Rumors Persist That Norfolk Trio Bargains for Baby

OPERATIONS ARE CLOTHED IN SECRECY

NORFOLK, Va., March 26.—Reports that John H. Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, is definitely in contact with the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., and that plans for return of the baby to its parents at Hopewell, N. J., are being negotiated were current here tonight.

Curtis, one of three prominent men who reportedly received a direct communication from the kidnapers, left his home at 7 o'clock this morning. He did not go to his office.

At his office his associates said he had gone fishing. At his home it was said that he was on a trip to Hampton and Foxhall, a town near Hampton.

The Rev. Dr. H. Dodson-Peacock, who has been working with Curtis and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage in an attempt to obtain return of the baby, was at his home tonight.

"You may as well rest until Monday," the clergymen told newspapermen. "I might have some definite news for you then. There are no definite developments today."

Eastland high school lost its last minute bid for the county Class A interscholastic league track and field championship yesterday afternoon when its entrant in the final heat of the mile relay dropped a long lead to a lunging Gorman youth. The loss of first place cost Eastland the two points extra needed to outstrip Ranger, and the Bulldog thinly clad captured the honors of the day with 55 points.

Cisco placed second with 23 points; Gorman accounted for 17 and Rising Star made five points. Ranger took five first places (one a tie with Eastland) while Eastland took four firsts.

G. Miley, running star of the Cisco high school, won all the three first places captured by Cisco when he swept the dash events. One second place, one third place and three fourth places boosted the Cisco total to 23 points.

INSURGENTS IN HOUSE ADOPT COAL TARIFF

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A democratic house still unwilling to support its leadership, wrote a coal tariff into the shattered revenue bill today and drew from Acting Chairman Charles R. Crisp, of the ways and means committee, a solemn warning of political disaster.

It was another tumultuous session of the kind that have characterized the attempts of democratic leaders to swing their members into line behind a budget balancing program.

When the house ceased its labors this afternoon an amendment had been restored to the revenue measure taxing malt, wort, oil, grape concentrate, and other products. The restored sections had been inadvertently stricken from the measure in the confusion of the sales tax battle earlier in the week.

Harassed leaders welcomed the week-end respite. A sub-committee of three democrats and two republicans from the ways and means committee had to forego any rest over Easter, however, for it is faced with the problem of turning up Monday with a program to substitute for the defeated sales tax.

PLAN TO SAVE HALF BILLION CONSIDERED WASHINGTON, March 26.—An economy coalition of senate democrats and progressive republicans today was considering a new proposal to lop half a billion dollars off the cost of the federal government. Its idea is that with such a saving tax increases could be limited to about half of the $1,000,000,000 hitherto considered necessary to balance the budget.

The coalition plan is to reduce by 25 per cent the operating allowances for all federal departments, bureaus and agencies. Salaries would not be affected by this plan.

The new economy suggestion was advanced coincidentally with a new appeal by President Hoover for the nation to support whatever measures are necessary to balance the budget. The president termed a balanced budget "the very keystone of recovery."

Flowers Asked for Club Park at Lake Contributions of shrubs and bulbs for use in beautifying the Lions-Rotary park at Lake Cisco will be welcomed at the Welfare association offices here, Mrs. C. H. Fee said Saturday. The women are anxious to secure a large number of these for making the parks more attractive as the summer months and their prospect of many picnickers and tourists at the lake near.

W. H. CRADDOCK NAMED ACTING POSTMASTER

Frank A. Blankenbecker, who was appointed receiver for the Plainview National bank, at Plainview a few months ago, has tendered his resignation as postmaster at Cisco, effective April 1.

W. H. Craddock Friday evening was officially notified of his appointment as acting postmaster on April, pending permanent appointment which is due to be effected at an early date.

Mr. Craddock was on the list of eligible at the time Mr. Blankenbecker received his appointment. In an interview with the Daily News Saturday Mr. Blankenbecker said that he had no intention of removing his residence from Cisco but that his family would remain here, although he will be temporarily away for other business appointments that he may have.

"My heart and soul are in Cisco," he said. "My greatest regret in surrendering the postmastership is that I shall not be able to take as active a part in pushing the work for early construction of the new federal building as I have been able to do."

Mr. Craddock has been a citizen of Cisco and surrounding territory for more than 12 years. He is a veteran of the government service, in which he served more than eight years prior to coming to Cisco, holding three separate appointments. For six years here he was connected with the Texas company in the company's accounting department and for the past 10 months has been a member of the Cisco police department. He was also connected with the Texas Railroad commission at Wink for a short time.

He is consequently well known and qualified for the post to which he has been appointed.

Mr. Blankenbecker received his appointment as Cisco postmaster in the fall of 1930 following resignation of J. W. Triplett, who had held the office for several years. With the closing of the Plainview National bank last fall he was named receiver and subsequently tendered his resignation from the Cisco office to be effective April 1.

The body, which is expected to arrive in Cisco Monday afternoon, will be buried in Oakwood cemetery. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. He was ill for only a short while with pneumonia before his death.

Mr. Martin, who lived in or near Cisco for about 20 years, left seven years ago to make his home in Alabama. He is survived by his wife, and eight children by a former marriage. A son, H. L. Martin, of San Antonio, will accompany the body here. Other children surviving are Mrs. H. H. Hageman of Humbletown, Mrs. G. P. Poe of Cisco, Mrs. H. J. Kinard of McCamey, Mrs. B. F. Trotter of Loraine, Mrs. L. L. Trotter of Hermleigh, and Mrs. E. S. Williams of Amherst.

CISCO TOURIST CAMP OWNER IS VICTIM OF KNIFE SLASHES

His body girdled with numerous deep knife slashes, his left upper arm cut to ribbons and a deep cut on his neck, George W. Weatherly proprietor of the City Tourist camp South D avenue, was in a serious condition from loss of blood at his home Saturday following an attack by an alleged drunken resident of his camp about 4:30 Friday afternoon.

Tim Ingram, ex-convict who is facing another term in the state penitentiary for conviction on charges of robbing the Nimrod store and post-office, was arrested by Chief of Police Miller and Constable R. L. Wilson an hour later after a chase that led through the southern district of the city. Ingram was taken in custody on West 12th street after two other officers, Craddock and Simpson, had headed off escape to the south.

Charges of assault with attempt to murder were filed in justice court here Friday afternoon by Constable Wilson and Ingram was lodged in the county jail at Eastland.

Ingram's conviction on the Nimrod robbery charges had been affirmed by the appeals court and he was awaiting mandate for commitment to the state penitentiary to serve a term of 10 years, officers said.

Weatherly was taken to the offices of local physicians where his wounds were treated. He was later removed to his home, where Saturday morning he was reported to be resting easily, although his condition was reportedly serious. Doctors said that, barring complications, he will recover, in spite of a condition extremely weakened from loss of blood.

Weatherly told officers that Ingram, who had been living in one of his camp cabins, was creating a disturbance at the camp Friday afternoon, apparently having been drinking. He said that he remonstrated with him and finally took hold of him in an effort to take him back into the cabin and quiet him.

He was then attacked, he said.

Operative Penney, of the United States secret service of the treasury department and attached to the Dallas bureau, took C. D. Clark to Abilene Friday evening to file charges of passing counterfeit money against him in federal court there.

Clark was arrested by Cisco police early Friday morning upon complaint of citizens that they had received worthless five-dollar treasury notes from him. He submitted to arrest at a residence on the Lake Road where he was staying and officers who searched him said they found three such bills in his possession. He was alleged to have passed two others upon many citizens here before his arrest.

The federal officers conducted an investigation in Cisco before taking him prisoner to Abilene. Local officers were of the opinion that a counterfeiting ring exists in this section and that the bills were issued by the ring.

EASTLAND IS SECOND, STAR TAKES THIRD

Cisco high school, with a total of 197 points, won the all-round Class A championship of the annual county interscholastic league meet which closed here Saturday afternoon. Eastland, with 187 points, took second place. Rising Star school was third with 140 points and Ranger high school fourth with 130 points.

Twenty points awarded Ranger for winning the county track and field meet held in connection with the league's two-day tournament, served to boost its total.

The contests drew between 1,500 and 2,000 visitors to Cisco during Friday and Saturday. The literary events were held at the high school, and the athletic contests at the Lobo athletic field.

Cisco High teams also took first place in junior girls playground ball; second in girls volleyball and first places in both boys tennis doubles and singles. These matches were determined prior to the main contests opening here Friday morning.

The Cisco Grammar school brought home its share of the county interscholastic league bacon with winnings featured by the remarkable showing of its arithmetic team. Representatives of this school took first in arithmetic, first in junior girls declamation; first in junior girls playground ball, second in essay writing, second (tie) in junior spelling (city division), and third in junior boys playground ball.

The two outstanding features of the literary contests from Cisco's standpoint were the high school boys' and girls' declamation, in which Cisco won, and the arithmetic contest won by Mrs. H. Brandon's team from the Cisco Grammar school.

In the debates the Cisco teams, composed of Sterling Drumwright and John Peter Huey, boys, and Misses Betty Fee Spears and Bessie Pearce, girls, took decisions Friday evening over teams from Rising Star high school, adding 40 points not counting points allowed for entry, to the Cisco high schools score of winnings. Mrs. Hazelwood is coach of the debaters.

The arithmetic team of the Grammar school outstripped its nearest competitor, Eastland Jr. High, by as many points again, collecting an advance of 140 to Eastland's 70. This contest is mental and only 10 minutes are allowed to work as many of 100 problems as possible. Participants are graded on the problems they work, but are penalized if they skip problems in the order on the sheet given them. They are not allowed to figure results on paper but must solve all problems mentally and write only results. One hundred and forty is regarded as an exceptionally high grade. Hodges Park, of Ranger, took third place with 62 1/2 points; Young Ward of Ranger, fourth with 40 points and Morton Valley fifth with 30 points. There were eleven teams entered and the lowest score made was minus 16 1/2 points.

Cisco Contestants. Dick Stansbury and La Verne Dill were the Cisco contestants. In individual contests Dick Stansbury placed first with a paper that graded 155 points and La Verne Dill second with a paper that graded 125 points. Third place was taken by H. P. Ball, of Hodges Park, Ranger, whose paper graded 90 points. He was a member of the team winning third place. This was the second successive year for Cisco to win this contest. A feature of the literary meet aside from the contests were exhibits of school work displayed by

WHY THE DEPRESSION?

President Hoover away back in February proclaimed to the people that the World war was and is responsible for the crash of 1929. This is the Calvin Coolidge version:

"It seems inevitable that both the farmer and the manufacturer find no market for their products and both suffer from what we call overproduction because of high taxes."

Shadows of civil war are hovering the Irish Free State—and all Ireland for that matter. President Edward De Valera won control of the government. In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

William Gibbs McAdoo is swinging around the circle. No swinging is the word. He is flying around the circle. From Texas he flew to Georgia, where there is a very important battle for control of national delegates engaging the attention not only of Georgians but democrats everywhere.

Col. McAdoo did not fly from Houston to Atlanta for political purposes. His pilot had a mother in Georgia and the distinguished leader of national forlorn political hopes made the Georgia flight for the purpose of accommodating his friend and traveling companion, the pilot.

Col. McAdoo may not know it but away down here in Texas, Rep. F. C. Weiner, a life-long anti who began his political career as a follower of James Stephen Hogg, is telling his friends who are farmers that the McAdoo plan is certain to win out.

Thomas B. Love has a viewpoint all his own. He has been insisting in recent years that prohibition is the main issue, the paramount issue, and that loyalty to his gospel for the ultra-dry, is the first requisite for a democratic possibility or rather a democratic standard bearer in the nation to be selected this time by the Chicago convention.

Gov. George D. White of Ohio has never been known as a dry-dry, but never did prohibition the test of a voter's democracy. He has been a liberal contributor to prohibition campaign funds. He is a very popular and very able leader of his party.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, March 25.—Former Gov. Pat M. Neff's taking the post of president at Baylor university, though fully expected, brought to Texas officials several decisive actions that may affect the personnel of two state departments, the congress-at-large race, and possibly give Amarillo a new mayor.

It is known that Chairman W. R. Ely of the highway commission or Mayor Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo will be appointed to the railroad commission in June. . . . Probabilities are that Judge Ely will remain as chairman of the highway commission and that Mayor Thompson will be named to the railroad place. . . . In that event, Amarillo must choose another mayor in June. Judge Ely, if appointed, would stand for election for the four-year remaining part of the term after the appointive period ends next Jan. 1. Whether Col. Thompson will permit his name to go on the ballot for this election, if he becomes railroad commissioner, remains to be seen. He may stay in the congress-at-large race for the assured very strong Panhandle and West Texas vote, and the general vote throughout the state which his prominence and his standing will give him.

Mr. Neff in all probability will wait until after June 7 to hand Gov. Sterling his resignation. If so, no candidate for his place can be listed on the primary ballot, and the democratic executive committee will nominate the party choice for election in November.

This course will appeal to Mr. Neff for many reasons. His term at Baylor doesn't start until June. He will be glad to do a service to Governor Sterling in seeing that the appointee, beyond chance, shall remain in office for four and a half years. . . . He will carry on the fight against C. V. Terrell, who ousted him from the chairmanship to take it and see to it that all the candidates who run this year will concentrate against Mr. Terrell, rather than spreading to the other race as well.

Federal court at Houston some time soon will hand down a decision largely affecting the state's revenues from natural gas taxation, and vitally affecting the welfare of independent producers of natural gas. The decision will say whether the natural gas common purchaser law is good or bad. . . . It admittedly has some defective language, but those supporting it contend the legislative intent is clear to do for the gas-producing industry what courts have held was properly done for oil — set up state regulations to prevent monopoly in the business of small and independent interests.

Prosperity Note: Austin last week crossed the $1,000,000 mark in building permits for the year, first city in the state to do so. The lead Austin won was one of statewide interest and pride, because the whole state is putting up the nine university buildings which lifted the record so high. . . . With loosened credit, with unprecedented realty values and unprecedented low costs of construction, other cities were sure to spurt forward in a keen and interesting race in public and business construction for the rest of the year.

W. Gregory Hatcher, who served six years as state treasurer, proposes to run for railroad commissioner this year, if there is an open race for the democratic nomination for the seat which Pat M. Neff is to resign. . . . If Governor Neff waits too long for the race to be open for the primaries, Mr. Hatcher likely will be a candidate for congressman-at-large.

sales, despite the three-cent state tax on each package. . . . And if there was a decrease, it will have been less than generally would have been indicated by reducing buying in all lines. . . . ANNIHILATOR OF BEARS NOW HOG RAISER

CONROE, Tex., March 26. — Once known as Montgomery county's champion bear annihilator, Jim Casey of New Caney now has the reputation of being the county No. 1 herder of razorback hogs.

For more than fifty years Casey, now 69 years old, has roamed the San Jacinto river bottoms. He slew bears by the score; in fact, he slew them until there were none left.

He is reluctant to say how many bears he killed but admits they number in the thousands. One year he says, he killed 38, and his claim that he killed the last bear in Montgomery county has gone unchallenged.

The bears have been replaced by thousands of free range razorbacks, many of which are as wild and ferocious as any bear that ever lived, according to Casey. Casey and his five sons now keep tab on the hogs which run wild in the snake-infested palmetto swamps and live almost entirely on roots, pine mast and acorns.

Casey and his boys ride through the woods every week and throw corn to the hogs, which form groups of as many as 35 or 40. In this manner the Casey's "ride herd" on the hogs. Every once in a while a slaughter is held and the hams and other edible parts, said to possess an unusually fine flavor, are prepared for market.

For hunting "maverick" razorbacks, Casey has his special pack of hounds. On fine days, when the air is cool and the ground firm underfoot, the Casey clan gallops to the chase in as royal a fashion as any medieval king. Jim says the excitement of chasing wild hogs is almost equal to that of shooting a bear.

FRENCH PLAN "POLAR YEAR" MISSION NORTH

By RALPH HEINZEN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 PARIS, March 26. — Dr. Jean Charcot, French explorer and meteorologist, has announced that the Franch mission participating with 25 other nations in the 1932-1933 "Polar Year" would sail from Saint Severan, in June, and would pass the winter in Greenland, at Scoresby Sound.

Dr. Charcot will lead the mission to Greenland in his yacht, the "Why Not?" Because of his age, he will be unable to spend the winter with the scientists in Greenland, but will return to France with his ship and sail again in 1933 to pick up the party.

Esquimo Village
 "The Danish Government has agreed to allow an official French mission to spend a year at Scoresby Sound, where there is a community of 180 Esquimos maintained by the Danish Government for seal and whale hunting," Dr. Charcot said.

"Our mission will consist of 14 men, under the leadership of Naval Lieutenant Douget, and will include two professors of the University of Strasbourg, Dr. Rotté and Dr. Dauvilliers. We have asked the Navy to send along the ice-breaker Polux.

"This 'polar year' should fill in the blank spots in our knowledge of meteorological conditions, and particularly the origin of storms. The knowledge gained by 26 national missions will be correlated and this may advance the science of meteorology 50 years.

Huts Built
 "An observatory and huts for the scientists will be ready by late June. There is an Eskimo village there and one Eskimo already has been trained as a wireless operator.

"The mission will take two years' supply of food, a ton of canned meats, 5,000 quarts of wine, a half-ton of sugar. From September through the next winter until July, 1933, the mission will remain in the winter camp, blocked in by ice, with the wireless as the only communication with the outside."

RESTORE THEATER.
 PARIS, March 26. —The theater of the Petit Trianon, where Marie-Antoinette played with her intimate friends, is being restored by M. Patrice Bonnet, of the Palace of Versailles. The theater was originally a kind of a barn made chiefly of wood and moulded paper. The treasury accounts of 1779 estimate it at a cost of $6,000.

Woman Aids Border Needy

EL PASO, March 26. — A little, middle-aged, grad-haired woman possibly is the most popular of El Paso's citizens.

She is "Mother" Stutsman — friend of the unemployed.

Each day Mother Stutsman — she refused to reveal her real name — walks through San Jacinto plaza and along the railroad tracks, distributing sandwiches.

She also leaves a sack of 50 sandwiches daily at the American Legion's central registration headquarters. On the sack containing the food is written:

"If you're hungry, may this help you. God bless you."
 "I do this all over the country," Mother Stutsman said. "I had a son in the World War and I want to do everything I can for ex-service men and others who are unable to find jobs. We all have to do our bit in times like these."

State Discards Truant Cops

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 26. — The "truant officer" in Pennsylvania will soon join the list of things remembered, including the old swimming hole and the little red school house.

Modern educational methods are responsible for deletion from school officials of the terror of the "hooky players" on pleasant spring and summer days, when "swimmin'" was more to the liking than poring over books within the four walls of a classroom.

In his place Pennsylvania schools are employing "home and school visitors," trained in teachers' colleges for the work.

The truant officer rounded up truant boys and investigated all absences of more than three days' duration. His power and effectiveness rested on the mighty right arm of the compulsory attendance law.

The "home and school visitor" investigates all absences, regardless of their number and cause, interprets the school to the home, recommends possible solutions instead of punishments, and advises as to the welfare of the habitually truant according to the state department of education.

Training courses for those seeking such positions will be established in summer schools throughout the state.

"Sex" Films Are Censored in Britain

LONDON, March 26. —The first official list of what kind of motion pictures the British people cannot have has been issued by the British Board of Film Censors, together with a sharp warning, obviously directed at Hollywood, that "sex" films will be dealt with more drastically hereafter.

The Board's annual report, just issued, revealed that 34 films were rejected as being "unsuitable for public exhibition in this country" and 284 others altered last year. In 1929 only seven films and in 1930 only twelve were rejected. No list of titles was issued, but it is understood that no British films were among those rejected in 1931.

Films which deal with lust, or the development of erotic passions are becoming more daring and more numerous, according to the censors. They denounced the tendency of certain producers who "on every conceivable occasion drag in scenes of undressing bathroom scenes and the exhibition of feminine under-clothing."

Without specifying all of the reasons why the board took exception to 284 films, the report set forth some of the principle objections. The lowly laugh-provoking "Bronx Cheer" is included in the category of "Vulgar Noises." Obnoxious references to the Prince of Wales or references to Birth Control were deleted and likewise orgy scenes and riotous debauchery.

"JACK'S" POKER WON HEARING FOR P. O. BILL

HOUSTON, March 26. — John Nance Garner should become president, would be the best poker player ever to occupy the White House, according to some of his Texas friends.

Some of the best yarns about the Texan involve his poker prowess. They also involve "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who preceded Garner as speaker of the House of Representatives but not as a poker player.

The tales have been collected from Lewis Fisher, Houston; Frank C. Davis, San Antonio, and Dayton Moses, Fort Worth, all leading Texas democrats.

"Won" Post Office
 Garner "won" the Uvalde post office in a poker game, according to one story.

The speaker of the house may recognize whom he chooses and "Uncle Joe" Cannon, then speaker, did not choose to recognize Garner when he wanted to present his post office building bill. The Texan gave up trying to get his bill before the house and bent his efforts toward arranging a poker game with Cannon.

The game was arranged, and after a few rounds Cannon opened a draw pot with a stiff bet. After the draw and Cannon's subsequent bet Garner showed all his chips to the middle of the table.

Garner Raised
 "I raise you that much," he said. "Uncle Joe" looked at him sharply.

"Tell you what — I'll split the pot with you," Garner offered.

Taking that a sign of weakness Cannon refused the offer and lost the pot to an ace full house.

Cannon stopped the game long enough to pull out his note book "Young man, what's the number of that bill of yours?" he asked. Garner told him.

Next day Uvalde got its post office.

ECONOMY AND WORK WILL BE BINT PLATFORM

Arch Bint, of Dothan, Saturday issued a statement in connection with his recent announcement for commissioner of Precinct No. 4, Eastland county, in which he sought the votes of the citizens of the precinct on a platform of economical administration of the affairs of the office and a promise to devote his entire time to his duties.

When Mr. Bint formally announced about three weeks ago he said that he would have a statement to make in the immediate future but illness intervened and he was unable until Saturday to issue the statement.

Mr. Bint is a native of the precinct which he seeks to serve as commissioner. He was born near Dothan and has maintained his home in the precinct all of his life. Consequently because of his intimate contact with the precinct and its people he feels that he is as well acquainted with its needs and its interests as it is possible for any man to be.

Few "Promises"

"I don't want to make the people a lot of promises that can't be carried out," said Mr. Bint. "I am making my appeal for their support on the ground of an economical administration of the affairs of the office, a consistent and careful regard for the interests of all and a determination to give them the best type of service that it will be possible to do."

"I shall make it my duty to see that the county roads are kept in A-1 condition all the time. Roads are vital factors in the rural sections as well as in the city districts and the farmer who pays his road tax is entitled to roads that are always in condition for his best use. If elected the citizens may be sure that I will give my closest attention to this work, personally supervising all work without employing any unnecessary supervisors."

"Our taxes are too high and something must be done to relieve the people of the burden that they impose. If elected I shall do everything in my power to eliminate unnecessary expenses and effect every possible economy to the end that these taxes may be reduced to a minimum."

Cooperation

"I believe that a county commissioner should cooperate with the citizens in every possible way, even to the extent of rendering services that are not officially required, if those services prove of benefit to the public at large."

"I have been a resident of this precinct all my life, having been born at Dothan, and I am acquainted with almost all its citizens. I feel that it would be unnecessary to go into detail in explaining my principles to these citizens because they know me well enough to understand those principles and submit my candidacy to them in the confidence that they have found my administration of my personal affairs amply sufficient to assure them of the highest type of public service if I am elected."

"I shall be grateful for the votes of the citizens and for any influence that may be exerted in my behalf."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON JESUS' RESURRECTION

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 27.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist

The miraculous story of the rising of Jesus from the dead is allied in this lesson with the interest of human relationship. It is interesting that all the stories of the Resurrection of Jesus have that deep note of personal and human interest, and this fact is not without its significance as an evidence of the truth of the record.

The miracle of the Resurrection of Jesus cannot be explained. If it could, it would not be a miracle.

It may be that some day we shall discover laws of the spiritual world and of the power of spirit over matter, that may put such facts as the Resurrection of Jesus within the range of scientific explanation. At present we approach the record in faith and in appreciation of its spiritual significance.

One fact that does stand out very clearly is that in an hour when the disciples were broken in spirit and thoroughly disheartened, feeling that placed in Jesus was frustrated and hopeless, their faith suddenly revived in such a way that life and purpose were renewed and strengthened, and they went forth with this new vision of their Lord, strong to proclaim the Gospel.

What was the nature of these visions of the Master? That is precisely what we cannot answer. But the records indicate that in effect the appearance of Jesus to his disciples had all the reality of his earthly presence with the added effect of mystery and inspiration in the consciousness that death had not triumphed over him.

Here we have the picture of Mary standing outside the tomb, weeping. His disappointment had not weakened her love and her personal devotion. Her hope might be lost but it was as a treasure that she still mourned.

There in that hour she saw a remarkable vision — two angels sitting, one at the head and one at the feet of Jesus, and she heard their voices saying, "Woman, why weepest thou?"

Mary saw her Lord, and he spoke to her, and she came back to the disciples telling them the remarkable story.

BRITISH MAY DROP BAN ON ALIEN ACTORS

LONDON, March 26. — Foreign actors and entertainers ought to have an easy time getting into Britain next year.

The government's efforts this season to keep them out, in the hope of making the stage here "all-British," has aroused such a storm at home that the policy next year is likely to swing to the other extreme.

The British Actors Equity Association, whose members led the protests, is drawing up rules similar to those of the American Equity governing foreign members. In the United States, foreign actors join the local organization by paying a $60 entrance fee, and their interests are safeguarded as well as those of American actors.

It would be disastrous for the great number of English actors and entertainers abroad if foreign governments should make reprisals against the government's present policy. Recently the government has been relenting noticeably. It has agreed to consult the state organizations before ordering any further deportations.

Next year, it is reported, the Ministry of Labor will give permits to 80 per cent of the number of musicians who normally come here to play. Heretofore it has consulted the Society of Musicians to learn whether a musician was famous enough to be allowed a permit. There were frequent controversies over who was famous and who was not.

"When our theatrical stars go to America they are under an obligation to observe the conditions of the American Equity," said the secretary of the twin British organization. "They certainly enjoy unsurpassed privileges and we in Great Britain hope to offer them equal ones."

CZECHS PLAN TO TIGHTEN UP BANK CONTROL

PRAGUE, March 26. — A new and stringent financial law, considerably tightening control over banks has been drawn and presented to the parliament.

Under the new provisions, which widely extend the right of state supervision over private capital, the Ministry of Finance would be empowered to take over the administration of any banking institutions which show a heavy loss, and to establish a government administration. Bank directors, who heretofore have been allowed to hold any number of directorates and offices, would be limited to a maximum of ten such positions and their salaries would be limited strictly to one position, the difference going back into the banks funds. In case the reserve fund of the bank shows a decrease, or the capital has shrunk by 20 per cent, the salaries of officials may be sharply reduced subject to appeal to an arbitration committee.

A fine of $15,000, or a jail term of five years, or both may be inflicted in cases of mismanagement. Banks which already have received support from the public funds are to be especially closely supervised, and the costs of state support are to be divided among stockholders. Such publicly aided banks are forbidden to pay out dividends until their capital has been restored and a reserve of 10 per cent established.

The law provides an extension of conditions under which banks may be aided and foresees an increase in the state-aid fund. It applies to savings banks, and credit associations as well as other financial institutions.

YAQUIS START QUEER RITES FOR EASTER

TUCSON, Ariz., March 26.—In a strange mixture of rites, borrowed half and half from Christianity and paganism, the Yaqui Indians Friday began their annual observance of the trial, crucifixion and resurrection of Christ.

The allegory is pure Christian, with one exception. The vestments and chants are Yaqui.

Dancing began at dawn in an open space at the end of the village. Led by the high priest, a long column of half-nude braves arose to meet the sun. At all other seasons the sunrise dance is a paeon, but their chant today was a dirge.

Because the spectacle is too painful for them to watch, so deeply do they feel the tragedy, the actual crucifixion is omitted.

Slower Steps

Toward sunset, the steps become slower and the bodies of the braves are bowed with their sorrow.

The high priest then advances down an aisle between standing dancers to a pier of branches. In his arms he bears a wooden effigy of Christ. The effigy is laid gently on the pier, the dancing ceases, and all pray silently until the sun has set.

The reclining figure is left in the charge of three clean-scrubbed, chubby little girls in white dresses. They are the three guardian angels.

Tomorrow is a day of action. Arising again with the sun, the braves are more brightly painted, and their masks are portraits of anger and vengeance.

Sunrise Chant

The sunrise chant is a sharp warlike bark. The dancing is a series of short, rapid charges toward a cloth-covered heap in the center of the "chapel." The dancing becomes more rapid as the day wears on.

Finally, at a signal from the priest, all rush up and fling away the cloth. A small wooden figure, clothed in the soiled black robes of villainy, is disclosed. It is Judas Iscariot.

The braves lift him over their heads and start dancing—slowly, for the victim must not be permitted a quick, merciful death—toward the pier of Christ. With a concerted roar of rage and hate, Judas is thrown upon a fire prepared for him.

When the betrayer is ashes, all retire again to meditate beside the pier.

At sunset, the climax dance begins. It has a new note. It is easier and more graceful. All night long it continues, and with the first flush of the desert dawn, the Christ is raised from the pier, garbed in bright vestments and placed in state on a throne in a grove of green branches. Desert flowers are placed at His feet, and the sunrise dance is a pageant of joy.

It is followed by feasting.

The dime-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAUTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Ellen Lever, beautiful, 20-year-old, lives Larry, heartwate, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl, Ellen agrees to marry Steve Barclay, 57 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Barclay.

Barclay has been married before. A scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer. To avoid notoriety Ellen and Barclay are secretly married. They drive to his Long Island home, deserted except for Fergus, a butler. There Barclay suffers a heart attack. Louis Symes, Barclay's lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses Barclay dies at dawn.

Symes tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers proving Barclay's divorce from Leda Grayson have been stolen. Ellen yields claim to Barclay's fortune to avoid scandal. Then she learns Larry Hartwate is Barclay's nephew. Hartwate, she returns home.

Ellen distrusts Fergus. She returns to work at her old job as a hostess at Dreamland dance hall. Larry comes there, tells her he loves her. Ellen lacks the courage to tell him of her marriage to Barclay. She and Larry go to buy the engagement ring.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV

At luncheon which they ate in a quiet, candlelight restaurant, Larry began to tease Ellen about the wedding ring. "I do believe you selected that plain ring to save me money. You felt guilty over this one."

"I flicked the solitaire with his thumb-nail. "I do feel sort of guilty," she admitted timidly. "You're too good to me."

"What a whopper!" "It's true."

"Get that out of your head, darling, and instantly. No one could be so good to you or for you. You're the sweetest, dearest, most honest—"

"You might not know. "He laughed at such foolishness. "What are you thinking about, sweet, with your eyes so big and your face so solemn?" he asked after a while.

Ellen put down her coffee very carefully. "I was thinking that I'm not nearly so good as you think I am," she faltered. "I was thinking that I don't want you to feel that way about me. It isn't right. It would break my heart to fall you."

"I suppose you're hinting at that dark past of yours," Larry teased. "Well, I'm willing to risk it."

"Are you?" she asked so earnestly that he was sobered. "What are you driving at?" he demanded. "What do you mean?" "I don't mean anything," Ellen said suddenly and felt a little sick at seeing the relief which lighted his face.

"Girls are that way," she explained. "They can't be happy and not be analytical, and pretty soon they're unhappy wondering if things are too perfect to last. Silly isn't it?"

"Darn silly."

Presently after the melon had been served and the mints and fingerbolls had come and disappeared they arose and left the place. Larry was looking tall and handsome. Ellen was so near to him that the mingled sweetness of her youth and freshness and the indefinite perfume she wore merged delightfully with the sharp, spicy smell of the big flower at her shoulder.

"They were to stop at his studio to see an apartment next door which Larry thought might "do" for them. Ellen was deliciously thrilled at such concrete evidence that soon they were to be married and have a home of their own. She was thrilled at Larry's desire for her advice though she knew anything he liked she would like.

The superintendent was not to be found when they reached the building. After a consultation they decided to wait in the studio. Larry drew the vivid curtains in the cheerful, slip covered room, lighted candles and knelt to lay a fire. The room so dear to Ellen, so full of memories was today especially dear. In this room she had begun to love the tall, handsome man she was to marry; in this room she had felt so desolate that she had lost him. Always before the studio had belonged to Larry, but today it belonged in part to her, too.

As she leaned back against the deep-cushioned divan, so far back that the tips of her shoes did not touch the floor, and watched Larry lay the fire, Ellen felt an almost blinding happiness. She thought of Larry in days to come at work in this room, of herself helping him. She thought of sitting at breakfast with him discussing his plans and her plans for the day, of sharing his problems, his thoughts, his dreams. She knew suddenly and quite simply that the dream she was building would have to be built on a foundation of truth, of absolute truth. Why, she must tell Larry everything. There was nothing else, to do. There would be no doubts now, no hesitations, no evasions.

"Larry!" she called. "Larry!" "Just a minute, darling."

A small pile of mail lay on the long oak table by the fire. He had paused there and was ruffling through the envelopes. He frowned at a cheap, greasy-looking one with his name and address printed in queer, crude letters, hesitated and then withdrew that envelope from the others. Ellen, looking up, surprised an odd expression on his face and was diverted from her own problem.

"Do you mind if I open this?" he asked, still frowning faintly. "Certainly not."

Puzzled, a little apprehensive, she watched as he tore open the envelope. Larry read the message, tore the cheap printed paper once across and glanced around for a wastebasket.

"What is it, Larry?" "It's nothing."

With a sudden, secondary impulse he flitted the torn page together and smoothed it out on the table. "Well, darling," he said doubtfully, hesitating, "since you're so soon to be a member of the family I guess you might as well have a look at the family skeleton."

"Have a look at this."

Wondering, she joined him and glanced down at the paper fragments pieced together on the table. "This is the second warning," read the crude lettering. "There will be no more. If you don't send $1,000 to p. o. box 33, City Hall Station, in the next three days I'll go to the newspapers and I don't mean maybe. I know one would be glad enough to print the facts."

"What does it mean, Larry?" she inquired, raising frightened eyes. Ellen knew what it meant. She prayed desperately that his answer would prove her wrong.

"Blackmail," he replied briefly. "It's Uncle Steven. Something this—this person claims to know about his death."

"The worst of it is," Larry sighed, "that I'm not sure it's not true. Ordinarily I'd tear up an anonymous letter without a thought. I did tear up the first and hoped it would be the end. As you see it wasn't."

"It's simply this," Larry went on in a troubled way. "The first letter said flatly that Uncle Steven didn't die at St. Agatha's from an ordinary heart attack as I—we all—thought it said he died at his Long Island place as the result of a night of wild carousal. He was moved to the hospital afterwards, so the letter said. According to the writer his feminine companion—there was one of course—was there at the time of his death and did not leave until early morning. No use going on with the details though—"

Ellen was conscious of the terrific pounding of her heart; conscious that her face, her voice must reveal nothing. Above all else she felt a cold, frantic despair. If the opening of that letter could have been delayed a little while! Five minutes, 10 minutes—how much easier every thing would have been. It was too late now!

Presently they were sitting on the divan, discussing the matter. Ellen was pale and heartsick, Larry to troubled for the moment to notice her preoccupation.

"You see my position," he said. "A scandal like this would simply kill mother. On the other hand," he added ruefully, "I don't like the idea of parting with $1,000 with no guarantee at all that that will be the end of it—particularly now when I need every cent I can lay my hands on. I'm not a rich man."

"Did you think I was rich, honey?" he asked after a moment. "I don't know what I thought," Ellen answered thickly. "It doesn't matter anyhow. I wouldn't care if you hadn't a dime."

"It won't be so bad as that," he replied with a smile at her vehemence. "I guess I'll be able to take care of my wife all right."

He brushed her hair with his lips and showed a disposition to abandon the topic for one more personal. Ellen gently disengaged herself from his arms.

"Why don't you go to Mr. Symes your uncle's lawyer, and ask his advice?" she asked in a natural voice. Larry's brow clouded. "I'll tell you why not," he said. "It's because I don't trust him."

"Don't trust him?" "Symes was with Uncle Steven when he died," Larry responded slowly. "I'm sure he hasn't told the truth about it. He's hiding something."

"What makes you think so? What makes you so sure that the person who wrote this note is telling the truth?"

It was Larry's turn to hesitate. His face reddened. "For one thing," he said reluctantly, "I know that on the night of his death Uncle Steven was out on Long Island with a very young girl."

Ellen's lips were dry. "Who told you?" she whispered. "The proprietor of the Ra To To club," said Larry. "He swore Uncle Steven spent the entire evening there with this girl. They left the club exactly three hours before my uncle died."

Ellen's heart plunged dizzily. The pulses pounded in her ears and she could feel the palms of her hand growing icy. But Larry, staring at the rosy shadows on the heartstone, did not notice how pale she had become.

"Poor Uncle Steven—to be mixed up in a mess like that," he sighed, his voice a mixture of pity and distaste.

"How do you know it was all so wrong?" the girl cried incoherently. "I knew Steven Barclay. He was a fine man one of the finest who ever lived."

Her feet were on the brink of the chasm; she would not falter now. "I forgot that you knew him at the store," Larry said absently, still not looking at her. "It was at the store you knew him, wasn't it?"

"It was at the store," she whispered. Her hand dropped in a gesture of despair. She did not have the courage to go on.

"Don't get the idea I'm apologizing for him, honey," Larry went on reproachfully. "I knew him, too, and loved him. That's why I'd go to any lengths to protect his memory"

RENO WEDDINGS HAVE GAMING ODDS TO WIN

By WENDEL BURCH United Press Staff Correspondent. RENO, March 26. — Roulette or marriage — your chance to pick a winner in either of these flourishing Reno institutions is approximately the same, figures prove. In roulette, the "payoff" is 35 to 1. The marriage game apparently is conducted on a similar basis, for 25 Reno marriages are successful to one failure. These figures are proved by the fact that out of 400 divorces filed here during the past two months, only 12 freedom seekers gave Reno as their place of marriage. Reno long has insisted that its marriage trade should be given as much publicity as its divorce business. Ordinarily the number of marriage licenses issued is about twice the number of decrees handed out daily. Surviving by states with "three day marriage" laws, Nevada long has served as a Gretna Green for much of the west. Judges frequently are called upon to perform a marriage ceremony immediately after granting a divorce. A man or woman, waiting quietly while the plaintiff wins a divorce walks downstairs from the court room with the successful contestant, obtains a license, and the pair then return to the judge's chambers with a request that he start them once more on the marital pathway. No estimate is possible, of course, of the number of Reno marriages ending in the divorce courts of other states. It is generally held, however, that a majority of persons married here would return to Reno for a divorce should they ever decide they wished to end their marriage.

OVERTHROW OF MONOPOLIES IS HUNTER ISSUE

MINEOLA, March 26. — Tax relief and the overthrow of "monopoly control" are the important issues in the coming campaign, Tom F. Hunter, of Wichita Falls, said here Saturday afternoon in opening his campaign for the democratic gubernatorial nomination. "There is a known reason why Texas, even though the richest of all sections in natural resources and climate, finds her labor stranded, her homes pauperized, her farmers in destitution and many of her merchants and bankers bankrupt," Hunter said. "We have burdened real estate our basic wealth, with taxes until it has no loan or sale value. Those in control, with two-thirds of the state's wealth escaping taxation have a legal guarantee that they will have a profit. Records at Washington indicate Texas has $100,000,000,000 wealth, while the assessed valuation of all properties rendered for taxes is but little more than four billion. "A change must be worked out by the application of a different tax system that will require all of the citizens of the state and all who do business in our state to pay the costs of government in proportion to their ability. Utility Profits Hunter charged that utilities are making "unfair" profits while citizens are paying too much for services. He claimed also that some of the big oil interests are importing much oil into this country to the detriment of Texas oil field workers. "In the days of Jim Hogg it was a fight between the people and the railroads," Hunter said. "Today it is a fight between the people and the utilities and oil combines. If we have the courage of our predecessors we shall subdue the octopus of today as it was conquered in the days of Hogg." Opposition to a state wide road bond issue was expressed by Hunter, who recommended that one cent per gallon of the gasoline tax should be set aside to retire the county road bonds. He declared great savings could be accomplished in the highway department by eliminating duplication of county organization. Other recommendations were that poll tax levies be reduced; change in reclamation laws so that a foreclosed mortgage should have a reasonable time to redeem his family shelter by doing equity; chain stores should be curbed.

GARNER NOW HAS MUSEUM OF 100 GAVELS

WASHINGTON, March 26. — It's an unusual day when the postman expresses news so that a foreigner brings Speaker John Garner of Texas as a new gavel. He now has a collection of nearly 100 and another arrives nearly everyday. All sizes and types are represented in the collection. Unless they are too large for actual use, Speaker Garner uses each of them for at least one session shortly after arrival. After service each is tagged carefully and placed on exhibition in the Texan's growing museum of souvenirs. The mesquite gavel presented by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and used by Garner on his first day as speaker failed to last the day. It was repaired and placed in the museum. The organization sent another marked with a silver band. It was used for a January session. A class at the Dallas Technical

A DAY OF RECKONING Hardly a week goes by but a borrower whom we have requested to make a reduction on his note asks, "What difference does it make to the bank whether I reduce or not so long as I pay my interest?" From their standpoint, the question is a fair one. They know they have values back of their note to protect it. They pay the interest promptly when due. And the bank is in business to make loans. The money might just as well be loaned to them as to some other person. It sounds so logical to them that the question is justifiable. But it is a one-sided question for the reason that it does not take into consideration the banking standpoint. Every bank is in business to extend its sphere of influence to as many people as possible and with safety. No bank should make loans in perpetuity—to run for as long as the borrower sees fit to carry it. Every loan should be on a liquidating basis that will see it paid in full within a reasonable time. If the assets of a bank were fixed and it loaned all its assets to a few people who continued to renew without reductions, the bank would soon be at a place where it could make no more loans until its borrowers paid their notes or reduced them. But if all the bank's borrowers paid something at each maturity, it would give the bank a revolving fund to help others as the fund grew in size. But it is not alone from the banking standpoint that reductions should be made at each maturity. It is a good way for the borrower to get out of debt. There is always a day of reckoning. Nations, states, municipalities, corporations, partnerships and individuals are all ruled by one outstanding fact: All must live within their incomes or there will come the day of reckoning. Nations may borrow, but sooner or later the debt must be paid. The same thing is true of all others. To get out of debt, a start must be made. And the easiest and quickest way for the individual is the installment plan. Make reductions on your note at the bank each time it comes due. It does make a difference to the bank whether a man reduces his note or not. It does make a difference to the individual whether he reduces it or not. It is the simplest kind of good banking for a bank to expect it and the simplest kind of good business for the individual; to want to do it.
