Opening on November 5, 1994, Deer Season is Now In Full Swing Here

The doors swung open on the Panhandle white-tailed deer season on November 5, 1994. Hunters will be able to search for their limit of three deer from November 5 until January 1, 1994.

The Panhandle deer season will be similar to last year's season, according to Danny Swepton, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist in Amarillo, who covers the top 56 counties of Texas.

"It's been pretty dry lately. We've had some moisture," he said. "It's very similar to last year, which was an average year. The numbers haven't changed much the past few years. We do have deer showing up in areas we haven't had them in before. The animals are moving out as habitats change."

The deer seen during surveys appear to be in good shape, even in the dry areas, Swepton said. Hunters should expect to see good antler production in the counties north of Amarillo, which received more rain during the year. From Plainview south, it is very dry and these deer may have lighter body weights and antler. Some deer already are moving into the wheat fields to graze.

The northeastern Panhandle counties are seeing a whitetail fawn crop of 40 percent to 50 percent, pretty good for the Panhandle, he said. The deer have done well despite the dry weather. A good year is expected in the northern part of the district, similar to last year.

"There will be better hunting later in the season, after it cools off some. We've had unusually hot weather. It may be the later part of the season," Swepton said. "I think you'll see some more movement. I think the deer will go into the fields pretty quickly."

Aoudad season begins November 5, 1994 and goes until January 15, 1995. Mule deer season will open on November 19 and close on December 4, 1994 in the Panhandle.

THEN and NOW!

by Eunice McFall

Do you consider yourself dependable? I think we would all like to think that we are the most dependable person in the world or at least as dependable as the next fellow! I believe that is really what we want to think about the men and women that we cast our votes for last Tuesday in the election that they are dependable and will keep their words when they get to Austin or Washington. All the campaign promises that were made may be hard to keep but if we are to continue to keep them in office they must try to do whatever it is that they have promised the American people.

Bits and Pieces had this to say about being dependable—Being dependable is important—not only to the people you work for but also to the people who work for you.

One of the best ways to win respect is to be known as a person whose word is good—ALWAYS!

Promises are easy to make, sometimes hard to keep. It's bad business to make them lightly. The manager to whom you've blithely promised improved results will not forget it quickly if you fail to produce. Neither will the employee whom you've led to expect a pay raise you couldn't deliver.

Why are we all so quick to make promises? Probably because it's so simple to do. Promises are a quick, easy, and painless way to motivate people, to get them to do what we want. Eventually, however, the time comes when we have to make good. That's when difficulties show up.

Actually, there's nothing wrong with making promises—provided you observe a few precautions:

How sure are you that you can deliver the goods? Overly optimistic executives sometimes get carried away and promise things they don't fully control. Managers who promise to promote a person, for example, ought to first make certain they can obtain the required approvals. Their intentions may be the best, but what if higher-ups won't go along?

Do you honestly intend to keep your promise? Under everyday pressures, it's easy to promise people something, then forget all about it and assume they will too. Unfortunately, they won't. More than likely, they'll be thinking about it constantly. If you want to avoid repercussions, you had better not stop thinking about it either.

Are you particularly careful not to mislead people? Good managers aren't reluctant to talk to their people about their future prospects. But they're realistic when they do—they don't create false hopes by painting too rosy a view.

Do you make a practice of delivering all that's promised? Forcing people to settle for something less than they've been led to expect leaves a bad taste. If you want their continued cooperation, always settle in full, however inconvenient or painful you may find it.

Make promises to keep. If there's the slightest possibility you might not be able to, don't promise!

Deliver more than you promise, rather than promise more than you can deliver.

Keep this in mind: No horse gets anywhere till he is harnessed. No steam ever drives anything until it is confined. No Niagara is ever turned into light and power until it is tunneled. No life ever grows great until it is focused, dedicated, disciplined. So for ourselves and everyone else in our lives, let's try to keep those promises so that we can be known as DEPENDABLE.

5th Grade News

by Magan, Missy, & Emily
 Hi, it's us, again, the fifth grade reporters. We hoped you liked our first news thing this year. Last week there was a different group of reporters typing. We liked it and we hope you did too.

In Reading we have just finished the "The Battle of Brandywine." It is about a boy who lived back in the 1700's. His family is British but his brother wanted to fight on the Patriots side. It is a great story and we really enjoyed it.

In Health we are learning about the body. About how you digest food and things like that. During English we have been doing the computers, wrinklers, library, work journals and manual writing.

In Science we are still studying on biomes. In History we have just taken a test and our new chapter is on when the Europeans came to America. That is what is going on in the 5th grade this week.

Armistice Observance Program Is Planned

A community-wide observance of Armistice Day will be held at Turkey High School auditorium next Thursday, November 11. The observance is sponsored by all of the churches and civic clubs and the Texas Defense Guard.

Request is made that all business houses close in observance of the occasion, and this request will be made personally by a committee who will call upon the various mercantile and industrial institutions.

The program will honor the men now in service as well as ex-service men. Joe Gilmore will have charge of and lead the congregational singing.

Turkey Raises $642 For War Relief Fund

In the campaign Saturday for funds for the War Chest, Mayor Bill Hardcastle reported Wednesday that a total of $642.67 was raised in Turkey.

The city's quota is $750 and the mayor, who headed the drive, said this figure may be reached as there are a few he wants to see but as yet has been unable to contact.

Carl Harrison of Memphis, county chairman, reported that $2300 had been raised in that city, but reports from other communities in the county have not been received by the Enterprise. The county's quota is $5300.

Assisting Hardcastle in the drive Saturday were Pete Rice, Roy Russell, Lee Vardy, Valmer Meacham, Charley Russell, and maybe one or two more.

Lacy Dry Goods Store Has Fire Damage

Fire originating behind a gas heating stove, and probably starting from the stove, did $400 damage at Jack Lacy's dry goods store about 9 o'clock Monday morning. Most of the merchandise destroyed was received Saturday, Lacy said, and included suits for small boys, men's dress shirts, etc., merchandise that is very hard to get.

Mrs. Smith Guest was the only employee on duty when the fire was discovered. Rita Nell says she rushed out of the building, sounding the alarm in three languages.

Protect Yourself From Gym Germs

It's a jungle out there. Bodies sweat, muscles glisten, hearts pound, adrenaline flows. And around every bumbell, bench and Stairmaster lurks danger. At the gym, germs—not lions—pounce on the unsuspecting. Or so it seems.

"Arm yourself with a towel," says Tobias Samo, MD, and Infectious Disease Specialist at the Methodist Hospital in Houston. "Those gym germs can be as harmless as a jog around the block."

As in any place where people gather, the flu is hard to flee. Just one sneeze in your direction may doom you to fever and chills lasting three days. About all you can do is get a vaccination or avoid rush hour at the club, says Samo.

To catch a cold, it takes just one exerciser who wiped his nose with his hand before gripping the weight machine bars. But, says Samo, it's no different from touching anything else that has public access, be it an elevator button or a door knob. Touch the same spot within six hours and you, too, could catch a cold.

"Luckily, most cold viruses dissipate within minutes, though the rhinovirus sticks around for hours to days," says Samo. You can escape a cold by washing your hands often, especially before touching your face.

Though athlete's foot fungus festers in moist places, it's easy to stomp out, Samo says. Dry your feet thoroughly and wear rubber flip-flops, using a sweaty towel, walking near a pool or sitting on the wooden slats in the sauna.

"Bacteria and fungus harbor in moist areas, so simply drying well is the most you can do," Samo says. "If you don't retain a moist environment, neither one will grow."

If you notice scaling, burning and itching, apply topical anti-fungal ointments that are available over the counter.

The same fungus that irritates your soles can create a rash in the groin area. To avoid it, dry off your feet after the rest of your body. If you do get infected, you can use the same creams and powders as for athlete's foot. If you notice a rash after toweling off, you may be sensitive to your laundry detergent. Simply change it, and you should be okay, Samo says. "If it's washed, you shouldn't get any infection from your towel."

Nastier germs—such as hepatitis B and HIV—don't hang around the gym. HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, cannot be transmitted through sweat, the pool, or the sauna. The only way it is transmitted is through body fluids—from sex, blood transfusions, or sharing the needles. "Unless you have sex with someone at the gym, you can't catch them there," Samo adds.

You're also not likely to catch anything from hanging your sweaty towel where someone else has hung theirs, as long as you dry thoroughly. Samo stresses.

So if you need an excuse to avoid the gym, don't count on germs; the gym is no more of a breeding ground than an elevator.
