TRAFFIC ACCIDENT CLAIMS LIFE OF YOUNG MOTHER AND BABY

Mrs. Cynthia Peery

Funeral services for Mrs. Cynthia Peery, 20, and her 7-month-old daughter, Laura Renee Peery, were conducted at 4:00 p. m. Tuesday at the Church of Christ in Turkey with Jack D. Hutton, minister of the Turkey Church of Christ and the Rev. Charles Harris, pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating. Interment was in Dreamland Cemetery at Turkey by Seigler Funeral Home.

Mrs. Peery and her daughter were fatally injured about 4:00 p. m. Saturday in a three-car collision about one mile east of Springtown, in Parker County. Her husband, Roy Lewis (Pete) Peery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Peery of Turkey, was injured in the accident, as were the five other passengers in his car and the driver of the other car.

The accident occurred on a rain-slick highway when an approaching automobile skidded out of control and crashed into the left side of the Peery vehicle. Both automobiles were demolished, as was a racing car Mr. Peery was towing. Mrs. Peery was pronounced dead on arrival at Harris Hospital in Fort Worth, and the infant died about three hours later. Her husband suffered a fractured arm and multiple lacerations.

Mrs. Peery, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stanfield of Tur-

Laura Renee Peery was born at Seymour on September 2, 1969.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

in the first place—to bring people to town again on Saturday. When people go to town they will see things they want and need and will buy them.

For the past several years now the trend in the United States has been much like that in Europe and Asia—move to the city for there you can take home a bigger pay check for shorter hours of work.

Let's look at some of the disadvantages of city life: Chances are you will have to drive five, ten or even fifty miles, depending on the size of your city, to get to work. To do this you must start very early to give yourself time to combat the traffic. Rent is a lot higher and chances are you will have to punch a time clock to show exactly how many hours and minutes you were on the job. Many little courtesies and extras you take for granted in the little towns are lacking in the city. You will probably have to pay cash for much of your purchases and all accounts are to be taken care of promptly when due or you will no longer be allowed to have an account. And it will probably be turned over to some for collection who is not nearly so friendly or courteous as your hometown merchant.

Your children will be exposed to many dangers not usually found in small towns unless they are under your protection, or someone you know personally.

In many larger cities you do not walk the streets at night because of the danger of personal injury.

Your editor was reared on the farm and has lived most of her life in a small community. The people on the farm and in a small town are just about the most independent people in the world. But let's not take advantage of this independence and say, "I am not dependent on anyone", or "It's nobody's business where I spend my money." That is perhaps true, but if we like living in a small town like our home town, then do we not owe the merchants and shopkeepers in our hometown our trade. If we don't support them, then they can't stay in business, they themselves must move away and our small town dies. It is not necessary to look too many miles away to find communities and small towns that have died or are very rapidly in the process of going so. We may very well say this is not likely to happen but we have only to look back for perhaps 20 years and realize that many of our small towns have lost perhaps half their population. It may be that our children, our grandchildren, or perhaps you will be forced to drive 10, 20 or perhaps even 40 miles to buy a spool of thread, a loaf of bread and a carton of milk. Or maybe the kiddoes will have to ride the school bus an hour or more each way to and from school, where they'll not have much of a chance to take part in any extra-curricular activities because they've "got to catch the school bus." It can happen. Oh, there are times of course when we can't find things we need at home and have to look elsewhere, but let's make it a habit of looking at home first. Our small-town way of life is worth preserving, but we must work at it. See you in town Saturday!

Crisis In Rural America Described In Speech At Tulia

(Remarks by Senator Ralph W. Yarborough before the Swisher County Farmers Union Banquet, Ezra Jones Memorial Cafeteria, Tulia, Texas, Saturday, April 18, 1970.)

President Burgess, State President Jay Naman, Mr. Jordan, Senator Hightower, Judge Driskill, distinguished officers and guests: It is a great privilege to visit with you and to confer with you today about our very serious farm problems.

We hear a great deal these days about the "farm problem," but we are really talking about a problem facing our entire economy. Just as we learned during the days of the great depression, the so-called "farm problem" is simply an early warning. The rural crisis is a national crisis—the rural citizens just feel the effects of it first and suffer longer and harder than the rest of our population.

Actually, the farm problem is a collection of many problems: the problem of farmers' low income, the problem of the cost-price squeeze on the farmers, and the problem of developing a farm program that will make it possible for farmers to share equitably in the overall national prosperity to which they contribute so much.

Let us consider that part of the farm problem which relates to farm income. The 1968 farmers' net annual income was more than $1 billion below the net annual income received in 1947. During this same period, farm productivity increased by 50%, and retail food prices advanced 47.3%. Farmers received very little of this increased income.

The inequity of farm income is accentuated by rising cost of production and greater demands for capital investment. This results in a price-cost squeeze on the farmer.

Just this past year, farm production expenses rose sharply. The index of prices paid by farmers for production items, interest, taxes and wage rates was almost 6% higher than in 1968, the greatest yearly increase since 1951. The farmer today is in the position of having to spend more and more in order to earn less and less.

A large part of the production cost problem is created by the present runaway inflation, coupled with the highest interest rates in history. When the tight money policy is piled on top of these, they are enough to crush many farmers and force them off their farms. I saw in a recent issue of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal 22 farms advertised for auction in a single issue.

We are not in an agricultural recession; we have already passed that. We are nearly through an agricultural depression, and are on the brink of agricultural disaster.

The present administration talks a lot about rural development. Recently, I received a copy of a report of a task force that the President appointed last September to "see what might be done in the private and public sectors to stimulate rural development." This task force, headed by the national chairman of the American Farm Bureau Women, made several recommendations to change the names of some agencies, reorganize some agencies, and they submitted an undecipherable organizational chart of how all this is supposed to work. In my opinion, they totally ignored our real problems. The report speaks of rural development and explains:

Rural development will build a new rural countryside America; and by building a new and better rural America, we will build better cities and a better America—a new life for the country.

The most curious thing about this report is what it does not say and what it does not recommend. It does not suggest that we try to improve farmer income to bring it in line with the rest of the economy. It does not recommend that we take immediate action to preserve and protect our private agricultural economy, and try to retain the farm families on their own farms.

When they speak of building a new rural America, the question immediately comes to my mind: Why do they insist upon building their new rural America upon the grave of our present rural America?

It is my conclusion, based on the Administration's action since it has been in office, that this is exactly what the present Administration intends to do. In administering the existing farm programs over the past year, numerous actions adverse to the interests of farmers have been taken. The Administration's proposed farm legislation would give unprecedented authority to the Secretary of Agriculture to push farm income and farm prices down even further. The Administration's proposed budget for the Department of Agriculture reduces many programs essential to the preservation of our agricultural economy as we know it.

The only conclusion I can draw from this is that the present Administration intends to level our present rural America so it can build its new rural America on the grave of our present rural America.

Let me briefly review just a few of the Administration's actions over the past year.

In March, 1969, the Secretary of Agriculture slashed the price support on cotton seed from $48 a ton to $37 a ton, and under 51% of parity. This is a $5 loss per bale.

In April, 1969, the Secretary of Agriculture failed to increase daily supports up to 90% of parity as authorized by Congress.

On August 11, 1969, the Administration announced a 12% cut in wheat acreage for 1970. Texas lost 438,635 acres of its wheat allotment.

On November 19, 1969, the Administration ordered resale loans on 1967 and 1968 crop grain sorghum called. This meant massive dumping of stored grain on the market, and prices plummeted. I protested this ill-advised order, and the order was rescinded, but only after tremendous damage to the market had been done.

On December 30, 1969, the Administration cut the rice acreage for 1970 by 15%. The allotment had already been cut 10% the year before.

On January 16, 1970, the Administration announced a drastic change in the method of payments to participants in the 1970 wheat, feed grain, and cotton programs, in order that the usual 50% Spring planting advance payments would not be made.

One of the most recent adverse actions taken against farmers is the Department's decision on the projected cotton yield. This was a crippling blow to Texas cotton farmers.

The trend of these decisions is clear. The Administration's intent seems unmistakable. Is it really worth forcing farmers into bankruptcy and foreclosure in order to build a vaguely defined new rural America that they have in mind? I do not think so.

As the principal sponsor of the Coalition Farm Bill, S3068, I will continue to fight to preserve and improve our existing farm programs. The Administration's proposal to abandon the parity concept, and to give the Secretary of Agriculture unprecedented authority to drive prices and income further downward are totally unacceptable in light of their actions over the past year.

The Administration's budget proposals for the Department of Agriculture for 1971 are further evidence of a high level policy of abandoning and slashing existing programs which were designed to assist and protect our existing rural economic system and family farmers.

I am unalterably opposed to the Administration's plan of starving the family farmers off their land. I have fought and will continue to fight any moves to shift our agricultural economy from a primarily independent producers system to a great, impersonal corporate farming system. We must build a greater rural America on what we now have, rather than tearing it down with a vague hope that something might grow on its grave.

Globe-News Spelling Bee

Miss Debra Gragson

Debra Gragson represented Hall County at the Amarillo Globe-News Spelling Bee on April 25.

Debra is the 13-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Cruse of Turkey, and is in the Seventh Grade.

Many of the spellers failed on their first words, but Debra was the thirtieth speller to go, out of the forty-six spellers, winning sixteenth place. The word she misseged was "fuselage." Nancy Palmer of Pampa won the Bee.

Before the Bee, a luncheon was held at the Country Club, where each winner was introduced, and last year's winner spoke to the group.

Dr. James P. Cornette welcomed the spellers and their families to the Bee, which was held in the auditorium at Austin Junior High School. The Bee was conducted by Jim Walker and Jack Edmondson.
