HUDDLESTON PLAN OPPOSED BY BLANTON

Asserting his opposition to the Huddleston-Borah proposal to issue five billions of government bonds for direct relief, Congressman Thomas Blanton, in a message wired yesterday to the Cisco Daily News, characterized the proposal as a "dole" which would "destroy self-reliance, self-respect and make the recipient shiftless and dependent upon government support."

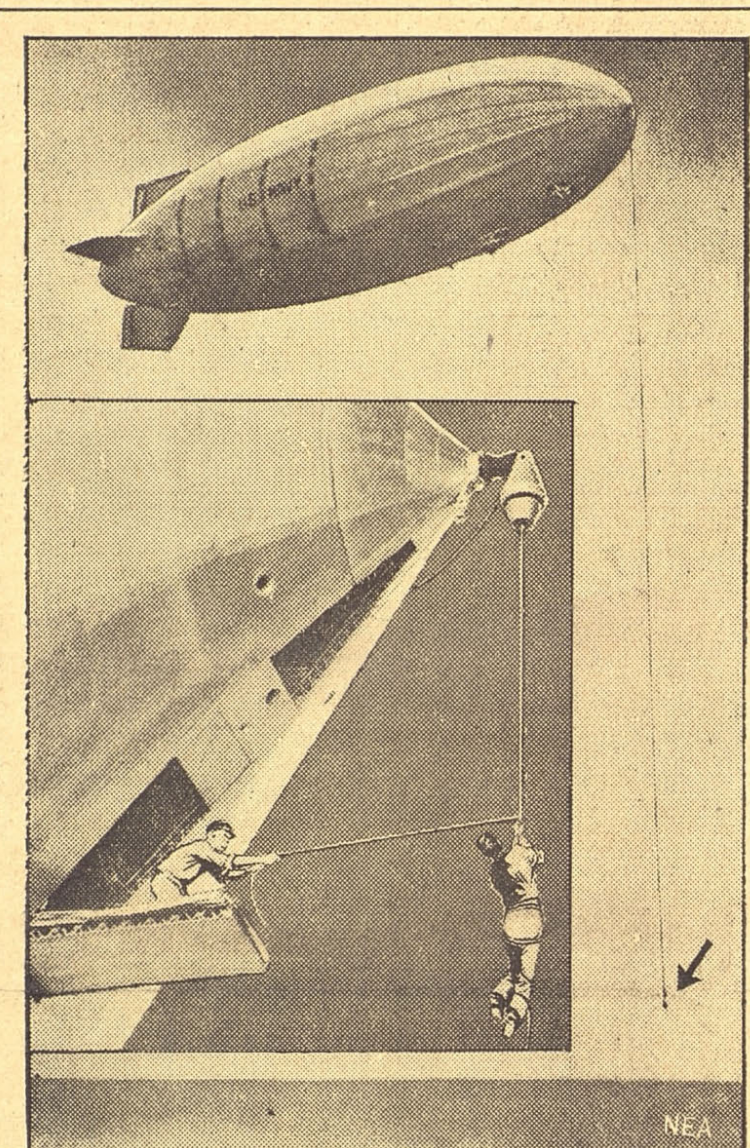

Blanton expressed favor of the proposal to pay the ex-service men "the debt of honor" due them and said that this payment would distribute money equitably in every district and benefit everybody.

He urged that representatives of the district send him their views "on the present crisis so that he could be aided in fighting back some of the legislation that is being offered."

His message: "Opposes 'Dole.' There is a growing determination for an organized effort here to pass the Huddleston-Borah proposal to issue five billion in bonds for direct relief. This is in addition to financing the payment of adjusted compensation certificates to veterans. While I favor paying the debt of honor we owe our ex-service men which scatters money equitably in every portion of every district where it will benefit everybody and help to revise business, I have at the same time always opposed doles of every kind, as the same will destroy self-reliance and self-respect and will make the recipients shiftless and dependent absolutely upon government support, similar to the deplorable condition existing in England."

"This government owes to every citizen an equal opportunity to obtain work in a gainful occupation and to produce means of obtaining maturity on farms and homes to obviate wholesale foreclosures, but beyond that it can help little except that it must guarantee an economical administration of affairs, free of waste and extravagance and graft. Views Asked. "If you should have some of your representatives send me their views on the present crisis it would help me to fight back legislation that is constantly being put up for passage. We killed today a foolish proposal to waste one million dollars to investigate grasshoppers offered as a farm measure. Borah today implied an impending reign of terror from the railroad brotherhood unless direct relief is granted which in my opinion can come only from the few radicals in that organization."

Sailor Clings to Akron Cable As Mates Fall 200 Feet to Death

Charles (Bud) Cowart, nervy young sailor from Sand Springs, Okla., clung to a cable until he was drawn aboard the Navy dirigible Akron at Camp Kearney, near San Diego, Calif., after being swept aloft in a sudden plunge of the ship just as it was nearing the mooring mast. Nigel M. Hinton, Fresno, Calif., and Robert Edsall, Elkhart, Ind., who also swung aloft on the

District Football Committee Offers Cisco Pardon for Plea of Wrong-Doing

The ultimatum of the executive committee of Interscholastic league district No. 3 in the Cisco case, has been made public through the medium of Presy Anderson's sport column in the Abilene Morning News. Briefly, the ultimatum is that if Cisco wishes to be restored to grace as a recognized competitor in league football next season the school must get down on its knees before the committee and with contrite heart and penitent word admit its guilt and plead forgiveness for its trespasses.

The Cisco school board, having received some type of indefinite communication from the committee is expected to determine upon a course of action this week. So far the board has been puzzled by this strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The attitude of the committee in the Eastland meeting was a house of one color and its attitude at the Abilene session Saturday a mule of another.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

NO RESPECTOR OF PERSONS:—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him.—Acts 10: 34, 35.

AND THE BABY WAS MURDERED.

In the American chamber of ghastly horrors may be placed the murder of the Lindbergh baby. It is one of the most shocking, heartrending stories of barbarity the American world has known.

Chicago has a famous commission of six headed perhaps by the ablest and most courageous lovers of law and order in America. All six agree that the kidnaping and the slaying was the work of a maniac, a crazed moron, and not the infamous deed of underworld kings or their servitors. All this may be guess work. But the big six of Chicago are men of the highest standing, men of the highest order of integrity and intelligence, men who brought to justice Capone and his gangsters and men who have made a study of crimes and criminals for years and years.

The tale is too horrible for words. The story is of fiendish depravity. It will take its place in the annals of crime and be carried down the corridors. It was a mystery of mysteries from its inception. Perhaps it will remain a mystery of mysteries until time shall be no more.

President Hoover has ordered all the law enforcement bodies of the federal government to throw their dragnets for the slayers of the Lindbergh baby, to trail them to their lairs, to get them dead or alive, in other words to see to it that the punishment fits the crime. All state enforcement agencies are to be utilized. All the public and private sleuths of the American world are to join in this man hunt for the bringing to justice of brutes whose infamous crime has shocked the civilized world. This should be a warning to criminals everywhere, high or low, rich or poor.

It should be official notice that those who love law and order, those who are for the protection of life and property and legitimate industry are determined that the majesty of the law shall be upheld under the flag of the republic, and that the leaden heel of justice shall strike down those who pillage and plunder and murder in defiance of God-made and man-made statutes in order to fill their filthy pockets with loot and who spare neither the babe in arms nor the aged and gray bowed down with the weight of years if frustrated in their plans. Society, orderly and justice and peace-loving society, should organize for the protection of its own.

"THE WEST COMING EAST."

Bascom N. Timmons is a Texas newspaperman very prominent in the ranks of Washington correspondents. He is the president of the National Press club. According to an editorial carried by the Washington Post he has introduced the old time Texas barbecue to the people of Washington and those on the fringe of Washington. "Chesapeake Beach is a rather unusual locale for a Texas barbecue," editorializes the Post. "Barbecue, Eastern and Southern style, are not a rarity in this section, but the event which the National Press club has announced for May 21 is of the unique character that long ago made Amarillo and San Antonio famous and then extended its sway as far westward as Los Angeles." Barbecuers of supreme genius are few, and far between, declares the Post, and one of them is John Snyder who is en route from Amarillo to Washington to prepare the feast to be given in honor of President Timmons, the president who presides over the Press club.

John Snyder prepared barbecue for cattle barons in the days when that booted and sombreroed crowd ruled the Southwest. Moreover, the old barbecuer is jealous of his reputation. He must personally supervise the construction of his pits and he never leaves those pits during the 24 hours while the beeves are cooking. Lest we forget, the Post editor must be familiar with the history of Texas. He reminds the reader that a Texas barbecue is reminiscent of the days when the Farewells at Chicago built the Texas state capitol in exchange for the 3,000,000 acres of land and started the XIT ranch; when Lord Adair of Ireland was a feudal lord of the Panhandle as well as in Ireland; or even further back, to the days of the wiry, nervous, long limbed cattle of Spanish blood with their slender branching horns. More stuff of an informative nature follows. Beginning in the 60's thousands of Texas longhorns went up the Chisholm, the old Shawnee and the Goodnight trails. Those were the palmy days of the cattlemen. Their wealth increased at a ratio beyond their capacity to spend it. Many of them did not know how many cattle they owned. When in the 70's and in the early part of the decade following, their power and wealth were at the highest point. They practically owned the Lone Star state from No-Man's Land to El Paso, their cattle ranged. Prices were high and money was flowing in for investment.

Texas, the reader is reminded, is still the leading cattle state and in the census taken in 1930 for the first time the Lone Star state had less than a cow per capita. For the first time since Texas was a republic, it had more people than cattle but even in 1930 the ratio was close—5,824,715 people and 5,567,175 cattle. At the turn of the century in 1900 there were 8,428,196 cattle in Texas, compared to 3,048,710 people.

Time in its flight has made remarkable changes. Col. Charles Goodnight, "the first gentleman of the Panhandle," passed on to his reward in the not distant past at the age of 94. Lord Adair died long ago. Mrs. Adair, American born and the aunt of former U. S. Sen. James W. Wadsworth of New York, is among the silent sleepers. All the old cattle barons have passed out. More important than all this, a Texan born on a Panhandle ranch, who quit the range for the newspaper game, is president of the National Press club and is introducing the Texas barbecue to be handled by the last of the old chuck wagon cooks to the people away down

East. Likewise, a Texan is speaker of the house of representatives, may be the nominee for president, and seven Texans are chairmans of important house committees. Yes, Texas is in the big picture.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

I have been warned by "Sawbones" himself that doctor E. L. Graham is "laying for me." The doctor's purpose is to victimize me publicly because of the diligence of the Cisco Daily News in endeavoring to keep the public informed of the various stages in the dismantling of the old iron standpipe. What this modern disciple of Hippocrates should hold against me I am unable to tell.

Now, I am suspicious of any man who sprouts a fungus on his upper lip. I admit the abbreviated mustache that Doc Graham has cultivated lends a scientific atmosphere that agrees with his knowledge of anatomy and bones, but when it comes to trusting character or reputation to a man with that sort of decoration I balk.

Doc's first surgical experience was acquired while he was a mere youth. He had from infancy been possessed with a consuming desire to be a doctor and was known to have experimented indiscriminately upon the members of his family and friends with large portions of black draught. To his youthful mind that effective drug was a sort of magical elixir, a specific for all the ills known to mankind. Doc very wisely did not choose the scene of these youthful experiments to hang out his shingle.

His first experience in surgery took place as I said while he was a mere youth. In order to raise funds for paying his way through the medical school he accepted the travelling agency for a sort of cement for which the manufacturers were extremely liberal in their claims. They advertised it as a restorer not only of broken pots and dishes, household trinkets and knick-knacks of every character and variety but a remedy also for severed fingers and lacerated noses. One afternoon Doc approached a home where the head of the house was wielding an enormous butcher's knife upon a suborn ham. The irritated prospect for cement was positively not in the market and it took only a glance at the instrument he wielded to convince Doc that it would be safer to exercise his salesmanship in another pasture. Just as he was passing through the gate the man in a fit of exasperation directed a vicious blow at the ham. In his excitement he hit the ham, all right, but his snout came in the way of the descending knife and was shaved off as neatly as an expert would slice cheese. With a whoop of terror the astonished fellow snatched up his severed nose and began to run around and around the house yelling in dismay. Doc jumped to the rescue. Here was a chance to prove the efficacy of his merchandise.

"Hey, hey, hey!" he shouted, running after the screaming victim and plucking at his sleeve. "Wait a minute!" He finally succeeded in extracting the man's attention. "This cement will fix that," he cried. In the dire straits of the emergency the victim of the severed nose was eager for anything. While he moaned in mingled terror and pain Doc smeared the place where the nose should have been liberally with his cement and clapped the amputated organ back in place. The results were amazing. The nose stuck. Indeed it was entirely healed. There was a slight discrepancy, however. Every time the man sneezed he blew his hat off.

The criticism that some of my more discriminating readers directed against my recent use of the word "gravelly" reminds me of a story that, Irwin S. Cobb once told over the radio. Cobb had been taken to task by one of his audience for the alleged misuse of a word and replied in this wise: "I admit the charge that I sometimes employ a word out of its exact meaning. But sometimes a word misused is the most effective emphasis for what I have to say. This story will illustrate. "Levi, an old darky slave, was plowing with two mules in his master's field one afternoon when a terrific thunderstorm came up. Levi made the fatal mistake of taking refuge with the mules under the tallest tree in the landscape. He had hardly gotten under the tree when a bolt of lightning struck it, reduced the tree to the proportions of a whiskbroom and killed both the mules. About all that was left of Levi was a collar button, a gold tooth and two or three fingernails. "Well, the master came out, looked the situation over and decided that about all had been done for Levi that it was possible to do, but the darkeys of the neighborhood were not to be denied the opportunity to conduct a first class funeral. They gathered up the remains of Levi, placed them in a collar box and assembled to give the victim a proper send-off into the spiritual realm. After the songs and mourning, the darky preacher arose. When he had dwelt at some length upon the worthy attributes of the deceased, the minister concluded his sonorous oration in this manner: "Brethren and sistahs, our departed brother, heah, was spared the miseries of death. He did not come to his end lying upon a bed of affliction racked with pain. No, brethren and sistahs, a more merciful death was reserved for him. The Lord jus' touched a lecture button on the celestial keyboard and summarized Levi!"

Now who will deny that the darky minister's misappropriation of the word "summarized" didn't add an effectiveness that "summoned" could not have lent?

Did You Ever Stop to Think? By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That you should keep your money at home by spending it at home. The financial assets of a city do much to measure its prosperity. You should increase these assets so prosperity can increase. You decrease them by spending money elsewhere. When citizens take a pledge of loyalty to the home city and stay with it, the whole city prospers. By the force of will, the study of the situation, and the application of common sense, most cities do. Then with hard work, enthusiasm and persistence they carry out that policy to a successful conclusion. The policy of buying at home is a policy that makes good cities better.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the possibilities of getting business for the home city. The city or community that grasps and utilizes the knowledge of what buying at home means finds local business prospering and new enterprises seeking locations. When you buy merchandise from those who advertise in local papers you are assured of protection, service, and promises lived up to.

When you buy away from home and wake up to the fact that the goods you bought are not what you thought they were, don't kick; you are just out of luck. In local papers you can always find astonishing values advertised.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS AUSTIN, May 17. Gov. Ross S. Sterling's brief renouncement for office meant a great deal more, this late in the season, than merely one man's political ambitions.

It fenced the rest of the political pasture. It defined the field, and made its divisions so clear that voters may not get into their respective groups.

It took out the doubt and uncertainty which have been disturbing elements so far. And it killed off the flourishing crop of rumors all tending, if not designed, to break his supporters into as many cross-current groups as possible. It removed further cause of building up straw-man candidates out of the Sterling following.

Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls is busily campaigning. Some other candidates have said they are in the race. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson and Ger. Sterling, the candidates between whom naturally the keenest competition and the greatest degree of interest will lie, have now taken charge of the principal sides of campaign opposition.

There remained a slight chance that Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt may prefer running now against this line-up than to wait until this coming two-year term has been served. Atty. Gen. James V. Allred was already out of the governorship race. Sen.

Clint C. Small indicated he will not oppose Mr. Sterling and Sen. Walter C. Woodward's staying out was assured.

Dan Moody, it is considered certain would have made the race had Mr. Sterling been unable to give his time and effort to another campaign and another two-year term in office. Mr. Moody will support Gov. Sterling to the limit. The chief joy that "Fighting Dan" gets out of life seems to have been in scrapping former Gov. Jim Ferguson out of political power and scrapping to keep him out.

Rain in West Texas usually is accounted a blessing. But like all other blessings, it has its drawbacks particularly when it comes in to plentiful portions. Rain kept scores from getting to Sweetwater for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention. It practically isolated San Angelo from three-fourths of the state. It blocked highways and endangered travelers in many West Texas counties.

Amarillo and Potter county have shown other cities and counties the way to economy in respect to unred health work, cutting out duplications. Their budget is run at a cost of $20,740 to the city, and a smaller amount to the rest of the county, for a countywide full-time health unit including a director, a city-county physician, a chemist, a veterinarian, a milk inspector, two or more food inspectors, a county nurse, a laboratory technician and a secretary, and school nurse. A $5000 annual "state" contribution comes to this city-county unit from the Rockefeller foundation.

Other cities duplicate work of counties; and what is worse, both cover some spots, and each, looking to the other, leaves some needful work undone entirely.

Christian Science Subject Sunday

"Mortal and Immortal" was the lesson sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 15.

Romans 8:16 furnished the golden text: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." The lesson-sermon embraced the following verses from the Bible (Romans 8:5-9): "So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you."

Included in the service were the following citations from pages 250 and 265 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scripture," by Mary Baker Eddy. "Moral body and mind are one, and that one is called man; but a mortal is not man, for man is immortal. . . . The senses represent birth as untimely and death as irresistible, as if man were a weed growing apace or a flower withered by the sun and nipped by untimely frosts but this is true only of a mortal, not a man in God's image and likeness."

"There's a Death Message for This Man, we must catch him when he comes through here"

His mother had died suddenly. His family was perplexed about notifying him, for he was "somewhere on the way to California." Just where, nobody knew.

They did know, however, he was motoring over a route selected by the Conoco Travel Bureau. So the death message was wired to Albuquerque, New Mexico, which was on that route.

The Continental office set every Conoco station attendant in Albuquerque looking for the traveler. All day Conoco men asked motorists their names. And finally the right man was found, the message delivered to him. An unusual incident. Just one of many out-of-the-ordinary happenings, however, that the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to marry Ernest Heath, her former employer. She is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar who is said to have an "understanding" with Denise Ackroyd, a girl of his own set. Heath's wife has just secured a Reno divorce, Susan's chief motive in promising to marry Heath is the desire to provide for the future of her aunt Jessie, who has cared for her since childhood. Her aunt is ill now and Heath has arranged to send her south. Susan is staying with the Miltons, old friends. Ben Lampton, an old suitor, shoots at Heath one night in a fit of jealousy, but the affair is pushed up. Susan tries to tell Heath she does not love him enough to marry him but does not succeed. He takes her to the theater where she sees Dunbar for the first time in months. Bob has tried to find her without success. He is angered at seeing her with Heath.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Hello!" It was Jack Waring. Susan smiled with pleasure. She had not seen him for several weeks. She was a little embarrassed, though by the man's air of knowingness.

"You are a stranger," he commented, taking her arm and gazing her through the noontide crowd. "Come and have a soda. I want to talk to you."

Susan followed him into the shining drug palace and they sat down in high stools facing a disconcertingly bright mirror.

"I'll just have a glass of milk," she said, looking at her reflection. "I'm having lunch with Rose in half an hour," the girl explained.

"That matter disposed of, Waring began to question her briskly.

"What's all this I hear about you?" His tone was agreeable enough but Susan thought she detected an undercurrent of sarcasm. She flushed, answering the challenge.

"No, I'm not," she said.

"Everything," he smiled at her. "I must admit I was surprised." His manner changed, became suddenly grave. "You don't mind if I talk to you like a Dutch uncle, do you?"

Susan said no, she didn't.

"Well, it's this way," the man went on confidentially. "I hope you're perfectly sure what you're doing before you go into this, because it's awfully easy to make a mistake that needs a lot of undoing."

"I know that," answered Susan faintly, puzzled at his implication. "I don't want to have in where I'm not wanted," Waring pursued.

Anyone who tries to advise people about to be married has picked himself a thankless job. But I like you both and I've been through the mill myself. He paused and Susan did not attempt to assist him.

"The old man is a grand one. Nobody knows that better than I do," he went on awkwardly. "He's a bit set in his ways but that doesn't matter particularly. The thing is, are you quite sure you care enough about him to make him happy? He's had a stiff time of it for the last 10 years. It happens to me."

Susan was annoyed to find herself blushing. She was conscious of a deep anger swelling within her. What right had this man to interfere in her private concerns?

"There, I knew you'd think it was none of my business," Waring muttered in disgust. "I knew I was going to bungle this. Maybe I'd better not say anything more."

"I'm sure you mean well," Susan said coldly, but really you don't need to worry. Everything is bound to be all right."

With a smile her voice shook a little, and the man beside her gave her a keen glance.

"As long as I'm in bad," he said slyly. "I might as well go a little farther. There's just one more question I'd like to ask and then I'm through. I'll say 'Bless you, my children' and join the mob scene after that."

"What is it?"

"I just wanted to know if that Dunbar had got in touch with you. He was burning up the wires both-ering Miss Smith to get your telephone number."

"When was this?" Susan felt her heart pounding now.

"Oh, two or three weeks ago." She felt his shrewd eyes upon her. "Why, does it make any difference?"

"How can it now?" said Susan in a voice of despair. There she had given herself away! She had not meant to say that. The words had just slipped out.

Waring continued to sip his orangeade. "It's never to late, you know," he observed dispassionately.

Susan looked away. "Ah, but it is sometimes," she said.

"I don't know how deeply you've got into this thing," Waring said. "but I can tell you this. If you're not absolutely certain you want to go through with this marriage, don't do it. I'm not one to say they're made in heaven. Not all of them, at least. But there's all the difference between heaven and hell in some of them. Ready?" He helped Susan down from her stool. "Forgive me for being a meddling old body," he said at parting, "but think over what I've told you."

Susan promised, glad to escape. She would not admit even to herself how excited she was at the idea that Bob had been looking for her. That explained, then, the abrupt transition from eagerness to made in heaven. Not all of them, at least. But there's all the difference between heaven and hell in some of them. Ready? He helped Susan down from her stool. "Forgive me for being a meddling old body," he said at parting, "but think over what I've told you."

YALE STUDENT IS U. S. HOPE IN POLE VAULT

By STUART CAMERON

United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, May 17. — Fred Sturdy did his first vaulting with his mother's clothes-pole and now he's the predominant United States Olympic hope for a first place in his specialty.

Some time between now and June when the eastern Olympic eliminations will be held at Harvard Stadium, Sturdy hopes to be able to find time between his classes at Yale Law school, his duties as night campus patrol officer and New Haven's city fire legal aid bureau and final examinations to get back into the 14-foot vaulting class.

Only four United States vaulters have officially topped the bar at 14 feet; Lee Barnes, U. S. C.; Bill Graber, U. S. C.; Sturdy and Ted Lee, of Yale. Barnes holds the record at 14 feet, 1.2 inches. Graber has reached 14 feet 1.2 inch, and Sturdy crossed the bar at even 14 feet in his senior year at Yale college three years ago.

Vaulter Modest

Sturdy, modest to an extreme, has declined to predict what height he would reach this summer—even refused to predict he would win his way through the trials to one of the three Olympic pole vault positions.

He listed the 13-foot jumpers, in order of their best marks: Barnes, Graber, Sturdy, Ted Lee, Yale; McDermott, Los Angeles A. C.; Tom Warner, formerly of Northwestern; Keith Brown, Yale; George Jefferson, Los Angeles, A. C., and "one or two others out on the Coast."

The situation is complicated by the fact that Sturdy's great pole vaulter of a few years back, may attempt a comeback. Jack Williams, a Pacific Coast vaulter of several years ago, also is rumored to be in training.

Trains With Track Team

Sturdy is training with the Yale track team three days a week. He competes for the Los Angeles A. C. In the last four years he has completed 50 times and won his event in all but four meets. Since admiration for an older boy, whom he recalls

WOMEN WEAKNESS and pains

WOMEN who get in a painful condition, due to weakness, should take Cardui, for the assistance so many women have described.

"I was very weak—nothing I ate seemed to give me strength," says Mrs. R. B. Douglas, of Jackson, Miss. "I suffered pain in my head and back. My mother told me that I should take Cardui. After taking two bottles, I felt stronger, but I kept on taking it until my head and back quit hurting."

This purely vegetable tonic, used by women for more than 50 years, is sold by leading druggists.

What is the PRICE OF BEAUTY?

Without health there can be little natural beauty. The wise woman knows that the condition of her body shows itself on her face, her complexion, and in her eyes.

She takes care to avoid constipation. This treacherous ailment frequently causes headaches, sallow skin, pimples, premature aging.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CHICAGO LUCK FACING REAL TEST IN JUNE

CHICAGO, May 17. — Candidates nominated at political conventions in Chicago have won in elections in a majority of instances in the past.

With both parties meeting here this summer, "Chicago luck" will work both ways, perhaps, and result in a neck-and-neck race.

The republican convention will be the 11th and the democratic the 17th held in Chicago since 1860. Nine of 15 tickets nominated here have won seven of 10 republican and two of four democratic. The ticket named at the one progressive party convention lost.

The 1860 Republican nominated Abraham Lincoln for president and Hannibal Hamlin for vice president. They were elected.

Last Convention

The last convention in Chicago the Republican in 1920 nominated Warren G. Harding for president and Calvin Coolidge for vice president. They were elected.

Other Chicago conventions: 1864—Democratic — George B. McClellan for president, George Hunt Pendleton for vice president. Defeated.

1868 — Republican — U. S. Grant for president, Schuyler Colfax for vice president. Elected.

1880 — Republican — James A. Garfield for president, Chester A. Arthur for vice president. Elected.

1884 — Democratic — Grover Cleveland for president, T. A. Hendricks for vice president. Elected.

1884 — Republican — James G. Blaine for president, John A. Logan for vice president. Defeated.

1888 — Republican — Benjamin Harrison for president, Levi P. Morton for vice president. Elected.

Cleveland Won

1892 — Democratic — Grover Cleveland for president, Adlai E. Stevenson for vice president. Elected.

1896 — Democratic — William J. Bryan for president, Arthur Sewall for vice president. Defeated.

1904 — Republican — Theodore Roosevelt for president, Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president. Elected.

1908 — Republican — William H. Taft for president, James S. Sherman for vice president. Elected.

1912 — Republican — William H. Taft for president, James S. Sherman for vice president. Defeated.

1912 — Progressive — Theodore Roosevelt for president, Hiram W. Johnson for vice president. Defeated.

1916 — Republican — Charles E. Hughes for president, Charles W. Fairbanks, vice president. Defeated.

V. F. W. POST TO BE ORGANIZED AT EASTLAND

Veterans of foreign wars of the U. S. Post No. 2559 will be organized Wednesday evening, May 18, in the K. of P. hall at Eastland, O. T. Mahaney, national deputy chief of staff from national headquarters, Kansas City, will be the installing officer. Mr. Mahaney said that he had instituted new posts in Marfa, Alpine, Pecos, Wink, Big Spring, Colorado, Sweetwater, Levelland, Lubbock, Brownwood and Balinger during the past two months. A new unit is to be organized in Breckenridge Tuesday May 17, and Friday May 20, Waco post will be officially instituted. The growth of the organization is now averaging over 500 members daily. New posts are being instituted at the rate of over 75 monthly. Texas is receiving about 10 per cent of the new posts and members. This organization is now the largest overseas veterans organization in the U. S. Mahaney said it is only a matter of a few months until the V. F. W. will be the largest veterans group in the U. S. He declared the V. F. W. eligibility is not limited to any particular war. Briefly it is as follows: Any man who has an honorable discharge from the army, navy or marines with a record of foreign service on foreign soil or in hostile waters in time of any war or expedition of the United States for which the government has authorized the issuance of a campaign medal and for the victory medal a class is eligible to join, thereby bringing veterans of all wars together. This eligibility dates back to 1847-48 and up to and including the recent Nicaraguan revolution. The V. F. W. national legislative committee maintained in Washington, D. C. is constantly on the firing line cooperating and supporting state and federal legislation beneficial to all veterans. Ample evidence of past accomplishments of the national legislative committee of the V. F. W. can be found on statutes of the country with legislation already enacted in behalf of veteran welfare. The V. F. W. national home is located at Easton, Michigan, and is the only national home in the United States for widows and orphans of deceased veterans and totally disabled veterans. This home is situated on an estate consisting of 501 acres. Here all children are given the education and training that is the birth right of every child. The home individual homes where unit plan individual homes where the children are given the privileges and opportunities characteristic of the average American family. The V. F. W. will celebrate its 33rd birthday September 23 this year, thus making it the oldest active veterans organization in the U. S. Mr. Mahaney announced that the meeting would be opened promptly at 7:30 so that those who have made application for membership could produce proof of eligibility. The meeting being called to order at 8:15 p. m., it is planned to make Eastland one of the largest posts in West Texas, there being almost 500 overseas veterans in this county who have seen foreign service in time of war. Veterans from Cisco and Ranger will belong to this new post and it is hoped that within a few months charters can be granted these cities, thus making a compact group here in Stephens and Eastland counties. Visitors are cordially invited and can remain until the officers are elected and installed. Mr. Mahaney will explain in detail just what the V. F. W. has done on behalf of the cash settlement of the so called bonus, the national strength of the organization and what a determined fight the V. F. W. is putting up for payment of these certificates this session of congress.

HOPES HIGH IN RANKS OF DEMOCRATS

CHICAGO, May 17. — Hope springs eternal in the hearts of national committees and it is running high these days in the breasts of the members of the democratic organization. Elected as were their republican counterparts at the last convention, theirs was the disappointment of seeing their candidate go down to defeat taking with it their hopes of being influential members of the administration party. As such they would have had a fair voice in naming federal office holders in their own areas. That gone, they still had the hope of preparing the way for a winning party four years later and the task of making that eventually possible. Should the party win this year, and they are all elected committee men and women, have another chance at a winner's prestige. Split occasionally during the four years intervening since the last convention, the thought of victory has done a good bit toward ironing out old differences which disturbed the more than a hundred members who have been charged with carrying out the party policies. This task has been largely delegated to mild John J. Raskob, chairman and ardent Smith fan and J. J. Shouse, vigilant and persistent chairman of the executive committee. Strangely enough there was no executive committee appointed after the 1928 convention and the task ordinarily assumed by that group, has instead been handled by the officers of the national committee. Shouse has been the most industrious worker of this group and on his shoulders has been placed most of the work of arranging for the Chicago convention. Others in the group include Charles A. Greathouse secretary, James W. Gerard, treasurer, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, Frank Hague of Jersey City, New Jersey, former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Mrs. Florence G. Farley of Kansas, and Scott Ferris of Oklahoma. As in the case of the Republican organization, the Democratic committee contains a man and a woman political leader of each state. It is somewhat larger than the former as it includes members from the Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands in addition to Alaska, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Philippine Is-

Do you inhale? Certainly... 7 out of 10 smokers inhale knowingly... the other 3 inhale unknowingly Do you inhale? Seven out of ten smokers know they do. The other three inhale without realizing it. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette. Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure you don't inhale certain impurities! Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this much-avoided subject... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it! Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.
