UL Sights On Safety

by UL Public Information Office

Where It All Began
 Seventy-five years ago, a relatively somber America was awakened to a new and somewhat startling creation: Edison's incandescent light bulb. Bursting upon a scene of reckless enthusiasm, the inherent dangers of the light bulb went unnoticed due to the mass public excitement.

Chicago's Columbian Exposition became the first major test for electricity as once dimmed midways and exhibitions became illuminated. However, resulting fire damage initiated a concerned Chicago Board of Fire Underwriters to call in an electrical investigator from Boston—William Henry Merrill. Merrill's intensive investigations led to the discovery of the abounding hazards in electricity that were capable of not only destroying property but life as well. Realization of these hazards and the need to inform an unaware public prompted Merrill to remain in Chicago and found Underwriters' Laboratories.

Edison's Incandescent Light Bulb

A desperate need by a burgeoning electrical industry for a set of safety standards resulted in a wide acceptance of Underwriters' testing procedures and the beginning of a long public service record. By 1900 the Laboratories had already expanded and were recognized as an authority on fire prevention. World War I, the war to end war, exploded upon the public scene and Underwriters' began its first steps into diversification. Testing procedures were expanded to include such items as underwater acetylene torches and flame arrestors in ammunition plants.

Since the beginning days of the first world war, the Laboratories began to realize a tremendous growth. Underwriters' engineers became involved in testing of every conceivable product from airplanes and safes to shatter-proof glass. No longer was it necessary to convince industry of the Laboratories' service. Industry and government came to Underwriters', for they realized the essential part UL plays in safety.

In looking toward the future, Underwriters' Laboratories knows that public safety is a serious business. Progressing complexities of a

Use Of Microfilm For Census

Will Save Taxpayers Millions

WASHINGTON — Important new microfilming procedures in the processing of the 1970 Census will make possible the most comprehensive and useful storehouse of information ever assembled by the Census Bureau, reports Karl Adams Jr., president of the National Microfilm Assn.

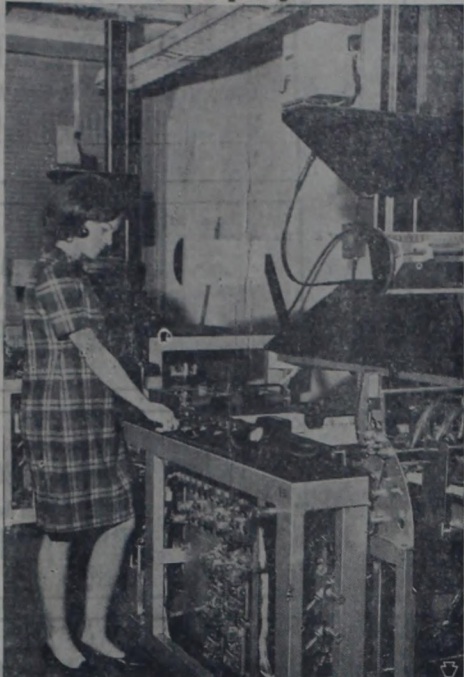

And, considering the volume of information and the cost involved, Americans will get more for their money — $210 million — than ever before.

Adams, microfilm consultant from Weston, Mass., explained that by using microfilm to provide input to computers and to record their output, the Census Bureau will save of millions in personnel costs over the cost to process the same amount of data by previously used methods. Taxpayers benefit from having more sophisticated equipment able to do a better job of processing census data.

"A significant breakthrough in the handling of tremendous masses of information was the marriage of microfilm to the computer. Next year every American will benefit by the development of devices that read data from microfilm directly to computers, and advances in computer-output-microfilming (COM) technology," Adams said.

Some four billion facts about 205 million Americans and their 62 million homes, apartments and other dwellings will be gathered.

It will take three to five weeks to gather the bulk of the data and 18 months to sort, process and put that data into useable form — a comparatively short period of time, considering that in 1970, when the census con-

CENSUS MICROFILMING — Completed census questionnaires are photographed at rate of two per second onto microfilm.

Completed multi-page census questionnaires will be photographed at the rate of two per second onto special high contrast negative microfilm, which records only the pencilled-in dots used to indicate correct answers.

The microfilming is facilitated by an automatic page turner developed in the Census Bureau's Engineering Development Laboratory under the direction of Anthony A. Berlinsky. As each questionnaire is fed to one of 40 available microfilm cameras, an automatic turner flips pages, and after sensing when the last page is reached ejects it and begins processing another. No comparable device exists.

The microfilm is fed to FOSDIC (Film Optical Sensing Device for Input to Computers) which scans each microfilm frame with a beam of light and converts the dots into magnetic code on computer tape. Six FOSDICs will operate around the clock for four months to transfer 50,000 rolls of microfilm onto 6500 reels of computer tape at the rate of 70,000 items of information per minute. In 1970 only about six items could be handled each minute.)

The computers, capable of processing 700,000 items of information each minute, output directly to microfilm (COM) at speeds up to 90,000 characters per second — about 30 times faster than data can be recorded by impact printers, the usual output recording devices which resemble high-speed typewriters.

To illustrate the data processing speedup since 1970, the Census Bureau compared clerks with pencils tabulating census data with the modern computer, and found that in terms of units of work, the modern computer performs the work of 14,000 clerks.

"Computer-output-microfilming is one of the latest developments in electronic data processing, and its use is growing at a fantastic rate," says Adams. He reports that a recent survey of its members by the National Microfilm Assn. indicates that by the end of 1970 there will be at least five times as many COM units in operation as there were at the beginning of 1969. Industry spokesmen predict as many as 12,000 COM recorders will be in use within five years.

. . . is there such a great reliance for shopping and buying information. Only in the newspaper does advertising share this reliance.

Dozens of independent surveys show that customers rely on newspapers five, ten and even 20 times more than on any other media.

And in this market, more families rely on this newspaper for shopping information than on all other forms of communication combined.

Shirttail Sermon

Have you ever thought about the difference between intellectual knowledge and wisdom? Modern jokes about the Absent-minded Professor have been one way of saying that knowledge does not necessarily guarantee the ability to make use of that storehouse of facts. It might be much like the weatherman who predicts rain for tomorrow, but does not take his raincoat to work with him the next day.

Jesus saw such a problem in his day. On one occasion he spoke to the churchgoers in Israel who doubted that he was the Son of God. He told them, you can predict the weather by looking at the sky; but you cannot interpret the signs concerning these times!" (Matt. 16:3) If we read between the lines we realize that Jesus was implying, "you have such a vast knowledge of the Holy Scriptures that you have predicted the coming of the Messiah, but you lack the wisdom to know that he is already here at this hour."

What happens to people who fail to discern the presence of the Lord, and do not accept him? The words of Jesus were harsh as he told those foolish weathermen. "How evil and godless are the people of this day!" Yes, He was speaking directly to those churchgoers in Israel who would not believe he was the Messiah.

These are words which have remained alive in the Bible and this day stand in judgement on us if we fail to believe. Notice that those religious leaders Jesus spoke to were church members, for they never failed to be in the Temple in Jerusalem on religious days. They were doers of good works, for history tells us that these men strictly obeyed the civil and religious laws of Israel. They were men of good intentions, for they honestly intended to accept the Messiah when he came. Yet they failed to believe.

MISS CHERYL ANN HANNA IS BRIDE OF COURTNEY DON MILLER

Miss Cheryl Ann Hanna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyce Hanna of Amarillo, and Mr. Courtney Don Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Miller of Memphis, were united in marriage February 25 in Amarillo. Cheryl is a senior at Tascosa High School and Don is a senior at West Texas State at Canyon. He is majoring in accounting and is employed as a bookkeeper in Amarillo.

They are both continuing with their studies and are at home at 1415 S. Eastern in Amarillo.

Grandparents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Buster Crump, and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Hanna of Turkey.

The Moon And Your Calendar

Man has reached the moon — the same moon that's been around for centuries, dominating the heavens by night and influencing man's way of life.

For instance, the Babylonian Calendar, one of the earliest on record, was based entirely on the moon. Since the actual duration of a moon month is approximately 29½ days, the Babylonians alternated months of 29 and 30 days. Because the calculation of the lunar year was shorter than the sun year, after a few years winter was arriving in the spring — so the Babylonians added a 13th month every two or three years to keep winter in its proper place!

If you think 13 months a year is strange, one of the earliest Roman calendars was probably the most bizarre in history. The calendar consisted of 10 months, beginning in March and ending the December. The period between December and March was considered of little importance because during those bleak winter months there was little activity.

The Romans finally decided not to ignore the winter months, and added January and February to fill the gap. However, man was not satisfied with simply having his calendar tell him the date.

Ancient calendars were often used as decorations in temples, and a famous Aztec calendar tells of the world's creation and destruction. Today's calendars have taken note of these earlier calendars and up-dated them — adding such information as recipes, household hints and first aid information.

If your home is average, you probably have a calendar in the kitchen, and in all likelihood this calendar was a gift, perhaps, from your grocery or pharmacy. Business concerns give away innumerable calendars each year. For instance, last year pharmacists alone gave away between eight and nine million St. Joseph Family Almanac Calendars, the most asked-for and widely distributed calendar in the world.

But where do we go from here? We've been to the moon — so maybe the next calendar will be a "Space-Age Calendar" for use not only on the Earth, but also on the moon and all the planets!

CANCER'S WARNING SIGNALS

- 1 Unusual bleeding or discharge
- 2 A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere
- 3 A sore that does not heal
- 4 Change in bowel or bladder habits
- 5 Hoarseness or cough
- 6 Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing
- 7 Change in a wart or mole

These signals do not usually mean cancer, but they are warnings; if one lasts more than two weeks, it is important to go to your doctor.

Ribbon Straw — Exciting Handicraft Material

Maybe you haven't yet discovered the fascination that lies in working with ribbon straw.

It's an age-old material, and it's world-wide too. In Spain they call it raffia. In Mexico it's known as sisal.

But most American handicrafters will use a machine improved version that's more uniform, easier to handle and offers a limitless variety of colors.

Ribbon straw, under any name, is a tremendously versatile material that is used to make baskets, bags, mats, ornaments, novelties, flowers, party favors, hats and even shoes.

You can weave it, embroider or make interesting designs of your own creation on a home-made hand loom.

A simple little peg loom like this will inspire you to dozens of original designs. By merely winding your ribbon straw around the pegs in a pattern of your choosing, you can create a host of interesting ornaments.

Or this is another kind of loom you can make yourself (or your home handyman if he's skillful). By winding ribbon straw in various patterns around the pegs you can make all sorts of exciting flowers.

Most handicraft departments carry various kinds of ribbon straw. Sometimes you may find it a little dry and stiff. To make it more workable place it in a plastic bag that has been lightly moistened. Or allow steam from a tea kettle to enter the bag.

When moist, ribbon straw is very easy to work. After you have made your floral design on your loom, let the straw dry thoroughly and it will then hold its new shape. Or you can spray your work with an aerosol fixative to give it additional body.

LeeWards has many tips on how to work with ribbon straw and ideas on many things to make. Their catalog also features many complete kits of things to make.

A copy of this book from LeeWards is available free.

Just send your name and address to LeeWards, Dept. D5, 840 N. State St., Elgin, Ill. 60120.
