Shirttail Sermon

A certain man had two sons, and the younger of them said to his father: "Father, give me the portion of thy time and thy attention and thy companionship and thy counsel which fall eth to me." And he divided unto them his living in that he paid the boy's bills and sent him to school and to college and gave him money and tried to believe that he was doing his full duty by the boys.

And not many days afterward the father gathered all his interest and aspirations and ambitions and took his journey into a far country, into a land of property and business and other things which do not interest a boy; and there he wasted his precious opportunity of being a chum to his own son. And when he had spent the very best of his life and gained money, but had failed to find satisfaction, there arose a mighty famine in his heart; and he began to be in want of sympathy and real companionship. And he would fain have satisfied himself with the husks that other men did eat, and no man gave unto him real friendship.

But when he came to himself he said "How many men of my acquaintance have boys whom they understand and who understand them, who talk about their boys and seem perfectly happy in the comradeship of their sons, and I perish with heart hunger: I will arise and go to my son and say unto him: "Son, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight; I am no more worthy to be called thy father. Make me as one of thy acquaintances." And he arose and came to his son. But while he was yet afar off, his son saw him and was moved with astonishment: and instead of running and falling on his neck, he drew back and was ill at ease. And the father said unto him: "Son, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight: I am no more worthy to be called thy father. Forgive me now and let me be your friend." But the son said: "Not so; I wish it were possible, but it is too late. There was a time when I wanted companionship and counsel and to know things but you were too busy. I got companionship and I got the information, but it was the wrong kind; and now—alas—I am wrecked in soul and body; there is no more heart left in me, and there is nothing you can do for me. It is too late, too late, too late."

DPS NEEDS MORE MEN DRIVE SHOWER HONORS AND ROBINSON

Due to the rising traffic deaths and crime rate, the Texas Legislature has authorized an additional increase of manpower in the uniformed ranks of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

In carrying out this authorization a call was issued today by Major C. W. Bell, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lubbock, Texas, to young men to fill a 120-man training school beginning October 21, 1969.

Major Bell states that two inducements have been authorized by the Legislature to help fill the uniformed ranks of the Texas D.P.S. First the salary during training has increased to $525 per month; secondly, upon graduation the salary has increased to $630 per month.

QUALIFICATIONS

Applicants must be between the ages of 20 and 35, a height of not less than 68 inches, a weight of not less than two pounds per inch of height or more than three and one-half pounds per inch of height, and be in sound physical condition. They must have completed high school or the equivalent. They must be a citizen of the United States and be of good moral character.

Those selected will take their basic training at the Texas D.P.S. Law Enforcement Academy in Austin. The training period is approximately 4 months in length. Upon graduation the patrolmen will be assigned to one of the four uniformed field services — Highway Patrol, License and Weight, Motor Vehicle Inspection, and Drivers License.

BENEFITS RECEIVED

Two weeks vacation annually, 12 or more holidays each year as provided by the Legislature, 12 days per year sick leave which may accumulate to 36 days, $10 per month added to salary at the end of each five years of service, to a maximum of 25 years, a modern liberal retirement system based on age and/or years of service, social security benefits, traveling expenses when away from assigned station as prescribed by law, group hospitalization and life insurance plan available, uniforms and the necessary equipment to perform duties furnished.

TRAINING

The training of a patrolman is a test of the individual's intellectual, emotional, and physical stamina. It is also an educational process which prepares him for one of the most satisfying careers in public service—law enforcement.

During the course of study at the Law Enforcement Academy student patrolmen are given intensive training on such subjects as: Criminal and Traffic Laws, Accident Investigation, Court Procedures, Criminal Interrogation, Narcotics, Traffic Supervision, Professional Driving, Firearms Technique, and First Aid Training, or any of the approximately 100 subjects that comprise the training program.

In addition to the classroom work they are taught self-protection methods.

- keep an accurate record of your income and expense
- help you pay bills and collect receipts
- never take a vacation
- be strictly confidential
- furnish you with a written financial statement each month to show where you stand
- help keep your budget balanced
- work for little or nothing a month

The very nature of police work is demanding on the patrolman, but it is also very rewarding. It deals with getting people to conform to the rules and regulations of society with a minimum of friction. The patrolman is taught to recognize and control situations that might arise from dealing with people under emotional stress. He is prepared for dealing with unusual situations under adverse conditions.

The patrolman's duties are as varied as the geography of the state in which he patrols. A day's duty may consist of tracking a tornado in the swirling sands of West Texas or rescuing a stranded citizen along a hurricane swept coastal area. It may involve the high speed pursuit and apprehension of a flagrant traffic law violator or wanted criminal.

His duties may also consist of accident investigation, directing traffic, regulating truck traffic, motor vehicle inspection, and testing applicants for a drivers license. Also by his presence on the highways, the patrolman has the opportunity and duty of assisting motorists in distress, whether it be helping change a tire or rendering first aid to someone critically injured in an accident — this aid often being the difference between life and death.

Because of the short time remaining to test applicants, immediate inquiry is urged for young men to contact the nearest D.P.S. office of patrolman.
