EXPO '70 is the first universal and international exposition ever held outside Europe and North America. Ever since 1851 when the first modern world fair was staged in London, more than a score of expositions have been held, but all in Europe and North America.

In the late 19th century Japan planned to hold a world exhibition in 1890, but it proved abortive. The Japan World Exposition in 1970, therefore, should take a prominent place in the history of world culture, for it is the first to be held in Asia and the realization of an 80-year

Many nations from Asia, Africa, South and Central America, not to mention European and North American nations, will participate in EXPO '70. Thus far 40 different nations have indicated their intent to participate. The central theme of EXPO '70 is "Progress and Harmony for Mankind." The site of EXPO '70 has been chosen and planned to reflect this theme; it will accommodate a model city of the future which is in line with it.

The site of EXPO '70 will be located at Senri Hills near Osaka, Japan. Taking advantage of the geography of the surrounding hillside, the site will be a natural amphitheater covering 815
