

KLAN AND ANTI-KLAN IN OKLAHOMA.

(Literary Digest)

"Always the Klan or some members of the Klan," said Aldrich Blake, Governor Walton's investigator, is the "brutal refrain" which runs through 1,200 pages in the Oklahoma military court's sworn testimony on floggings in Tulsa. This it is which, according to an Associated Press account, "led Governor J. C. Walton to invoke martial law in Tulsa county." "In every case thus far examined," says the investigator, "except two, which have not proceeded very far, the evidence has led straight to the doorsteps of the invisible empire, known as the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan." That this is the statement of one misguided or badly informed, or is "part of a nationally organized effort to discredit the Klan," is, however the flat denial of the Fiery Cross, the official Klan organ. "Not a single proven act of lawlessness by the Klan organization" is their emphatic way of summing up the matter.

From southern press dispatches on the Klan issue thus definitely joined in Oklahoma, the chain of events may be summarized:

"On August 14, claiming that lawlessness and insurrection existed, the governor sent a military court of inquiry to Tulsa, which by August 27 had sentenced four floggers who were admitted members of the K. K. K. On September 1 the militia took over the sheriff's and police departments and the writ of habeas corpus was suspended in Tulsa county, followed by a vigorous discussion of the constitutionality of it ever since. On September 6 the governor's investigator published testimony with regard to the year's floggings which he estimated occurred 'perhaps two hundred times,' a committee petitioned the governor to end martial law, and Congressman Everett B. Howard appealed to the secretary of war against the use of national guard. But the governor declaring that legal agencies had broken down, threatened martial law for the whole state, while Secretary Weeks refused to interfere with the militia. Coincident with a report that the 'master mind' of Oklahoma's whippings was about to be caught, a 'veritable epidemic of floggings' broke out in six counties at once, while the grand dragon of Oklahoma, charging the governor's personal animosity against the Klan, said: 'The governor and all his cohorts never will be able to break the power of the Klan in Oklahoma.' On September 10 the grand dragon complied with an edict of the governor, and forbade all masked parades of meetings in Oklahoma."

One of the governor's most powerful political opponents, the Tulsa World, after reminding its readers of its habitual opinion of Governor Walton and the 'band of political adventurers he has gathered about him," adds:

"But as between the invisible empire and its flagrant disregard of the rights of citizenship, its treasonable and vicious defiance of orderly government, as evidenced by the blazing crosses and mob activities, the World frankly admits its choice is with Governor Walton."

"If it is true that Tulsa City and county are ruled by Klansmen elected to office, what excuse, let the question be asked in all seriousness, for the whippings and the mob activity?"

Lecil's Cash Store

tains that in Texas the Klan during the past year has participated in no feathering or flogging, while the official Klan organ, the Indianapolis Fiery Cross, wires us in part:

"The wholesale releasing of prisoners by Governor Walton in Oklahoma and his issuing of pardons before sentences are passed, and on the other hand not a single proven act of lawlessness by the Klan organization, make it appear that the statement that floggings in Oklahoma are to be laid rarely at the door of the Klan is a statement of either a misguided or badly informed governor, or a part of a nationally organized effort to discredit the Klan."

To many papers throughout the country at large, the Oklahoma situation seems to intensify an impression left by the Klan parades, attendant riots, etc., elsewhere in the United States. The Milwaukee Journal recalls that the first Ku Klux Klan, evolved with high purpose, was dissolved by President Grant because it had degenerated into whippings and murders by irresponsible men working in the dark.

"We put on Klan out of business because it didn't make the practices of its members square with its professed theory." Floggings in Louisiana, Texas and Florida, and confessions in Oklahoma reveal the same vicious circle."

John Snider Will Go Into Poultry Business on Big Scale—Is Making Money

John Snider, from near Carbon, was in Cisco Friday.

Mr. Snider is a strong believer in the poultry business as the coming one for the farmer in this country. He has recently traveled over the western states and visited some of the chicken farms of that section and he says that many farmers have turned their attention almost entirely to the raising of poultry to the exclusion of everything else, with the result that they are now independent in a way, and, at the same time, are becoming established in a growing business that has no limitations.

He found farmers who have installed big hatcheries and are running them at full capacity and yet can't fill the orders that come to them.

They say that any one with energy and average intelligence can succeed in the poultry business, if they will not begin on too large a scale at first and, rather, grow into the business. He says this climate is ideal

A SWEET-CLOVER ENTHUSIAST.

Willis Razor of Frisco, Collin county, Texas, has thirteen acres of sweet clover on which more than 100 head of livestock, including purebred Shorthorn cattle, sheep, horses and hogs, have been grazing since March. Late in August this pasture was still furnishing good grazing and all the stock was sleek and fat as though it had been on full feed all that time. Razor says he is enthusiastic on the subject of sweet clover because experience with it has proven it to be about the best all around crop that he knows of, where lots of stock are to be fed.

IT IS NOT WORK THAT KILLS.

(Christina Dickey)

"Get an education, Jim, and you won't have to kill yourself working like your Dad has always done." "Study hard Susie, so you can get a nice easy job when you grow up and not drudge your life out like Mamma has had to do."

Was there ever a farm boy or girl who did not receive such admonition from sunup until sundown? I have been there and know whereof I speak. In reviewing childhood days, I can recall many times when soiled dishes were piled high, churning was ready, clothes waiting to be ironed, and yet a very dear, indulgent mother would say to me, "Don't wait to help me. I'll get through some time. Go to your lessons and you won't have to do such work as this." or maybe the garden needed hoeing and my proffered help was refused on the grounds that I mustn't ruin my hands with such work. "Run along and practice on the piano and maybe some day you can be a good music teacher, or even a concert pianist, who knows?"

This attitude which existed a generation ago is still abroad in the land. Loving but misguided parents are still trying to turn the thoughts of their boys and girls to the city and so-called "easy jobs." Why? Because they imagine farm work kills and that other jobs are easy.

This is an age when we are terribly afraid our children are going to be hurt by work. We are unconvinced by the knowledge that our grandfathers split the rails for their fences, hewed the logs to build their houses, cut large fields of grain with hand scythes; that our grandmothers manufactured the thread and cloth from which they made by hand the family garments, did the laundry work on the bank of a creek with the aid of a stick and a board, cooked on an open fireplace even in hot weather, and then lived, most of them, to a ripe old age. We know these things, yet we feel that Jim must be protected from the hardships of running modern cultivators, binders, discs and tractors; while Susie must not exert herself doing a little sewing, laundry work or cooking, even with the aid of the latest machinery and labor saving devices.

How can one conceivably stress the fact that "all is not gold that glitters?" Neither are the "soft jobs" easy. However, nothing but experience will really make one believe it.

Having learned my lessons and absorbed the parental training in regard to my future destiny, I developed into the much desired pianist and teacher. It was then I learned my first real lesson. It is this: Anything and everything in this world that is worth doing requires hard work, spelled with capitals and underscored besides. There is positively no evading work. One may change his job but the chances are that work will chase him like a relentless hound.

Various changes have come my way. Each job brings its new responsibilities and added mental strain. There are times when I feel a desire to trade jobs with my grandmother. Yes, I think it would be restful to sit on the shady bank of a stream with the family wash piled beside me—I'd even be willing to try the battling board one time.

After all, as Henry Ward Beecher says, "It is not work that kills men, it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more work on a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction."

The truth of the statement is written on the faces of men and women whether their spheres of activity be the farm, bank, factory, kitchen, office, or society. The careworn lines in the farmer's face, the stoop in his shoulders and often the listless drag as he walks, are not there because he works, but because he worries. He worries because it didn't rain last week. He suffers an agony of suspense wondering if chinch bugs will get the corn and boll worms or weevils the cotton; these pests may not show up, but he has had the worry just the same. He frets years of his life away and then he thinks he killed himself working. He is as anticipatory of trouble as the old lady who seldom admitted that she felt well, and when she did, always hastened to explain, "Yes, I feel better today; but I always feel bad when I'm better because I know I'll be worse tomorrow."

Dr. Eva M. Wilson, physician of Manhattan, Illinois, and state president of the department of household science, affirms that when farmers retire they soon die. She says anyone can verify this truth by observing the great number of retired farmers' widows in any town. Consulting the census list in one village, she discovered that there were not forty retired farmers, but forty retired farmers' widows, living in the village. The explanation, Dr. Wilson tells us, is that when the farmer and his wife move to town she carries on the household duties, thereby getting exercise which keeps her healthy; while the farmer being removed from his usual tasks, does absolutely nothing and his body soon deteriorates through inactivity. Again we see that it is not work that kills.

May we speed the day when every child will have that as his birthright. But let no farmer's son harbor the false impression that he is going to ride to success over an easy trail and leave all the hard work back on the farm for Dad and Mother.

FARMING "LOOKING UP"

(P. Green.)

Our friends, unfavorable weather and Jimmie Bollweevil, certainly worked overtime for us cotton farmers this year. Because we are to produce only about 10,000,000 bales of cotton the gamblers are not in as good position to deal us a phoney hand as they would have been had the weather and Jimmie Bollweevil failed to reduce the crop. Had our friends failed us and a normal yield been made, a crop of 14,000,000 or more bales would have been produced and the gamblers would have dealt every cotton farmer a losing hand.

A shower in Possum Trot during a sustained drouth becomes an excuse to lower, on the exchange, the price of cotton. Even though no cotton was planted in the area around Possum Trot covered by the shower the bears will paw down the price a few points at least. A short crop will bring in dollars and cents more than a normal yield, and a profit will be made by the producer.

The weather did fine in cutting down the cotton yield but at the same time it also shortened many feed crops. However, as soon as it finished with cotton, it proceeded to punch holes in the clouds and let down plenty of water to help late feed crops and make "green grass grow all around" on the stock ranges. We are fixed for fat cattle, sheep and goats, poultry and ton hog litters, and we are going to do much better butchering and curing at home to reduce living expense and put fat on our ribs.

The man who pities the farmer should attend church morning and evening for a few Sundays and devoutly pray for enlightenment and then seek an invitation to dinner with a farmer who knows how to run a farm on business principles. The real farmers by co-operation have learned how to dodge the speculators and by reading have learned that their next best step will be to sidetrack the "promising" state and national politicians. Farmers that need pity have deserted the fields and moved to town. The real dirt farmers have full smokehouses and bank accounts.

American Public Service Company Preferred Stock

From time to time, as financial requirements have demanded, it has been the policy of the West Texas Utilities Company to sell to its customers in West Texas the preferred stock of the American Public Service Company. The West Texas Utilities Company, as West Texas understands generally, is one of the constituent companies of the American Public Service Company, which has other subsidiaries operating in East Texas and Oklahoma.

Obtaining stockholders in West Texas have already become familiar, through promptly paid quarterly dividends, with the American Public Service Company's dependable financial record, while customers in West Texas are familiar with the West Texas Utilities Company's splendid growth and development.

Expanding impressively—yet solidly and substantially—this development has been made possible through the financial service rendered by the American Public Service Company. Since January 1, 1921, $3,171,033 of new money has been expended in this West Texas development, so that, today, Central West Texas has in the West Texas Utilities Company one of the finest operating companies in the United States, with its physical properties in superlatively fine condition.

Noteworthy in this expansion has been the rebuilding of transmission lines, the remodeling of the Cisco electric generating and ice station, the erection of modern and model office buildings at Baird, Tuscola, Albany, Hamlin, Haskell and Munday, the building of a new ice plant at Hamlin and of a new power station at Stamford, the purchase, rehabilitation and electrification of the Roby & Northern Railroad (which, while a short line, is assured of a profitable freight business), the complete rehabilitation of the gas distribution system in Abilene, the erection of a central power station and of a general office building in Abilene, and the extension of transmission lines to approximately a score of new communities.

In East Texas and Oklahoma, the American Public Service Company's subsidiaries have developed similarly, and these other constituent companies, together with the West Texas Utilities Company unite to make American Public Service Company preferred stock one of the most attractive and safest of utility securities ever offered for sale to the public.

American Public Service Company preferred stock is now offered for sale by the West Texas Utilities Company, and it will be sold for cash, or, if the investor prefers, it may be purchased for $10.00 a share at the time of subscription, and $5 a share per month until fully paid.

Interest at the rate of 7 per cent will be paid on such monthly installments.

Stock may be purchased at any office of this Company, or through any employee of this Company.

CISCO—LEADING COTTON MARKET.

With the exception of one day, when Ranger lead, Cisco this year has consistently paid the highest price for Eastland county cotton. Local merchants are competing with our capable ginner and others in buying the staple—as predicted by the American at the beginning of the season—and this is a guarantee that the producer will receive the full market price for his product. This is as it should be. The wise farmer will take his cotton and other products where he can get the best price, hence the decision of Cisco merchants to cooperate with him in every way possible can but work to the commercial advantage of Eastland county's natural business hub.

HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION.

Those well balanced young people who stay in school now—and make full use of their time while there—will be able to serve Texas, the nation and themselves in much greater degree later on. There is no such thing as too much learning for the well balanced brain, and Cisco high school was never in better shape to render advantageous aid. Stay in school and—work!—Cisco American.

Commenting on the above paragraph, Col. Joe Taylor, of the Dallas News, says:

"Right you are, that there is no such thing as too much learning for a well-balanced brain. But isn't it possible for too much learning to become sufficiently top-heavy to unbalance a person's brains? There is a chance for over-education to put the individual in worse case than undereducation would have done. Over-education is that degree of learning which causes the possessor to paramount knowledge and subordinate practice. Practice is the application of knowledge, and without application knowledge is only arid futility. There is little chance, fortunately, that any high school boy is about to become over-educated. The chance is much better that he will become educated just about right—have practice enough to make mental effort easy and discrimination enough to be able to judge the bell tones that distinguish the true metals from the false.

"One can not examine the textbooks of the fourth year high school students in Texas without conceiving a distinct respect for them.

"It may be said in all sincerity that a boy or girl who graduates from a Texas high school as things now are is educated. Further schooling is advisable particularly for those who expect to engage in a line of endeavor whose rudiments and theory are taught in college. But it is more than doubtful if those who look upon the college as a "finishing school" will get a finish there that will get them anywhere in particular after they come out of it."

A Kansas Lothario who has been divorced by three wives within a year must be beginning to realize who put the alum in alimony.

HENRY FORD'S BIG CASH BALANCE

Twenty years ago Henry Ford started the Ford Motor Company with $100,000 capital. Less than half of this was cash and not more than one-fifth was furnished by Henry himself. The company is now the Ford family, and the Ford family is, to all intents and purposes, Henry Ford.

Its balance sheet, as of June 30, 1923, shows assets of $597,000,000, including the merest trifle of good will, and what is more amazing still, cash on hand of $210,000,000. That is the largest cash balance any industrial concern ever had. It lies there, in Henry's hand, to do with as he pleases.

Pretty good for twenty years. Especially for a man who, to all appearances, was just an ordinary, impecunious, uncultured mechanic.

What mechanic, now struggling to make both ends meet, is going to have the record cash balance twenty years hence?

And what will it be from? Airplanes, radio or what?

Our idea of a really good road is one that leads into the country as far as possible.

THE AIRPLANE BUILDING RACE.

Military rivalry is one of the sure causes of war, and so the national heads of the American Legion believe an international conference should be convened to halt the airplane competition, just as a naval conference was called to halt the race in building battleships.

According to the Legion the air race is one of the "principal causes of political anxiety which disturbs the political tranquility of the world." In the development of aerial fighting machines, it is further stated, France leads with Great Britain and Italy voting "staggering credits" to keep up the pace, and Russia talking of the construction of 10,000 fighting planes.

It is certainly the height of folly for any one of these countries to abandon its program of aerial defense. To do so is to make itself the target for the aggression of any hostile foreign power. The matter can be safely and satisfactorily settled by concerted action only. Nations now staggering under huge obligations incurred in the last war, which call for heavy drains on the taxpayers, may well consider the wisdom of an international agreement to fix the aerial strength.

When the economic millennium comes, everybody will be producer, middleman, and ultimate consumer rolled into one.

THE CAMPING HABIT IS GROWING.

The vacation season now drawing to a close has been a fine one for the motor-camper. Railroad schedules, hotel rates and stop-over privileges have ceased to trouble vacationers who furnish their own transportation facilities and carry along their simplified household equipment in their camping kit.

Everywhere, it is now found, small towns and big cities alike have free camping sites for the tourist. These vary only in degree of comfort, some of the more elaborate ones offering the sojourners electric lights, laundries and shower baths.

At the same time the camper's equipment is improving. Manufacturers have not been slow to devise appliances which are convenient to carry and set up as well as comfortable to use. Of course there are luxurious and costly outfits, but there are also simple and comparatively inexpensive ones suited to the average family's needs as well as purse. Practice as well as improved equipment are making camping available not only for hardy persons who can endure roughing it, but also for others who need the outdoor life but cannot stand the hardships of old style camping.

It seems safe to say that motor camping is not a transient fad, but a permanent institution which will do its share toward increasing the nation's health and vacation enjoyment.

A TWELVE-MONTH SCHOOL YEAR

From America's great cities and from many of its smaller communities the re-opening of school has brought renewed discussion of school facilities. Cisco is an exception, but nearly everywhere there are found overcrowding of classes and double-shift days in order to permit more than one child to use a single desk.

It has been urged that the all-year school plan would be a big help in solving this problem. School for twelve months of the year instead of nine, with the three-month vacations distributed throughout the year, should at least release the tension somewhat, according to many educational authorities.

The plan has long been advocated as making fuller and therefore more economical use of buildings and equipment and as offering better opportunities of advancement to pupils.

Many higher institutions of learning already have the even four-quarter divisions for the school year and have found it highly satisfactory. Why not the public schools?

You hear people saying what they could do "if they had a chance." Nine times out of ten "having a chance" means having money.

Men and women with ready money can nearly always grasp opportunities coming their way—they are usually the successful people you hear and read about.

Perhaps chance hasn't come. Are you preparing for it by building up all the capital that you can? The more you save, the greater use you can make of opportunities.

GOOD PEOPLE TO DO BUSINESS WITH

Secret Service Called
Widow to Help Them
Wall Street" and the D

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3.—Trapped by a beautiful widow whose heart he believed he had captured, David Lamar, known as "the Wolf of Wall Street," fell into the hands of American detectives here, who had been pursuing him relentlessly for some time in an endeavor to take him back to the United States, there to work out a sentence imposed on him in connection with a stock market transaction.

After he had been taken into custody Lamar was ordered expelled from the country as a pernicious foreigner, but when he reached Torreon, on the way to El Paso, he secured a writ of amparo and thereby escaped immediate deliverance into the hands of the United States authorities at the border. The writ of amparo is an appeal against the expulsion order, and a hearing on it has been set for Oct. 17.

According to the Mexican secret service Lamar entered Mexico from the state of New Mexico. Speaking English and French perfectly, and quickly acquiring Spanish, Lamar or Ernest Lamar Lemann as he called himself, quickly became famous in certain Mexican and foreign circles. He spent money lavishly.

The suspicion of local bankers were aroused over deposits made by Lamar and enormous financial deals he attempted to promote, and inquiries were made of New York banks as to his standing. When these inquiries were answered both the Mexican and American authorities were advised.

Meanwhile, a detective from New Mexico, co-operating with a New York detective and Mexican secret service operatives, got on Lamar's trail. Needing a photograph of Lamar to establish his identity, the police secured the co-operation of a handsome widow, a member of the American colony, who is said to have pretended to fall in love with the fugitive and to have thus obtained the photograph.

ROTARY LUNCHEON.

A number of out-of-town visitors were present at today's Rotary luncheon and the membership attendance was very good. Charles G. Gray presided and the principal speaker was Phillip Pettit, who acquitted himself nicely. Forrest Wright reported on the progress of the Boy Scout home and announced that members would be drafted for additional work on this project at an early date. Secretary Crawford, who is doing jury service at Eastland this week, was pressed for time and was unable to deliver a carefully prepared address on "The True Status of World Affairs."

A Former Cisco Teacher
Draws Comparison Twixt
Bryan and Cisco Schools

The "Bryan High Tattler," published each Monday in the Bryan Eagle, last week contained an interview with Miss Copelin, formerly a teacher in the Cisco schools, in which she drew an interesting comparison between the schools of Bryan and Cisco. The article follows:

"When accosted by an eager reporter with pad ready and pencil poised, Miss Copelin, who came from Cisco, the city that gave us Miss McCarty, gave the following opinions. She said that the pupils as far as conduct was concerned, were far better here and had better manners and more refinement than those in other schools. As to size, the Cisco school where she has taught is much larger. We had a better system of checking up and of registration there, said Miss Copelin, and the pupils lost no time loitering in the halls. At the time of registration pupils were given their cards and were allowed to make out their own schedule. Then the teachers went over the cards and arranged the classes so that no conflicts occurred.

"Miss Copelin asserted that the plan of assembly there is the same as the one here, but that we have a better curtain on the stage. On the stage they have a rug, chairs and a table of excellent quality.

"We have different classes, but we have the same as we have. The different classes prepare programs, and we have different business meetings.

"Miss Copelin said that she had seen at Cisco High distinguished themselves in the literary field. Both the girls and the boys won debates in the interscholastic league contests. "We always won the county debates," said Miss Copelin, "and interest in the literary field was high." It would be of great value to Bryan High if we could win distinction in the literary department. We hope to do this under Miss Copelin, who is one of the most capable teachers of public speaking to be obtained."

CISCO LAWYERS

J. Lee Cearley.

J. Lee Cearley was born in Oxford, Miss., September 20, 1880. Came to Belton, Texas, when he was eight years of age and attended the Belton Male Academy until 1898, after which he farmed awhile. In 1903 he moved to Anson, Jones county. He began the study of law in 1906, and attended the State University in 1908. He was admitted to the bar in 1909 and began his practice at Stamford. Removing to Anson, he was first elected city attorney and then assistant county attorney, and then county attorney serving until 1915. March 1, 1920, he came to Cisco, where he has since been practicing his profession.

He married Miss Lenora Spoons, of Moffat, Texas, August 4, 1901. They have six children living, William Wray, Vivian L., now Mrs. Abbott, J. L. Jr., Spoons E., Maxine and Marjorie May.

Jesse L. Stevenson.

Jesse L. Stevenson was born at Jarrell, Texas, in 1886. He attended the public schools and worked on the street car system in Austin for awhile. He saved up a little money and attended the Denton Normal school for teachers, where he secured a license to teach school. After four years of teaching, he attended the Southwestern University at Georgetown. He then farmed for a few years and studied law. In 1919 he took the bar examination before the supreme court at Texarkana and was admitted to practice. The same year he moved to Cisco and began the practice of his profession.

He married Miss Mathilda Behrens, of Georgetown, November 27, 1913. They have three children, Jessie Ruth, Harold Cecil and Joyce Ann.

HI-Y MEETING.

The Hi-Y Club held its first business meeting in the new high school building Saturday night, September 22. The work for this year was discussed and committees were appointed. The club is beginning the year with fourteen members. As in former years Mr. Wells is the faculty adviser. The officers for the coming year are:

Elroy McCanlies, President.
Frank Jacobs, Vice President.
Chesley Kilborn, Secretary.
Mal Rumph, Treasurer.
Sunday afternoon the Hi-Y Club renewed its weekly Bible study meetings. Mal Rumph had charge of the Bible lesson. Wells closed the program from O. E. JOHNS.

East Texans Locate Cisco Country Because of Its Healthfulness — Pleased

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Dixon, who live between Romney and Carbon were in Cisco Saturday. Mr. Dixon brought cotton, while his wife came in to shop for the family.

The Dixons are newcomers to this county, having been in the county less than a year. They came from East Texas, because of the widely known healthfulness of the Cisco country. They are well pleased with the outlook and think they will make this country their future home.

They are going to try a large patch of Irish potatoes next season and will also increase their stock of hens. They have found the egg market very satisfactory, having sold no eggs for less than 20 cents at any time. They feel that this climate is well suited for the raising of poultry, since they are no heavy dew, so disastrous to young chickens. They think that if the same amount of business ability is put into the poultry business that is used in other ventures, one could become independent in a few years off the revenue from a well appointed and thoroughly managed chicken farm.

Mr. Dixon planted several acres of cotton this year, which has done fairly well, but he thinks the possibilities of chickens, hogs, a few dairy cows, a large vegetable garden, melons truck patches and an orchard of peaches, pears, grapes and berries, are much greater in this country than the raising of cotton.

MITCHELL.

Picking cotton seems to be the order of the day in our community. Rev. L. R. O'Brien, O. N. Lasater and Butler Harris attended the association at Albany and all report a good time.

We have organized a junior B. Y. P. U. and it is progressing nicely with our enthusiastic leader, Mrs. Loren Parks.

Bertha and Veda Livingston were dinner guests at T. T. Horn's Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. John Moore entertained about 30 guests Sunday with a good dinner.

Lee McCulloch is reported seriously ill at Cisco at this writing. We hope for him a quick recovery.

Don't forget the singing convention the second Sunday in October. Everybody is invited.

Next first Sunday is our regular preaching day. Brother Jim McDermott gives some very inspiring talks. All are invited to come.

Our club meets Thursday and we are talking of organizing a W. M. U. in connection with it. Don't forget the date.

Our senior B. Y. P. U. program was good Sunday night. Our group captain, Will Joe Starr, puts pep into his work. President J. W. Kilgore and has been absent for the past month, but our vice president, Butler Harris, is bringing the work right along nicely.

Hick Bellew and family were Pisgah visitors Sunday. The party at J. B. Starr's Saturday night was enjoyed by all present.

Miss Eula Horn, who has been visiting her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Horn, has returned to her school at Belton.

Quite a few of the members of the Mitchell church attended the birthday surprise party given at the Jim McDermott home Monday night. Jim was greatly surprised, but he wouldn't care if his birthday came twice a year if his age wouldn't run up.

Lester Horn made a flying trip to Scranton Sunday morning.

NEW GAME DEPUTY WILL MAKE CISCO HEADQUARTERS

AUSTIN, Sept. 26. — George L. Root of San Antonio was Monday appointed by the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner W. W. Boyd as district deputy of the department, with headquarters at the large lake near Cisco. The district is composed of Jones, Taylor, Parker, Hood, Stephens, Eastland, Shackelford, Callahan, Palo Pinto, Erath and Somervell Counties. The Cisco lake is one of the largest artificial lakes in the South.

Mr. Root was in Austin conferring with Commissioner Boyd.

H. W. Wells, who represented Jackson county in the Thirty-eighth legislature and who was recently appointed chief deputy by Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner W. W. Boyd, will assume his duties on Oct. 1, Mr. Boyd announced Monday.

An interest in outside activities and in every way promote the interests of the school—that is, if he is made to feel that this is his school, that his support is wanted and needed. He could be taught the duties of the other classes and the ways and means used in carrying out the work of the school, for soon he will have these same duties or similar ones to perform—tasks will be his, and responsibilities fall upon him. He is trained by the upper-classes, he will be able to "carry on" in a creditable way to accomplish things really worth while, to do his part in making C. H. S. the best school in Texas. Come on, fellows, let's help the "Fish" to grow!

HIGH SENIORS

The High Senior Class effected a complete organization in the period set aside for the selection of yell leaders Friday morning. This was easier to do than it might have been as there are only nine in this class. The candidate for yell leader selected was Zella Blanche McClinton. The officers for the coming year are: Nettie Mae Rominger, president; Master Tune, vice president; Alta Kean, secretary. Mrs. Kean is high senior sponsor.
