by Eunice McFall

Each of us is awarded so many days on this earth to do with as we choose. This is the condition that we call life. What we do with those days is strictly up to us. Oh, we sometimes want to lay blame for something that has happened to us that we do not like or that is unpleasant on someone else but in the final analysis it is really up to us as to how we handle our lives. Sure, circumstances do make a difference in our lives but it is the way in which we meet the circumstances that will make or break the day for us.

There are a couple of days in our lives though that we can do nothing about no matter how hard we try today to change them. These two are yesterday and tomorrow. Yesterday is already past and nothing we can do or say will change one iota the happenings, the pains, the mistakes or the faults of yesterday. Now that is not to say that we can not be sorry for something that we did and try to correct the error but we can not go back and do yesterday over----it is already gone!

Tomorrow is the day that we can never catch. It is always just out of reach. Tommorow is out of our control, its promises, its burdens, its joys are beyond us. All we can do for tomorrow is to prepare for it today and live today as if it is the last day on earth for us. Then tomorrow will be a less complicated day if we are fortunate enough to be able to live past today. To worry about tomorrow is futile--all the worry in the world can not change what is to be--all that can change tomorrow is for us to face each challenge today with an open mind and heart and to accept life as a joyous occasion to be celebrated each and every day.

Today is the one day we have to face. Each of us can face one day at a time! If we do not burden ourselves with the woes of vesterday and the worries of tomorrow, we should be quite excited to see the sun rise each morning on another glorious day for us to experience life in its fullest.

by Arlene Hinkle

Last Tuesday Mrs. Lemons brought her Kindergarten Class to the Library for a visit. We always enjoy having students tour the Library and the students seem to enjoy visiting!

We have some great new books this week!

For adults: The Trial Drivers of Texas by J. Marvin Hunter. Interesting sketches of early cowboys and their experiences on the range and on the trail during the days that tried men's souls.

Den of Lions by Terry Anderson. A memoir of his seven years in captivity in Lebanon.

For Juveniles: Dinosaur Encyclopedia by Don Lessem and Donald F. Glut. More than 600 known species of dinosaurs are described and illustrated. Nearly half of all known dinosaurs have been discovered during the last 20 years....which is one about every seven weeks.

The Snow Pony by Anne Eliot Crompton. A lonely young girl and a lonely old man work together to tame a wild pony and discover friends in odd places.

Tuesday is Volunteer Day. Our goal is 150 books cataloged each week between February 1 and June 1. 9 a.m -12.

Happy Reading!

Good Impressions

by Ronda Alexander

The final step in developing hospitality habits is to make a nospitanty manus is to make a good last impression. The last impression will stay with the customer a long time. As a business owner or a community interested in promoting tourism, you will definitely want the impression to be a favorable one.

As the customer is leaving, ask them how everything was. there has been a problem, this will give them a chance to tell you about it and it will also give you a chance to solve the problem. Try to make the customer feel good about their choice to do business with you. You definitely want their business again, so make sure they know you appreciated them well as their business, not just Finally, thank them for coming in and invite them to come back. This adds a very personal touch which has been forgotten by some of our larger businesses of today. If you've noticed, a good impression is something "Walmart" has strived to achieve. They have someone welcoming you into their store at the front door and someone at the the front door and someone at the exit door thanking you for shopping with them. Make sure you leave as good of an impression with your customers as they do.

This concludes our series on developing "Hospitality Habits." The background information for "Texas Hospitality Training Workbook."

> However, having seen two cycle riders on the trail, Dr. Orland Baker and myself found ourselves wanting to experience the wilderness bicycle experience. So, we decided in the fall months to see the railroad trail again on ountain bikes.

Therefore, a few recent weeks ago, we returned to South Plains ago, we returned to South Plains with bicycles, full camping equipment, cameras, tripods, camera film, and lots of bicycle enthusiasm. For the two of us, we found that mountain biking with full equipment was quite an average of the south o experience. Even though it took some "getting used to" riding in the loose gravel ballast, we soon were able to travel fast and easy. This allowed us to take more time for pictures and longer rest stops. In fact, we were able to go twice the distance in less time. Having left our vehicle at the top of the trail, we rode downhill the first day and back uphill the second day. With the light grade of the railroad, it was not difficult either way, so we were able to see the country twice in the same time span.

Just like our first trip, we had a wonderful wilderness experience and saw no one else except ourselves. We experienced a true perception of wilderness, solitude, and seclusion. We experienced desert thunderstorms, heard the coyotes howling, saw big Bluestem grass seeding out, and once again enjoyed the big, old railroad trestles over Emerson Creek, Quitaque Creek, and Los Lingos Creek.

Now, having hiked and biked the trail up and down the Caprock portion, I'm truly convinced that this will become one of the most popular trails any place. It's an easy two-day, over-night backpacking hike, and an excellent one day bicycle ride, featuring some of the most beautiful scenic country in Texas.

'TCU TODAY' Events Planned

The added knowledge of the High School students from the Amarillo area and their parents are invited to a reception and informational program to be given February 13 by Texas Christian University.

The "TCU Today" event will begin at 2:30 p.m. at the Harvey Hotel located at 3100 I-40 West. Reservations February 10, 1994.

Begun in 1965 as an effort to "take the campus setting" to prospective students, "TCU Today" is designed to assist high school students in choosing the college or university that best meets their needs and expectations as well as the family budget. Coordinated by the TCU Admissions Office, 27 events will be held in 11 states and British Columbia during the spring.

Reservations for the complimentary program are accepted from high school students and their parents. The informational event is designed to answer questions about various aspects of collegiate life. An audio-visual presentation will introduce TCU's 237-acre campus, some 350 full-time faculty members and a student body of about 7,000.

Understanding Your Child

by Ronda Alexander Being a parent is probably the most important job the majority of us will ever have. This is due to the responsibility involved with being a parent. There are a variety of ways one can learn about being a parent, such as reading a book, learning from your own parents or taking a "parenting class". Many people though, have a phobia about attending a "parenting class." They are afraid of being told that they have done something wrong and have messed up their children's lives forever or that they are admitting publicly that they are a bad

If we could train ourselves to think of parenting as learning how to " understand your child, people would be much more comfortable with the idea of parenting classes." None of us were born knowing exactly how to be the perfect parent. have to learn through some sort of educational process and usually by trial and error. One of the most important things that you as a parent can do, is to learn about the normal development of children. By knowing the characterisic behaviors and physical development of each age group, you can then better understand your own child's development and what is normal for their age. You can then adjust yourself to allow for the individual differences in children. Learning how to understand your child can be very beneficial to both you and your child!

sentiments through flowers and foliage all year round:

(NAPS)—Long before there was a Valentine's Day, people linked the beauty and fragrance of flowers with ideas of love and romance. The Greeks and Romans had a love story for almost every kind of flower. When Cupid carried a jar of nectar to a council of gods on Mount Olympus, he spilled the nectar, which bubbled up from the earth in the form of roses. The daisy had once been a lovely forest nymph who had sunk into the earth to outwit the pur-suits of Vertumnus, the god of spring. Throughout the years, various meanings have been ascribed to flowers, creating a silent lan-guage used to convey one's senti-ments to others.

Cold Weather and BodyTemperatures

Don't think you're safe from ne dangerous effects of cold weather just because you live in

Hypothermia, a condition resulting from dangerously low body temperatures, can occur even when it is 50 degrees

"Hypothermia has reported even in tropical climates where it does not drop below 60 degrees. Prolonged exposure to even mildly cool weather can be dangerous for some people," said Dr. Joseph Varon, of Bay College of Medicne in Houston. of Baylor

Infants and the elderly are at highest risk, Varon said. Babies' bodies lose heat faster since the surface area is larger in proportion to their weight than that of adults.

In older people, the body gradually loses its cold sensitivity. Elderly people are less likely to detect temperature drops and recover more slowly from lowered body temperature. Also, some medications can complicate Hypothermia causes body's temperature to drop from a normal 98.6 degrees to below 95. With prolonged exposure, it can drop to less than 80 degrees. Early warning signs include a pale, puffy face; drowsiness; drop in blood pressure; and forgetfulness. Normally warm area of the body, such as the groin or armpit becomes cold.

Prolonged exposure can cause dilated pupils, slurred speech, confusion, lack of pain, unconsciousness or even heart

Varon said parents should dress infants warmly whether they are away or at home, and keep a small blanket handy. Check to make sure the baby is covered at night.

Certain drugs such as tranquilizers and alcohol can lower body temperature in the elderly, as can pre-existing illnesses such as hypothyroidism

What About Mental Illness?

There is a fine line between what is mentally healthy and what is mental illness. It's much like physical illness, it can be helped by improved habits, environment and sometimes medication.

It's common to think that mental illness does not affect most of us BUT did you know that:

* about one out of six hospital beds are occupied by a mental patient? That's about 217,000.

*15-20% of all Americans are affected by mental disorders every year? many who go to their doctors with physical problems have emotional problems that may be to blame? What Causes Mental Illness? It is hard to know for sure but some things that influence it are: Environment- experiences with people around us; family, school, situations can affect our self-esteem (good/bad). 2. Physical causes- body chemistry may play a part and some physical illness can cause injury to brain tissue which causes changes in behavior.

3. Heredity- can be a factor. The connection between heredity and environment is not clear in how it affects mental illness.

Mental illness is more common than you think. The problem is that we mostly hear about the few bad sides to mental illness It's very rewarding to know of the many people who have mental illness are major contributors to society and blessings to those who know
