain elements which does not limit student motivation but yet make sure that a learning atmosphere is maintained in the classroom.

According to the latest Texas Municipal Report, the Turkey - Quitaque ISD has 499 square miles, is located in four counties, and has a population of 1604.

The same report indicates that the school bonds for the school district will be paid off in 1990. The bond payment for that year will be $46,416. That will make 1991 a very nice year.

The lunchroom records for February show that 4977 lunches were served to students with an average of 262 per day. That is not including snack bar sales or breakfasts served. The school is reimbursed $4030.03 from the state as support for the lunchroom. The best lunch, according to student participation, was served on February 2, when tacos and beans was the main course. On that day 275 students ate lunch. An average of 40 breakfasts were served each day.

Dana Dee Ramsey has made the Dean's Honor Roll every semester she has been enrolled at Wayland. Dana is majoring in math and plans to teach school. She graduated from Valley High School in 1981.

What Is "Right of Eminent Domain?"

Nearly every state in the Union makes provision in its Constitution for payment of compensation to an owner when property is acquired by the "right of eminent domain."

Since "just compensation" is not defined in the U.S. Constitution, or by any state, the courts have generally held that this compensation is measured by market value.

A book published by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Real Estate Valuation in Litigation, provides attorneys, appraisers, real estate consultants and property owners with a basic understanding of real estate valuation. It deals with principles important in IRS disputes, condemnation proceedings, divorce actions, boundary line disputes and other legal procedures.

The volume, which cites applicable laws and court rulings in appraisal and legal terminology, was written by J.D. Eaton, a specialist in litigation appraising and consulting.

Mrs. Baisden Returns From Visit In Utah

Mrs. Nadine Baisden returned home on Monday of last week from a three month visit in Ogden, Utah in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pat (Marsene) Patterson and family. She left her car in Grapevine at the home of her son, Jim Baisden, and spent Thanksgiving at their home before leaving for Utah, then she made a weekend visit with them on her return to Texas.

While in Utah, Pat Patterson purchased tickets for the family, including grandma, to attend a Utah Jazz Pro-basketball game in the Salt Palace at Salt Lake City. The game was against the Milwaukee Bucks and was won by the Jazz 116 to 102, she reported.

Mrs. Baisden and Marsene did a lot of family research in the Genealogical Library at Ogden and also at Salt Lake City. In fact, Mrs. Baisden was such a frequent visitor at the Ogden Library that she made the Ogden Standard Examiner Church News Edition of the paper, the weekend before she left, as she happened to be researching in the library when pictures were made for a write-up about the Genealogical Library for the newspaper.

She said she saw plenty of snow and never saw the ground while she was gone, nor much sunshine. There were very few sunny days and these were not consecutive, she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Shorty Woods spent Sunday and Sunday night visiting their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Woods and children in Lubbock.

Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Marie White of Tulia spent the day and had lunch with Mr. and Mrs. P. John Monk in Quitaque. She is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Monk.

COMMUNICATING WITH TEENS

Underneath their cool exteriors teens are extraordinarily sensitive to all behavior and feelings that affect them. Expect some unpredictable behavior from your teen and give him/her enough lifespaces to make a few mistakes.

The message you send them may not always be the message they receive, as in all human communications. Work to keep the channels of communication open.

Start early to give your child ample opportunity for decision making. This helps to build self-esteem and confidence in making decisions. Give him/her options then let them accept the natural consequences of their choice.

Work at LISTENING to your teenager. Really try to understand his/her everyday problems and needs. Many teens feel their parents do not have time for them. Try to remember the insecurities and problems you had as a teen (we all had some) so you can be more understanding with your adolescent. Respond as much to their feelings as to their words. Be open to their views even if you disagree.

Teens respond to adults who:
 *Respect their ideas, wishes, likes and dislikes, and give them the opportunity to choose options;

*Allow them to learn by doing;
 *Provide them with clear reasonable limits;

*Understand that they often have changes in feelings;

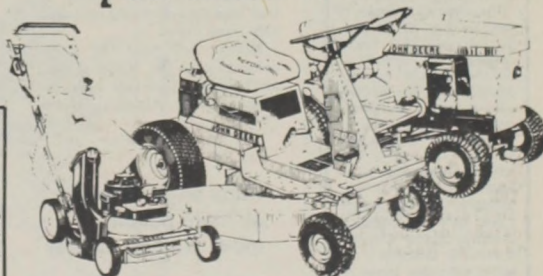

*Can admit that even as adults they don't have all the answers and also make mistakes;

*Accept the teen as an individual with feelings.

Mrs. Bettie Johnson and daughter, Tracey, of McKinney spent the weekend of February 24-26 in the home of their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. P. John Monk. On Sunday, Mrs. Monk and her daughter, Bettie, shared a birthday dinner, that day being the birthday of both.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Taylor spent from Friday until Monday in Dalhart visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bradley. They returned home Monday and stopped in Canyon to visit Mr. Taylor's brother, Preston Taylor, and his wife. They got home about 6:00 p.m., reporting a very good visit.

Once you've decided to mow with the best, it's only a question of how fast you want to finish.

No matter what kind of lawn you have or how much time you want to spend on it, there's a dependable, top-quality John Deere mower that's designed for the job.

If, for example, you have a lawn of a quarter acre or less, your best bet is probably a walk-behind mower. There are several models available, including the 21-inch self-propelled version pictured above. It comes with a dependable 4-hp engine, a deep die-cast aluminum deck, and rear-wheel gear drive.

If you own a larger lawn, you may prefer one of the five new John Deere riding mowers. Even the 8-hp R70, the lowest cost model, will mow a half-acre in just 30 to 45 minutes, depending on the amount of trimming to be done. It has a 30-inch mower, a full-length welded steel frame, a 5-speed shift-on-the-go gear-drive transmission, and an optional 6 1/2-bushel rear grass bag. Or, if you mow an acre or more, a John Deere lawn tractor may be in order. The 116, for instance, with a 46-inch mower and 16-hp engine, will mow an acre of lawn in about 45 minutes. All five lawn tractors can provide added versatility with optional front blade, snow thrower, dumpcart, lawn thatcher, and rear-mounted grass bagger (for 30- or 38-inch mowers).

TFU President Applauds Jim Hightower Action

Texas Farmers Union President Mike Moeller is applauding efforts by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower to convince federal budget director David Stockman to review his interpretation of the Economic Emergency Loan Program.

Moeller, speaking to Hightower's February 17th letter written to Stockman, says "Some type of action must be taken; the handling of the Economic Emergency (EE) program by Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has been abominable. Stockman's office is at fault. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) for the White House stepped in after Judge Flannery ordered the release of the $600 million (Kjeldah vs. Block, Civil Action No. 82-2745). Stockman directed FmHA to release some $50 to $60 million of the money for direct loans; the remaining $540 to $550 million is only to be used for guarantee purposes."

"These guaranteed loans in this program have two problems," continued Moeller. "To begin with, the loan rates for the direct, insured loans are carrying interest of 10.25% to 10.75%, while the guaranteed loans are going for 14% to 15% through commercial banks. You don't have to have a doctorate in economics to realize the difference between the two sets of rates. Then on top of that, the agricultural credit situation is tight out there in the country. These little rural banks just don't have the money to loan... they are all 'loaned' out."

Moeller's comments were prompted by the tightening credit situation, Hightower's correspondence with Stockman, and U. S. Senator Walter Huddleston's (ky.) appeal to Judge Thomas Flannery of Washington, D. C. Senator Huddleston has asked Judge Flannery to review the OMB/FmHA conduct in the matter. Senator Huddleston has noted that since the EE program was created in 1978, the bulk of the $4.85 billion has been used as direct loans, and when the program first began, almost 95% of the funds were issued directly.

National agriculture leaders were forced into a year's worth of civil action to pry the already available loan money from the FmHA, which operates under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The case was heard in the courtroom of Judge Flannery who found for the plaintiffs and against Secretary John Block and the USDA last October.

The TFU president also echoed and expanded on Hightower's closing comments in the letter. "The Commissioner is right about there 'being a world of hurt' in agriculture right now," says Moeller.

He's also on target about the severe damage being done to the small rural communities. Recovery may be on tap for other portions of the country, but there is still just one word to describe many rural towns now, in both economic and spiritual terms: DEPRESSED. The release of that loan money would certainly help those towns."

Moeller will head the Texas delegation to the National Farmers Union Convention to be held in New Orleans March 11-14.

Rural areas change as more people move outside the city

COLLEGE STATION—Rural America is changing dramatically and Americans should prepare to shape that change or be ready to face social stress that could lead to serious disintegration of our society, says a Texas A&M University rural sociologist.

"It is time we took a new, fresh look at rural America and what it is becoming," said Dr. William Kuvlesky, professor of sociology. "Rural America, the vast array of diverse non-metropolitan areas which cement the large metropolises of our society together geographically and socially, is being reshaped rapidly."

Statistics show that between 1970 and 1978 almost three million more people moved out of metropolitan areas than moved in and three-fourths of all non-metropolitan counties in the United States gained population, he said.

State Information Program Tells Taxpayers How To Get Tax Relief

Ron Patterson, executive director of the State Property Tax Board (SPTB), today announced a statewide effort to inform Texas property owners of their rights, remedies, and responsibilities as taxpayers.

According to Patterson, SPTB will coordinate efforts with appraisal districts and all local news media to help make taxpayers aware of rendition and exemption filing deadlines and methods by which exemptions or other forms of tax relief may be obtained.

"The first priority for property owners is to file renditions and applications for tax relief before May 1 this year," Patterson said.

Rendition is the method through which a property owner reports or lists the taxable property he owned or managed on January 1, 1984. It is also the means by which a taxpayer is allowed to record his own opinion of his property's value.

Patterson noted that taxpayers may file all exemption applications and property rendition forms with the central appraisal district office. State law also allows one-time applications for homestead exemptions, disabled veterans' exemptions and open-space land valuation.

However, he said, persons whose property is located in more than one county appraisal district have an additional responsibility. These property owners may be required to file for exemptions and productivity valuation in each appraisal district in which their property is located. Failure to do so could result in one or more taxing units taxing the property on its full market value.

An example would be where a city or school district is located in two counties and chooses to join only one appraisal district.

Property owners who last year received homestead exemptions, disabled veterans' exemptions and open-space land (1-d-1) valuation do not need to reapply in 1984. However, the chief appraiser may confirm a person's current qualifications by requesting a new application form be completed.

Applications must be filed in 1984, Patterson said, by property owners who have not previously received tax relief on their present homestead or land.

State law also requires that applications for agricultural (1-d) valuation be filed each year in all appraisal districts.

Agricultural (1-d) and open-space land (1-d-1) valuations are available to property owners using land for farming or ranching purposes. Such land may be taxed based on productivity rather than market value.

Certain property owners are required to render their property. "Any person who owns or manages income-producing personal property on January 1 is required by state law to file a rendition statement with the appropriate appraisal district," Patterson said.

Special rendition procedures exist for property on which an exemption applicable on January 1 ends during the tax year. In such a case, the person who owns or acquires the property when the exemption ends must render the property for taxation within 30 days.

And, the chief appraiser may require rendition of other taxable property upon notice to the property owner or manager. Transportation companies, banks and railroads must also file special rendition statements.

Patterson said rendition forms are available from appraisal district offices. Transportation businesses may obtain property report forms from the SPTB.

Complete information on tax exemptions and rendition requirements is contained in "Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities!" a taxpayer pamphlet produced by the SPTB.

The pamphlet also reviews how to prepare and present an appeal to the appraisal review board. It is available at no charge from appraisal district offices or from the SPTB in Austin.

"The property tax is the primary source of local government revenue in Texas," Patterson noted. "It will generate about $8 billion this year to help fund public schools, cities, counties and special districts."

"We urge all property owners to become familiar with the tax process, to file renditions and to apply for all exemptions or other tax relief to which they are entitled," Patterson concluded.

Japanese corporation to acquire patent for processing soybeans

COLLEGE STATION—A Japanese corporation has made an offer to acquire world license rights to a process developed at Texas A&M University to take the "beany" flavor out of soybean protein products.

The Texas A&M University System (TAMUS) Board of Regents authorized a license agreement with Yazaki Plastics Industries Co. Ltd. to use the ultrafiltration membrane technology developed by James T. Lawhon, research engineer with the Food Protein Research and Development Center. The center is a division of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, the engineering research arm of TAMUS.

Porter said the acquisition of the technology by the Japanese firm may open new markets for soybean protein products in Japan and help the U.S. balance-of-trade situation. Japan does not grow soybeans, but they are a major crop in America. Officials expect Japan to import soybeans grown by U.S. farmers.

Lawhon received a U.S. patent on the process for processing protein from oilseeds including soybean, peanuts, sesame seeds and glandless cottonseeds.

Sign-Up For 1984 Said To Be Sound Investment

Charles W. Mayfield, State Executive Director of the Texas State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, states that he is optimistic that producers' participation in the 1984 farm programs will be great in Texas and throughout the nation.

"The 1984 farm programs are a means for our producers to hold onto the price edge they gained through participation in the 1983 farm programs which included the Payment-in-Kind Program (PIK). The massive acreage reduction of 1983 cotton, feed grain, rice and wheat successfully reduced the commodity stocks that had a strangle-hold on farm profits," Mayfield said.

"Today, for the first time in years, prices overall on these commodities are good, and with continued restraint in planting, prices will hold and get better. Full income recovery is in the hands of the farmers now. They realize that speculation in growing for quick profit on an emerging healthy market would bring about overproduction and financial disaster."

"Farmers are cognizant that our foreign markets have been drastically diminished by unfair trade practices built into agreements among the European Common Market countries, and that subsidized farmers in Europe have won a fair size of markets we previously enjoyed. The purchasing power of other world markets has weakened as they continue to find ways and means of working out of the inflation and recession from which we are recovering. Until foreign markets realize that it is in their best interests to participate in fair trade practices, and resolve their financial burdens—it would be self-defeating for us to produce for storage."

"Sign-up for 1984 programs with its agreement to reduce acreage not only insures the nation's farmers of a continued healthy market with farm profits, it reduces production expense and guarantees price protection. 1984 sign-up, together with FCIC's crop insurance, will guarantee economic well-being and a more prosperous future for America's farmers. There is no doubt about it, sign-up for 1984 is a sound investment."

Beware The Insect Enemies: Roaches

In 1983, American consumers will spend over 500 million dollars on insecticides. In 1984, that figure is expected to reach almost 550 million. For the most part, the beleaguered object of this massive assault is the roach.

The roach, of which there are over 3,500 varieties, has been a thorn in man's side for over 300 million years. It seems as if no amount of spraying, trapping or just plain floor stomping has been enough.

The problem is their ability to survive and reproduce. The female German roach can produce up to 40 offspring in a month—every month. But someday—maybe—we can develop birth control for them. Earle K. Borman, President of The d-CON Company, explains, "Research is underway to create an ingredient which will kill roaches in the larva stage, before they can mature. We have done this for fleas with great success."

Until the technique is perfected, consumers will have to rely on present over-the-counter insecticides plus precautionary steps, which include keeping things clean, caulking doors and windows, and disposing of cartons and bags brought in from grocery stores (hiding places for roaches and their nymphs).

An interesting fact about roaches is that they are 75% water and herein lies an excellent way to control them. Roaches have a vulnerable coating of wax and oils on their stomachs. Products containing silica gel, such as d-CON Warpath®, can erode this coating causing roaches to literally wither away. Sprayed behind kitchen appliances, the silica gel can maintain its effectiveness for up to seven months.

AUSTIN — We have already discussed three of the most common areas of the future Texas and the other states must judge closely if they are to understand what this country will become by the year 2000.

Economic development, agriculture and transportation were the priority areas that most states recognize. There are a number of other areas policy-makers must consider as vitally important to our way of life.

State governments will be required to preserve, protect and improve our natural environment. Recommendations must be made to insure the long-term availability of forests, fisheries, agricultural, mineral and water resources.

For Texas, there is a serious problem already looming in regard to water resources. It has already been of serious concern to the Texas Legislature and in 1985 it will again be of prime importance.

Education will undoubtedly be a priority for all states and Texas ranks it as an immediate problem. The quality of education is being discussed and examined now in Texas and the debate is certain to continue into the future.

Energy conservation and development of new energy sources is of prime importance in Texas. Our Texas 2000 Commission recommends exploration of lignite and other renewable energy sources such as biomass, solar and wind energy. Almost every state urges reducing the reliance on imported oil.

Land use planning will receive more attention in the future. Many states are already looking at recommendations for planning and regulation and adoption of statewide

NEWS

For Small Businesses

Consumer Bankruptcies

There could be big news for small businesses. Consumers, merchants and professionals can benefit as well.

Congress is considering a bill to tighten up the bankruptcy laws. At present, people declaring bankruptcy can choose not to pay their debts under Chapter Seven of the bankruptcy code, even when they have the ability to repay. This part of the law uses the bankrupt's assets to pay his debts, but up to $30,000 in assets can be exempted. The new legislation, H.R. 1800, would have court administered counseling for debtors. Many might choose policies to assist local communities in meeting demands and costs of future growth as it affects open space, residential, commercial and agricultural lands.

Finally, increased population is of concern to the states in the future. By the turn of the century, Texas will be the second most populated state in the nation, with about 17 million residents. What many states, including Texas, would like to see is dispersing growth within the state so that all areas would grow at a more even rate.

When bankruptcies soar, as they have in recent years, small firms are hardest hit. Their very livelihood depends on customers paying their bills.

Many people are asking their legislators to support H.R. 1800 and are writing to the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Industry Backing Texas Research Of Sorghum As An Energy Crop

The Gas Research Institute, headquartered in Chicago, has initiated a program with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) of Texas A&M University to research development of hybrid sorghum as an energy crop, according to Dr. Edward Hiler, head of agricultural engineering at the university.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, as the original developer of hybrid grain sorghum, has decades of research experience with sorghum and has already developed a number of superior hybrid sorghums that go far toward maximizing the energy potential of the sorghum plant.

These new hybrids can produce a high yield of feed grain according to Hiler, with the remainder of the plant being used as a methane feedstock.

Sorghum, ranked as the fifth largest agricultural crop in the U.S., was selected by the Gas Research Institute (GRI) for this intensive research, after screening studies had ranked biomass candidates in terms of crop production and potential for providing high methane yields at rapid biomass-to-methane conversion rates.

Sorghum can be grown as an annual or perennial crop, is climatically adaptable, and can tolerate a wide pH range (degree of acidity or alkalinity) in soil.

Sorghum requires a relatively short growing season, relatively little water, has lower fertilizer requirements than most agricultural crops, and can be grown in rotation with other crops.

In the research GRI is funding, TAES scientists will select sorghum hybrids for cultivation research, hoping to optimize crop yields by examining the effects of changes in crop management practices, fertilizer types and

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

The spiritual rewards of doing good for the people in your community—and some economic rewards as well—may be yours as the result of donating time and effort to a special Service Unit.

The Salvation Army Service Unit is based on the philosophy of neighbor helping neighbor. The unit is composed of men and women who know their home community well and are also familiar with The Salvation Army—its services and its spiritual motivation. It makes the Army's local, regional and national services available in communities where the Army has no officer assigned.

The program is flexible—knowledgeable local people can meet needs quickly and in the most appropriate way. It's designed for emergency help—to meet genuine needs quickly, without time-consuming "red tape." It is supported financially by contributions from neighborhood residents—often in the form of "Living Gifts." These donations of money, securities or other property let you save on income and estate taxes while seeing the benefits of your gift in the lives of those around you.

The Service Unit helps neighbors in need in numerous ways, from emergency disaster service to welfare services. Needy persons are helped to secure glasses, dentures and other health aids. Camperships are offered to children, families and the elderly to attend summer camp. For a free leaflet about "Living Gifts" and volunteer work, write The Salvation Army, 799 Bloomfield Avenue, Verona, New Jersey 07044.

You and Your Car

Tips from the Mobil Auto Tech Group

How Racing Magic Helps Your Car

Cars that can go from zero to 150 miles an hour and back to zero in 12 seconds—competing in worldwide Grand Prix Formula One races—test concepts contributing to performance for you, the everyday motorist.

After pre-race qualifying, Formula One teams install reworked engines, select tires suited to track conditions (maybe different sizes and pressures for each wheel), carefully choose fuel loads and lubricants. For extra boost, England's Williams team, perennial high finisher (1982 driver champion, among other titles), relies on synthetic Mobil 1 racing formula oil, having found in tests that the synthetic boosts power in comparison with conventional oil.
Racing's grueling testing proves out latest advances.

Makers of shock absorbers, tires, sparkplugs have raced 60 years. Performance-building streamlining borrows from racing. A new tire tread, perfected in Formula One, funnels water from wet surfaces. Four-wheel brakes got a racing test.
And Ray Harroun's Marmon, winning the first Indy 500 in 1911 at a state-ly 74.59 m.p.h., gave the rear-view mirror a flying start.

Friendly Packaging

A service station can give you expert and convenient help on many car items that should be checked periodically. Still, more and more motorists—including women—are do-it-yourselfers, most commonly adding or changing oil.

A boon for you backyard mechanics is a new consumer-friendly idea in packaging for motor oil and other car fluids: Corrosion-free plastic. Bottle spouts let you pour without the bother of a funnel. If you don't need all the oil, you screw the cap back on to keep out dirt.

Other tips for carefree do-it-yourselfing:

- Don't run the engine in enclosed spaces.
- Rings can snag your fingers.
- Disconnect the battery ground (negative terminal) when working on fuel or electrical systems.
- Park on level ground, block the wheels, hand brake on, manual transmission in reverse, automatic transmission in park.
- Don't work under a car propped up on makeshift stands.

"In doubt if an action be just, abstain."
