We looked up the canyon and saw the tornado lift up and touch down and bounce off the canyon walls. It lifted up and went over us."

Mrs. Stephens said her family was amazed because the "tornado was going in the wrong direction—it was headed west. We had always heard that tornadoes traveled easterly."

Mrs. Stephens said the family's pickup became stuck in the mud and it was necessary for them to hike about two miles to shelter.

"We got out of there about 10 a.m. Monday," she said. "We had no idea what had happened. We met a man who had been in Silverton and he told us. We were

"Leland was the type of man who was really going somewhere in this world," said Glen Lindsey, who sold Service Elevator to the young man. "He finished college, but he never thought the world owed him a living. He was out to make it for himself."

He is a mighty small man—almost too small to leave his footprints in the sand. But he is starting out on his own. He is exploring, seeking, learning. Where will his footsteps ultimately lead him? There are so many courses a child may take—so many that a person of any age can follow. But it is never too late to change direction, even if it seems as if a dead end has been reached. The beauty of life is that the word itself is synonymous with hope. If the direction your footsteps have been taking you is disappointing, then turn toward the Church. Remember, the Church has survived for centuries against odds that would have annihilated a lesser force. That in itself is reason enough to give it a chance—to see what it has to offer.

Honored On 60th Anniversary

The members of the Turkey Methodist Church honored Mr. and Mrs. John Adamson on Monday evening, June 23, at 8:00 p.m. in the Methodist Fellowship Hall, the occasion being their 60th wedding anniversary, which is June 27, but since the Adamsons were to be out of town on that date, the get-together was planned for Monday. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Adamson, together with the members and families of the Turkey Methodist Church, enjoyed an old-fashioned ice cream and cake supper, after which the honored couple were presented with a very attractive terrarium and an anniversary card containing the names of those present. Around 50 people were registered. Lee Vardy gave a short talk, stressing the exemplary life Mayme and John have contributed to the Turkey community and he, along with all the others present, expressed a wish that they may have many more happy anniversaries.

MRS. REX ADAMSON

Charmaine Fuston, Rex Adamson Exchange Vows In Ceremony

In an impressive ceremony, double-ring vows were exchanged June 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Turkey Church of Christ where Miss Charmaine Fuston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fuston, became the bride of Rex Adamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Adamson, jr. Officiating was Brother Herbert Gipson, minister of West Amarillo Church of Christ. The vows were spoken before a brass archway entwined with greenery, baby's breath, yellow daisies, and bows of yellow satin. The altar was enhanced by two candelabra holding yellow tapers. Candelighters were Laura and Lana Fuston, sisters of the bride. Organ music was provided by Mrs. Ross Herrington, who played the traditional wedding marches, and who accompanied Curtis Shelburne as he sang "Wedding Song" and "Wedding Prayer." Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a traditional gown of white organza with accents of Venice lace. The moulded bodice featured a scoop neckline with a circular collar rimmed in the Venice lace. Lace flowers also outlined the scoop neckline. Short caplet sleeves were edged in the Venice lace. The crescent shaped waistline was marked with a crushed cummerbund accented in lace clusters and tied with a soft bowsash at the back. The full circular skirt was sprinkled with lace clusters, and a crescent shaped flounce encircled the hemline and train. Her tiers of veiling was edged in matching lace and fell from a Juliet Capulet of lace flowers. For something old, she wore a three-strand necklace which was the groom's great-great-grandmother's wedding gift. For something new, she carried a lace handkerchief which was a gift from her cousin. For something borrowed, she wore her Grandmother Fuston's gold wedding band. For something blue, she wore a traveling garter that had been around the world. Her bouquet was a cascade of white and yellow daisies. Mrs. Robert Hall of Lubbock attended the bride as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Juana Cotten and Karen Eudy. Ronda Fuston of Muleshoe was flower girl, and Laura and Lana Fuston, sisters of the bride, were candlelighters. All wore dresses of mint green, fashioned after the bride's, with capulet sleeves and bodice edged with daisy lace. Their nosegays were yellow and white daisies.

Rod Adamson of Ruidoso served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen were Neal Guest and Jerry Wayne Green. Leckie Fuston and Bruce Ferguson served as ushers. For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother selected a floor-length gown of blue crepe with a lace jacket. The groom's mother chose a floor-length gown of yellow lace. Registering the guests at the wedding and assisting in the reception which followed were Donna Kisner of Lubbock, Jana Payne of Quitaque, Becky Hudgins, Susie Richburg, Lori Francis and Barbara Oswald of Lubbock.

A small round table was used as the center to join the bride's and groom's tables which were covered with a mint green cloth and topped with a sheer overlay decorated with bridal lace. The bride's cake, colored pale green, had four tiers with a stacked base supported by columns. Braidwork, lace and bands of roses made of icing encircled each tier. The cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom enclosed in a cathedral top made of lace icing. Appointments of crystal and silver were used. The groom's two-tiered chocolate cake was decorated with chocolate roses. Names of the bride and groom and date of marriage were inscribed on the first tier. Appointments of crystal and gold were used. A beautiful arrangement of flowers on the center table completed the table decoration.

After a wedding trip to points in New Mexico, the couple will reside at 2320 21st Street in Lubbock where the groom is a senior at Texas Tech University and is employed by Hemphill-Wells. The bride, who has attended Clarendon College and Texas Tech, will enter nurse's training at Methodist Memorial Hospital.

For traveling, the bride selected a printed silk suit. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at their home after the rehearsal Thursday night. Out-of-town guests included relatives and friends from Wichita Falls, Dallas, Hereford, Lubbock, Hedley, Big Spring, Synder, Muleshoe, Pampa, Panhandle, Leveland, Quitaque, Flomot, Loop, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma and Ruidoso, New Mexico.

MR. AND MRS. JACK WELLMAN

Farley - Wellman Vows Exchanged

The First Baptist Church in Quitaque was the setting for the marriage of Deborah Farley and Jack Wellman on Saturday, June 14, 1975, at 7:00 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Milo Jurik of Denver City, former pastor, officiated the double-ring ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Farley of Quitaque and Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Wellman of Wichita Falls.

The vows were read before an arch of candelabra decorated with white gladioli, blue carnations, blue Killium daisies, white poms, blue candles, and centered with a pair of white doves. To complete the altar were two sets of candelabra with blue candles, two baskets of flowers and plants of white mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of silk illusion over taffeta and it was trimmed in re-embroidered lace and pearls. The gown was fashioned with an empire waistline, long full sleeves, and fell into a full chapel train. Her veil of silk tulle was borrowed from her cousin, Elaine Purcell. She carried her Grandmother Duck's wedding ring tied into her bouquet for something old, her dress was new, and she added the traditional blue garter. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies, stephanotis and pearls on a white Bible. Her going-away corsage formed the center of her bouquet. It was a cattleya orchid and stephanotis.

Mrs. Larry Farley of Amarillo was her sister-in-law's matron of honor. Mrs. Belinda Boyles, cousin of the bride, and Terri Wellman, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. Their dresses were of blue sheer over blue. They were fashioned with empire waistlines and short puffed sleeves. They carried colonial bouquets of white daisies and blue carnations. Their short veils of nylon tulle fell from bands of pearls and stephanotis. Jim Ferguson served as best man. Groomsman were Kurt Cullum and Mark Loggis, all of Wichita Falls.

Charmaine Dalluge of Tulia was flower girl, and Mike King of Amarillo was ring bearer for their cousin.

Ushers were Larry Farley, brother of the bride, Bobby Boyles and Dale Ramsey, cousins of the bride, and Harvey Wellman, uncle of the groom.

Dennis Farley, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Wellman, brother of the groom, were candle-lighters.

The bride's mother chose a blue dress for her daughter's wedding, and added a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother wore a pink dress and her corsage was of blue carnations.

As the bride entered, she presented her mother with a single red rose and kissed her. After the ceremony, as she was leaving the church, she presented her mother-in-law with a red rose and a kiss.

Mrs. Ross Herrington presented traditional wedding music and accompanied John Burke as he sang "Twelfth of Never" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Marilyn King, cousin of the bride, registered the guests.

A reception was held following the wedding in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was laid with a sheer white organdy cloth over blue and it was centered with the bride's bouquet in a crystal compote. A beautiful four-tiered cake decorated in white and blue was topped with satin bells. This was served with punch. Appointments of crystal and silver completed the service.

The groom's table was laid with a white satin cloth. China and silver appointments were used to serve the chocolate cake and coffee. Miss Cheryl Merrell decorated the chocolate cake with a carriage and groom and it was inscribed

SHIRT-TAIL SERMON

By Bill Green, pastor Fairmont Baptist Church

Eventually your thoughts will turn to God. Why not now? I have always wondered why people will wait until a time of trouble before they will turn to the Lord for help. Usually, before anyone will accept the Lord as his Savior, trouble has to come first. People put themselves through pain and anguish before realizing that their only hope lies in the hands of Jesus.

There is no better time to accept Him than now. After you have received the Lord as your Savior, how do you stay close to Him? It was once said, "The way to keep your religion is to keep it busy." This is the best way to stay close to the Lord. Someone else once said, "Read Your Bible. A Chapter a Day Keeps Satan Away."

In serving the Lord you have to do as He wants you to do. So many Christians today, as in days before, serve against the Lord instead of for Him. A mule cannot pull while kicking; neither can you! The Bible says, "Man cannot serve God and Mammon." How can we do as the Lord wishes, if we are pulling and kicking against His will?

RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS
Gas Utilities Division
Docket No. 600
Opening Statement of
R. E. Kennedy for
West Texas Utilities Company
Ablene, Texas
An Electric Utility

Mr. Chairman, Honorable Commissioners, Ladies and Gentlemen, I am R. E. Kennedy, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of West Texas Utilities Company with general offices in Abilene, Texas. I have been associated with the Company for more than forty years.

We are very cognizant of the Commission's responsibility in conserving and making the most effective use of the petroleum resources of this state. As an electric utility we share in the concern regarding the proper use and conservation of natural resources. We are equally aware of our responsibilities to our customers and to the region we serve.

Each utility system is different to the extent that it reflects the economy, natural resources, geography, and the historical development of the area served. Because of these differences, the impact of changing the type of fuel used will also be different for each utility company.

West Texas Utilities Company is an excellent example of an electrical system developed to meet the needs of the area it serves. Among the investor owned electric utilities of Texas, West Texas Utilities Company serves the largest geographical area; however, measured in the number of customers served, electric load, and/or revenues it is the third or fourth smallest of the Texas companies.

The Company service area extends more than 625 miles from Oklahoma across central west Texas to the Mexican border. WTU's service area of 32,600 square miles is approximately one-fifth of the state, but the estimated population of 366,000 is a little less than one-thirtieth of the state's population. The average customer density is less than two and one-half customers per square mile. Because of the economies associated with the low customer density, dispersed load, and geography, electric energy for the area is supplied from eight widely separated steam generating stations interconnected by a 138,000 volt transmission system. Fifteen of our boilers supply generating units 53 megawatts in size or smaller. Four are on units of 51 to 110 megawatts, and one serves a 150 megawatt unit. One 200 megawatt unit is under construction. Some of the huge coal and nuclear plants being constructed today just do not fit the type area we serve.

The electric energy requirements reflect the economy of the area which is based on agricultural and livestock production, extensive production of oil and gas and light industry. The area served includes the prolific Yates Oil Field and vast portions of the Permian and Delaware Basins. The oil and gas produced in 40 of the 50 counties served amounts to one-sixth of the total state production. Last year, the petroleum industry accounted for 30% of the Company's total kilowatt-hour sales and 77% of its industrial sales.

Since neither coal nor lignite have been found in economically producible quantities, natural gas has been the basic source of fuel in our area. With extensive reserves of natural gas virtually underneath our power plants, we have developed long-range gas contracts to supply our needs to 1990. Last year the Company's total fuel use amounted to only slightly more than one percent of the oil and gas energy produced in our service area, and almost one-third of the fuel used was returned to the petroleum industry in the form of electricity.

Engineering studies have confirmed that our relatively small gas fired boilers cannot be converted to use coal and that conversion to oil can be done only to a limited degree. The only practical way to utilize the remaining useful life of our present generating facilities is through the continued use of natural gas for their operation.

There is a widespread but erroneous conception that firing a boiler with natural gas to generate electricity is a wasteful use of energy. Testimony will be presented during this hearing concerning numerous studies made within the industry, by independent consultants and by government agencies, comparing the overall efficiencies of electric systems with gas systems. These studies consistently conclude that when all factors are considered, from the raw energy source to the point of utilization there is no significant difference in the amount of raw energy required by the two systems to serve the consumers' needs.

Regarding fuel supplies for future generating units, we offer for the Commission's consideration these economic facts. We have natural gas contracts to cover our needs for the next sixteen years and the installation of gas fired units presently offer the most economical electrical service for our customers. However, recognizing problems of future fuel supply, our Company and its consultants, have developed comparative and alternate plans and associated costs for the period 1975 through 1990. As a point of reference, the costs associated with the installing of future gas fired units during the next 16 years would require a capital outlay of approximately 506 million dollars. This alone presents a formidable challenge for a company our size.

Eliminating future gas fired units and building only coal fired units during the next 16 years would increase the capital outlays to 1,091 million dollars, more than double the cost of the gas-fired units. The higher maintenance and operating costs associated with the coal plants would add another 104 million dollars to our customers' costs.

To provide the revenues to finance construction under this study, utilizing present gas-fired equipment with future plants to be coal-fired, would necessitate increases in basic rates of approximately 130% by 1990.

A more extreme case considers the complete elimination of natural gas as boiler fuel by 1985. Engineering studies show that this would require West Texas Utilities Company to abandon all of its generating facilities and replace them with coal-fired units—a gross waste of economic and productive resources. It is highly improbable that we could accomplish this physically or financially. However, we have prepared studies to evaluate the effect of such an extreme event.

To change over to coal completely would cost 761 million dollars more than the cost of installing future coal-fired units and utilizing present facilities fired with gas for their economic life. The resulting economic impact would be to require basic rate increases of about 250%.

Seemingly, the Company's only alternate fuel to natural gas is coal from the western states. The availability of coal and the problems of transportation are questions yet to be answered. With approximately 68% of the Company's electric generation being utilized to meet the region's human needs and another 30% utilized in the production and transportation of oil and gas, it is most difficult to make economic reason out of importing coal to West Texas so oil and gas can be exported. We cannot conceive of our customers fully appreciating, understanding, or accepting the reasonableness of a conservation program which would require them to pay for the transportation of coal a thousand miles or more from western states to be used as a substitute for natural gas produced in their own area.

The elimination or reduction of natural gas as a fuel to generate electricity would deny the people of West Texas the availability of their own region's natural resources and impose an undue economic burden on them. If reduction in natural gas usage is deemed imperative, we emphasize that the economic burden on the customers will be considerably lessened by allowing the use of natural gas in generating facilities now in use or under construction, with future generating facilities using other fuels.

It is sincerely hoped that the Commission will recognize that a significant segment of the electric utility industry will require natural gas for some time to come, and that any extreme course of action would impose drastic hardship upon the people served by our company.

Highlower's Report From Washington

No problem confronting this Congress, or this nation, has proved to be more controversial than that of fashioning a comprehensive but equitable energy program. This was demonstrated this week when the Ways and Means Committee's Energy Conservation and Conversion Act came up for full House consideration. More than 140 amendments, representing the divergent views of the members, were offered. An increased gasoline tax, which was the principal provision to promote conservation, was trounced because of strong sentiment that it would hit hardest those who could least afford it.

Unfortunately this bill did not contain the essential element necessary to move us on the road to self-sufficiency — something that would also promote conservation. A bill that would provide for decontrol of oil and gas, the necessary incentive to promote development of present resources and exploration of new resources, is still tied up in the House Inter-committee. Frequent and sometimes bitter haggling among the committee members casts uncertainty on our being able to enact this critical legislation. I believe that the nation must accept the fact that only oil will provide the bulk of our energy requirements for the foreseeable future. Consumption increases daily. Production does not. Short-sighted action by a majority of the Congress in all but eliminating the depletion allowance also eliminated the one strong incentive on the books for increasing production. Since there is no chance of reviving the depletion allowance at this time, the incentive of some form of decontrol, phased over a period of years, must happen.

I regret that on June 4, two days before the Labor Department announced that the national unemployment had reached 9.2 percent—the highest since 1941—Congress failed by a margin of five votes to override President Ford's veto of the Emergency Jobs Appropriations Bill. The bill contained funding for several programs that were of particular interest to residents of the 13th Congressional District. Among these were the Summer Jobs Program for students and the Community Service Employment Program for Older Americans. I voted to override the veto because it makes good economic sense to take people off the welfare and unemployment rolls, where they consume taxpayers' money, and place them in jobs where they can support themselves. The House and the Senate approved a substitute jobs bill this week that will provide funds only for the summer jobs program. I hope the President will sign this bill into law.

This week I voted with a slim one-third of my colleagues to sustain the President's veto of the surface mining bill. During the process of considering this legislation, I became convinced that coal production would be curtailed and send the ever-increasing cost of energy even higher. I believe that we should have a national policy on strip-mining and hope that a better bill will result from their actions.

Each member of Congress received copies this week of the Rockefeller Commission's report on the Central Intelligence Agency. I was shocked to learn of the waste of CIA resources improperly channeled into non-productive domestic operations such as drug experimentation on unknown human guinea pigs, the compilation of dossiers on innocent taxpayers, and, worst of all, the covert political activity which the Agency engaged in. It is essential that in the future the CIA focus its resources toward its legitimate and necessary responsibility — to provide a foreign intelligence network second to none. The reported illegal activities confirm my conviction that no agency of the United States Government is immune to accountability.

The Federal Power Commission is still conducting hearings concerning its arbitrary reclassification of natural gas used for irrigation fuel from Category 2 to Category 3. No one can safely predict at this time what the outcome will be. Should the decision be unfavorable, I will join other congressional colleagues to initiate whatever legislative action is required to assure a continuing supply of this vital energy source for our agricultural industry. Bankruptcy for many farmers is a poor alternative.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' proposals to extend its jurisdiction over virtually every body of water in the nation has stirred up a hornets nest. The Corps has extended to June 30 its deadline for comments on the proposals. Comments should be submitted in writing to the Office of the Chief of Engineers, Department of the Army, ATTN: DAEN-CWO-N, Washington, D. C. 20314. Hearings will be held next month by the Water Resources Subcommittee of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, soon after the deadline. I have written to the Secretary of the Army requesting that he investigate the Corps' intent and advising him of my opposition. I am hopeful the Secretary will recognize the situation and influence the Corps to take a more reasonable approach.

Sorghum planted in a field of plastic? That's one of the possibilities being studied by research groups now taking a hard look at a variety of water conservation programs. Experiments have actually been done in the Oklahoma Panhandle whereby plots were covered by large plastic sheets . . . holes cut in the plastic for the plants and irrigation water supplied under the plastic. Results . . . less than half the normal water required. Costs . . . terrible. So the search goes on with new attention focused on special breeding for water retention an improved plant utilization. Tests at Oklahoma State University reportedly indicated that as much as two inches of water a year can be saved by planting sorghum in rows running north and south rather than east and west. Direction of rows, spacing of furrows and development of new breeds are all subjects the sorghum producer will be hearing a lot more about . . . especially if the weather forecasters are right.
