With an attendance of 125 in prospect the monthly dinner of the Merchants' Smoker organization will begin this evening at 7:30 at the Mobley hotel.

H. S. Drumwright will be toastmaster, A. D. Anderson, chairman of the program committee announced.

The dinner is being held at the Mobley for the first time. The large dining room of the hotel has been enlarged by the addition of a space more than half as large as the original dining room, and ample space is available.

Turkey will be served, Dyer said.

MILLION VOTES IS DEMOCRATS' GOAL IN TEXAS

A million democratic votes in the general election in Texas November 8 is the goal of the Texas democratic campaign generalship, Will St. John, a member of the steering committee for the 17th congressional district, said upon his return from a conference of that committee in Brownwood. The committee passed a resolution calling upon all loyal democrats to vote and to vote the ticket straight "from president to constable."

R. W. Haynie, of Abilene, is chairman of the district committee. Milburn McCarty, of Eastland, Mrs. John Perry, of Sweetwater, and a woman from Brownwood are other members in addition to St. John. All of the committee, except the Brownwood woman, and about half of the democratic county chairmen of the 19 counties in the district attended the conference at the Brownwood hotel.

Frank Schofield, financial director for the Texas democratic campaign organization and a member of the national finance committee, spoke.

BOND HEARING IN CISCO CASE AT TWO TODAY

A hearing to fix the amount of the supersedeas bond which the district and state committees of the Interscholastic league will be required to post to prevent Cisco Lobos from participating in the district schedule pending appeal of the decision in the Cisco football suit will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in 91st district court at Abilene.

Judge Geo. L. Davenport set that hour for the hearing upon request of the defendants' counsel at an informal hearing last Saturday afternoon. He indicated that hearing he would fix the bond at $10,000, but the defendants protested and urged the hearing.

The Cisco Lobos were ordered restored to the league by a judgment handed down by Judge Davenport last month. An order was subsequently issued directing the district committee to meet and rearrange the schedule.

Allred Holds Tax Suits Are Dormant

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—A valid judgment could not be rendered in tax penalty and interest remission measure by the special session of the legislature, Att.-Gen. James V. Allred said in an opinion today.

Allred said that suits filed before the law became effective are suspended and now are dormant until January 1, 1933, the date for expiration of penalty suspension.

SWANSON ASKS INDICTMENT OF INSULL BROS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Indictments charging embezzlement, larceny, and larceny by bailer were returned today against Samuel Insull former utilities magnate and his brother, Martin.

The indictments fixed bonds for Martin Insull at $75,000 and $50,000 for Samuel.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—State Attorney John A. Swanson went before the Cook county grand jury this afternoon and asked indictment on larceny and embezzlement charges of Samuel and Martin Insull, whose two billion dollar utilities failure was the greatest in the nation's history.

Swanson said the Insull brothers had ignored his request that they return voluntarily from their foreign refuges.

The state's attorney declared "we have only scratched the surface" in the Insull investigation and predicted additional indictments would be asked later.

Kidnaped Brenham Man Returns Home

BRENHAM, Oct. 4.—Victor Wehmeyer, 21, was safe at home here today after being released by two bandits who robbed his filling station of a small amount of money, then kidnaped him and forced him to ride to a point near Houston.

Wehmeyer was forced to lie in the back of the car while the bandits raided another filling station here and obtained a small amount of cash. He was thrown from the car unharmed 20 miles from Houston.

EIGHT CISCO BUSINESS MEN ARE CHARGED

Eight Cisco business men were named yesterday in charges filed by R. B. Patton, collector out of the state comptroller's office, in justice court here. Six of the eight are charged with operating one or more coin operating vending machines without payment of the current year's occupation tax. Two others are charged with selling cigarettes without payment of the occupation tax.

Warrants were served yesterday. None of the defendants have pled guilty.

A majority of them indicated they would seek a hearing on the charges Thursday in the justice court here.

Patton filed the charges after having spent several days here collecting occupation taxes. He gave notice several days ago that charges would be filed against all operators who had not by Monday morning paid the occupation tax to the county collector at Eastland.

The penalty for operating a vending machine without payment of the annual occupation tax is a fine of not less than $1 and not more $50. Each day that the machine is operated, officers said, constitutes a separate offense.

ENROLLMENT AT RANDOLPH IS INCREASING

With matriculation of Willie Jeter of Putnam, the enrollment at Randolph college reached a total of 100 students. With new students coming in steadily the enrollment has already exceeded that for any semester of the two years immediately preceding.

New students have enrolled every day since school opened, with the exception of last Saturday. The figure already exceeds the total for the entire session last year and are 50 per cent above the corresponding day of the first semester last year. Many other students are expected during the next week or two and President Lee Clark anticipates a total enrollment of 150.

AMENDMENT WILL LIFT TAX FROM 565,270 TEXAS HOMES

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—Texas will free 565,270 homes from property taxation (up to $3,000 value) if a proposed amendment to the state constitution is adopted at the November 8th general election.

As that number is more than half the total number of votes ever cast in a Texas election, it is practically a foregone conclusion the amendment will be adopted.

The figures are approximate. Questionnaires now are out asking for accurate figures from each of the 254 counties in the state on the number of homesteads that will be affected by the proposed amendment. The figures used are taken from federal census reports. They include 190,515 farms in Texas operated by the owners.

Some persons own and operate more than one farm but it is estimated that the duplications occurring for that reason are offset by excluding all of two other farm classes, though a few of these classes will fall within the tax exempted class.

301,660 Tenant Farms. There are 301,660 farms listed in Texas as operated by tenants. A number of these, however, may fall within the homestead classification as actual residence is not always a requisite to property being a homestead. There are also 3,314 farms operated by farm corporations with managers in charge.

In cities and towns there are 471,902 families living in rented homes, according to the 1930 census.

Homestead owners whose homes are assessed at not over $3,000 valuation will escape all state ad valorem tax on them. As the average valuation for tax purposes is fifty per cent in practice it will mean a man with a $6,000 home will escape state ad valorem tax upon it.

If the home is assessed at $4,000 he will pay state ad valorem tax on only $1,000.

How many homes and farms with a valuation under $3,000 is also a matter of estimate. Again using census figures as a basis for an estimate, the probable number is 294,238.

Present Exemption. Present tax exemption in Texas is carried in a provision to Section One of Article VIII of the State Constitution. This says: "Provided that $250 worth of household and kitchen furniture, belonging to each family in this state shall be exempt from taxation."

The proposed amendment, if adopted, will write Section 1-a into this article of the constitution saying: "Three thousand dollars of the assessed taxable value of all residence homesteads as now defined by law shall be exempt from all taxation for state purposes; nothing herein shall apply within those counties or other political subdivisions now receiving any remission of state taxes, but upon the expiration of such period of remission this section shall become applicable within such counties and political subdivisions."

Omission of these tax remitted areas is done because the state tax for different periods is collected in them and applied to retiring bonds that have been issued for storm, flood or other protection, where the state may remit taxes.

Places Remitted. Places thus affected are Aransas, Brooks, Cameron, Duval, Jim Hogg, Jim Wells, Kleberg, Nueces, Willacy, Orange, Galveston, Wharton, San Patricio and Hidalgo counties; Road district No. 23 in Brazoria county; Commissioners Precincts One, Two and Four in Matagorda county and Commissioners Precinct Two in Jefferson county. In Cameron county the remission extends only to the levy of any amount over ten cents on $100 valuation.

A homestead in Texas not in a town or city consists of not more than 200 acres of land with the improvements. The land may be in one or more parcels.

The homestead in a city, town or village consists of a lot or lots not to exceed $5,000 value at the time of their designation as the homestead, without reference to the value of the improvements; provided that the same shall be used for the purposes of a home, or as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of the family; provided also that any temporary renting of the homestead shall not change it as a homestead when no other homestead is acquired.

Courts have held that no formal steps are necessary to "designation" of a homestead, the intent to make it such being the governing fact.

7,458 Loans Made By R. F. C., Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Reconstruction Finance corporation in a statement today disclosed that 7,458 loans were made in the first seven months of its operation and a total of $1,182,734,958 loaned to aid agriculture, commerce and industry.

Of the total loans made 4,769 were to banks. A total of $107,500,000 was made available to the sec'y of agriculture for crop production loans, the statement showed.

A decline in applications for loans since last April was reported. Loans have been repaid to the amount of $150,890,897.

RECESS TAKEN IN HEARING OF VOTE CONTEST

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—Arguments on the first legal point in the Sterling-Ferguson election contest suit were completed shortly after noon today in district court here. Judge W. F. Robertson took under advisement the question as to whether his court has jurisdiction in the case.

Judge Robertson asked attorneys for both sides to furnish him with cases they had cited in their arguments. He recessed court until 3:30 this afternoon.

FERGUSON OFFENDED AT CRANE'S REMARK

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—Fisticuffs were barely averted in district court today when former Gov. James E. Ferguson took offense at remarks made by M. M. Crane, attorney for Gov. Ross Sterling in the election contest arguments.

"It was well known that when Mrs. Ferguson was governor before, her husband received employment from a number of concerns including the Sugarland interests," Crane said.

Ferguson jumped from his seat and started toward Crane. Luther Nickels, his wife's attorney, grabbed him and held him back.

Ferguson attorneys then verbally assailed Crane for his remark, admonishing him to confine his statements to the subject before the court.

"Well, I've said what I wanted to," Crane replied, concluding the controversy.

Judge Robertson Has Declined to Pass upon Appointment of Commissioners to Take Testimony over the State and Forward it to the Trial Court Here as Proposed by Sterling Counsel until He has Ruled on the Question of Jurisdiction.

The matter of jurisdiction in dispute is whether the district court has the right of action after Ferguson attorneys filed a motion in the state supreme court for permission to secure a writ of mandamus to force putting Mrs. Ferguson's name on the general election ballot.

Attorneys for Sterling maintained the supreme court in effect declared the district court jurisdiction.

Ferguson attorneys contend the supreme court merely told both sides not to use the fact that a motion had been filed there to delay procedure in the district court.

SILHOUETTE OF HOOVER WAITS TO GREET HIM

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 4.—A silhouette of President Herbert Hoover five stories high and 50 feet wide smiled down on the busiest corner in Des Moines today while the city awaited his home coming with mingled sentiment.

Under the silhouette two parades passed today, one of striking farmers protesting the way the chief executive has dealt with the agricultural problems, and the other of the president's supporters.

President Hoover will climax a heavy day's campaign swing across Illinois with an address here tonight. Mrs. Hoover accompanied the president, determined to share in the strenuous program.

Ogden L. Mills, sec'y of the treasury, fired the opening gun of President Hoover's campaign in California last night with an address in which he pictured Gov. Roosevelt as "inexperienced," "unable to grasp the situation" and "an apostle of despair."

POLITICAL MANAGERS CLAIM THE EARTH.

In the remote past Michigan gave to the political world Zachary Chandler. He was of the keen practical brand. He held high office. He was first congressional representative and then a senator. He was national chairman of the committee of his party in a bitterly contested presidential election. A month in advance of election day this was the order he sent all down the line to his lieutenants: "Claim every damn thing in sight." Ever since the passing of the lamented Zack it has been the sworn as well as the sacred and solemn duty of a political manager to "claim every damn thing in sight."

Vice Pres. Charles Curtis is claiming all the states for the republicans that Hoover and Curtis carried in 1928. This includes Texas. Sen. George H. Moses claims everything in sight—"with a few exceptions." Gen. Pat Hurley claims all the states landed in the republican column in 1928, "and to make Oklahoma safe" he is going to make nine speeches in the commonwealth bossed by Alfalfa William Murray. Secy. Sanders of the Hoover kitchen cabinet is an extraordinary claimer.

Well, National Chmna. James A. Farley has returned to New York headquarters after a trip from coast to coast with the Roosevelt party. Farley to date has not made a political bet that he has not won. He lets it be known that a great liberal party has made rapid organization and headway in the West and the Mid-West, and that Roosevelt is its popular choice. He looks for a democratic landslide in November. He senses or smells victory in the air. He believes that at least three New England states will land in the Roosevelt column, and that New York and New Jersey are as certain to go democratic in November as Vermont is to go republican or South Carolina roll up its accustomed majority for democratic nominee. All other democratic managers or advisers are predicting a ground swell and an overwhelming victory as the climax. Organization, like charity, begins at home. Democrats of Texas are reminded that it never pays to go to sleep at the switch. Four years ago they entered into a trance-like condition. They did not know that there was an enemy in sight. A terrific jolt restored Jeffersonian consciousness the morning after election day. Now it is the duty of a democrat to do his bit in precinct and county and district and state. Four years of "Hoover prosperity" well nigh wrecked the American republic. Twelve years of special privilege legislation directed by Harding and Coolidge and Hoover played havoc with the pockets of the growers of things, as well as the makers of things and the vast army of wage workers of America.

Control of the federal government, the president and the congress are the stakes and if the people wish a government that is not a special privilege class government, then it is for them to restore to power the party of the people in order that laws may be enacted, tariff and taxation and finance, which will protect all the people in their rights and their possessions, instead of fattening the pockets of the beneficiaries of class government. October will be the round-up month of the campaign. There is organization work to be done. There is coin to be raised to defray the expense of legitimate work along political lines in nation and state. Out on the firing line and get busy in the work of restoring a government of the people and not a government of the selected and favored few who have dictated all legislation in recent years.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—It's a strange business when a multimillionaire such as Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills is made the one big gun of the Hoover campaign, assigned almost single-handed to save the president's skin and to follow around behind Governor Roosevelt to undo whatever good the Democratic candidate may have done for himself.

Not many years ago it would have been considered virtually suicidal to hand such a job to anyone who symbolized great wealth, Wall Street and the ultra-conservative in politics as Mills does.

Today virtually all the members of the cabinet are millionaires and the administration is so frankly conservative that selection of Mills as its chief strategist and tower of strength in this campaign is appropriate.

MILLS, however, does not owe his present position either to his wealth or the fact that he is a regular of regulars. He has been given this high trust and great power partly because Mr. Hoover's other close advisers and speakers obviously haven't the qualifications for the job and partly because Ogden has proved himself such an able citizen.

It will be interesting to see how it works out as Mills goes tearing around the circle in Roosevelt's wake, dissecting and scorning the governor's speeches, harpooning him from the rear. It would be more fortunate if Mills had had time to acquire political stature and prestige comparable to that of Borah and Hughes, the two heaviest Hoover orators of 1928. He has come along with remarkable speed, however, and western Republicans can be sure that, with the president of the stump, Mills is the best they will get.

MILLS never has made any bones about his social-economic beliefs. He works in close contact with the nation's financial leaders and he holds that the country is best off when in the hands of men accustomed to handling millions.

Mills, more than any other man, is identified with the depression policy which has produced the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and which is based on the theory that the only real prosperity is the sort which has to "trickle down to the masses."

Unless the country has already attached itself to that brand of conservatism and is largely sympathetic with the Hoover policies, Mills may get none too warm a reception out west.

He makes the best defenses of the administration that have yet been heard, but it is doubtful whether any speaker this year could sway a great number of votes one way or the other. Hence the secretary's chief function is likely to be to get western Republicans pepped up and out on the job.

OUT OUR WAY

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

He of the frosty whiskers appears to be mighty impatient this year. He whipped up a nice northern this morning by way of warning and just to let us know that the dry goods man and the gas man have to make livings. I am thinking seriously of applying to Mrs. Pettis and Mrs. Brown for a winter suit.

Some of the boys over the district are making ado over the fact that three Cisco newspapermen had to decorate the barrel top to get a glimpse of the Buckaroos in action over at Breckenridge last week. They seem to find something significant in that. Bobby Campbell, Breckenridge editor, rather exaggerates our wounded feelings for a moral. He intimates that our resentment was beyond his ability to pacify.

Now, recognizing Bobby's good intentions none of the trio of Ciscoites who helped pay the interest on the Buckaroo debt last Friday made any fuss over the charge. To speak the truth it is not the first time that a Cisco newspaperman has paid to get into Buckaroo field. Friday's experience therefore was not so far out of the ordinary.

I had intended saying nothing about the matter in the newspaper for the simple reason that I did not wish to give the appearance that our vanity had been wounded, but since Bobby and some of his contemporaries have seen fit to dwell upon the incident and to use the alleged injury to our collective pride as an opportunity for some pointed sermonizing, I feel I should make our position clear. Honestly, folks, it was funny.

What a nice evening for an appetite. Some clairvoyant quality on the part of the arrangements committee for the Merchants' Smoker dinner tonight must have designated this evening as the time for the dinner at the Mobley hotel. Possibly the weatherman heard that turkey is to be the piece de resistance on the bill of fare.

Turkey, you know, is the poorest warm weather food imaginable. But garnish it with a cold norther and you have a meal that warms the soul.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—More good intentions of a 181-member legislature gone wrong. Only this time it didn't take the customary second bill to repeal or patch up the first.

The law that would have put Speaker Garner's name on the ticket as Texas' offering for vice president has been held void.

A year ago, the legislature set out to lift from those who vote the big task of scratching 21 republican or democratic electors. It was to put on the name of the nominees for president and vice president as a label for the list of electors.

Atty. Gen. Alford said the law was so vague as to be void. So 42 electors instead of Messrs. Roosevelt and Garner, Hoover and Curtis' names, will go on the ballot in November.

Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum, secretary of state, said that instead of neither the old or the new state democratic committee's having certified the electors, both groups had done so the new committee twice.

Now, when Texas goes democratic, its 21 electoral votes will be recorded for the democratic nominees. Mr. Garner's name will be on the ballot in his district for re-election to congress. If he is elected vice president, he will resign the congressional seat, and a new election will be held in time for his successor to take office March 4.

It has become known in Austin that the courtly Sen. B. F. Berkeley of Alpine is now preparing to be in the race for lieutenant governor two years hence, after four years' service in the senate. He is author of one of the state's most potent revenue-raising laws, the cigaret tax.

Is there a conflict looming over the running of the Texas end of the democratic national victory crusade? National Committeeman J. C. Adams and National Committeewoman Clara Driscoll Sevier, set up the campaign offices in Austin, with Rev. Miller and Sen. Margie Neal as co-directors. Now Maury Hughes, new democratic state chairman, announced the state committee is preparing to take over the "vote the ticket straight campaign under what he said was a national policy to entrust the state campaigns to the state organizations. What effect will this have on the organization already busily at work?

The new state committee was chosen by an all-Ferguson state convention, and naturally its interest is in the election of the Ferguson convention nominee for governor Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson. It's campaign naturally will be to support the ticket straight.

Its job naturally is to do all possible to cause Mrs. Ferguson's election, she being, in the decree of the convention that created the committee, its nominee. With the divergence of opinion in Texas on the gubernatorial nomination, the question will be asked whether this leadership will be furthering the national ticket, or will be putting a lead on it. Certainly no one supposes any question of defeating the national electors in Texas exists outside the split over the governor's race.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Those with a quiet mind and an observant eye must find the present of surprising interest. We seem to be at the end of everything that is old and the beginning of everything new.

This new brand of politics, as preached over the radio, is indeed confusing. I have listened to quite a few of our politicians lately and have found some amazing statements among them. I heard, as near as I could understand:

That democracy has come to the end of her road, and unless we elect a certain party there is only emptiness and a howling wilderness ahead. The next night another politician said that the other party gave us freedom with one hand and bound us in chains with the other. I heard, among other things:

That one party gives us liberty, but works us so hard in order to pay for it that we are a sorry lot of slaves.

That our governments for the past few years have been no governments at all, but mere corks riding on an aimless, restless, mindless sea of natural instinct.

That the lessons of these past years with their upheavals and internal disruptions are that no people are capable of governing themselves without a strong directional power whose stability is unassailable, and the air is full of names of the only ones to do this work.

It seems that the politicians do not call upon the people to govern themselves, but only to choose among the spell-binders those who will govern as they see fit.

We are indeed bewildered over the radio talks and hope that our political parties will buy space in our newspapers and tell their stories there so we can read their promises carefully and study them over. It would be more satisfying to the voters.

GENTS SEND STEER STOCK TO NEW LOW

By DICK WEST
Texan Sport Staff
(Special to the Cisco Daily News)

The recent action of the Southwest sports scribes, who almost unanimously placed the University of Texas Longhorns as outstanding favorites to annex the football laurels of this section, was at the time a seemingly intelligent proceeding. In the first game of the season every Southwest authority of any eminence was in Memorial stadium to witness the galaxy of stars that Clyde Littlefield was to present against Daniel Baker.

After the game, which was a listless affair and one that revealed many apparent weaknesses in the Steer machine, the prophet went away rather dubious as to the publicized supremacy of the Austin eleven.

Last Saturday a band of twenty lads from the marshes of Louisiana, wearing red and white jerseys that reminded one of those Aggies back in Dana Bible's days, administered a humiliating defeat to the Orange and White. Centenary is a name of respect in Austin now, for those southern gentlemen from Shreveport can make a football do everything but decline a Latin noun. But no name is so sacred as that of Murff, No. 53. The first touchdown that he made was the most remarkable catch this writer has ever seen on a gridiron.

He was racing at top speed toward the south goal, was knocked down once, got up, was staggered temporarily, jumped high in the air, gathered in the ball with remarkable alacrity, and fell to the turf with a resounding thud that the legislators in the capitol must have heard. He returned to the game in the closing minutes of the fray to score another touchdown and kicked goal. Yes, the Orange and White gents were gentlemen in that they did not allow Ralph Murff to carry the ball off.

Sophomores Flash.

As to the Steers, there were only two bright spots. Bobn Hilliard is truly a marvelous ball carrier and a great safety man. His return of punts averaged nearly twenty yards a trial. He never had a chance to break through the line for Stafford, Koy, and Clowis were so utterly inefficient and listless in running interference that he was swarmed time after time. The other hopeful ray on the Steer horizon was Sears "Oochie" Sarle, sophomore end. He played a remarkable defensive game and almost insured himself of a starting berth.

So the scribes are now in a dilemma. The Longhorn stock has dropped below par, and the stock of Texas Christian, Rice, and A. & M. is being boosted. The Frogs, with a 190-pound line and a veteran backfield, the Owls with five teams that are equally adept in the baffling style of play that Jack Meagher uses, and those fighting Cadets with Dominick Graves and Spencer in the backfield, are all given a good chance to win the title. In the meantime, fans are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the Steers' battle with Frank Carideo's Missouri Tigers. With Carideo's charges using the Rockne shift and the Steers using Littlefield's new shift, the players should look like an infantry going over the top.

MODERN SURGERY RESTORES HAND TO TINY RANCH BABY

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Oct. 4. — Because modern surgery can perform miracles, 19-months-old Doris Johnson will have a new hand.

She fell into a pile of hot ashes, as she walked, unsteadily, in the yard of her father's ranch home, at Worland, Wyo.

For weeks she suffered terrible agony from the burns. One hand was so badly burned that when it was unbanded, weeks later, only a stump remained. The flesh of the fingers had grown together. Infection set in.

The Johnsons are not wealthy. They did not have money for great surgeons and for operations.

But a Methodist minister who saw the child, intervened.

A Number of Them

He got in touch with authorities at Beth-El Hospital, here, and asked if perhaps there was not some doctor who would be willing to save that little girl, by building her a new hand, without pay.

He found there were quite a few of those sort of doctors.

So Beth-El agreed to aid, and Doris was brought here.

The baby went under ether, and the surgeons split the tiny fingers apart, broke the twisted bone and reset it straight, and one by one made the twisted little fingers whole again.

Soon they will perform another operation. Skin will be grafted on the hand and fingers to hide the hideous scars left by the flames, and in another year or so no one ever will be able to tell that Doris once had no hand.

Huge Monument For War Dead

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy, Oct. 4. — Work on the huge monument in the Dolomites to be built on the Belvedere di Pool, at a height of over 1,500 meters, has started.

The bodies of 6,000 Italian soldiers who fell in the war, will be gathered from the eight military cemeteries of Generale Cantore, Aquile delle Toafne, The Croics, Ruffredo, Stua Getresim Cimabanche, and Flamme.

The monument, designs for which have been drawn up by Engineer Raimondi, will rise at the eastern limit of the picturesque existing war cemetery, Aquile delle Toafne. The estimate for the cost is two and a half million lire, but it is considered likely that this sum will be exceeded.

The plan of the monument, which will be one of the most imposing in the world, contemplates a base 30 meters by 30 meters, from which a decorated tower 45 meters high will rise, that will be illuminated at night.

It is calculated that the monument will take about a year to build.

Museum Shows Treasured Arms

PARIS, Oct. 4. — The new wing of the National Army Museum of the Invalides has been opened. It consists of three rooms, 360 feet long and containing over 6,000 treasures.

It is to be called either the Salle Vauban, or the Salle Louvois, decision has not yet been made on the name. It houses arms of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries.

In July, 1931, another room was opened, which contained the arms of the period of Louis XIII. Between this room and the new wing is a smaller chamber filled with Oriental arms and those of the Stone Age. The artillery is located on the first floor, which makes it possible to study the arms of every period from prehistoric times to modern.

Among the exhibits are old-fashioned muzzle-loading cannon, beautifully wrought arquebuses of the

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardui has helped thousands of women:

"I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unnerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day.

"My mother had taken Cardui, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time."

Cardui is sold by local druggists.

Excellent Training

When Frank Bess, big halfback on Marshall College's football team, goes into spring training, he does it on a train. During summer vacation, the Huntington, W. Va., school's star is a fireman on a railroad, and his coal stoking keeps the excess fat off. Above he's shown in action on the football field and in the local motive cab.

CALL of the WEST

64 R. G. MONTGOMERY

him. Like a flash Stan struck out and, as he did so, raised one booted foot in a desperate kick. His aim was as true as it could have been in daylight. Swergin's gun went clattering to the floor. Stan leaped across the doorway and flattened himself. He heard a muttered curse as the big boss tried to get his other gun clear.

With eager fingers Stan sought on the floor for Swergin's gun. He found it and leaped up to shove the heavy revolver into his captor's face. So rapidly did it all happen that Swergin was covered before he could get Stan's gun from the blazer pocket where he had shoved it. As he felt the cold steel of his own weapon shoved into his throat he cursed loudly.

"Shut up or I'll drill you!" Stan snapped.

Swergin was instantly silent.

"I'd kill you, Swergin, but the report of your gun would wake the camp." Stan had recovered his own gun by this time. As he felt for it his fingers closed upon a square of cardboard in the boss's pocket. He took this too, and backed out through the door. "Stay in there!" he hissed.

Swergin stared while Stan barred the door with a heavy plank. Hastily then he cut across the clearing to where he had cached the supplies. He must have food to live upon and now he was sure Swergin would tighten the pack around his little area of safety.

The moon was just showing over the shoulder of Folly Mountain. The buildings of the timber camp were still in darkness but the clearing was crossed by a band of silver light. Stan hurried because he knew that in half an hour riding would be almost as dangerous as in daylight.

He caught up the burlap sack of supplies and headed toward the black mare. The night was still, with a chill silence that comes to the high country from its crowns of snow above the valleys.

The black mare nickered softly as Stan approached. He slid through the thick brush and patted her sleek neck. Not 10 feet down the slope a white patch of moonlight was creeping upward. Fastening the sack securely behind the saddle, Stan prepared to mount. His hand rested a second on one pocket of his jumper and he felt the cardboard he had taken from Swergin. Pulling it out he stepped into the moonlight and looked at it curiously.

Nevertheless he put the black mare to a gallop and headed up the mountain. He had to drop well down on the Pass Creek side in order to cross a rocky formation that would hide his tracks. Then there was a stream to follow as a further blind. To be caught at any one of these open places would mean instant death from a rifle. Already Stan could hear the pounding of hoofs below and above him. Swergin had sent his fastest riders deep into the hills to head off the cowboy. A swarm of lesser hunters would bring up the rear. Touching the mare's flank with a spur, Stan gave her her head. There was little at stake, yet he had suddenly taken new interest in living.

THE scene at the corrals was feverish. Dona ran up the steps to take her place beside Dudley who had not joined the hunt. She had removed all traces of her tears of a few minutes before and was now eagerly watching the scene below.

"I'd like to go with them but I'm not going to," Dudley whispered as she slipped an arm around her.

Dona did not reply but she moved closer to him as though to shield herself from something that might come from the chill night.

The last horseman galloped out of camp with thundering hoofs and sounds of shouting came from up the mountain. Shots rang out from the direction of Pass Creek. A fusillade followed from far above. Then all was still. The moon had cleared the highest crag on Folly Mountain and the entire slope lay in shimmering, silver beauty. Dona sank to the porch and propped her chin in her hands. So much of beauty yet such terrible things taking place. She strove to understand it all, but more to understand herself.

"Let's stay here. It's so beautiful," she murmured.

"Not for long, dear." Dudley pulled his coat over her shoulders.

Dona did not answer. She was deep in wonder at the queer tightness in her heart. She was in a panic now that she was committed to marrying Dudley and she could not find a single valid reason why she should feel this way.

"Better be going in now," Dudley said, and got to his feet.

Still Dona hesitated. She looked up, trying to smile. "Just a minute more!" she begged. "The moon hasn't reached that patch of timber under Folly Peak."

FRENCH TURN TOWARD MANLY BEARDS AGAIN

By SAMUEL DASHIELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Oct. 4.—The beard is coming back. Not only fashion, but of a deeper psychological law, that of change and of manly self assertion, has decreed in France that the beard shall grow and that for a while, during the next years' troubles, men will be men.

If the Germans want another fight, they can have it, and the chances are that this time, the German High Command will not find itself being "baffled by a beardless boy," but confronted by a tough and hirsute Gallic tribe with whiskers flowing from their gas masks. The French poilu always has been bearded, due as much to the lack of toilet facilities, as to the dictates of modern trench fashion, but in the present war, officers and men as well, sought the soothing comfort of a clean face when on liberty here. Moreover, the hordes of clean faced British and American warriors, more or less forced the fashion in Europe.

After the war, the smooth face regime continued, and the youth of France descended from time to time to let grow on the upper lip a small moustache, clipped and restrained within small space.

The only beards, which made their untimely appearance in the Capital were those of the young Americans, mostly of the Latin Quarter type who donned corduroy pants, affected but one loyal and constant shirt, and let the chin whiskers fall in silken profusion where the necktie used to be. There were some other beards here among those inveterate boulevardiers, who are not flighty and whose beards are marks of identity.

Some of these included the veteran author and playwright, Tristan Bernard, the brilliant columnist Jacques de Fouchardiere, Calude Farrere, Raymond Poincare and even the martyred President Doumer were a venerable white beard. The present discussion, however, intimates that beards are coming back because women want them. It is notable that in the paintings and sketches that represent the life of the latter part of the last century, the gray young gallants invariably sported well trimmed beards. The Luxembourg abroad with canvases wherein the beauty of women is met in the same frame with the attractions of man duly depicted in ample moustaches and generous beards.

The Parisian editors, who are as deeply concerned with the return of the beard as they are with the trouble in Germany, aver that it is the reaction that has set in. They argue that the Frenchman is bearded by nature, his ancestors, the intrepid Gauls, wore ferocious moustaches and beards, and they claim there is some natural attraction in a man who wears the badge of adult growth.

SOVIET DELAYS COPPER PLANS IN BALKHAZH

By EUGENE LYONS

United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—Russia's sensational project for the world's largest copper producing combine on the bleak Asiatic shore of Lake Balkhazh most likely will be abandoned for the time being owing to insurmountable transportation and other obstacles.

Notice to the effect that this industrial "giant" one of the foremost undertakings of the second five year plan, will be indefinitely "conserved" has already been given by responsible officials in "Balkhazhstroi." In an interview with the Industrial Gazette here, M. Shipke, one of the leaders of the non-ferrous metals industry, declared that further attempts to construct the central Asiatic copper combine would be futile and a waste of capital. He frankly recommended its "conservation" until an effective railroad could be built.

60,000,000 Rubles
Preparatory work on the copper giant already has consumed 60,000,000 rubles. There is not even a single house, the press declares, to show for this huge investment. It apparently all has been used to feed the 15,000 workers, with their dependents, a population of 35,000, transported by barge and camel to the desert region near the Pamirs.

A prominent American engineer, John Calder, is at present on the site. He was scheduled to direct the entire construction, one of the most responsible jobs ever entrusted to a foreigner.

Five Small Ships
An idea of conditions may be obtained from the fact that only 10,000 tons of freight could be brought to Balkhazh this year although the plans called for 300,000 tons. Only two small vessels and three barges provide contact with the opposite shore of the lake beyond which is a wilderness, which must be traversed by camel, or airplane. The second five year plan calls for a railroad to Balkhazh, but it has not been started and is not scheduled for completion until 1935.

The ambitious plans envisaged an eventual annual output of 175,000 tons of copper. The estimated cost of the project was 450,000,000 rubles of which 100,000,000 were assigned for this year and already have been used up without tangible results. The postponement probably means

Zionists Move Is Made as Protest

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—The Zionist revisionists have decided to move their international headquarters from London to Geneva, at a conference held here. This is a protest at what the leaders of the organization consider to be repeated violations of its Palestine mandate by Great Britain.

"For years", a communique issued by the conference secretariat stated "the Jewish masses have been sabotaged by the British government instead of being helped in their colonization of Palestine. Having attempted in vain to influence Britain to honor her mandate, the Zionist Revisionists have therefore decided to launch a campaign to obtain for the Jewish population of Palestine the rights to which they are entitled under the mandate."

The active direction of affairs in Geneva will be in the hands of the organization's president, Vladimir Jabotinsky, and the two vice-presidents, Meir Grossman and Dr. S. E. Soskin. In addition to these three, the executive committee also will include Robert Stricker, of Vienna, and Dr. A. Machover, of London.

During the next six months all members of the executive, accompanied by other leaders in the Revisionist organization, will tour various parts of the world to obtain signatures to a document of protest against present conditions in Palestine. On tour efforts will also be made to obtain financial backing for

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?
