

Cities To Hand-Out Hand-Held Containers

by Robert Patrick & Jerry Landry

The Cities of Quitaque and Turkey recently received a shipment of hand-held used oil containers which will be distributed at no cost and on a first come, first serve basis to residents who are in the habit of elf-changing the motor oil in their own personal vehicles.

The containers were obtained through the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission's Regional Used Oil Recycling Program and purchased with grant funds provided by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission

Local 4-H & FFA Members To Exhibit Livestock In Houston

Thirty nine 4-H members for this area will be joining other 4-H and FFA members from throughout Texas for show ring competition at the upcoming Houston Livestock Show, February 16 through March 3, at the Astrohall.

These FFA and 4-H exhibitors showcase their animal projects during the second week of livestock competition -- the junior show. The first week of competion, the open show, features professional ranchers and breeders throughout the country exhibiting their breeding stock.

Entries in both the open and junior shows combine with horse show entries to make the Houston Livestock Show the world's largest. Representing 932 Texas 4-H clubs and FFA chapters, the junior show is expected to exceed 15,000 entries this year. A variety of animals is shown in the junior division of livestock competition: market steers, market barrows, market lambs, market poultry, beef and dairy heifers, breeding sheep, goats, commercial steers and breeding rabbits.

Exhibiting show cattle this year from Briscoe County will be Beau Brock, Jeremiah Brooks, Molly Brooks, Donnie Burson, Bryn Mayfield, P.J. Merrell, Jana Merrell, Tara Shane Smith, Wynter Dawn Smith, Briana Sperry, Kenda Wood, Leland Wood, Trey Wyatt and Monty Wood.

The seven-quart containers are designed to be used for two purposes. They serve as a collecting pan to catch motor oil when it is drained from a vehicle crankcase. The containers can then be tightly sealed to serve as a storage vessel while the oil is in transit to the City's Used Oil Recycling Center. The containers can be used and reused each time an oil change is done.

The Cities hope this promotional give-away will bring a higher level of public awareness to their Used Oil Recycling Programs. Due to certain state Interruptions, interruptions, we all have them every day no matter what we are doing or where we are going or who we are associated with! Do you handle those interruptions with grace or do you begrudingly stop what you are doing and deal with the cause of the interruption. If we are near a telephone, we can be constantly bombarded by its ringing and when we pick it up to answer we never know what to expect from the other end of the wire-good news, bad news, someone trying to sell us something, an invitation, a friendly call, a harrassing call or an answer to our call to someone.

When we stop what we are doing to deal with it, we sometimes feel that we do not have the time to stop and answer any more questions. But in the modern society we are geared to not let the phone ring unanswered. If we dare to do so, we will always wonder who was on the other end of the line and if the call was important to us.

County will be Kenzie Burson, Zack Burson, Chelsey Cherry, Jack Cherry, Terri Chitwood, Katherine Pigg, Crystal Price, Christina Stephens, Julie Weaver, Shannon Weaver, Kenda Wood, Leland Wood, Monty Wood, Trey Cole Ziegler.

Others with barrows to show are Jeremiah Brooks, Molly Brooks, Donny Burson, Billy Edwards, Anthony Gamble, David Gamble, Jonathan Ivory, Amanda Kernell, Matt Martin, P. J. Merrell, Jana Merrell, Kristi Smith, Heidi Tiffin and Michelle Warren.

Those local youths showing in the Beef Scramble will be Molly Brooks, Donny Bruson and Leland Wood.

istered beef or dairy heifer. In addition to the winners, two youngsters at each performance will be presented "hard luck" certificates for their efforts in attempting to catch a calf.

Valentine Issue To Be Printed On February 8

The Valentine issue of the Valley Tribune will be printed on February 8, in order to be out in time for Valentine's Day.

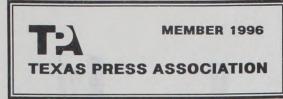

If you would like to have your little sweetheart's picture in the special issue, photographs must be in the Tribune office by Friday, February 2. Put this on your calendar, and be sure to get them in by this date.

Cost of the Valentines will be $5.00 for the first column (one or two persons); $7.50 if it needs to go two columns; $10.00 for three columns.

If you are in a store and get ready to check out and the checker is doing something else, it makes you feels quite upset if she goes ahead and finishes before she waits on you. You feel that your time is valuable too. Take a doctor's appointment. We all complain about having to wait for them after our appointed time. We feel that when someone says they will see us at a certain time that they should see us then, not 30 minutes to an hour later. So when the doctor comes in to help us with our ailment we are in a sour mood because we had to use our valuable time just waiting on him. But if we consider that he might have been having an emergency with another patient, we do not feel quite so impatient about having to wait. After all we do want the doctor to pay close attention to all of our symptoms -- can we expect him to do any less for the patient that is before us?

Perhaps some of the stress that we all feel today is because of the interruptions that happen in all of our lives. We can not make them go away. They will persist! They will continue to come back until taken care of -- no amount of fussing or running away will stop the interruptions. The only way we can make them go away is to deal with them as they happen. If we can manage to do so in a happy frame of mind with a civilized "tongue" then we shall be much happier and not have any words to regret or to apologize for.

So the next time that an unwelcome interruption happens in your life, just smile and think of your most favorite person in the orld and answer the interruption as if it were that person. You will see how quickly that the interruption is taken down to a size that you can easily handle. Not to mention that the person causing the interruption will feel that he is a very special person indeed. After all, we all like to be made to feel special!!

Taking A Gander At Knox City

(Taken from the Fort worth Star Telegram, Sunday, December 24, 1995) Written by Bob Hood

Most Hunters reach for their shotguns when they go goose hunting, but Tony stanfield reaches for a shovel.

Long before the first hint of daylight, Stanfield and four other hunters began digging.

They stood under the stars in a freshly plowed cotton field—a most unlikely looking place to huntgeese-scraped out narrow depressions in the dirt. They e surrounded by about 335 full-body, shell-type geese de-coys they had assembled and positioned in the field.

"Dig the holes deep enough so that when you lie down in them you will be level with the ground," Stanfield instructed. Any part of you that is above the ground may spook the geese We want to blend in with the ground.'

The lengthy preparations all are part of what Stanfield and his brother Jeff have found to be the most effective way to hunt Canada geese, which migrate into West Texas annually. Stanfield said the goose hunting is as good as it has been in years. The Stanfields are among oly a handful of hunting guides who offer goose hunts in this are of West texas (Knox City is about 70 miles north of Abilene). Some guides just position their hunters for pass shooting, but Stanfield Hunting Outfitters offers a first class hunt that includes a spread of decoys in areas they have scouted the evening before the hunts.

Other species of geese, such as white-fronted, snows and blues, migrate to the rice fields near Houston, but a large number of Canada geese make West Texas their winter home, feeding in the peanut fields and roosting around the plava lakes.

So why choose a freshly plowed cotton field for a place to huntgeese? There wasn't a blade of vegetation in the field, nor a single sign of any seeds on the ground. Just acres of dirt.

"I don't know whether the geese use this field as a place to rest or whether they might be picking up some of the dirt for grit .... to digest their food,' Stanfield said. "But what I do know is that they were in here when we scouted the area yesterday.

Stanfield's homework paid off. Within 10 minutes, numerous large flocks of geese were working their way toward us.

The huge spread of decoys the hunters had set out to attract the geese was far more impressive than the traditional rag spreads used by goose hunters in the rice fields west of Houston. Although hundreds of white rags draped on rice stubble simulate a flock of snow geese well enough to trick some of the birds, the life-size decoys Stanfield uses are far more realistic

There are numerous subspecies of Canada geese, and the predominant ones here are the lesser Canadian. Stanfield has one mounted greater Canada goose in his hunting lodge that he said weighed almost 10 pounds, twice the size of the ordinary lesser Canada goose.

To enhance the spread of 28 dozen decoys the size of the lesser Canada goose, Stanfield had included about a dozen magnum decoys, replicas of the greater Canadian variety. The field was dry, which enabled Stanfield to use a four-wheeler and a trailer to tote the heavy bags of decoys, the hunters and their gear to this spot in the field from nearby oil tanks where their vehicles had been parked.

these decoys, but it pays off," Stanfield said.

the sounds of geese on the ground. The geese dropped their altitude and began setting their wings. They had been fooled.

Two of the geese were shot as they passed over the outside edge of the decoys, which had been set in a long, slightly curved

Among the hunters to down one of the first geese was Quita-que resident, Weldon Griffin, who was making his first goose

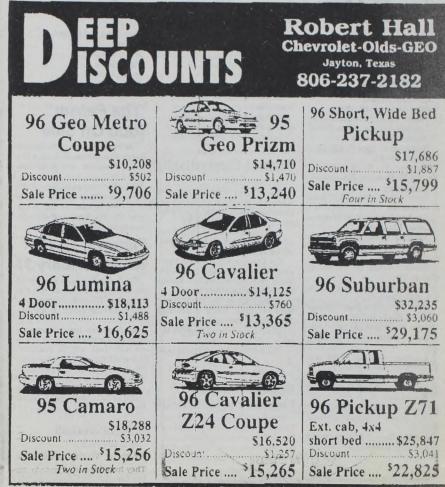

The waves of geese continued for most of the morning. To say that as many as 50,000 geese circled to investigate the spread then left. Other smaller flocks, singles and pairs, however, were fooled. Twice, single Canada geese landed among the decoys. By late morning, 13 lesser Canada geese had been killed.

"This has been only an average hunt," Stanfield said. "We have had a lot of days when we have taken 40 or more geese."

Turkey Lions Meet by Ann Coker

The Turkey Lions Club met last Monday night, January 22, in the Senior Citizens Room at the Bob Wills Center.

Boss Lion Keith Green called the meeting to order. Lion Melvin Clinton gave the prayer. Leading the Pledge to the Flag was Lion Don Turner

The Lions had several items of business to discuss, so a program was not given.

The first item of business was the discussion about a Lions Club float for the Bob Wills Parade. Last year the Lions served a pancake breakfast on the Saturday morning of Bob Wills. The breakfast was discussed to see if they would do the breakfast again this year.

Every year there is quite a good showing of antique tractors in the Bob Wills Parade. This year, the Lions would like to put the antique tractors on display following the parade.

There were eleven Lions present and they enjoyed a delicious dinner served by Bettie Green. The next Lions Club Meeting will

WTAMU Presents Super Saturdays

The West Texas A&M Univer-sity Gifted and Talented Institute will present Super Saturdays, a program for gifted and talented students in kindergarten through eighth grades, from 9:30 a.m.-noon Saturdays, February 3-March 2.

The program will offer five courses including "Rocketry," Painting With the Masters," "Sign "Sign Language," "Starship" and "Com-puter Art."

According to George Mann, Di-rector of the Gifted and Talented Institute and program coordinator, these classes are designed to provide gifted and talented students with opportunities to practice criti-cal thinking skills while studying content that is useful and interesting using a hands-on approach to learning

Students may only enroll in one course. There is a fee charged for all courses. All classes have a limited enrollment. Deadline to register is 5 p.m. Friday, January 26. Stu-dents should come to the foyer of Old Main (south entrance) on the WTAANU WTAMU campus on the first class day, February 3, to confirm class assignments. Students should be picked up at noon each Saturday at the same site.

For more information or to enroll in the Saturday courses, contact Robbie Johnson, Super Saturdays coordinator, at 806/656-2662 or Mann at 806/656-2907.

Suicidal people often give clues

M. David Rudd, Pb.D.

Question: A neighbor's son recently committed suicide, and many of the son's friends said they weren't surprised. How can I tell if someone is thinking about killing himself or herself?

templating suicide often gives signals about their intentions. In most studies of completed suicides, about eighty percent of the people attempted to commun cate their plans. Generally, people want others to know the pai they are experiencing. They will change their behavior, leave messages or make incidental comments. Sometimes suicidal people will tell others exactly what they intend to do Other signs to be aware of include

 Severe depression · Foolhardy risk-taking of dangerous activities.

ing about suicide, it is important to acknowledge his or her pain. Granted, sometimes we don't want to hear people talk about death because it makes us feel anxious or we're afraid to become involved with someone who is suicidal. But if you suspect someone is considering suicide. it's critical to respond in a caring and compassionate way, and to seek professional help for the individual.
