WET LOAN BILL SENT TO HOOVER

One Negro Wounded and Two Sought After Gun Battle

POSSES SCOUR COUNTRY FOR 2 FUGITIVES

Fight Occurs During the Investigation of Wreck Attempt

KOSSE, Feb. 20. — Sam Simpson, 24, Corsicana negro, was dying in a hospital here today and posses headed by Limestone county officers were seeking two other negroes following a gun battle five miles south of here with two special agents of the Southern Pacific railroad investigating reports of a plot to wreck a train on the Dallas-Houston main line of the railroad.

Simpson was shot through the stomach when he and the other negroes opened fire on J. B. Piper, Dallas, and W. J. Cleveland, Houston, railroad special officers who attempted to question them. Piper said he shot Simpson once with a 44 caliber revolver.

Sheriff A. B. McKenzie, of Limestone county, had been seeking the negro trio for questioning in connection with the killing of Charles Hunter, Leona, Tenn., who was fatally injured here last week when he and his brother were thrown from a freight train after a battle with negro tramps.

The railroad officers were seeking the negroes who had been hiding in the woods south of here in the investigation of the attempt to wreck the Owl, crack Dallas-Houston passenger train by the removal of two rails west of Corsicana.

After the gun battle in which a score of shots were fired, the negroes fled into the woods, one going toward Marlin and the other fleeing in the opposite direction. Sheriff McKenzie, his deputies and 50 residents of the vicinity immediately formed two posses and began pursuit of the fugitives.

CISCO DEBATE TEAMS MEET STRAWN SAT.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 the Cisco high school debating teams will debate the Strawn high school teams at the local school auditorium. No admission will be charged. The contest is for practice.

The Cisco teams are composed of Haywood Kinsey and Billy Murray and Misses Ova Brown and Mary Latch. Supt. R. N. Cluck, who has produced two state champion debating teams in schools where he has previously taught, is coaching the Cisco teams.

22 REQUESTS FOR FEDERAL LOANS MADE

A total of 22 applications for federal farm relief loans have been received by the Cisco community committee. It was reported this morning by E. P. Crawford, J. T. Berry and J. J. Collins compose the Cisco committee. Guy Dabney, Cisco banker, is a member of the county executive committee.

No returns have been received from these applications as yet, it was said.

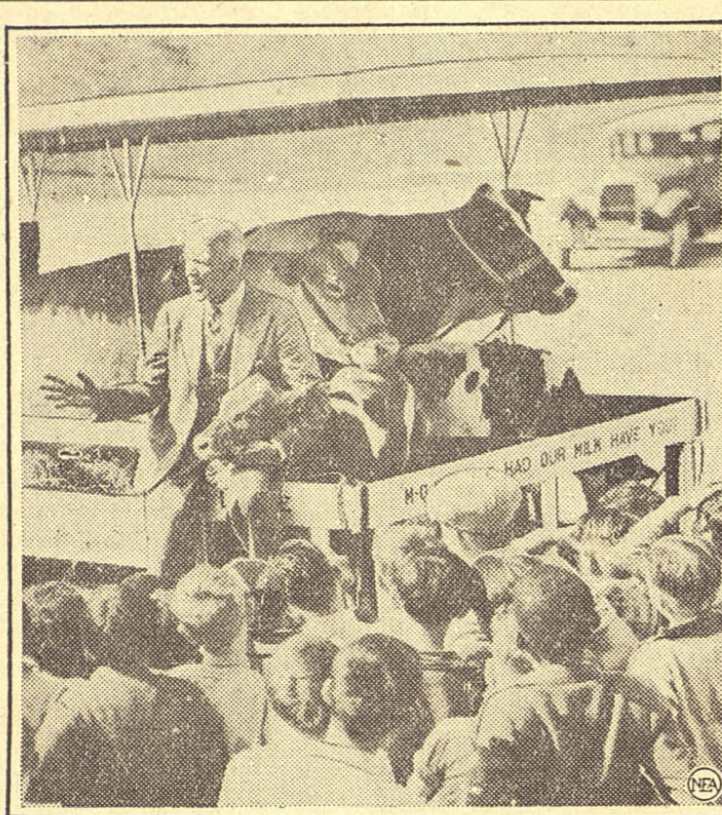

Miss Marie Glenn is receiving the applications for the committee.

WEATHER

West Texas — Mostly cloudy, probably rain in west portion. Warmer in southeast portion tonight. Saturday cloudy. Local rains and colder west and north portions.

East Texas — Increasing cloudiness, warmer tonight. Saturday mostly cloudy, probably rain in west portion and on west coast.

These Kids Never Saw a Cow

When 25 per cent of the elementary school children in Los Angeles admitted in a recent survey that they had never seen a cow, and 50 per cent said they had never seen a calf, the school board immediately sponsored a tour of this unique "bovine limousine," shown here as it began its round of the 294 grade schools. The motor car and its occupants, two cows and two calves, proved of absorbing interest to the city-bred youngsters.

2 CHILDREN OF BIG FAMILY DIE WHEN HOME IS BURNED

CHICAGO, Feb. 20. — Two children of an almost destitute family were killed early today and the parents and their six other children were hurt, two of them critically, when fire trapped them in their frame home after an explosion.

Only the bravery of the mother, Mrs. Anna Havicek, 38, and the father, Robert, 39, prevented the entire family from being lost in the flames.

The two children, whom firemen found dead in the blazing home, were Leonard, 8, and Dorothy, 3.

The father and mother suffered burns and they were almost overcome by smoke before they jumped from a second story window onto a truck which had been driven near the building.

Chicago Plans Chain Hospitals

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Operations and treatment on the installment plan through application of chain store principles to a group of 10 small-unit hospitals in the Chicago area has been proposed.

Sponsors of the plan declare that it is the first instance of application of chain management and buying to hospitals.

Owners of the hospitals plan to form a holding corporation which would manage and operate the institutions. Through centralized financing, patients would be treated and pay for their care in small monthly installments in the same manner as merchandise and automobiles are sold.

Annual deficits which heretofore have been met by endowments would be avoided through quantity purchase of medical materials and supplies, the sponsors believe.

Technical facilities would be pooled and a general reorganization of laboratory facilities undertaken to eliminate duplication.

Dr. Harry L. O'Connor, executive officer of the Rogers Park Community hospital and sponsor of the plan, said that the group hoped to start operations with a few months.

EXECUTIONER EXECUTED
KIEV, U. S. S. R., Feb. 20. — A Tsarist executioner, Ivan Bovda, has been condemned to death here. During the trial, it appeared that Bovda had piled his trade also for the Petlura government when it occupied Ukraine.

17-YEAR-OLD YOUTH TAKES LAW IN HAND

Kills Man Who, He Said, Ruined His Sister

MARSHALL, Feb. 20. — A 17-year-old boy late yesterday took the law into his own hands by killing a young man whom he said had ruined his sister.

Benjamin Bell, 17, is in jail here charged with murder.

Albert C. Tiller, Jr., 22, member of a prominent Panola county family is dead. He was shot three times in the head.

"You wrecked my sister's life," Bell said as he fired at Tiller the first time.

The shooting took place in front of a store at Elysian Fields while several persons looked on.

IMPROVEMENTS AT CEMETERY SHOWING GOAL

Organized in the manner of the more legitimate mining gang and equipped with apparatus and tools for efficient mining, these individual miners can produce many tons of anthracite, some of which is sold to trucksters who transport it to communities within 150 miles radius of the coal fields, some of which is for use in their own homes, and the remainder of which is sold to neighbors and friends.

At Kulpmont, near here, recently a raid on a small mine operated on these lines netted a gang of 15 men, all skilled miners. They were arraigned on trespassing charges in an effort to discourage their "bootlegging" efforts.

Started in 1925

The industry had its roots in the demand for anthracite during the 1925-26 suspension and at that time was not so vigorously attacked because of the scarcity of fuel and the necessity of a supply in many sections.

Idle mine workers at Centralia, where the colliery has not operated for almost two years, have entered the industry on a legitimate scale, paying a royalty on each ton they mine on the property of small operators and distributing the coal in their own section.

WOMAN FOUND ON RAILROAD TRACKS DEAD

EL PASO, Feb. 20. — The body of Mrs. A. Mitchell was found on the Southern Pacific tracks here today. She had been struck and apparently killed instantly by a train.

The woman who had been under the care of a nurse wandered from her home during the night. Her body was discovered by her son-in-law, S. S. Kirkpatrick, a railroad worker.

WHISKY IN BLOCK

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 20. — Customs men here are not sleeping on the job. An inspector at the American side of the Peace Bridge here lifted the hood of an eight cylinder automobile, found one side of the engine cold, the other hot. Investigation disclosed seven quarts of whisky in the cylinder block.

IT TOOK SIX COPS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 20. — Six cops were required to subdue Clifton Rice, 18, Indian, and take him to jail on a charge of illegally possessing a revolver.

Public Hearing on Oil Bill Wednesday

A public hearing on house bill No. 586, sponsored by Rep. Bailey W. Hardy, will be held before the oil, gas and mining committee of the house Wednesday, February 25 at 2 o'clock, according to a memorandum from Rep. Hardy to the Cisco Daily News.

This bill provides that a corporation which produces, transports or refines oil cannot retail the refined products.

COAL CONCERNS OPEN WAR ON BOOTLEGGERS

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 20. — Anthracite producing companies are faced with competition in their own product, usually regarded as a monopoly, from "bootleggers."

The competition, still on a small scale, is reported to be presented by men trained in the mines of the companies and using the companies' coal deposits as their source of supply, a form of "hi-jacking" as it is known in the more extensive bootlegging industry.

These coal "bootleggers" select active or abandoned mine drifts lying closely to the surface, or entirely exposed by stripping operations for their activities, according to industrial police.

Modern Equipment

Organized in the manner of the more legitimate mining gang and equipped with apparatus and tools for efficient mining, these individual miners can produce many tons of anthracite, some of which is sold to trucksters who transport it to communities within 150 miles radius of the coal fields, some of which is for use in their own homes, and the remainder of which is sold to neighbors and friends.

At Kulpmont, near here, recently a raid on a small mine operated on these lines netted a gang of 15 men, all skilled miners. They were arraigned on trespassing charges in an effort to discourage their "bootlegging" efforts.

WOMEN SHOULD DINE AWAY FROM HOME ONCE WEEKLY

"The average man with a multitude of interest and contacts comprising his daily duties cannot understand why his wife gets tired of a routine of cooking," declares Mrs. Rada Sue Garrett, noted cookery expert, who will appear personally in Cisco March 2 conducting the Daily News cooking school.

"I was possible I should appreciate very much the opportunity of devoting one of my lectures to this essential item of lack of perspective in otherwise sympathetic husbands. The same husband who complains of the monotony of his meals, does not stop to realize that maybe the monotony of his wife's duties were responsible. There is no doubt in my mind that every housewife has a right to a temporary respite once a week from cooking. Any occupation whether it be bridge playing, or reading, if made compulsory three times a day, seven days a week could not help but inspire rebellion.

PARIS, Feb. 20. — Air Union airplanes carried 643 passengers during December, principally on the cross-channel routes and to Lyons and Marseilles.

BILL WOULD DENY SOLONS SHOW PASSES

Another Would Limit Marathons to 24 Hours Effort

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—Members of the Texas legislature will be forbidden to accept movie passes under a bill drafted by Rep. E. J. Forbes, whose proposal for a state movie censor board was killed this week.

The bill as drawn prohibits them having any pass or frank for admission to any amusement place where admission is charged.

Rev. Mr. Forbes said, "Practically all legislators have theater passes." He said that he has none and would not accept one. He has attended a show in 20 years.

Another bill offered today limits marathon performances to 24 hours continuous effort. The participants then must take 24 hours rest before resuming their efforts, W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi, who offered the bill said people have become blind and delirious in marathon events. A fine of from $100 to $1,000 is made the penalty for violation of the 24-hour rule.

Woman Killed in Highway Accident

PURCELL, Okla., Feb. 20. — Mrs. Genevieve Sullivan, wife of Dr. C. F. Sullivan, Fort Worth, was killed and J. M. Reed, San Antonio, seriously injured last night when their auto was sideswiped by a truck on a highway south of here.

SISTERS LEAD ORPHANS FROM BLAZING HOME

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 20.—The bravery and presence of mind of half a dozen sisters at Sacred Heart orphanage, West Park, near here saved the lives of more than 200 children today when fire burned one of the orphanage buildings to the ground and for a time threatened to destroy the entire institution.

One sister discovered the fire in the school building adjoining the dormitories in which the children were sleeping. She roused other attendants. They awakened the children, many of them under two years of age, and told them they were having a fire drill and were going to spend the rest of the night in the next building.

Bundled in their bed clothing the youngsters were led into the cold and for the first time realized their was a fire.

PASTOR TO END SERIES SUNDAY

The last of the series of four Sunday night messages for young people will be delivered Sunday night at the First Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. H. D. Tucker.

Raudolph Class Teams Play Tie

Any one who missed the intramural basketball game at Randolph college Thursday night between the junior girls and senior girls, missed the best game of the season. Only the girls who do not come out for the Kittens team were allowed to participate. The final score of 15 and 15 tells what a battle it was. Hall was outstanding for the seniors with 13 points while Petterson with 12 was outstanding for the juniors.

The battle will be resumed next Tuesday night in the Randolph gym at 7:30 o'clock. The junior and senior boys will also play.

There will be a small admission charge of 10 cents which will be used to help send the Kittens to the southern tournament at Shreveport, La., the first week in March.

Every one is invited to come out and join in the fun and be a school kid again in feeling anyway.

W. P. McDONALD TO BE BURIED AT STAMFORD

The Rev. Bruce C. Boney, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of this city, has been called to Stamford to be associated with the Stamford pastor in conducting funeral services for W. P. McDonald, of Stamford, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. McDonald, 36, a leader in the business life of Stamford and widely known throughout this district of Rotary for his activities in that organization and particularly as a leader of songs, died yesterday. He and Mr. Boney were close friends and made so by their association in Rotary work. Many Cisco Rotarians as well as Rotarians in other cities in this district, were personal friends of Mr. McDonald and large numbers of these are expected to go to Stamford tomorrow for the rites.

The services will be held at the First Methodist church because of its large auditorium.

Pastor to End Series Sunday

The last of the series of four Sunday night messages for young people will be delivered Sunday night at the First Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. H. D. Tucker.

The subject of this last message will be, "Young people in church."

The service will be sponsored by the young people of the Sunday school and Leagues. A fifteen minute orchestra program will precede the song service and sermon. Everybody is invited to hear the last message of the series.

LONGWORTH, CURTIS SIGN THE MEASURE

Almost Certain Veto Awaits Bill at White House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Speaker Longworth of the house signed the veterans loan bill today almost immediately after congress convened.

Five minutes later Vice-President Curtis affixed his signature to the measure. That was the last formality before transmitting the bill to the white house where an almost certain veto awaits it.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The senate Thursday passed the veterans' loan relief bill despite President Hoover's opposition. The vote was 72 to 12.

The measure was passed in the same form as approved by the house. It now goes to the White House. It allows loans to World War veterans up to half the face value of their compensation certificate at a rate of 4 1/2 per cent.

The senate rushed it to passage without change in response to pleas to get it before President Hoover ahead of the period preceding an adjournment in which he may let legislation die without returning it to congress with a veto.

Enough votes to override a veto were predicted by Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, in the debate.

Thirty-four republicans, including Senators Watson of Indiana and McNary of Oregon, the party leaders, supported the measure.

All those voting against the bill were republicans.

NEW DISCOVERY IN PARALYSIS WAR PRAISED

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A discovery hailed by prominent physicians here as one of the most important contributions in years toward the battle with infantile paralysis, is one of the romances of the medical world.

Nine years ago Edward Weston Hurst was an obscure student in one of the large hospitals here. He spent long hours preparing himself to compete for a scholarship in the Lister Institute of Preventative Medicine and won it.

There he devoted himself to research work in hopes of discovering the serum to prevent infantile paralysis, a task that had baffled medical men for years. He was aided by Dr. James Collier, one of the foremost authorities in the world on this disease.

In less than a year, Dr. Hurst, now in his early thirties, submitted results which Collier claims have "conclusively" proved by experiments with a horse and monkeys that the horse's blood invariably provides protection against the disease."

Collier said the young doctor first inoculated monkeys, giving them the disease and then took from a horse into which he had injected the virus, two quarts of blood.

"The serum, when injected into the infected monkeys, drove away the disease," he said.

It is estimated that a healthy horse could give two quarts of blood a fortnight without any suffering.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

PEACE AND SAFETY—Thou wilt keep him in perfect

PRAYER—Father, enable me to acquaint myself with Thee
and be at peace, thereby good shall come unto me.

TAX ECONOMY.

Governmental economy, just as economy in business and private life, is regulated to a large degree by the availability of income. As long as revenue is prolific there is little effective argument in favor of reduced expenditures, and just so long as there exist sources of revenue which may be tapped by enterprising bodies, lawmakers will be inclined to seek the easier course of providing funds for increased appropriations rather than grapple with the difficult and always disagreeable task of reducing these outlays to a par with income.

The disjointed, cumbersome and inequitable system of taxation with which Texas, in common with other states, is cursed at this time is due to this factor. Without apparent regard for the relationship between the various guises of taxation, taxes of indiscriminate variety have been pyramided one upon the other until a hodge-podge, hit-or-miss system has grown up, top-heavy with collection costs and entirely without adjustment to the economic machinery of the state which is forced to carry it. Taxation is an overhead that produces no revenue. It is purely a social or political insurance and as such its costs should be adjusted to the public service it performs, instead of being allowed to run into a profligacy that stifles the development it is charged with promoting.

House Bills Nos. 556 and 608, now before the state legislature, which would levy a special tax of 10 per cent or more against certain tobacco products are evidences of this vicious tendency. Although supporters of these measures may find some argument for their position these arguments do not devalue the fact that special or nuisance taxes violate the canons of taxation and rather than aid in the solution of revenue problems create annoying complications which aggravate these problems. Neither the tobacco industry nor any other industry is entitled to be penalized for doing business in Texas and the government cannot justly adopt an attitude of discrimination, either directly or indirectly, against such industries on the theory that they are of comparatively less importance or that pecuniary advantage should be taken of a moral consideration. The principle that crime should pay the costs of its control is sound but that is far removed from the false logic that the public treasury should be supported from what, for distinguishing purposes, are known as "luxuries." The logical course from such a standpoint would be to carry out a ridiculous system of industrial "class legislation" by which the various forms of industry are classified and penalized according to their relative importance.

In recent issues of this newspaper articles pointing out the need of a renovation of the entire tax system have appeared. This renovation is not going to be brought about by pruning the ramifications of the system but by a thorough fundamental revision approached with respect for the intimate relationship of taxation and business. But as long as the tendency is in the direction of providing more revenues rather than providing a more economic administration of the public funds already available it will not be possible to secure this revision.

The state legislature will take the proper course when it realizes that there are some fields where taxation is impractical and definitely curb a tendency to hamper competitive enterprises with illogical taxation by killing the two measures mentioned above.

SPEAKING OF THE COST OF BREAD.

Speaking of the cost of bread it is well to look backward to the days when labor was cheap, sanitary regulations almost unknown and a nine-ounce loaf sold for the price of five cents. Then the pure food laws came in, drastic sanitary regulations that were necessary were introduced, state inspection was the order of the day and most of the people were glad.

Civilization with its modern methods of sanitation called for a new order. It called for cleanliness on the part of the breadmakers, advanced sanitary conditions within and without the bakery establishments and all this for the protection of human life and human health.

Now a 16-ounce loaf, a weight required by state law, sells for nine cents. It is not handed out in sloppy wrapping paper. It has the proper covering as provided by law or ordinance. In the old days a master baker received a salary of $15 a week. Now a master baker is said to receive a salary of $60 a week. In the old days what is known as service was negligible.

Now service from the oven to the place of delivery is of the highest and best that the mind of man has been able to devise.

Modern civilization may be a bit costly. Modern sanitation may be a bit costly. Wages paid to the bakers of today are very much greater than paid in the days of yore but who would go back to the old order of things, the lack of sanitation, rules, the low standard of wages which ever calls for a low standard of living conditions on the part of the workers?

Compare the bake shops of today with the bake shops of by-gone years. Compare sanitary and living conditions of those who turn out the bread and the cakes and all the table delicacies that form the output of a model bakery.

While people are talking they should do a little thinking and it would not be amiss for these of middle age to refresh

A Slow Train Through Arkansas!

their memories of the conditions that prevailed in other years and the conditions that prevail today.

LARGEST BRIDGE PROJECT.

Not long ago the American senate passed a bill to authorize construction of the largest bridge project in the world across the bay between San Francisco and Oakland, Calif. This bill was sent to the house and the house enacted it with two or three minor amendments. Now it goes back to the senate for agreement to the amendments. It would permit California to build a $75,000,000 bridge between the Golden Gate Bay cities via Goat Island. Californians know what they want. They never stammer or hesitate. They pay the price. Let us forget they added 2,000,000 to their population in a period of ten years. Texans should come out of their trance. California won by selling sunshine. Texas has all the minerals. Texas has all the natural wealth known to nature and nature's children. Texas should add five million to its population before the coming of 1940.

OTHER OPINIONS

A RIGHTED WRONG

The other day a certain five and ten-cent store at Newark, New Jersey, received a letter containing a $1 bill. The letter explained that once upon a time a little boy had strolled into that store, noticed the trays of glittering rings on the counter and slipped two of them into his pocket when no one was looking.

The years passed. The little boy grew up. But he couldn't forget the two 10-cent rings that had sparkled with such irresistible magic on a day when his hands were groping hurriedly for a ring with a shining stone.

So he made atonement the other day by sending the store a $1 bill
to pay for the banditry of long ago.

It is doubtful if the man who made amends for the misdemeanor
of the wistful youngster who wanted two rings ever stole anything else in his life. If he had he would have forgotten this childish transgression. Those who sin much don't suffer. But those who have stepped aside only occasionally do.
Their consciences aren't calloused
and hardened.

The gold of the rings turned to brass almost before the little boy knew it. Maybe he thought it was his conscience taking away the splendid gleam. Maybe it was.
And the stones, he probably discovered, weren't lovely, beautiful bits of color caught when a raindrop broke, but just glass with a drop of dye. He learned wisdom, but he could not get away from the pin pricks in his mind that told him he had taken something that didn't belong to him.

When he was at the bat and going strong; when he was swimming faster than any other one in the green hole; when he awakened suddenly in the strange hush of a long night—he remembered the rings.

Like a ghost, the two circlets followed him. Other boys didn't worry about the apples and pumpkins and were spirited away from a farmer's orchard. But this offense was different. He had walked into a store and deliberately taken property that didn't belong to him. He had a wrong to right.
It would be interesting to know
just why the little boy of long ago took the rings. Certainly not to make money, for he took only two. Evidently not to show his bold, defiant courage. One ring would have been sufficient for that.

Maybe it was somebody's birthday at home and he didn't have any money to buy a present, so he decided to steal one. And while he was doing it he remembered another little sister, who would cry if she didn't get one, a gift,
too. It was just as easy to take two rings as one. One with a blue set, perhaps and one with a red.
Maybe he just wanted to feel something beautiful in his pocket.
Nobody knows. But it is certain that the man who righted the wrong of the little boy—he-used-to-be has turned the brass of the stolen circlets back to gold again.

IN THE POLITICAL ARENA

By HUGH N. FITZGERALD
Austin is the mecca for distinguished lawyers as well as prominent political leaders and the heads of all the big industries including the banks and insurance companies. Representatives of all the callings and professions are here. Representatives of all the farm and labor organizations are here. Representatives of the steam lines and the automobile busses come and go. All the insurance companies, fire and life and accident, fit in and out of the capital. Texas has a population of 6,000,000 and it is a $10,000,- 000,000 state. There are legislative committee hearings daily.
There are hundreds of bills to be considered. All these touch the industrial, financial, agricultural and educational life of the commonwealth. All the big hotels are crowded. All the small hotels are filled to overflowing.

An arrival Wednesday was Gen.
M. M. Crane of Dallas, one of the last and the greatest survivors of the old guard of the Ross-Hogg-Cuthbertson periods of Texas history. He was a warrior in his youth and ever on the firing line

of law and legislation and politics.
He is just as vigorous and just as verile today as he was 30 years
ago.

He is a lifelong pro but ever a regular and he does not believe and never did believe that prohibition should be made the sole test of a voter's democracy. He retired from office to give his entire time to the practice of his profession and has been a leader of the Texas bar for more than 40 years.

Gen. Crane has many admirers

"CIMARRON" AS PICTURE TOPS FERBER NOVEL

Brought to the theatregoing public by Radio Pictures, Edna Ferber's epic "Cimarron," at the Palace tomorrow for 3 days, is even more powerful than the great story, read
by millions in America.
"Cimarron," the picture, is all that is gripping in "Cimarron," the story.

RICHARD DIX

Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat seems to have walked right out of the pages of the book. Lon Yountis will never be really slain until you see Dix do it, in the most poignant scene of talking picture history,
the Osage gathering tent sermon
episode.

And those stupendous clashes of wills between Yancey and Salira,
as portrayed by Dix and Irene Dunne, should make the original store more than an epic. It becomes an immortal record of those psychological differences between

American men and women, out of

New Type of Spectacle Spectacular scenes abound in this production, but they are a new kind.
Through the wizardry of Wesley Ruggles, director they transcend mere spectacle and become inspiring flashes which punctuate and make the production as realistic as early Oklahoma itself.
The stupendous land rush scenes,
in which thousands of vehicles, animals and players appear is presented in such an ingenious fashion that the spectator is apt to feel himself a part of this spectacular
episode.
Standing clear and unfettered
above all the artistic accomplishments of this production, however,
is one great fact. For once, a motion picture producer has taken not a single dramatic license. "Cimarron" of the talking screen, is Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," complete,
truthful in every detail.

Dix in Greatest Role Dix, hero of a score of notable screen roles has never been seen to better advantage. One feels that Edna Ferber wrote her great novel with Dix in mind as Yancey Cravat. Irene Dunne steps to the foremost ranks of the screen's drama-matic actresses in "Cimarron."

Kentucky Man Says Crazy Crystals Are Wonderful

Feels Better Than He Has in 40 Years.

I have been a sufferer with nervous indigestion and stomach
trouble for the past twenty years,
and have tried almost everything recommended by physicians and friends with but very little relief.
I heard of this wonderful Water at Mineral Wells and concluded to try it out some two months ago.
Words will not express my sincere pleasure for this wonderful crystallized water that has helped me so much in this very short period of time, and I can most heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from indigestion and stomach trouble.

The new, million dollar, Crazy
Water Hotel at Mineral Wells, Texas, covers an entire block of ground.
It is modern, fire proof and complete in every detail. It is natural to think it would be expensive to stop at this magnificent hotel; yet, you can enjoy its genuine hospitality, pleasing service and receive the benefits of the Crazy Mineral Water Treatment at very reasonable rates.
If you have rheumatism, stomach trouble, diabetes, colitis, kidney trouble or any chronic ailment
brought on by faulty elimination,
we urge you to write the Crazy

Black-Draught Benefited Kentucky Man Who Had Been In Poor Health.

Georgetown, Ky.—Believing that an account of his experience might be of assistance to people suffering from complaints which Black-Draught should relieve, Mr. G. E.
Penn, 115 Stone Ave., this city says:
"In regard to Black-Draught, I want it known what it has done
for me and how thankful I am.
"For several years, I had been in poor health. I could not eat and did not relish the small amount of food I managed to force down. I had no energy, was tired all the time, also troubled with constipation. I fell off in weight from 187 to 145 pounds.
"I was telling a friend of mine
how I felt, and he told me he had been in the same fix and advised me to try Black-Draught. This I did, and you do not know how much better I feel in every way.
I can eat three square meals a day,
I feel like a man 30 years old instead of 60."
This well-known medicine has been in use nearly 100 years, and its popularity is constantly increasing, as growing sales clearly prove. Costs only 1c a dose.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Ginger Ella Tolliver, daughter of a minister and stepdaughter of the wealthy and indulgent former Phil Van Doorn, organized a Junior Country Club in the town of Red Thrush, Iowa, just to keep life among the younger set from becoming too dull.

Bard Holloway, a young artist who has been hobnobbing around the country, stopped in Red Thrush. Attracted by Ginger, he agreed to stay and paint portraits and decorate the new clubhouse. He gave the name "Joie de Vivre" to the club, and suggested sending to Chicago for Nicolo Calleno, who could cook and sing and strum a guitar.

But Nicolo could not come. In his place arrived three of his countrymen. Angelo could play; Pietro could cook; Benito could sing. Ginger took them on. Beginning to realize he was in love with Ginger, Bard suggested leaving. But Phil, knowing Ginger, persuaded him to stay as their guest. But for Ginger's good she wrote to Speed Roney, a former friend of Ginger's, and invited him. She felt he would give Bard some competition.

Ginger thereupon invited Patty Sears to take care of Speed, but Patty would not come, pleading loyalty to Eddy Jackson. Whereupon Ginger went to Eddy about getting word that Speed was bringing his sister, she persuaded both Eddy and Patty to come. Eddy, however, decided to ball things up by making things miserable for Ginger and keeping her and Bard separated.

Meanwhile, Benito had made a trip to Chicago and returned with a plan to kidnap Ginger and hold her for ransom.

When Speed and his sister arrived Ginger got another surprise. Sister's name was Cotton. She was different from what Ginger suspected. She was a little afraid that Cotton would prove attractive to Bard and Eddy, and they arranged for Bard and Cotton to be together while he stuck to Ginger and paired Patty off with Speed. Speed tells Bard Ginger and Eddy are in love and Bard plans to leave as Eddy keeps up his mischievous plot. And at that point of the proceedings Ginger disappeared.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

"Let's have a look around the house," said Eddy Jackson. "She just may be somewhere about, you know."

But a rigid search of the premises from attic to cellar revealed no Ginger.

"I think we'd better call Doorn-dee," said Bard. "Maybe she has gone home."

Eddy looked more hopeful. "Yes, probably," he said. "She may have stumbled upon some one she knew on the road and gone off home for a joke on us. Though if isn't quite like her. I'll call Phil."

"Be careful what you say," cautioned Cotton. "Don't frighten her."

But at Eddy's first word of inquiry Phil's voice did show fright.

"Eddy, what do you mean?" she cried. "Isn't Ginger there?"

Eddy tried to explain that she must merely have wandered off for a solitary stroll and would soon return, but Phil was not to be reassured.

"But, Eddy, hasn't she been there since morning? Six hours! Oh, she wouldn't go off like that! Something has happened to her. We'll come right out."

Phil's alarm communicated itself to him, and he showed considerable uneasiness when he returned to the group. "She's not there. They are coming out. Phil's—frightened."

Patty burst into tears. "Oh, Eddy, you—you don't suppose she would—do anything to herself, do you? They left her right by the river—and she's been so unhappy."

"Oh, nonsense," said Eddy, nervously impatient. "Ginger do a thing like that? I'm surprised at you, Patty."

"But she's been so unhappy," Patty protested tearfully.

"What did she have to be unhappy about?" asked Bard, dully, from the depth of his own great woe.

"About—Oh, about—Patty looked in confusion from Bard to Eddy. "Well, she's been unhappy anyhow. She cried—after we went to bed—every night, and made me promise not to tell."

Every looked more than a little ashamed of himself, but Bard was entirely nonplussed.

"I don't see what she had to worry about. Everything seemed to be going just fine—for her."

"Oh, Bard," said Patty, weeping afresh, "it was all on your account. You've been just horrid, you know you have. The way you flirted with—with Cotton. Oh please excuse me, Cotton! But Bard did flirt, and Ginger felt terribly."

excitedly. "It was the truth—at least I thought it was the truth."

Patty ran to the door. "Oh, please, boys, go look for her, and don't stand there quarreling. Ginger," she called plaintively into the woods, "Ginger, darling!"

"Eddy, tell me the truth," said Bard. "do you mean—I did pretend to be making up to Cotton after Speed asked me to—do you mean that you and Ginger—"

"Pfft!" said Eddy, snapping his fingers. "I used to be crazy about Ginger, and I still think she's about the greatest little scout I ever knew. But she never thought of me like that."

Bard turned a vicious look toward Speed. "I'd just like to know if that little cur did it on purpose," he said between his teeth.

"Naw," said Eddy reassuringly, "he wouldn't do it on purpose. Just a little dumb, that's all. He likes Ginger, he was just trying to do her a good turn. Where the devil do you suppose she can have got to?"

In a very few minutes, Phil's big car tore up the wood lane, and Mr. and Mrs. Tolliver were quickly surrounded. They were surprised at Gingers absence, and a little uneasy, but on the whole they inclined to the idea that nothing really serious could have happened to her on such familiar and friendly ground. They demanded a full account of just what had happened after their arrival at Mill Rush, and the others were prompt and unanimous in their recital of the events.

Ginger had gone for a walk in the woods with Cotton and Speed. They returned laughing, in the best of spirits, and they had left her at the boat-landing. Ginger asking them to send Eddy down to her. Cotton and Speed agreed that they had left her quite doubled up with laughter, chortling gleefully over a joke on Eddy Jackson.

"But she hasn't been in good spirits at all," protested Phil. "She's been terribly unhappy."

"We cheered her up," insisted Cotton. "We told her something that put her in the very best of spirits immediately."

"What in the world did you tell her?"

"Mrs. Tolliver," said Cotton simply, "because I will tell you if you insist, but it hasn't a thing in the world to do with the case. It was just a little secret between us three."

"To tell you the truth," said Speed slowly, "now that I really understand the lay of the land, I think what really cheered her up was my telling her that I had asked Bard to keep Cotton away from Eddy Jackson. Don't you remember, Cotton? She made me tell her three times over, and then she took my hand and burst out laughing, and said, 'Oh, Eddy! Oh, how gorgeous!' over and over again."

"But why in the world did you ask me to do such a thing?" ejaculated Phil.

"Because," confessed Speed shamefacedly, "I thought she was jealous because Cotton made such a fuss over Eddy. I wasn't on about Bard."

Phil rolled expressive eyes toward heaven. "Go on," he said at last in a strangled voice, "you left her at the landing."

"That was really all there was to tell. They had joined Bard where he was painting at the edge of the wood and waited for Pat and Eddy to come back from their walk. Ginger did not come. Eddy went to the landing—perhaps an hour later—and she was not there. No one had seen her since."

"And where were—all the others?" asked Phil quietly.

The others, it seemed, had been all over the place doing their accustomed work. Pietro had prepared luncheon for them, Benito had fed and watered his birds and caught fish for their supper, and Angelo worked in the garden. They had assisted in the search for her through the woods and throughout the cottage.

Phil's first inclination was to notify the sheriff immediately and get in touch with the state police who patrolled the highway, but Mr. Tolliver hesitated to adopt so drastic a measure until it was found to be absolutely necessary.

"Ginger is so proud," he said. "If she has just gone off alone to wear out a fit of the sulks the publicity would embarrass her terribly."

"But Ginger would not do that," said Phil. "I know her. She could never be so cross or worried that she would deliberately alarm us like this without reason. Something has happened to her."

"What I am afraid of is that she has fallen in the woods and hurt herself, sprained an ankle, or fainted," said Eddy. "That's the only way I can account for it. I agree with Phil—she wouldn't do this on purpose."

"Go and look in the woods again, boys, and have Benito call her. We must try to figure out how best to go about this."

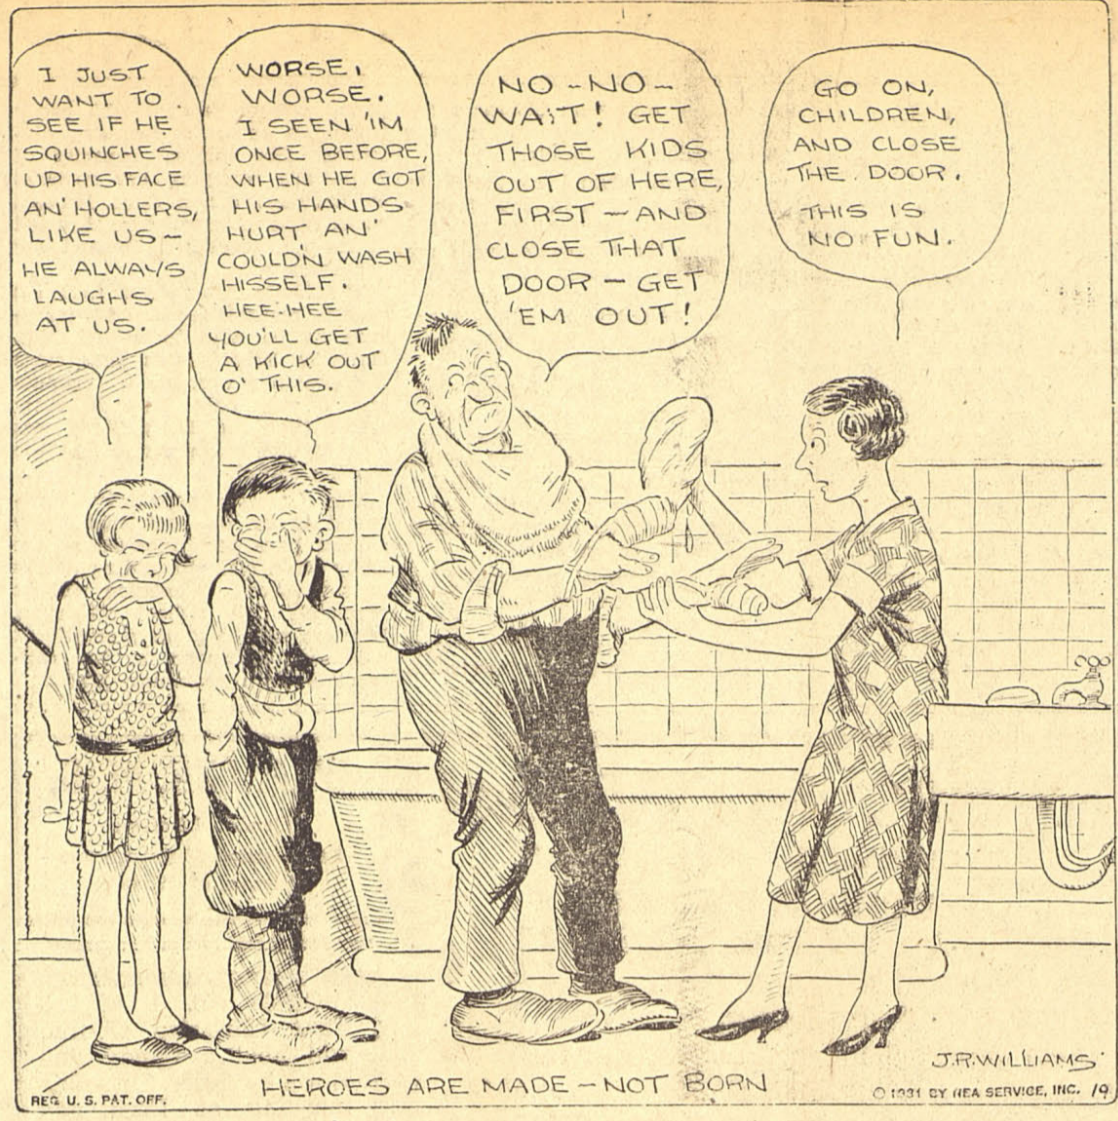

A shrill piercing shriek from Jenky drew them to the open door. She was flying up the gravel path from the barnyard, one arm thrown protectively over her head, one hand stretched out at full length before her, and gripped between her thumb and forefinger as if it were something poisonous was a bit of common string, from the end of which dangled a scrap of brown wrapping paper.

ADD HEALTH TO HOT BREADS

Hot breads are tempting. But often they lack roughage. The absence of bulk from foods often results in constipation.

But now you can have hot breads with roughage. Simply add a cupful of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to the recipe. This delicious cereal furnishes the bulk needed to assure proper elimination. You will find many appetizing recipes on the red-and-green ALL-BRAN package.

Equally tempting as a ready-to-eat cereal with milk or cream. Two tablespoons daily are guaranteed to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. In severe cases, use with each meal.

ALL-BRAN also furnishes needed iron for the body. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

District Basket Ball Tournament at Eastland Tonight

SCHEDULE TO BE ARRANGED AT 6 O'CLOCK

Five Teams From as Many Counties Are Entered in Meet

The Cisco Lobos will go to Eastland this evening for the annual interscholastic league district basket ball tournament. Five teams from as many counties are entered in this tournament.

No schedule has been announced and the teams will draw for opponents and positions on the schedule at 6 o'clock this evening. For this reason the Lobos do not know which of the other four teams they will meet nor does the public know what to expect on tonight's program.

At least two games will be played this evening, beginning at 7:30. Tomorrow afternoon the semi-finals will be played with the final game scheduled for Saturday evening. Cisco, Breckenridge and Stephenville are the three leading teams in the tournament.

Large Crowds Attend Lake Cisco Dances

Although the weather has been unfavorable on Saturday evenings for several weeks large crowds have been attending the dances at Lake Cisco. Various orchestras have been playing since January 1st.

"Snow Mound" and his eight-piece colored orchestra, one of the best in this section of the state, are now playing at Lake Cisco, and will continue for the next month. They have proven very popular with lovers of good dance music, bringing with them many new pieces of music.

A reduction has been made in admission fee. Dancing begins at 9 o'clock every Saturday evening.

The road to Lake Cisco has been hard surfaced and the road from the highway to the dance hall is being rebuilt, which will soon be finished.

not have available one or several dinner places where the cuisine is beyond reproach.

Inspires Housewife
"Such a relaxation provides the housewife with a sense of comparative values and inspires her in her own culinary activities. The small added cost is far more than offset by her freedom for the evening from her regular routine. I recommend this course strongly to every family whose means and circumstances make it possible.

"In the summer time particularly do I recommend periodical picnic dinners in which paper plates and napkins remove much of the so-called drudgery of "cleaning-up." The entire family circle is stimulated by an outdoor meal and such instances rapidly become regularities in the program of the family.

"Above all should regularity be one of the items in this feature such relaxation should be guarded closely by the housewife and I am sure if her husband is as broadened as the average American husband is today, he will aid her in jealously preserving this evening of freedom."

Homely, sensible, philosophus, such as the above, run like a golden thread through the warp and woof of recipes, food values, menu construction and technical data which comprises the fabric of Mrs. Garrett's lectures, making them most enjoyable.

The remarkable personality of Mrs. Garrett, colored and mellowed by contacts with hundreds of thousands of women makes a most edifying and pleasant instruction period out of what might easily become a more or less dry discourse. Her unusual capacity of graphically vivifying her remarks by incidents drawn from her rich background of experience have led to an unprecedented demand for her services.

The Daily News feels that it's women readers are indeed fortunate to be able to attend Mrs. Garrett's lectures this year since her bookings were at a premium and it was only through early effort that the Daily News was able to secure her services for the cooking school.

Mrs. Garrett's popularity is attested to by the fact that many queries have been received at the Daily News office regarding details of the school. Admission will be absolutely free without obligation. Lectures will be given promptly at 2:30 each afternoon for five consecutive days beginning March 2.

LIFE APPOINTMENTS

BOSTON, Feb. 20. — The Rev. Loy Lewis Long of Cordell, Okla., and Mrs. Edna Johnson Long of Brooklyn, N. Y., two American teachers now in Kodaikanal, South India, have recently received life appointments as workers under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. They will do general evangelistic work for the Marathi mission at Ahmednagar, India.
