Getting Education Not Easy For Some Here

Sending children to the school in your own neighborhood and to the school of your choice is not always an easy thing to do. The opening of a new school year brought a considerable amount of moving around in the local school district for several families. According to the way it was explained to us, about 32 young people who live in the old Flomot School District that is now part of the Matador School District, were affected by what we suppose is a new law requiring them to attend school in the district in which they reside. Heretofore they had been allowed to transfer to another district to attend school and these students had attended school last year at Valley High. Some of them had gone to school at Quitaque or Turkey all their school life. The Matador-Flomot-Roaring Springs school districts were consolidated last year and Matador is in the process of building a new plant to accommodate that district. However, the new building is not complete, and we understand that children in the first five grades will attend school at Roaring Springs this year. Most of the students who have been attending Valley High live only a few miles from Valley. In the case of the Joe Edd Helms family, the residence is only about four miles from Valley High but they are probably 50 miles from Roaring Springs or nearly so. It has been reported to the editor that all but one family thus affected have moved either to Quitaque or Turkey, or at least into the Valley school district. We are sure that there are other instances throughout the state faced with the same problem and it would seem that some sort of exception could be made to these rules. The Helms family lives just a quarter of a mile from the Valley school district line. Mrs. Helms voices her feelings as the family has had to move from their home in order that her children can attend their "own" school. Mrs. Helms says:

"This book is dedicated to the young people of America, who are rebelling because they know something is very wrong in this country, but do not know just what it is."

These words from Taylor Caldwell's best selling novel, "Captain and the Kings", came to my mind last week as we were in the process of moving from our home in the country to a small rent house in town, simply because the law says that we cannot send our children to the school of our choice, where they have always attended, where their friends are, where they have come to know and love their teachers, and the people of the community.

In our situation we pay taxes in two school districts. But because we preferred to send our children to school in Quitaque, and now to our new Valley School system, we have for years transferred our children, and carried them to and from the bus stop each day. This itself was an inconvenience, but only a small sacrifice to be able to send our children to the school of our choice.

I have always had a great respect for our country and tried to abide by our laws. We try to teach our children to do the same, for a government "of the people, for the people, and by the people." However, at this point I am very confused, disillusioned, and I will admit very disappointed that we as people must sit back and let the government tell us where we must send our children for an education.

We live only five miles from the new Valley schools and 30 miles from Matador. Perhaps I am just too thick-headed but I cannot see the point in sending my four children that far to another school that they do not want to attend. Their home is here, their friends are here, their family is here. Personally, I feel that children will try harder to get an education in surroundings that are familiar to them.

We have a nice, large home in the country that we love and of which we are proud, but as it is the children and I are being forced to move into a small, rent house in town. Perhaps this may not seem a big thing to some, but we farm for a living and my husband must remain on the farm as much as possible; therefore, our family is partially being separated. It will mean my being forced to drive back and forth each day in order to help him when I am needed.

I am not only concerned for my family, but those of the 32 transfers in our area who are in the same situation. Most of us have nice, fairly new homes, we all farm, and we as wives and children have to work alongside our husbands and fathers to help make a living. Now we must split up our homes, in some cases keep up utilities and payments on two houses, while it was already a struggle to provide for a family at today's high cost of living.

Of course, we could send our children several more miles, to a different school, but it seems very unfair for more reasons than I could possibly name. We love the communities of Quitaque and Turkey, and the people here. This is our home. This is where our children belong. This is where we want them to grow up. We are proud of our school system. We do most of our business in these two towns. I feel that the people in this area should stand behind us, as I know most of them do. What can be done about the situation I do not know. I am only a "housewife," but most of all, a mother, and a wife. I'm trying to make the best of this situation for my family's sake, but I ask, how can we sit back in this "free" country of ours and be told where to send our children for an education, where to live, and how to live.

I am only one person. At this point I can do nothing, but turn to the highest authority of all, and ask God to give us the strength to face the things we cannot change.

I want to end with a poem that Dorothy Powell, Home Demonstration Agent for Briscoe County, quoted in her last newsletter.

CALL ME NO HOUSEWIFE

You call me a "housewife"
I resent that name,
Yes, I work in a house,
But just the same,
It's not only a house,
It's my family's home,
When tired from their labors,
To me they do roam.
I married a man,
To make him a home,
The best that I can.
Where comfort and pleasure
And contentment abide,
Where husband and children
Are content by my side.
So call me no "housewife"
That name's a plain faker,
I'm no wife to a house,
But I'm a "Homemaker."

4-H's Aid U.S. Agriculture in Many Ways

Young people are getting practical experience while making an active contribution to America's new glamour industry, agriculture. They are the million participants in the national 4-H agricultural program, sponsored by International Harvester Company.

With expanding agricultural experts, technology and more favorable prices, many 4-H'ers look favorably at careers in farming, agribusiness and other agriculturally related careers.

Supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service, the program encourages 4-H'ers to become more involved in all areas of agriculture, farm operations and management, food processing, product marketing and disease control.

Livestock and crop production, conservation, operation of farm tractors and small engines, veterinary science, entomology and commodity marketing are some of the activities undertaken by youths in the 4-H agricultural program.

Encouraging these young producers to continue their work in agriculture is the International Harvester Company, donor of awards in the program. Recognition includes four medals of honor for county winners and an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 25-29, for an outstanding member in each state.

During the national 4-H event, six national $1,000 scholarship winners are announced.

Tim Ahearn, of Paxton, Mass., a 1972 national winner in the 4-H agricultural program believes that his "future lies in agriculture". Active in dairy production, field crops projects and learning how to safely and efficiently operate farm machinery, young Ahearn has chosen a career in agricultural mechanics because of his 4-H experiences.

A career as a veterinarian awaits another 1972 national winner, David Palmer, of Clyde, N.C., worked with his family's dairy herd and poultry flocks and through better feed methods he was able to increase the family's dairy production. His interest in animals led him toward a career in veterinary medicine.

For information about opportunities in agriculture and the national 4-H agricultural program contact the county extension office.

Turkey Lions Meet

The regular meeting of the Turkey Lions Club was called to order on August 28, 1973 by the Boss Lion Leroy Stone. The pledge of allegiance was led by Lion U. F. Coker, jr. and the invocation was given by Lion Loran Denton.

Lion Keith Green won the "Pot of Gold" which was $5.20. Tail Twister Jay Eudy did not let him get off with much of it.

Guests at the meeting were Wilburn Leeper, Bill Hulsey, Matt Chalmers, George Scott, Dennis Denton and Jane Duncan.

The members voted to change the meeting time from noon to 7:00 p.m. on the second and fourth Monday nights. After the new Valley School has opened, many of the members could not attend a noon meeting. It is hoped that all members can attend on these Monday nights.

Lion U. F. Coker presented award pins to Lion Loran Denton, Lion Jack Lacy and Lion Roy Patterson for their efforts to get new members this last year.

Lion Loran Denton presented the program and told of the progress the new Valley School has made. He invited everyone to attend the dedication. He introduced Mr. Leeper, Coach Scott, Coach Chalmers and Coach Hulsey, each of whom responded with a speech.

Boss Lion Leroy Stone reminded Lion Harold Lane and Lion U. F. Coker that they will put the flags out in town next Monday, which is Labor Day.

The meeting was then closed by the Boss Lion Leroy Stone.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnie Brunson and grandson, Jody Brunson, drove to Lubbock Tuesday of last week and met Jody's father, Roger Brunson, who flew in from Norfolk, Virginia, where he is in service. He brought a friend, Jack Cagney of Illinois with him. On Thursday night the Donnie Brunsons, Roger and Debbie and friend, Jack Cagney, attended "Texas" in Palo Duro Canyon. They reported enjoying the show very much.

Brenda and Jody, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. J. T. Standfield of Turkey, took Roger and his friend back to Lubbock Sunday where they emplaned for Norfolk.

VOLUNTEER EFFORT TO BE AIRED IN DOCUMENTARY

A massive wave of mercy that has drawn more than 50,000 volunteers to meet human need along the 900-mile Texas-Mexico border will be aired in a 30-minute documentary on television stations throughout the state in early September.

"Although the mission effort called the 'River Ministry' has been quietly expanding at our doorway to Mexico for about five years, many Texans have probably never heard of it," said Dr. T. A. Patterson, Dallas, executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. "This is largely because it hasn't, until now, been widely covered in television or newspapers."

The film, "Rio Grande," shows Texans, including teenagers, doctors, farmers, ministers and others giving their time and talents to improve the lot of the 2½ million people along the River.

During the past five years more than 50,000 people of all ages from upstate Texas have spent vacations and other times doing everything from digging wells in desert areas to building churches where there were none.

Many doctors, dentists and other medical personnel travel to the Rio Grande regularly to give their time and talents to heal people's bodies and spirits, said Dr. Patterson. Several mobile clinics fashioned from old trucks and buses carry the doctors and their equipment and supplies into isolated areas where people wouldn't otherwise get the medical care they need.

About two years ago, Baptists launched an agricultural missions program to make isolated desert areas between Big Bend and El Paso-Juarez "blossom like a rose." Already many residents of Los Fresnos and El Comedor, Mexico, downriver from El Paso have a livelihood and a better life with irrigation, and such crops as pecan trees and bee culture as well as vegetable gardens for the first time.

"To continue the 'River Ministry' and to extend a caring hand to million of other Texans," said Dr. Patterson, "more than 4,000 Southern Baptist churches across Texas will seek to raise $1 million in a special state missions offering in September."

"Though $1 million may not seem large in a state the size of Texas," said Dr. Patterson, "when it's backed up by thousands of volunteers from all walks of life, it reaches infinitely far."

SCS Providing Assistance For Home Owners

by David Seitz

Soil Conservation Service
Memphis, Texas

Many city landowners who have constructed homes in the past few months are contacting SCS for technical assistance concerning lawn grasses which could be planted now and keep the ground covered during the winter months. I recently discussed this with Allen King and came up with the following recommendations.

One alternative is planting an annual cool season plant or sprig to one of the several adapted varieties of Bermudagrass, such as common Bermudagrass, tuftcoat (Bermudagrass). African and dwarf Bermudagrass make pretty lawns but are hard to manage.

Although Bermudagrass is probably the best adapted for lawns, especially in the Rolling Plains, cool season grasses are becoming very popular for lawn and recreation areas.

Zack Fisher of Memphis planted a lawn to Kentucky 31 Tall Fescue in December 1972 and got an evident turf of good looking grass which has been very green all of the time since then. Kentucky 31 should be planted.

However, Kentucky 31 will become very ragged unless watered frequently year long, highly fertilized, and mowed extra high. Many people use what they call a park mix which usually includes fescue.

Bluegrass is a good cool season grass but takes extremely good care, especially in the Rolling Plains.

love and you have an unbeatable combination."

Our own Danny (Salt) Jones of Quitaque spent eight weeks this summer in the "River Ministry" and he can tell you how badly our missions are needed on our own doorstep.

Driskill - Payne Vows Read Recently

Miss Jana Sue Driskill of Turkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Driskill, jr., of Turkey, and Elden Lyn Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Payne of Quitaque, were united in marriage August 12, 1973, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The vows were read by Herbert Gipson, Church of Christ minister from Amarillo, in the home of the bride's parents.

The focal point of the nuptial area was the fireplace which was flanked by baskets of white gladioli, blue daisies and baby breath, accented with blue satin bows. Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Joe Mark Davis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of French silk, blue and white lace over blue silk faced with satin designed on the empire lines and fashioned by the bride's mother. The fitted bodice had a scooped neckline and set-in lantern, wrist-length sleeves. She wore a picture hat with tiny blue accents. Her bouquet was a cascade of white carnations accented with blue carnations and baby breath with white lace and satin streamers.

Jeanne Driskill of Canyon served her sister as maid of honor.

She wore a formal gown of blue eyelet embroidery made on empire lines with a scooped neckline and butterfly sleeves. She carried a colonial bouquet of blue and white carnations with blue streamers.

Darrel Payne of Stamford was his brother's best man.

Mrs. Driskill chose a gown of blue and white polyester crepe with knife pleats in the skirt. She wore a corsage of blue carnations and baby breath.

The groom's mother wore a navy blue dress of polyester crepe designed with a pleated skirt and wore a corsage of white carnations and baby breath.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. The table was laid with a white lace cloth over blue linen and centered with an arrangement of gladioli and blue daisies and flanked with blue tapers in crystal holders. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue roses and lace and topped with a bride and groom beneath a floral arch. Misses Charmaine Fuston, Juana Cotten, Darla Cruse and Debra Gragson served the cake, white frosted punch, nuts and mints with crystal and silver appointments.

Nall - Vaughan Vows Exchanged In Wellington Church Ceremony

Miss Crableigh Nall became the bride of Danny Wayne Vaughan in a double-ring ceremony at 7:00 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church in Wellington. The service was officiated by Rev. Jim Boswell.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nall of Wellington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Wayne Vaughan of Silverton.

Mrs. Dan Henard, jr., of Wellington, organist, provided traditional nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight silk chiffon over faille. The sleeveless gown was designed with a deep V-neckline in front and back bordered with double wing collars and accented at the empire waist with a candlelight satin belt. To compliment the dress, she chose a "riding hat" of candlelight net covered with tulle which cascaded into a veil of illusion. Candlelight velvet ribbons provided contrast for the hat. Her bouquet was an arrangement of yellow rosebuds, stephanotis and white and navy baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Miss Linda Williams of Hereford.

Best man was Ron Vaughan of Silverton, brother of the groom. Guests were seated by Ken Wischkaemper, Shamrock; Sandy Matthews, Mason; Wade Brannon, Silverton; Jake Wells, Breckenridge, and Andy Henard, Wellington.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Members of the houseparty were Misses Billie Hamilton, Dallas, Cathy Singley and Carey Lewis, both of Wellington.

On their return from a wedding trip to New Mexico and Colorado, the couple will make their home in College Station. The bride is a graduate of Wellington High School and is a sophomore student at Texas A&M University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Silverton High School and is a third-year student in The School of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jones of Flomot and Mrs. J. R. Nall of Turkey.

CANNING FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Canning season is upon us! I have gotten several calls lately from homemakers regarding canning procedures or failures. I thought you might find the questions and answers about canning fruits and vegetables helpful.

Q. Open-kettle canning is not recommended. Why?

A. In open-kettle canning, food is cooked, then packed into hot jars and sealed without processing. For vegetables, the temperatures obtained in open-kettle canning are not enough to destroy all the spoilage organisms that may be in the food. Spoilage bacteria may get in when the food is transferred from kettle to jar.

Q. Why is liquid sometimes lost from glass jars during processing?

A. Loss of liquid may be due to packing jars too full, fluctuating pressure in a pressure canner or lowering pressure too suddenly.

Q. Should liquid lost during processing be replaced?

A. No. Never open a jar and re-fill with liquid—this could let in bacteria and you would need to process again. Loss of liquid does not cause food to spoil, though the food above the liquid may darken.

Q. Is it safe to use canned food if liquid is cloudy?

A. Cloudy liquid may be a sign of spoilage, but it may be caused by the minerals in hard water or by starch from over-ripe vegetables. If liquid is cloudy, boil the food. Do not taste or use food that foams during heating or that has an off odor.

Q. Why does canned fruit sometimes float in jars?

A. Fruits may float because pack is too loose or syrup too heavy; or because some air remains in tissues of the fruit after heating and processing. Fruits canned by raw-pack method often float.

Q. Is it safe to can foods without salt?

A. Yes. Salt is added to improve flavor and to help stabilize color and texture. It is not added as a preservative.

Q. What makes some canned food change color?

A. Darkening of foods at the tops of jars may be caused by oxidation due to air in the jars or by too little heating to destroy enzymes. Overprocessing may cause discoloration of foods throughout the containers. Pink and blue colors sometimes seen in canned pears, apples and peaches are caused by chemical changes in the coloring matter of the fruit.

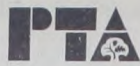

Iron and copper from cooking utensils or from water in some localities may cause brown, black and gray colors in some foods. When canned corn turns brown, the discoloring may be due to the variety of corn, the stage of ripeness, to over-processing or to use of copper or iron pans.

Packing liquid may cause fading of highly colored foods. The use of plain tin cans will cause some foods to lose color.

Q. Why is liquid sometimes lost from glass jars during processing?

A. Loss of liquid may be due to packing jars too full, fluctuating pressure in a pressure canner or lowering pressure too suddenly.

Mrs. Stanley Simmons of Nolan visited her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Tyler, last week and canned beans and peas.

People Taking Action—For Every Child!

EVERY CHILD NEEDS YOU is the theme for the administration of newly elected National PTA President, Mrs. Lillie E. Herndon. She invites you to share an adventure of greatest purpose and deepest commitment, that of becoming an achiever for children by joining the PTA.

PTA is known by many names . . . Parent-Teacher Association . . . National PTA . . . National Congress of Parents and Teachers . . . People Taking Action. Whatever it's called, PTA is one dynamic nationwide organization, with a membership of more than 8,000,000 people united in their efforts on behalf of every child.

In fact, the scope of the PTA is so great—it's the country's largest volunteer organization—that many members find it difficult to realize that they automatically become a part of this nationwide network when they join the PTA at their child's school.

Many are also unaware that a number of services to children which we take for granted today were accomplished with the help of PTA. Benefits as varied as the hot lunch program in schools, making kindergarten a part of the public school system . . . the Pure Food and Drug Act . . . child labor laws . . . automatic fire sprinklers and fire escapes in schools . . . the planning and promotion of an educational campaign for prevention of polio . . . the Drug Abuse Education Act . . . all were either sponsored or endorsed by the PTA.

Today, the PTA continues to be active in causes for children. Recent continuing programs designed by the PTA for action in the local community include "Project RISE" which can help assure every child the right to read; "Volunteers In The Courts" which can help a child in trouble to a more productive life; "Smoking and Alcohol Education" which helps seek solutions to two of America's serious health problems; and a "Continuing Education for Parents" which can enhance family life.

PTA as an organization is not just concerned with tea-and-cookie meetings in a classroom or with raising funds to buy school equipment. PTA proves that achieving for children can be an exciting and challenging adventure. The PTA in Idaho sued the state for misusing and mismanaging land endowment funds intended for public education—and won. The PTA in Appleton, Wisconsin, supported a drug abuse education project which gained national attention. And PTA's in many parts of the country are taking a more active role at the decision-making level in their public school systems.

In PTA, there is something for everyone interested in being an achiever for children.

Membership in PTA is probably the best buy around these days. Only a few cents from your dues goes to support PTA's work nationally, and not much more for state branches.

When schools open this year, why don't you call and ask where you can join the PTA? If there's not a PTA at your nearest school, write the National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611, and ask how to start one.

You, too, can be an achiever for children. Join the PTA—People Taking Action for every child.

THIS IS WHAT THE AMERICAN FAMILY LOOKED LIKE IN 1897 when PTA was founded. PTA was working for the family then, and it continues to work for the family today. Millions of PTA members are working in your community, in your state, and across the nation to help strengthen family life. PTA members know about continuing education for parents . . . improving reading skills . . . the dangers of smoking . . . and alcohol and drug misuse . . . the importance of securing legislation favorable to education. PTA members just plain know how to get things done. Call your nearest school and join the millions of PTA "People Taking Action" for the welfare of the families of today and the future. If there's not a PTA in your school, you can write the National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611, for information about how to start one.

Briscoe County Social Security Benefits Total $59,000 Monthly

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Mullin and children of Lubbock visited over the weekend with his parents, Mr. day.

Mrs. Jesse Mullin and Mrs. Don Mills and Todd were in Dallas last

Social Security benefits were being paid to residents of Briscoe County at the rate of $59,000 a month at the close of 1972, Mencie King, Social Security Manager in Plainview, said today.

Of the Social Security beneficiaries living in Briscoe County, 324 are retired workers and their dependents. Another 123 are receiving benefits as the survivors of workers who have died, and 32 are getting benefits as disabled workers or their dependents.

King pointed out that although most Social Security beneficiaries are older people, about one out of every four is under age 60. In Briscoe County, 88 people under age 60 are collecting Social Security payments each month. Forty-five are under age 18 and receive payments because a working father or mother has died or is getting social security disability or retirement benefits. Most of the 12 beneficiaries in Briscoe County between 18 and 22 years of age are getting student's benefits under a provision in the Social Security law permitting the continuation of a child's benefits beyond his 18th birthday, and up to age 22, if the child is attending school full time.

Also in the 18-22 age group, King said, are some other types of beneficiaries, illustrating the broad family protection that the Social Security program provides workers of all ages. Some are children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers who became disabled before they reached 22 and who will probably never be able to work and become self-supporting. The monthly benefits of these young people, severely handicapped by physical or mental disabilities, will continue indefinitely.

Benefits are also payable to the mother if the disabled son or daughter is in the mother's care.

Faraway Places

I've never seen the Taj Mahal. Nor have I looked up at the Leaning Tower of Pisa, or out across the broad Sahara to the Pyramids and the Sphinx.

Most of my life, as a matter of fact, has been spent right here in my own town. Not because I don't want to travel. To visit these faraway places is one of my big desires—and, one day, I hope to do it.

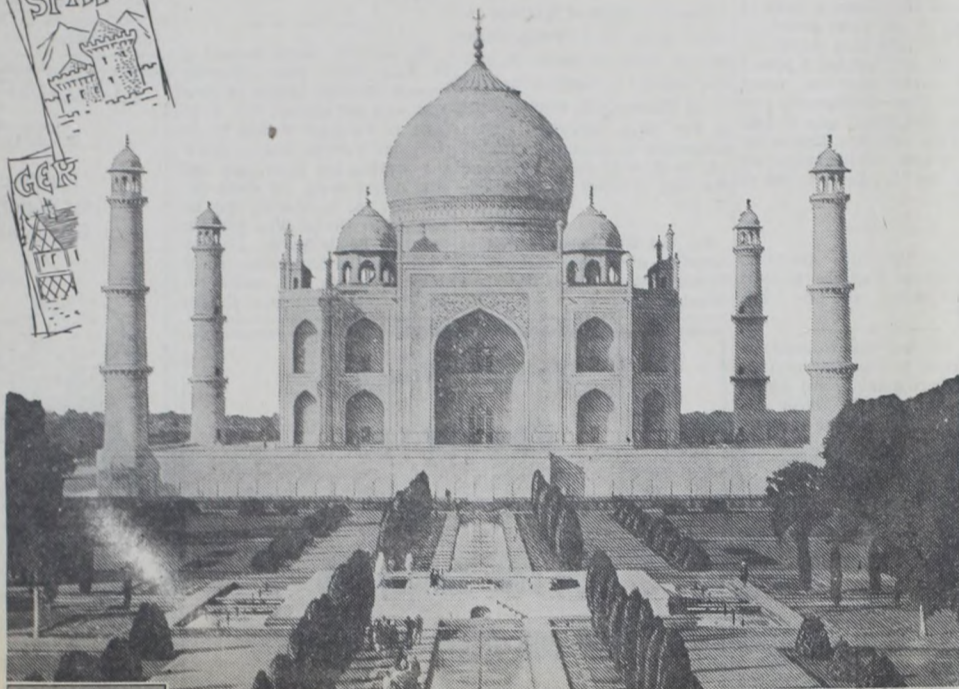

But I know, deep in my heart, that even if I never leave my home town I'll have more to do than I can hope to accomplish. Because God is just as much here as he is anywhere. Our minister used that thought in his sermon last Sunday, and he told us how much there is for all of us to do in our own particular place—and how much remains undone!

If we'd bring just one other person to church with us on Sunday, we'd really be doing something, he told us. And, as I thought it over, I knew how true that was.

That's why I'm asking you.

4-H's Help Conserve Energy in Petroleum Power Program

Young people in the national 4-H petroleum power program are thinking energy conservation. These two 4-H'ers are helping get maximum efficiency from their tractors and small engine equipment through proper service, use and by knowing how to make simple adjustments and repairs. They are encouraged in this effort with incentives and recognition by Amoco Foundation, Inc., donor of awards in the program.

SPECIAL—Like their adult counterparts, today's 4-H members involved with petroleum powered equipment are thinking energy conservation. And 144,000 of them working in 4-H tractor and small engine projects are doing something about it through special care, efficiencies in operation and decision-making as to machine use.

Young people in the 4-H petroleum power program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, work with a wide range of equipment. Farm tractors, lawn and garden equipment, boats and mini-cycles in summer and snowmobiles in winter are included in the "learn by doing" program.

With an assist from Amoco Foundation Inc., the 4-H'ers learn to service and maintain their machines and to make simple adjustments and repairs. They also develop safe operating habits around and on the machines. And with their equipment in top operating condition contribute to energy conservation.

While emphasis in the program is on learning, there are many other incentives.

Through the National 4-H Service Committee, Amoco Foundation provides a full schedule of awards. County winners—up to four per county—receive medals of honor. State winners—one per state—receive expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress, Nov. 25-29, in Chicago. And there, six $700 scholarships are to be presented to the national winners.

Two additional national 4-H petroleum power program activities, supported by the foundation, are scheduled during September. Two tractor operators' contests pit state representatives against each other in both the Eastern and Western parts of the country. The eastern event is scheduled at the State Fair of Virginia, Richmond, Sept. 23-25. And the western contest is to be at Ak-Sar-Ben, Omaha, Neb., Sept. 26-28.

In connection with these events, two small engine demonstration contests are scheduled. And it is expected that energy conservation will be a favorite topic.

For information on the National 4-H petroleum power program, contact the county extension office.

THANKS AGAIN, FOLKS!
I want to say "thank you" again to my friends and loved ones who have been so thoughtful since I had surgery again. Thank you for the beautiful flowers, card, food and, especially, for your prayers before the surgery and since I have returned home. I had a wonderful surgeon, but he could not have done as good a job and I certainly would not have recuperated as quickly without your prayers. May God bless each of you.
Lottie Owens

Shirttail Sermon

LIVING BY CONSCIENCE OR FAITH

In religious circles we often hear people who make decisions as to whether something is right or wrong on the basis of their conscience. We know that a person who violates his conscience sins, (context of I Cor. 1-11) and thus even though the preacher preaches against that which I choose to do if it does not violate my conscience it is all right.

Wouldn't life be great if decisions could be made in such a way. But let us take a look at our consciences to see what makes them work. It comes in two parts—conscience mental—the ability to reason the feasibility of an idea with information; and conscience—emotional—expressed without inner feeling of guilt.

Paul's conscience did not bother him while he was making Christians blaspheme God, having them beaten and stoned to death. In fact many people who live by their conscience have the idea that the strait and narrow way is the road that keeps you out of the jailhouse. However, there are many things that are legal according to law that are sin and ungodly to the Christian. Thus, God did not tell a man to live by conscience only. Rather he said . . . "without faith it is impossible to please him (God) . . ." Hebrews 11:6. . . "the just shall live by faith . . ." Romans 1:17 and Hebrews 10:38.

This may come as a shock but the conscience has nothing to do with faith. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God" Rom. 10:17, but faith does not come by the conscience. Instead I Tim. 1:5 teaches us that a good conscience comes from unfeigned faith.

It is stated far stronger in Romans 14:23 "for whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Conclusion: Since it does not take faith to drive an automobile—it is a sin to drive. That then opens the question, "Can a person drive a car by faith?"

But so that we will have something to meditate on, we will close here. If perchance you can't answer the question, ask me about it sometime.
