Newsletter Ties Banker to Customers

(From the Lubbock Avalanche Journal)

For the past 23 years, frustrated sportswriter O. R. Stark, jr. has been partially satisfying his old boyhood dream.

At the end of every month, he burns the midnight oil in a long, wearying session writing "Comings, Goings & Doings," the unique, folksy First National Bank of Quitaque newsletter.

Stark, president of the Quitaque bank for the past 14 years, single-handedly compiles the newsletter, which he began in 1953 when he was a bookkeeper at the bank.

"I had decided that I wanted to develop some way to have a closer tie with customers and friends; I wanted to communicate with our customers more than twice a year," the Quitaque native said.

But the bank president adds, he can't take all the credit for dreaming up the scheme to develop a closer relationship between the bank and its customers.

"I knew of a small Gainesville, Missouri bank that was successfully putting out such a newsletter. Anyway, I wrote to the vice-president asking for pointers on beginning a newsletter in Quitaque. His reply was enormously encouraging, and that's how it all began," he said. Eventually, the two banks began exchanging newsletters.

In the beginning, Stark said, that he had never had any thoughts about doing such a thing, especially in a bank. "I like to think I just fell into it; I had mined in journalism at Texas Tech, and writing seemed to come naturally to me," Stark said.

The two-page newsletter, originating from the small, southeastern Briscoe County community, which lies just beneath the Caprock, contains not only news items about the bank but concentrates on keeping customers informed about local and national events.

News in Stark's publication may range from the biggest fish caught in an area lake to the spiraling coffee prices.

"I try to keep the news as local as possible in nature, and I've found I've had to intersperse state and national events throughout the letter since they affect people's lives so much," he said.

Stark does all the writing for the small monthly and says that during the month he will automatically register a news item in his mind to include in the publication. He writes the entire newsletter in longhand to "collect his thoughts" and then types it.

The publication, which is usually printed by the local newspaper, the Valley Tribune, is published during the last weekend of each month. "We're behind anyway, so I like to wait until the last possible minute to keep it as current as possible," Stark said.

Basically, the blue and white two-page publication looks the same as it did in 1953, when the first one rolled off the press. The only noticeable change is a slight difference in the typeface for its name.

Concerning the news content, Stark said that he always tries to keep an air of optimism in it. "I always endeavor to see good in every situation. If you search for the good in every situation, you'll be better off."

The bank president says that Quitaque has always been the place where he's wanted to live and, except for his two-year hitch with the Navy and a four-year stint at Texas Tech, he has spent his life in the small community.

"I've become involved with the people here, and those ties have become stronger every year," Stark said.

He added that the newsletter seems to have cemented the bond between the bank and the several hundred customers it has across the South Plains. "I guess we wouldn't nearly have had so much need for the newsletter, if we didn't have people that we can't see everyday," he said.

"Our newsletter is really a novelty, and I guess that's one reason our readers do like it so much. In the past, I have known several banks that did it for a few issues but can think of none who are still publishing a monthly newsletter," Stark said.

And the bank president's key to success during the past 23 years?

"I guess it would be my keen interest in people and the community,"

G. H. (Ben) GRUNDY Receives "Citizen of the Year" Award

Another Quitaque "Boy" Makes Good

G. H. (Ben) Grundy of Shafter, California was recently named "Citizen of the Year" by the Shafter Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture at its annual Installation Banquet for his many years of service to the community.

Grundy, born in Estelline, the third son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Grundy of Quitaque, received his education in Quitaque. He graduated as "Honor Boy" of his class, receiving a scholarship. However, he elected to migrate to California in 1936, settling in Shafter and starting work in the potato industry. He entered the service in January of 1941 and served with the Third Infantry Division during World War II. His battalion unit received Presidential Citation for outstanding service in Sicily.

Returning to Shafter after his discharge from military service in October 1944, he started in the farming business. Shortly after his return he met and married his wife, Christine, who had two young daughters, and a third daughter was later born.

Grundy first became interested and involved in civic affairs in 1938 when the city was incorporated. He was first elected to the City Council in 1950, and was re-elected four other times, serving a total of 24 years. He served more consecutive years on the City Council than any other councilman in Kern County. He served two-year terms as Mayor, served many years as Civil Defense and Emergency Director and wrote several emergency plans for the program. He was active in the League of California Cities Association and served on many committees. He served on both the Planning Commission and the Recreation Commission.

In 1960 he was recipient of an Award of Merit presented by the Kern County Board of Trade in recognition of outstanding community service. He is an eighteen year member of the Kiwanis Club and past president; member of First Baptist Church, serving many years on the Board of Deacons.

He was instrumental in building the Shafter City Hall and the Shafter Police Administration Building, and in formulating the Association of Kern County Cities and serving as an officer. He was active in securing Stringham Park for the city from the county and was instrumental in obtaining the Department of Motor Vehicles office for the city and in the construction of the building.

Grundy is active in the Shafter Improvement Council and for several years has been general chairman for the annual Shafter Potato and Cotton Festival. He has served 12 years as a trustee of the Public Cemetery District No. 1 of Kern County and is still serving as secretary of the board. He has served on the board of directors for the California Association of Public Cemeteries and is immediate past president, having served two years as president. He is also active in the California Special District Association and helps the Kern County Special District Association.

Grundy, for years, has been active in the Shafter Chamber of Commerce, serving on the board of directors and is presently serving as treasurer. The master of ceremonies stated, "In the essence of time, I have had to omit many of the accomplishments and involvements of the recipient."

The family present to witness the conferring of the award were his wife, Christine, daughters and sons-in-law, Betty and Jim Brown of Sacramento, California, Sharrn and Arlis Biloff of Shafter and Sandra and Roger Bartlett of Salinas.

In accepting the award, Grundy said, "Many years ago I made a covenant with God to serve Him and to serve mankind and I am grateful to you, the people, for the privilege of serving. You have made it possible for me to fulfill that covenant." He concluded by saying, "One person alone could not accomplish these things. It is possible only through the grace of God and the support and assistance of a lot of mighty fine people."

Visiting in the home of the Willie Hawkins, jr. Sunday were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hawkins of Turkey.

TRIP TO THE HOLY LAND

BY LOLLA BELLE HARMON

We left Ft. Worth-Dallas airport at 12:30 p.m., February 24, and arrived in New York at 4:30 p.m., but all we saw of New York was the inside of airport. The checking off luggage and going through security was quite a hassle and a little nerve-racking for country people like us. Day was dawning when we flew over London and we saw the sunrise over Amsterdam. I suppose I was very excited because I left our camera on the plane and when we went back for it, it wasn't there. That put a damper on all the excitement.

We arrived in Tel-Aviv about 4:30 p.m. It was 5:30 before we got to the hotel, but we were not too tired to freshen up and do a little sightseeing before going to bed. Jo and J.T. made very good traveling companions and we enjoyed doing things with them.

Our hotel was located on the shores of the Mediterranean and the scenery was beautiful. The sunset was almost as beautiful as our Texas sunsets.

There were 55 people in our tour group and we met for a briefing Monday morning. We finally got away on our first sightseeing tour about 10:00 o'clock. In the Arab section, we noticed that most of the houses had doors and windows painted blue. The guide explained that it was to ward off the evil spirits. The first thing of interest we saw was the Savoy Hotel which had been bombed earlier by the Arabs and several hostages had been taken. The guide who was a Jew, told quite a heroic story of the rescue of these hostages. Joffa, a city built on the ruins of the ancient Joppa, is a part of Tel-a-Viv. Here we saw the port Jonah sailed from when he was running away because God had told him to go and prophecy to the Ninivites.

We saw the house where Peter saw the vision when he was staying in the home of Simon the tanner. It was also in Joppa that Peter raised Dorcas from the dead. We saw the church of St. Peter, built by Constantine, the original church had been destroyed, and the one that is standing was built by Louis IX. It was used as a hospital by Napoleon, X when his men had Bubonic Plague.

Our trip back to the hotel took us through the heart of the city where we saw the Opera House and several other interesting things. Tuesday most of the people on the tour went Elat but we had not signed up for this trip so we had a free day. We went shopping for a camera and saw some of the city on foot.

Wednesday morning we left Tel-a-Viv on a two day tour of Galilee. It was windy, cold, and spitting rain, but we saw some very beautiful country, huge oranges, almond, olive groves, fields of grape and cotton and vegetables. They have drained the swamps and irrigated the desert and their land is truly a land of "milk and honey". These people are very proud of their accomplishments and are determined to make this their homeland. The first stop we made was at Caesarea by the sea. This city was built by King Herod in 12 or 13 B.C. After it was destroyed, the sand covered it and was only a few years ago that excavation was begun and several interesting things have been uncovered, including Herod's palace and a huge amphitheater, a stone with the name Pontius Pilate carved on it. It was Pilate reserved seat at the theater. Caesarea was the home of Phillip who preached to the Ethiopian. Peter also came here to preach to the Gentile family of Cornelius.

Haifa was the next city we visited. It is built on the side of Mt. Carmel, extending down to the Mediterranean Sea. It is the only natural bay in all of Israel and is a very important shipping center. It is the center of Bahai religion and they have a beautiful temple with a gold dome. Mt. Carmel, was the home of Elisha, the prophet. There was at one time a school for prophets located here. It was on Mt. Carmel that Elijah called down fire from heaven and burned his sacrifice after the prophets of Baal had failed to get any response from their god when they cried for fire from heaven.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN

James A. Garfield, who was a gospel preacher before becoming president of the United States, said he stepped down from the pulpit to the White House. When he was a young man he was given this advice which he cherished as long as he lived: "Make few promises. Always speak the truth. Never speak evil of anyone. Keep good company or none. Live up to your engagements. Never play games of chance. Good character is above everything else. Keep your secrets if you have any. Never borrow if you can possibly help it. Do not marry until you can support a wife. Keep yourself honest if you would be happy. When you speak to a person look into his eyes. Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper. Live within your income. Save when you are young and spend when you are old. Never run into debt unless you can see your way out again. Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If anyone speaks evil of you let your life be so that nobody believes him. When you retire at night, think over what you have been during the day. Never be idle."

This week is B K T Y P S at the Church of Christ. (Be Kind To Your Parents Sunday) Bring them to worship with you. Special emphasis will be on the youth as the young boys direct the worship. The young girls will prepare dinner for everyone in the fellowship building. Both sermons by bro. Lewis Hunter will be "THE SAVIOUR'S WAY FOR YOUTH". You are always welcome at the:

What Is Your Grazing System?

A person seldom has any idea of the real potential of the range until he sees the improvement that can be made with emphasis on the right grazing system, according to Charles Wade, Range Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Memphis.

The core of a grazing system, however, is management of the forage crop itself. The objective is to improve or maintain the vigor, proportion, and to harvest them efficiently. Deferred grazing and its rotation among a number of pastures over a period of years, range readiness, season of use, and safe degree of use constitute major forage management practices.

To improve grazing efficiency, it is necessary to employ a system of forage management that fits the resource to be managed as well as the needs of the livestock enterprise and other uses of the resources such as wildlife, recreation and watersheds. Adequate stock water is essential. Good fences must be properly placed and pastures must be of the correct size, not too large or small, to control the livestock. Observing safe use of key forage species is an absolute must for optimum production of forage and consequently, livestock products from animals consuming the forage.

Ranchers today are faced with the rising cost of range livestock ranching and need for increased efficiency in order to stay in business and meet the rising demand for red meat. They must therefore look critically at the remaining big opportunity for increased efficiency—their rangeland. Some ranchers have recognized and made this essential move to take care of their rangeland. They realize that rangeland producing less than it could increase the cost of operation as compared to rangeland in full production.

Reducing the cost of operation is a major item for increasing net return on investment. As time goes on the need for grazing efficiency must be acknowledged to a greater degree by the rancher, the significance of sound grazing systems must come alive. Ranchers, scientists and technicians will be challenged time and again to work harmoniously to efficiently produce livestock products and at the same time improve rangelands. It should not be overlooked that restored rangeland contributes greatly to wildlife, rural beauty and recreation and at the same time reduces silting of streams, lakes and reservoirs.

Remember, "Let your past experience be your guide posts for the future, but do not let them be your hitching post." This is good advice for the rangeman today because we need to work harder in solving our brush control, grazing management and other problems necessary for grassland restoration.

The Hall-Childress Soil and Water Conservation District encourages you to take a critical look at your grazing systems and management. Find out where you stand now and where you will be in the near future—grasswise.
