Area high school students can win one of 10 college scholarships and help raise money to fight multiple sclerosis by participating in project: Learn MS '95. Sponsored by the Multiple Sclerosis Association of America, Project: Learn MS '95 is a national essay competition with over $16,000 in scholarship funds available to any sophomore, junior or senior high school student in the country. Information on the essay competition is available through local high school guidance offices or by calling the MS Association at (800) 833-4672.

Designed to encourage education about Multiple Sclerosis and highlight a nationwide "May is MS Awareness Month" Campaign, participants are required to write a 300-500 word essay on MS and its effects on the family. By acquiring sponsors, students raise funds to provide services to MS patients across the country. Separate prizes will be awarded for various levels of fundraising. A panel of experts will judge the essays on content, grammar, and style. All essays must be postmarked by May 22, 1995. Winners will be announced in the summer.

Cosponsored by Corestates Bank, officials from the Multiple Sclerosis

Association also designed the program to reach young adults who typically represent the MS patient population. "There are over 300,000 Americans diagnosed with MS," said MSAA President John Hodson. "Most are diagnosed in their early twenties, so we feel it's imperative that students begin to recognize the early signs of the disease. In fact, my wife was diagnosed at age 17."

In addition to describing MS, fifty percent of the essay will focus on suggestions for society to impact and improve the quality of life for the physically disabled. According to Hodson, there are over 47 million Americans who are physically challenged.

Multiple Sclerosis is a crippling disease of the central nervous system with no known cause, cure, or prevention. Funds raised through Project: Learn MS '95 and other programs help support patient care programs offered by MSAA. These include peer counseling, a toll-free nationwide hotline, free loan of therapeutic equipment, barrier-free housing, educational and referral services and symptom relief programs. To learn more about MSAA, call 1-800-833-4672.

An Important Message for WTU Customers

Recently you may have read or heard about a plan proposing "competition and choice in the generation of electricity" with the implication that everyone's electric bill would go down if that happens. If you think that sounds too good to be true, you're right.

A handful of unregulated power producers is promoting a scheme that would allow them to sell power at retail directly to consumers. They want you to believe that's competition and that it would lower everyone's electric bill. In reality, their goal is to sell power to large industrial customers at low rates which will be eventually subsidized by smaller consumers. They are not interested in assuming an obligation to serve anybody.

At West Texas Utilities Company, we achieve success with a tradition of low rates, reliability, community involvement and dedication to superior customer service. The electric industry is changing. Deregulation, expanding customer expectation, new technologies and other dynamic forces are having a profound effect on our business, but the strong commitment to our customers and communities remains.

Contrary to the self-serving efforts of a few special interest groups, the state's electric utilities have proposed legislation to increase competition in a way that will benefit all consumers. The proposal would open the wholesale generation market to all who want to participate, thus allowing every consumer to benefit from the least costly sources of power. Unlike the unregulated power producers' scheme, no consumers or group of consumers would face higher rates so a few could pay less.

WTU has been a provider of electrical service for some 80 years. Our involvement with and commitment to the communities we serve are stronger than ever. Our lower-than-average rates in Texas have been stable for years. We take our obligation to provide the best possible service to each and every one of our customers very seriously. Always have, always will! If you would like more information on this very important issue, please call or come by any WTU office.
