Five "Bad Men" Sought After Sensational Jail Break

CONNOR LEADS EXODUS FROM ANGELO BARS

SAN ANGELO, May 16. — With state rangers and possemen scouring the mountains and mesquite flats north of the Rio Grande, an augmented force of border guards tonight increased their vigilance of five desperate "bad men" who escaped from the Tom Green county jail early today.

General orders to "shoot to kill" were issued to officers and possemen. Overpowering and beating Jailer August Luedcke into unconsciousness early today the men took the jailer's gun, rushed into the jail office and held Deputy Sheriff Duda Thompson and Trustee Joe Payne at bay while they ransacked the office. After procuring a shotgun and a large supply of ammunition for it and the jailer's pistol, they locked Payne and deputy into a vacant cell.

Dashing into the street the escaping prisoners jumped into a special delivery mail car at the curb and raced out of town toward the border. Leader of the break was J. B. Connor, one-time principal of schools at Rising Star, Texas. Connor was the "master mind" of the kidnaping and $75,000 extortion plot against R. W. Morrison, San Antonio, capitalist.

The last time the men were seen they were near Ozona headed for the border. A posse was in pursuit. They obtained a large supply of buckshot cartridges and pistol shells and locked the jailer and deputy in a cell before they dashed out into the street where they confiscated a mail car. Connor recently told officers "I'll never be taken to the penitentiary," and is believed to be desperate.

Luedcke was beaten and stomped almost unconscious. Connor was brought here from San Antonio to face swindling charges.

FIVE DAYS REMAIN FOR FISCAL BILLS

AUSTIN, May 16. — Five days remained for the Texas legislature to reach an agreement between house and senate on four major appropriation bills. Only the appropriation for maintaining the courts for the next two years has been acted upon finally. The remaining ones are the elementary, educational, departmental and rural school aid bills. Importance of these bills indicated that little else will get through the remaining days of the session.

Rep. R. M. Hubbard, of New Boston, announced, however, that another attempt will be made Wednesday to submit the $212,000,000 road bond amendment.

No further attempts to put over the Howley oil proration bill at this session is expected. An attempt to get a resolution through the senate Saturday calling on the attorney general and railroad commission to recommend oil legislation is generally considered to have been the last struggle for the bill.

Twenty Grand Wins Derby With Record

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 16. — Out of the middle of the Kentucky Derby field Twenty Grand came bounding down the stretch to capture the 57th running of America's most picturesque horse race today in the record-smashing time of 2 minutes one and four-fifths seconds, made by Old Rosebud in 1914. Twenty Grand's time also set a new Churchill Downs track record for the distance.

A crowd of 60,000 saw Jockey Charley Kortsinger, a little blonde Louisville boy, astride Twenty Grand outride a field of 11 other three-year-olds. The victory was worth $48,725 to Mrs. Payne Whitney, owner of the Green Tree stable, $6,000 to Charles T. Fisher, owner of Sweep All; $3,000 to A. C. Bostwick, owner of Mate, and $1,000 to C. H. Knebelkamp and Charles Morris, owners of Spanish Play which finished fourth.

Champion Woman Log-Roller

She's no lumberjack "riverman" — but Miss Agnes Hare, 17 of Washburn, Wis., shown above, can stay on a log with the best of them. She's woman's log-rolling champion of the world as she proved at the Outdoor Show in Chicago by startling exhibitions on a slippery log. However — she wore a bathing suit.

TRAPPER IS BITTEN BY VICIOUS WOLF

The most ferocious wolf he has ever captured was taken by State Trapper F. B. Mathews Saturday morning on the George Daniels ranch, north east of Cisco, at the expense of a serious bite on the hand. The wolf, an old female, never gave up in her fight for liberty and it was only when he had securely lashed her mouth and tied her feet together that the trapper was able to subdue the creature and bring her to town.

The wolf is credited with having killed seven kid goats for George Fee two weeks ago. Mr. Mathews caught her the first night that he trapped for her. The wolf is half German police dog, Mathews said, and the most vicious wild animal he has encountered. It had been caught in a trap once before as two toots missing on a forefoot showed.

Mr. Mathews has taken about 200 wolves out of traps alive and this is the first time one has succeeded in biting him, he said. "Charge It to Dad" to Be Subject

WOMAN ADMITS SHE FAKED INJURY TO GET REST AND FOOD AT EASTLAND HOSPITAL

Fictitious illness as the result of an injury to her head brought Miss June Beall Arnold two weeks quiet rest in an Eastland hospital where she was given every consideration, kind, sympathetic and efficient attendants could give. But notwithstanding this when she had rested and gotten a few good meals the wanderlust returned and she frankly confessed that she was a fake and walked out of the hospital.

About two weeks ago a woman appeared at the hospital, said she was a nurse out of employment and needed a place to rest and something to eat. She was put to work in the kitchen at the hospital. Soon after going to work she dropped a towel and as she raised up after stooping to retrieve the towel struck the back of her head, at the base of the brain, against the sink. At first she did not complain but later said she was suffering terrible pains. A physician examined her and found her bleeding from the nose and both ears. He ordered her put to bed, gave her first aid treatment and awaited results.

Became Suspicious. While attendants at the hospital gave the woman every attention they soon became suspicious of her, but did not tell her so and started an investigation. They learned, by communicating with hospitals where they learned she had been, that she had faked injuries there. This information led them to demand of her that she tell the truth which she did, admitting that she was faking.

The woman confessed that after she struck the back of her head against the sink, she went into a nearby washroom, bit her lips until the blood flowed freely. The blood she caught on a sponge and squeezed it into her ears and nose to create the impression that she was hemorrhaging from the nose and ears. She also admitted that she had played the same stunt on numerous hospitals over the country and in doing so got needed rest, medical attention and board.

BAND TO PLAY CONCERT TODAY AT 5:30 O'CLOCK

The high school band will present an open air concert on the Katy park lawn at 5:30 this afternoon, it was announced Saturday. Ciscoans who have not become acquainted with the quality of music played by the high school musicians under direction of G. W. Collum are especially invited to hear this concert. Those who know what the band is will be there without urging.

The campaign to secure $500 with which to fund the youngsters of the national high school band contest at Tulsa, May 20, is still about $100 short of its mark. Those who have not yet contributed to the fund are invited to hear the youngsters play and, if they are convinced that the project is a worthy one, to dig down in their pockets for a few dollars when the committee resumes its campaign Monday, to help the cause along.

MRS. WOODS TO PRESENT CLASS THURS., FRIDAY

Mrs. Paul Woods, teacher of expression, will present her classes in a recital of two parts next Thursday and Friday evenings in the high school auditorium. Younger pupils will be presented in a cleverly arranged program Thursday evening, the high spots of which will be a Fairy play and a tiny toy wedding.

These two numbers are particularly attractive, the former featuring a cast of ten small children with a fairy dance included in the program and the latter scenes during an after marriage in which the children carry out a formal wedding presenting "Matrimony As It Should Always Be" "Matrimony As It Really Is." The contrast between the bliss of the wedding scene and the family spat that follows is an amusing feature of this presentation.

Children who will take part Thursday evening are: Catherine Clappitt, Doris Jamison, Gloria Graham, Doris Bragg, Patsy Jean Boyd, Sterling Bill, Betty Slicker, Allen Wood, Mary Evelyn Varnell, Francis Comer, James Qualls, Patsy Jane Currin, Lucy Perkins Williams, Alice Slicker, Betty Lou Powell, Rheda Ray Clark, Rose Ann Woods.

Instead of a fish Mr. Ball threw a line into Lake Cisco Friday afternoon and caught a full-grown rod and reel. While the rod was slightly rusted in some spots the equipment was otherwise in excellent condition. He exhibited the "catch" at the Daily News office Saturday morning as proof that his "fish story" was entirely authentic.

Arrest of Spinster Brings to Light Existence of Alleged "Suicide Cult"

MINEOLA, Long Island, May 16. — Residents of Amityville, a quiet Long Island town near here, were startled today to learn of a weird "suicide cult" which already may have claimed the lives of 24 of its original 50 members.

H. Moore to keep the cemetery attractive.

The board also expressed appreciation of the efforts of the two caretakers who have placed the burial ground in excellent condition. Citizens are invited to visit the cemetery today and see for themselves the improvements that have been made.

Sheriff Says Raid Nets I.W.W. Evidence

HARLAN, Ky., May 16. — A raid conducted early today upon the headquarters of the Everts local United Mine Workers of America, and a house on an adjoining lot netted wholesale evidence of "I. W. W." activity, Sheriff John Blair, of Harlan county, announced.

The raid, the sheriff said, brought positive confirmation of recent indications that extreme left wing labor agitators were back of the widespread but short-lived walkouts of coal miners of the Harlan county field.

Grist Dynamite Vault Looted

The dynamite storage vault of the Grist Hardware company here, located west of Cisco near the Bankhead highway, was broken into Friday night by thieves who carried away half a case of dynamite, it was reported to officers Saturday morning. This was the second theft of explosives within two days, burglars having broken into the American Glycerin company's warehouse the preceding night and made away with 20 quarts of solidified nitroglycerin.

and dressed in his death clothes, seated in an easy chair; dead. His ankles were crossed and a revolver lay in his lap loosely clutched in his right hand. He had two wounds in his head.

Police at first accepted the suicide theory until the coroner pointed out that one of the shots destroyed his motor centers and it would have been impossible for him to have fired the second shot which caused his death. The coroner also said that as Schwartz was a helpless invalid it would have been impossible for him to have dressed himself.

Her brother, she said, had suffered almost unbearably for the past 20 years and they had agreed that it was best for him to end it all. The agreement came, she said, after a meeting of the "suicide club" at her home when members offered prayers for relief of his suffering to no avail.

PROGRAM FOR NEW SESSION UNDERTAKEN

Joseph Keevil, of Marfa, Texas, former acting president of Randolph college, was elected president and business manager of the school, succeeding Dr. T. T. Roberts, when the new board of trustees met Friday evening to map out a program for the next year's session of the school. Mr. Keevil has not formally accepted the election, however, and sufficient time will be given him to make his answer.

Mr. Keevil is well and favorably known to the Christian denomination particularly in Texas and his selection is regarded as a happy one. Support of Mr. Keevil in his administration of the college affairs was pledged Mr. Keevil personally by Mr. Hamilton, vice-president of the Temple Trust company and the board expressed opinion that the support of other factors interested in the progress of the school will assure the new administration of excellent opportunity for success.

Junior and Senior Classes In Annual Banquet Friday

Each year, the Junior-Senior banquet of Cisco high school is eagerly looked forward to by members of both classes. The festivity this year was held Friday evening on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel. The room was enticingly decorated with wild flowers, and a color scheme of pink and blue was effectively carried out. The guests were seated at small tables. Balloons and tiny hats were given as favors.

The program, a special treat for fans of radioland, was started with a station announcement from radio station C. H. S. by the announcer, Supt. R. N. Cluck who introduced the toastmaster, Charles Van Horn who initiated the well known Graham McLemee. Miss Lucille Clements gave the welcoming address which was responded to by Jules Karlatits. Other initiations of famed radio performers included: Margie Linder as Mitzie Green who gave a toe dance and a tap dance, Joe Carrothers as "Old Paul" and Hagan McMahon and Straud McMurray, who initiated the popular favorites Amos and Andy.

In emblems of the clever program, the menu was given in radio terms as follows: "radio" meaning fruit cocktail, "interference"—salad, "hookup"—fried chicken, cream potatoes, and green beans, "aerial"—cake and ice cream, and "ground"—coffee.

About 114 guests were present including many faculty members, among whom were the junior sponsors, Miss Helen Cobb and Leonard Hill.

All present sang the Victory song, and thus ended one of the most enjoyable occasions of every school year.

ANNUAL JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET OF RANDOLPH GIVEN

The annual Junior-Senior banquet of Randolph college was held at the First Christian church Thursday evening. The room was made to represent a gay pirate vessel with its skull and cross bone flags, treasure chests, and bags of gold. The juniors assumed the role of pirates and made the seniors their willing victims when they served them delightful "vittles" which the printed scrolls, which contained the menus, labelled as follows: Envoy entree, North Sea puddin', scrambled snuds, bleeding hearts, hard tack, pieces of eight, heavenly hash, angel food, and limey cup.

Pirate Captain Ed Drensen welcomed the senior victims to the ship, and Chief Victim Thurman Scowell responded with good cheer. Pirate Hunter Miller continued the program by giving an illuminating discussion of success, and was followed by Private First Class O'Neal who brought terror to the hearts of all by bravely revealing the treasures that have been stolen this year. Pirate Chaser, Gladys Johnson, told of the pleasure of the capture, and Officer Query put all "on the spot" after which Captain Drensen condemned the victims and pirates as well by giving a life sentence that caused much speculation. The victims were then made to walk the plank and leave the good ship Randolph in the hands of the Junior Pirates.

Much of the success of the banquet is due to the committee chairmen, Misses Jean Shackelford and Mavis Branch, and to the Junior sponsor, Miss Nina Watts.

EUROPE RACE FOR NAVY LEAD IS TIGHTENING

By RALPH HEINZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, May 16. — The Admiralty of London and the Naval Ministries of all the capitals on the Continent are frankly bothered by news which has come from Kiel where the second of the German "Panzerkreuzer" A-cruisers, the Prusse, is being touched up for launching by President Hindenburg soon.

The cruiser, which has taken 320 months to build at a cost of $2,000,000, is admitted by French experts to be the greatest small fighting ship ever built. There are many pessimistic experts in the French naval staff who insist that ton for ton the German ship will greatly surpass the new 23-333-ton London-Treaty cruisers France is to build.

Light Engines Superior

The new light-weight engines in the Prusse, which have been brought down in weight to 16 pounds per horsepower unit, have no equal in any other navy and the advantage of the German warship lies in the fact that, fitted with such engines, it can outspeed any other ship in a long cruise. That makes it particularly dangerous as a raider along the commerce sea lanes of the world. Even among its newest cruisers, Britain has nothing to compare to the Prusse. France and Italy, each allowed two 23,333-ton cruisers under the recent agreement, may develop something its equal, but the superior tonnage will make the French and Italian ships twice the targets.

The following brief table of comparative statistics shows the merits of these various cruisers:

German Prusse — 31 knots; 10,000 tons; 50,000 h. p.; six 11-inch guns, plus smaller batteries; 10,000 miles radius at 26 knots; mine-proof.
British Dorsetshire Class (1930) — 10,000 tons; 30,000 h.p.; 32 knots; eight 8-inch guns; 10,000 miles radius at 14 knots.
French 23,333 cruiser (Unnamed class) — 23,333 tons; 80,000 h.p.; 30 knots; nine 11-inch guns; 11,000 mile radius at 20 knots; carries six sea-planes.

French Guard Secrecy

Many details of the French supercruisers are being kept secret but the navy department did announce two features that are intended to give it an advantage over the German ships. The French warship will have three turrets of 11-inch guns and the German cruisers but two turrets each.

Germany is forbidden by the Versailles treaty to carry planes at sea, but the French cruisers will carry four to six for scouting and defense uses, with a catapult. Both French and German ships will fire 678-pound projectiles, which are being the heaviest shells that have been fired at sea.

Making use of their tonnage, the French designers have given their cruiser far greater armor protection than the Germans were able to do with 10,000 tons total. The Germans claim anti-submarine and mine protection which surpasses anything previously devised, while the French claim their cruiser will be impervious to attack from the air and from submarines.

TINY PRINCESS USES COPYBOOK 150 YEARS OLD

LONDON, May 16. — Little Princess Elizabeth is laboriously scrawling in a copy-book which was once used by a Princess Elizabeth nearly 150 years ago.

An album containing two copy-books, was used by Princess Elizabeth, daughter of King George III., and her brother, Frederick, Duke of York and Albany. These, by the consent of the Duchess of York, were presented to the present Princess by E. A. Barnard, of Cambridge, on the recent occasion of Elizabeth's fifth birthday.

The album was recovered as the result of a broadcast appeal by Barnard some time ago, for the preservation of old documents and papers, which are continually being destroyed by people who have no idea of their historic value.

The specimens which are beautifully written, presumably with quill pens, on hand-made paper, are typical copy-book quotations, and that of the young Princess Elizabeth reads: "Fortune takes away nothing but what she gave. But she gives not virtue. Therefore virtue is a good which she cannot make away." The Princess made a mistake in writing "make" for "take." This was written in 1783.

COLLEGE CLUB WILL PRESENT LIGHT OPERA

Friday night the Randolph college club will present "The Crimson Eyebrows", a light opera by May Heves and John Wilcox Dodge, in the college auditorium at 8:15. This is a very clever and amusing performance, containing many beautiful solo and chorus numbers. The costumes, which are typically Chinese, are unique and colorful.

Story of the opera: At the death of the Emperor Gaiti, a usurper, one Wang Mang, has come to the throne of the Chinese Empire. Wang fears that he will lose his throne to Ting Ling, daughter of Gaiti, and plots to marry her to one of his fellow conspirators, who will then proceed to make way with her. Wang very cleverly plays upon Ting Ling's romantic imagination by telling her that Star Eye, the court astrologer, has read in the stars that in a previous existence, she, Ting Ling, was Venus, and beloved by Neptune and that Neptune is now on his way to claim her as his bride.

Unfortunately for Wang's plans, Ting Ling meets Fanchong, leader of the Crimson Eyebrows, and believing him to be Neptune, falls in love with him. Accordingly when Wang presents his accomplice as "Neptune" Ting Ling promptly refuses to marry him.

Hing Lee, a spy of Fanchong's learns of the conspiracy against Ting Ling, and warns Fanchong, who persuades Ting Ling to elope with him.

Unfortunately they are discovered, and Fanchong thrown into prison. Wang endeavors to hasten the marriage of Ting Ling and his accomplice and is about to order the execution of Fanchong, when Hing Lee, who in the meantime has won over the palace guards to Fanchong's cause, seizes the opportunity for which he has been waiting, and opens the palace gates to The Crimson Eyebrows.

Fanchong is saved and Ting Ling's throne restored to her. She commands that on the day she is proclaimed Empress, Fanchong be made Emperor.

Woven with the principal theme is a pretty love affair between Ah Me and Hing Lee, while Wang and his fellow conspirators furnish some splendid comedy scenes.

The cast is as follows: Princess Ting Ling, daughter of the former Emperor, Mae Dee Hall.

Ah Me, Ting Ling's cousin, Marjorie Swagerty.

Wang Mang, the usurper Emperor, Ed Dressen.

Yi Kang, the court astrologer, nicknamed "Star Eye", Charles Roberts.

Ko Moo, a distant relative of Ting Ling's nicknamed "Old Buddha", Norma Wildman.

Fanchong, leader of "The Crimson Eyebrows", Homer Smith.

Hing Lee, an officer of the court; spy of Fanchong's, N. L. Taylor.

Yen Chen, an accomplice of Wang Mang's who impersonates "Neptune", Claude Pulley.

A chorus of ladies and nobles of the court, soldiers.

Christ Enters Jerusalem As King

Text: Luke 19-29-42, 45-48

And came to pass, when he was come nigh to Bethpage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples. Saying, Go ye into the village over against you, in the which at your entering ye shall find a colt tied, whereon yet never man sat: loose him, and bring him hither.

And if any man ask you, Why do ye loose him? thus shall ye say, Because the Lord hath need of him. And they that were sent went their way, and found even as he had said unto them.

And as they were losing the colt the owners thereof said unto them, Why loose ye the colt?

And they said, The Lord hath need of him.

And they brought him to Jesus: and he sat thereon, and they set Jesus thereon. And as he went, they spread their clothes in the way.

And when he was come nigh, even at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen.

Saying, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in heaven, and glory in the highest.

And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out.

And he went into the temple and began to cast out them that sold therein and them that bought. Saying unto them, It is written, My house is the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

And he taught daily in the temple. But the chief priests and the scribes and the chief of the people sought to destroy him.

And could not find what they might do: for all the people were very attentive to hear him.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 17, Christ Enters Jerusalem as King, Luke 19: 29-42, 45-48.

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

The story of the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem from almost every standpoint occupies a strange place in the life story of the Master.

This is an affecting and moving story, and one that has special appropriateness, for no one surely was more worthy to ride in a triumphal procession as king, and before no monarch could palm leaves and shouting be more fittingly thrown in the way than before this Galilean carpenter riding into Jerusalem on the foal of an ass.

It was a triumphal procession, moreover, that seems to have depended upon the sheer worth and spiritual dignity of the monarch rather than upon the trappings and pomp of state. It is a satisfaction to have in our New Testament this one presentation of our lowly Master in the kingly role that was in harmony with his true greatness.

A Striking Contrast
One cannot, however, fail to contrast this incident of the triumphal entry with all that went before and with all that so immediately followed in the life of Jesus. In the beginning of his public ministry we have the picture of him as "holding aloof" from crowds. Occasionally when the multitudes pressed round about him, he spoke to them, and on one occasion the pressure of the crowd was so great that he went into a boat and thrust out a little from the land speaking to the people who crowded on the shore. But that was exceptional.

When the throng wanted to make him king, he eluded them and went into the mountain to pray. Repeatedly when publicity seemed to be too great, he withdrew with his disciples. Possibly Jesus felt, as he expressed it on one occasion, that his hour had not yet come, that to court public approbation and a popular movement putting him into a position of physical leadership, would have been premature and calculated to defeat his real mission, which was one of the ministry of truth, the proclamation of righteousness, and the revelation of the saving power of the grace of God.

Just why Jesus should later have permitted himself to be brought into Jerusalem with such popular acclaim and rejoicing is not quite clear. From the earnestness of his praying in the Garden of Gethsemane, it would appear that in his human consciousness the Master was not sure just what form the impending events were to take.

Bowed to Father's Will
With agony of prayer he prayed that the tragedy that he sensed might pass. His only concern was to do the Father's will. But in the very form of words that he used, "not my will but thine be done," he implied that the Father's will had not yet been made entirely plain to him. It is quite possible that at the time of the triumphal entry the Master believed that the impending events, the importance of which he sensed in the fulfillment of his earthly mission, were to be brought about in a somewhat different way from the course they actually took. This would seem almost on the cross in the last hour when Jesus felt that he was forsaken of God.

Whatever be the truth of these matters, the triumphal entry, as I have suggested, was to stand as an incident in itself in striking contrast with all that went before and with all that came after. In the light of all that we see this side of the cross, the real kingdom of Jesus and his true triumph through the cross, it is a satisfaction to have in the records this inspiring story that moves us to special remembrance every Palm Sunday as we approach the Eastertide.

Temptation Thrust Aside
One thing is certain that if there were any temptation of earthly glory, such as Jesus had already encountered in the beginning of his ministry, that temptation was now quickly thrust aside. The fact that he was entering Jerusalem in a triumphal procession did not minimize in the slightest the vigor and intensity of his teaching. As he drew near the city, he wept over it—a thing that no ambitious man seeking popularity and power would ever do.

The peoples of cities like to be flattered and to be told fulsome things about themselves rather than to have the things that are cause for weeping emphasized. Moreover, when Jesus came to the temple and found the men of greed and materialism transacting business, he spoke with no unmeasured terms of their desecration of the house of prayer.

In lowliness or in triumph, the Master was the same, the humble Galilean, devoted to the Father's will, bringing everything, even life itself, to the ministry of salvation that he had come to declare in words and perform in fact.

MILLER-LAUDERDALE
"The Man's Store"

One MELODY GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, succeeds in delaying his elopement with her half-sister, Irene Everett, but fails to convince him that it is his duty to his family to finish college.

Later Irene postpones the marriage date believing she is to be a featured radio singer. When she secures an audition she permits Beryl to go with her to the studio. While waiting in an ante-room Beryl sits down at a piano and croons melodies. One of the directors hears her and gives her a private test. He promises her an interview with Mr. Gaylord. Irene fails and is furious when she hears that her sister has been given a test. Beryl's hopes of a radio career dim as time passes and she hears nothing from the studio.

Then a letter comes and she slips away secretly for her interview. Nervous during the ordeal, Beryl is elevated to ecstasy when presented with a contract. But her victory is bitter-sweet because she fears Tommy will believe she has robbed Irene of her chance. Beryl's "gang" celebrates her victory by putting on a show.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

"I'll bet Beryl put him up to that cheap trick," the girl had remarked sneeringly. Mr. Morgan turned quickly in his seat to see who dared so to malign his son.

"Huh," he snorted when he saw that it was Irene. "I guess Mike can think up his own tricks," he added proudly.

His wife dug him in the ribs with her elbow and bade him turn around and keep quiet for his manner was too treacherous for a public place.

"Anyway Mike gets a new bicycle," he said with a touch of defiance.

Irene, discomfited by the attention thus called to her, turned upon her companion. "Why did you bring me to this silly show?" she demanded wrathfully.

"Why, you wanted to come!" Tommy stammered in surprise.

"Well, I want to go!" she said and got to her feet. Her companion followed, uncomfortable under the amused glances and half-suppressed grins of those who had overheard the conversation.

"Tommy Wilson, you're a fool," Irene said hotly when they were outside the "cinema" grounds. "I didn't want to come!"

"Gosh, Irene, what's the matter with you these days?" Tommy asked. "One minute you're as sweet as sugar and in the next you turn sour."

"Of course you wouldn't understand," Irene replied with a whimper of self-pity. "I'm perfectly wretched and no one has any sympathy for me."

"That's all nonsense," Tommy said boldly. "But if you're so unhappy why don't you marry me?"

"I don't want to marry you just to escape my unhappiness," Irene replied nobly.

Tommy was too much impressed with the sentiment to consider the rapidity with which she had changed from anger to self-pity then to self-sacrifice. Never had he suspected Irene of being insincere.

"What's that got to do with it," he asked, "if you love me?"

"Everything, Tommy," Irene said wistfully. "I won't you when I marry you I want it to be because there's nothing else in the world that I want to do more. And right now what I want most is to get away from all this humiliation Beryl has caused. Sometimes when it's hardest to bear—like tonight—I think I'll go away somewhere and..."

Her voice trailed away sadly for she did not want to spoil the effectiveness of her threat, which would not be a threat if it were not vague. Just the thought of her "going away somewhere" ought to make Tommy terribly unhappy she believed.

And she wanted him to be unhappy. She wanted to make someone suffer and he was nearest at hand. His answer filled her with rage but for once she kept it under control.

"Dorgan's not so bad," Tommy said uneasily. "He didn't mean anything. But listen, Irene, won't you give me a break? We could be married right away and..."

"Oh, please Tommy, I'm so tired," Irene stopped him. "Let's go and have a soda."

the air" and then decide. Beryl might be a flop and then home would be home once more.

That would not be long away now. Beryl's debut was to take place in just a few days. And there was no danger in putting Tommy off.

And so Tommy, led on by Irene in her uncertainty and rebuffed by her as a result of their clashing viewpoints, found himself in a maze, too.

He did not notice that his Aunt Emma was looking far from well and he quite forgot to take any special notice of Beryl's debut.

It occurred on a rainy night, the very affording Irene an excuse to stay at home and listen in on the radio without admitting that she wouldn't have done anything else for worlds.

She'd have been much happier if she had gone out for—there was no doubt of it—Beryl scored a success with a contract.

The announcer told of the telephone messages of praise that poured in and of the enthusiasm of the studio attaches, of the congratulations that were being heaped upon the younger singer and of the singer's charmingly natural acceptance of it all. She seemed, he said, neither to take it for granted as what was due her nor to feel that she was being overpraised.

She was grateful, pleased, happy and "like a child before a Christmas tree," he told his audience.

"You'd be glad, if you could see her," he confided, "to share her joy without an iota of envy. Why, right now, folks, she's turning her back on a famous impresario to stand in awe before a bouquet that—well, I just wish that I could describe it to you! We never saw anything like it around here before. It's a mile high and a half mile long and looks like it had all the flowers from the Garden of Eden in it—but all in all, folks, it's the grandest, most gorgeous bunch of flowers that was ever put together as a love posy. Yes, sir, that's what it is—a love posy. I can tell by the way she looks at it, and I think I hear her saying something about 'those blessed kids.' All I have left to say is, well folks, whoever you are, she is sure tickled to death with your wonderful offering."

There was more but Irene tuned it out on pretext of improving the reception. Her face was contorted with jealous emotion but Tommy did not see it as they had been sitting in the semi-dark. It was the season when, for a few days, certain parts of Long Island were sorely troubled with gnats. The Everett house was none too well served. It was best not to burn a light in the room where you sat. Tonight there was only the subdued light from the hall to illuminate the living room.

So Tommy did not see how Irene felt about her sister's success. He heard her say something conventionally decent about it, and agreed, although more wholeheartedly, that it was great, never realizing that Irene was seething with suppressed envy. With her mother and father sitting in the dining room, and no excuse for it anyway, Irene had not dared say what she really felt concerning Beryl's debut. She could not refer, however, from remarking that of course anyone who appreciated music could not care for Beryl's singing. If people really wanted that sort of thing it was just lucky for Beryl, that was all.

Then the telephone began ringing. People whom Irene had stormed against inviting to the house for the occasion (and finally convinced her mother that Beryl might flop and embarrass them).

That was more than Irene could endure. She dragged Tommy away from the dining room, and he had to go for some of the nearby neighbors were coming in uninvited and Mrs. Everett was getting out marble cake and lemonade.

The neighbors ate the cake and stayed on. Someone had suggested that they remain and greet Beryl. Mrs. Everett in a flutter of pride and excitement said, "Yes, do," and got out more cake and lemonade.

Beryl would, she said, come on the 11:57 train from New York. Who was going to meet her at the station?

Why, Tommy was supposed to. No one in the family could drive her flivver but Beryl. Maybe she'd left it at the station. No, she hadn't for it had a flat tire when she went to town and the kids had just got it patched for her.

Well, where was Tommy? He went out with Irene. Well, Mr. Reed would get his car out and they'd give Beryl a surprise at the station. As many as could piled into it, leaving a place for Beryl, but when they returned she was not with them. She had not come on the 11:57 and that was the last train.

FAIRBANKS AT BEST IN LIVELY FILM

Tossing away millions of dollars in a gamble for a girl's love is nothing to a romantic young man who is confident that he can always make more money, but that there is only one girl worth winning.

That's the key to the dashing comedy-drama starring Douglas Fairbanks, with Bebe Daniels as the heroine, which opens today at the Palace theatre.

Ultra-modern and sophisticated, brilliant in fashions, settings and comedy, the film was written and directed by Edmund Goulding for United Artists.

It anticipates the trend two years hence and has backgrounds of a modernistic nature created by William Cameron Menzies.

New York is the principal locale, with Fairbanks as a phenomenally successful stock broker who throws all commercial activities aside to pursue a girl who charms him away from the stock market. Bebe Daniels is the new type of society girl, immensely wealthy, made for luxury and actively going in for aviation.

Edward Everett Horton, one of the foremost drawing room comedians of the age, makes the picture sparkle with laughter, and excellent work is done by a tried and true cast including Jack Mulhall of stellar fame, Claud Allister, Emmett Corrigan, Walter Walker, June MacCloy, Helen Jerome Eddy.

"Reaching For The Moon" is a picture in keeping with the times— or ahead of it—and Fairbanks gives a whirlwind performance and proves he needs no bizare locale or characterization to bring out his dashing, romantic temperament.

It's top entertainment and very, very new.

COUNTY HOME INMATES HAPPY OVER VISIT

Cisco Daily News:
The inmates of the county home were agreeably surprised Friday evening, May 8, when several articles drove up to the door of the home and several visitors began to alight with armfuls of the prettiest flowers we have seen this spring. Then the visitors began to exhibit a bountiful supply of oranges, apples and candy. After devotional services which were conducted in the lobby of the home and much appreciated by all present the fruit and flowers were distributed to the inmates. But this was not all. The leader of the visiting delegation unwrapped two fine cakes which were later cut and eaten by the inmates with unfeigned delight.

We then learned that our visiting friends were from Cisco, representing Circle Four of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church who "Go about doing good." It is the sentiment of all the home inmates that "It is pleasant sure, thus to be remembered."

The inmates.

Are you FAIR to your Home Town Merchants?

When money is slack; when crops or public work fails; when credit is needed it is the home town merchant whom we seek for friendly service. He tides us over with credit; he charges no interest; he provides us with reliable, guaranteed merchandise fairly priced. In short, "he holds the bag for us." And isn't it a pity that there are many who use him only as a leaning post --- to tide them over the slack days and use their cash to fill the coffers of the big town mail order houses who wouldn't trust them over night --- with, or without interest?

We all need that merchant --- we need his confidence, his friendship. Our town needs his enterprise --- the service he renders in handling only guaranteed, first class goods that he is here to stand back of day in and day out.

Let's give him our cash when we have it. Let's pay his bills as promptly as we can. Let's earn and merit the confidence he has placed in us and in our community. Let's support his business --- we need him and he needs us, our trade and our unselfish good will.

BE FAIR--
