Area Sales Tax Shows Increase for This Month

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that payments to cities that collect local sales tax continued to show an increase this month, with July payments up 14.3 percent over those sent in July last year.

"The gaining strength in our state economy is being reflected on a local level, and local governments can continue to expect a steady increase in their share of sales tax collections," Bullock said.

Statewide, year-to-date payments are 10.8 percent higher than the same period last year, according to Bullock.

Quitaque's payment was up 32.08 percent, Turkey's up 37.79 percent, and Silverton's up 41.22 percent over last year's allocation.

Bullock said that 915 checks totaling $61.3 million in local sales were sent Tuesday to cities that collect the local option sales tax at either one or one-half percent rates.

July's checks represent taxes collected by monthly filers in May and reported to the Comptroller's Office by June 20, according to Bullock.

Merrell Reunion On Home Place

A Northerner seeking an ideal Southern town stopped at a small town and asked an old man if this was a healthy place. "Healthy", the man roared. "Why, this is the gold-darn healthiest place you ever did see. Shucks, nobody ever dies in these parts."
 "That's strange," the Northerner remarked. "On my way into town I passed a funeral procession."
 "Oh, that," the man grunted. "That was the undertaker. The fool starved himself to death."

There may seem to be a white shirt shortage, but there's certainly no shortage of stuffed shirts.

A city boy and a country lad were walking down the street. Coming toward them was a product of the beauty parlor - permanent wave, scarlet fingernails, drug store complexion, and gaudy lipstick.
 "What do you think of THAT?" asked the city boy.
 The farm boy looked carefully, and observed "Speaking as a farmer, I should say that it must have been mighty poor soil to require so much top dressing."

The news-hounds and politicians are at it in full force in Atlanta. It's Heyday for the Media over not much... Jackson stages forceful entry... I thought that was the equivalent of "Breaking and Entering" and against the law. "Texas to Hog the Spotlight"... that's nothing new... Dukakis says "the rift will be settled among Democrats"... that'll be the day. Same old story, three or four days of complete chaos, a 300-page platform that will be thrown away shortly after nominations are complete because it means nothing at all. Four days of round-the-clock television by all the Networks, each with a different interpretation of what who said... and just think, the Republicans will repeat the whole process within a few days... aren't you glad that football season is almost here?!

Social Security News

People who are approaching 65 and who do not plan to retire should be aware that their Social Security check will be larger when they finally do apply for it.

The reason is because of "delayed retirement credit." This credit increases a person's retirement checks for each month he or she does not get a benefit after 65 and before 70.

The credit adds 1/4 percent for each month - 3 percent for each full year - a person does not get a check because of work. It also applies to widows and widowers benefits.

The credit will gradually increase to 8 percent a year between 1990 and 2009.

In addition to these credits, a person's earnings after 65 may also result in a larger check than would have been payable at 65.

Of course, a person who starts getting checks at 65 can still work and earn a significant amount before his or her benefits are affected. In 1988, people 65 through 69 can earn $8,400 and still get benefits for all of the year. There is no limit for people 70 and older.

If earnings go above $8,400, then $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above this amount. This annual exempt amount will increase automatically to keep pace with increases in average wages. The exempt amount for people under 65 is $6,120 in 1988.

People who are working and estimated they would not earn more than the exempt amount should make sure the estimates are still accurate. Any change in a person's estimate should be reported to Social Security.

Just Ramblin'

There is, always, in every worker, a hunger for pride in one's work. Conditions may be awful, ten-on-high, humiliations frequent - yet a person can still feel pride in the accomplishment of a job well done. Most of us, however, have jobs that are too small for our spirit... jobs simply are not big enough for people. In our society, you must make a buck to survive; you must work to make a buck - no matter how demeaning the task, or how it dulls the spirit, one MUST work or else. Many times our jobs give us the feeling that we are just another part of the machinery - if we break down, we can be pushed aside until someone else can take our place. And so, we feel no pride or accomplishment in the job we do daily. How much more eager, more dedicated might a worker be if he knew he was really needed and respected for the work he does.

Thursday afternoon about 1:30, I noticed that the electricity in one-half my house was off. That was unusual to say the least, and I called my next-door neighbor to see if she was having problems, too. She had the identical situation, then ALL the power went off, and she called WTU. They told her the boys were already there, working on the transformer which had blown, due to branches of a tree rubbing the insulation off wires into the transformer box. In a matter of a few minutes, working in that intense heat, the fellows had that rascal fixed, and we had power again... and air conditioning, and fans, and clocks, refrigeration, lights, washing machines, microwaves, TV's, radios, typewriters, sewing machines, hair dryers and rollers, crock pots, frypans, tools, and a hundred other items we normally just take for granted.

What in the WORLD did we ever do without it?!

PSYCHOLOGY

Which Kind Of Pet Is Right For Your Health?

Being a pet owner is good for your health—your emotional as well as physical health, experts say.

Playing with your pet can relax you and lower your blood pressure. Many elderly or disabled people have found animal companionship improves their zest for life, as well as their social skills. Studies also show pets play a significant role in easing the trauma of children in single-parent homes.

Choosing the right pet—dog, cat, bird, small mammal or fish—for your lifestyle and living environment can be the key to gaining the healthiest benefits of the human-animal bond, say experts. Consider how much room you have; how physically active you are; how much time you can devote to your pet.

Wayland Gives 16 Month Degree In Electronics

A college degree in one of today's most marketable fields—electronics technology—can be completed in just 16 months through the Vocational-Technical Division of Wayland Baptist University.

The program is designed to move the nontechnical student into today's state-of-the-art technology by combining theory with hands-on experience, according to program director Mike Haigood.

The degree prepares students for employment in fields that already exist or will soon be developed.

"Graduates of the program are prepared for employment as engineering assistants in production, maintenance and research and development in the electronics field," said Haigood, a member of the Wayland faculty for the past three years.

Wayland is one of the few liberal arts institutions in the nation where a vocational-technical degree is available, Haigood added.

Students in the program may earn the associate of technology (A.T.) degree in as little as 16 months, and their work may also be applied toward Wayland's four-year bachelor of science in occupational education (BSOE) degree.

The A.T. degree requires a total of 62 semester hours of course work, including 16 hours of academic foundations (English, psychology, computer science, etc.).

A total of 36 hours of specialized electronics courses is also required in such areas as basic electrical theory, computers and robotics. Ten hours of elective course work rounds out the degree requirements.

The program offers credit by examination to qualified students, and previous training or experience in the electronics field may also be applied as credit toward the degree.

Students from any of the 24 counties surrounding Plainview also receive a tuition credit per semester hour in the electronics program.

More information on the electronics technology degree at Wayland is available from the Vocational-Technical Division at 296-5521.

IT'S A FACT!

According to a recent study, there are more swimming pools, hot tubs and spas in people's homes this year than ever before—more than 6.5 million. Unfortunately, home swimming pools, spas and bathtubs are the places children under five drown most frequently.

Pool safety and drowning prevention begins with close supervision around water, say safety experts at the National Spa and Pool Institute (NSPI). Watching children closely around water is the best method of prevention. An accident can happen in the time it takes to answer a phone.

The English word with the most consecutive consonants is latchstring.

On Sunday, Tyny, Judy and Chris Barrett drove to Guthrie where they met Gary and Twila Barret and Allen and Cathey Mitchell for a picnic at the roadside park. Chris then returned to Stamford with his parents after his two week stay in Quitaque with his Grandma.
