Sixty-Nine Bills of Indictment Made By Eastland Grand Jury

The Eastland county grand jury, which has been in session the past 12 days—June 1 to 12—made its final report to the judge of the district court—88th district—at Eastland last Saturday.

275 Witnesses Examined. The jury examined 275 witnesses and returned 69 bills of indictment, called attention to the system under which peace officers are working and their method of conducting the affairs of the county, and made numerous recommendations for the improvement of the county's business affairs.

Gambling on Baseball Games. Baseball games and the supposed gambling on said games received the attention of the jury which, in its report, recommends that "officers see to it that gambling on baseball be stopped."

Sunday Closing Matter. Taking up the matter of Sunday closing, or the enforcement of the "blue sky" laws of Texas, the jury's report shows almost flagrant disregard in Eastland county of said statutes, and calls the county judge's attention to the matter of lack of enforcement of said laws in a way that this matter bids fair to receive closer application in the future.

Picture shows, cold drink stands, gasoline stations, and other places of the kind were recited in the report as being violators of this law. The recommendations of the jury on the matter requests that the "officers whose duty it is to assess the fines for such violations assess the highest fines against such persons as the law will permit."

Prohibition Law Violation. Asserting that the sheriff of Eastland county is in possession of large quantities of liquor that has been possessed at different intervals of the county's campaign against violation of the prohibition laws, and stating that such liquor as has been taken into custody is now stored in the confines of the county jail at Eastland, the jury recommends that said liquor be destroyed by the sheriff immediately, and says: "Should it be necessary to accomplish such destruction, that the district judge make an order to this effect, authorizing and instructing every particle of said liquor to be destroyed."

The apparently current practice of peace officers known as "paying off," or "fining parties who are violating our laws and saying to them: 'You can pay off and go on,'" was another matter which received consideration of the jury; and in their recommendations in this matter the jury suggests a plan of procedure in handling such cases that should show improvement both in the dispatch of same and the more closely harboring of the county's funds derived from such violators.

The report of the jury follows: To Hon. E. A. Hill, Judge of the 88th District:

We, the grand jury for the May term of the honorable district court of Eastland county, Texas, beg leave to submit the following as our final report: We have been in session 12 days, during which time we have examined 275 witnesses and have found 69 bills, 59 of which were felonies and 10 misdemeanors.

We have used all possible diligence in investigating violations of the laws in this county which have been brought to our attention. We feel that too many of our citizens who claim to be law abiding, are not assisting our county and city officers in the enforcement of the laws as they should, in that violations of the law which their knowledge are not brought

LABOR BODIES CONDEMN UNION RAILROAD STRIKE

RESOLUTION TO THIS EFFECT INTRODUCED BEFORE A. F. OF LABOR.

INTERNATIONAL UNION British Delegate Wants Such a Body to Prevent Useless Conflict.

Associated Press. MONTREAL, June 14.—The Central Labor bodies, which aided in the unauthorized strikes of unions during the recent railroad walkout, were condemned in a resolution presented at the convention of the American federation of labor today, in behalf of the International Switchmen's union.

As the constitution provides no punishment, the resolution urged that labor bodies be condemned and warned. The International Ladies' Garments Workers' Union today were pressing the fight to have the federation urge release of political prisoners and the repeal of the espionage act.

A resolution offered would have organized labor protest against "further useless inhuman incarceration of social idealists and demand their immediate release as well as the complete restoration of freedom of the press and the assemblage of associations without any restrictions."

The Central New York labor body declared 15,000 men were imprisoned as political prisoners, conscientious objectors, and military offenders.

International organization of the world's union workers, to further their aims and prevent another world war, was advocated by J. W. Ogden, fraternal delegate of the British trade unions congress.

Ogden warned the federation that it must ignore any international similar to that formed in Russia or other countries. "The only international we can recognize," Ogden added, "is one that is formed on a right and proper legal basis. The only way we will be able to prevent useless conflict is by linking the workers of the world into a great international organization."

GRAND JURY REPORT.

Since the dawn of civilization the great mass of the people have taken it for granted that they come within the category of what is known as "respectability" and have thought of crime and criminals as things and people relegated to a lower realm of existence.

But now comes the Eastland county grand jury, and, in its final report to the presiding judge, chafes the "law abiding" element of society with "not assisting our county and city officers in the enforcement of the law as they should, in that violations of the law within their knowledge are not brought to the attention of the officers or reported to the grand jury."

The grand jury could not have made a truer charge than this. People at large are inclined to think that the violations of the law they see are none of their business or else are not disposed to go to the personal expense, time and trouble to bring offenders to justice.

Some of the most respectable men who walk the streets of Eastland county's cities know where there are gambling games going on, even though they do not participate in them themselves. They know where there are lodging houses and hotels which are harboring women of ill repute. Yet these same men would prefer to stand about the street corners and talk about what the "police are permitting to go on in this city" than to go to the police, point out definite instances of law violation, and demand that immediate action be taken.

The grand jury also charges the county and city officers are not doing their whole duty, and recommends that gambling on baseball be stopped. It likewise recommends that all liquor confiscated in raids be labeled and sent to the sheriff's office to be destroyed.

Both of these are very good recommendations, but whether they can ever be fully enforced is a question. Baseball bets are not made in the grand stand as a rule, and having the whole police force at a game would do little good.

There is no doubt that some provision should be made for the disposal of confiscated whiskey. It is certain that no good can come of vast supplies of liquor accumulating in the police stations, and it is still more certain that it is a constant source of temptation to all connected with it.

The grand jury further urges that city and county officials be more diligent in the enforcement of the Sunday laws. It is hard to realize how they could be any more diligent here.

That officers should bring violators of law before the proper authorities instead of personally accepting fines, is a good recommendation. While a policeman may not be dishonest, fines should be accounted for, and being permitted to plead guilty to a police officer is not good practice.

RANGER TIMES YEAR OLD.

The Ranger Times issued its first birthday anniversary edition Sunday. It was a 48-page paper, crowded with advertisements and photographs of people and buildings of the city to the east of us. On the whole the newspaper was not only a credit to the profession, but a credit to the city whose interests it is forwarding. It showed not only enterprise in newspaper work, but shows that the Ranger Times is getting sufficient business backing to enable it to exploit the city of Ranger.

There is no reason why the same exploitation can not be projected for Cisco in the same way. It just needs support and enough of it.

DARK PARLORS AND "LOVERS' LANE" CAUSE TROUBLE

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 14.—"America can go nowhere but to perdition, unless its social customs and practices are changed," declared Rev. Dr. Daniel P. Rittenhouse, local Baptist clergyman, discussing the subject, "The Mismated Pair," yesterday.

"Young people no longer consider it necessary to consult father and mother about the most important question of their lives, but, instead, choose the corner of the back parlor with the lights turned low, or the end of lovers' lane on a moonlight night.

"The average girl today is choosing ancestry, 12-cylinder cars and a beautiful home in place of true manhood.

"Young men, do not be deceived by the old saying that two can live just as cheaply as one. There's nothing in it.

"The laws of our country should require every young man and woman applying for a marriage license to present a certificate of good health from the family physician.

"It is the duty of every normal person to marry. I am in favor of a dowry on behalfers after they are 25 or 30 years old.

"Married men, fulfill your contract. Above all, stay married. Eighty per cent of divorce cases are the fault of the man."

The American Flag.

During the revolution the flag had 13 stars, in the war of 1812, 15 in the Mexican war, 20 in the civil war, 48 in the Spanish-American war, 48, and in the world war, 48.

One of the oldest existing flags of the Stars and Stripes design is that which was carried by the North Carolina troops at the battle of Guilford Court-house, March 15, 1781, and which is now in the rooms of the Masonic grand lodge in Raleigh.

The first instance in which the 13 colonies were represented on an emblem was in the flag carried by the light horse troops of Philadelphia in greeting Washington to Kingsbridge, N. Y., on his way to Cambridge to take command of the army. This flag was a gorgeous banner of yellow silk, trimmed with silver, and bearing in its upper corner a square of 13 white and blue stripes.

The first merchant ship to carry the American flag to a foreign port was the Bedford of Nantucket, which arrived in England February 8, 1782, with a cargo of whale oil. A London newspaper of that day said: "She is manned wholly by American seamen, wears the rebel colors, and belongs to the Island of Nantucket, in Massachusetts."

Previous to 1784 the Chinese had no word in their language as a name for the young American republic. "When the Stars and Stripes were first carried there in that year they described the flag as being as handsome as a flower, and speaking of the vessel they called it Kaw-Kee-Chum, Flag Flower Ship, and an American they called Kaw-Kee-Koch-Yin, Flower Flag countrymen."

Many writers have stated that the patriots carried no flag in the battle of Lexington. In this they are mistaken. Nathaniel Page, Captain of the Minute Men of the town of Bedford had a flag for his company. When they received word that the British were coming they hastened to Lexington and carried the flag with them. In the thickest of the fight it was laid upon the ground for a while. When the British retreated the Bedford men followed them carrying their flag which consisted of a maroon field and a picture of an armored arm and hand holding aloft a sword.

Until after the civil war all the official United States flags were made of hunting manufactured abroad. On February 26, 1886, General Benjamin F. Butler presented to congress a flag that was made in his mill at Lowell, Mass., the material for which was grown and manufactured in the United States; made by Americans on American machinery. Congress accepted it with a vote of thanks and ordered that no foreign material should ever again be used in making the official United States flags.

The American flag was first given the name of "Old Glory" by Captain Stephen Driver, and old seadog of Salem, Mass. In 1831, when admiring friends gave Captain Driver a great flag for his ship, he made a short, but energetic speech, at the close of which he raised his hand toward the banner at the mast's head, and shouted "Old Glory!" Ever afterward people called him Old Glory Driver.

U. S. IS ONLY FREE GOLD MARKET IN WORLD

BANKERS TROUBLE HERE IS IMMENSE BORROWING; NO FUNDS TO REPAY

Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Tex., June 14.—While the gravity of the national economic situation was not questioned the consensus of opinion among bankers who attended the 1920 Texas Bankers' association here was that there was no danger of a financial panic. On the contrary, many of the delegates expressed the belief that the work of deflation already believed to have begun, would be accompanied by very few if any serious market disturbances.

Some bankers declared they were "everjoyed at the prospect of getting their feet back on the ground," through restriction of credits to all excepting essential industries.

Speaking before the convention on "money and the foreign exchange," Beverly D. Harris, vice president of the National City bank of New York, declared that the stringency of investment money would not be abated for several years. Adequate cause for this belief, he explained, was to be found in the fact that four great European countries, formerly leading world commerce and production, have been split into fifty disorganized states.

"The whole Pandora's box of trouble here at home is the immense borrowing of the government when there are no funds to repay the loans," Mr. Harris said. "The world never will get on a solvent basis until governments stop diluting and wasting the peoples' money. No country can be solvent until it balances its budget."

"While the world's money in a technical sense is gold metal, in a practical sense it is credit—and credit dollars are good so long as the reserves are sufficient and the country they represent is solvent. Today the United States is the only free gold market in the world.

GIL'S GLEANINGS

Sunday's rain gave the Scouts a much needed rest. Several of the boys have contracted charlie horses, sprained ligaments, strawberries, and other minor ailments during the last few days, and a day of leisure will help their conditions.

Babe Ruth is knocking them further every day. Yesterday at a Cleveland baseball game, he drove a sky-high home run over the right field fence that cleared, by many feet, the top of a house on the opposite side of the street.

It is being rumored that Rodgers Hornsby will be sold to the New York Giants. If McGraw lands the Texas boy, the Empire city club would soon be out of the lowly position it now occupies in the percentage column.

Ty Cobb has at last reached the select class of 300 hitters. The Detroit star is batting .305, according to latest averages, and is climbing rapidly. Another month ought to see him among the top-notchers.

Chapman, who filled the hole left vacant by Tim Griesbeck, is a good catcher, but he will have to do some wonderful work behind the bat before the fans forget the versatile Tim. Chapman, although not as heavy a hitter as Griesbeck, pastes the ball for more than an average catcher's percentage.

Cincinnati has gone into first place again in the National. The Reds are rounding into their last year's form, and will more than likely be hard to beat from now on, since they have gained the foremost position, which they think belongs to them.

Johnson says he was offered "Everything Under the Sun" by Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 14.—Senator Harding is an ultra-conservative, and everybody knows that he is not satisfactory to me, and I am sure that he is not satisfactory to Senator Johnson.

He promised to have something to say about these men, "and some other gentlemen who have taken part in the convention," at a very early date. "There isn't a thing under the sun," said Johnson, "that I haven't been offered during the past week. It has been singular that the very gentlemen who have been so insistent on my talking the vice presidency have been equally insistent that I was utterly unfit to be president, although there is only a heart beat between the two."

THE SUPPLY OF CANNED GOODS SEEMS AMPLE

DELANEY FINDS TWO SCORE CHICAGO WAREHOUSES BULGING WITH FOODSTUFFS

Editor's Note.—This is the last of a series of articles on the food situation in Chicago.

Chicago housewives will be unable to put up fruit and vegetables which require sugar this year, according to the predictions of sugar brokers, but there will be no shortage of canned goods, fruits or other preserved articles that require sugar in their manufacture if the supplies of these commodities in the Chicago storage warehouses is to be taken into consideration.

In my trail through the billion-dollar food reserves of Chicago storage places I saw an enormous amount of canned goods held there. Every place I went cans and cans of food seemed to be in the majority as compared with other things which were being held for a future sale.

I was first introduced to the large amounts of canned goods when I entered the Griswold & Walker warehouse to look over the Bunte Bros' supply of sugar. Here I passed through walls and walls of canned goods lined for blocks on every floor.

In taking photographs of the sugar supply, coffee, rice and other commodities it was impossible to keep the canned goods out of the picture. They were everywhere.

At the Scoy Terminal warehouse, where the I. Wall Commission company has its headquarters, there were so much canned goods they were crowding their way out of the warehouse proper and were taking available space in the gangways of the building, on the elevator landings and wherever there was enough space to permit of the piling of a row of boxes or a ceiling-high stack.

The Chicago Cold Storage company also furnished a view of a large amount of canned goods of all descriptions. In the West Side Warehouse subsidiary building at Kinross and Canal Sts. I found five floors of foodstuffs packed in as tightly as it could be packed and in accordance with the building regulations.

When I entered the cold storage warehouses the canned goods seemed to run more to fish and meats and milk and fruits and vegetables. This, of course, was aside from the large amounts of fresh vegetables which were found in cold storage, in many cases frozen hard and in some cases, strange to say, I found boxes of bags of raisins rotting—even in cold storage.

Mouse Amuses Crowd by Catching Flies in Hardware Window

Several local people who were out for a stroll through the business section Sunday learned for the first time that a mouse is fond of flies and is quick enough to catch them.

In the window of a hardware store on Main street a mouse held the attention of a group of people for a considerable length of time. It would lie in wait for the flies that buzzed about the window pane, suddenly pounce upon them and swallow them in the twinkling of an eye.

This, of course, was aside from the large amounts of fresh vegetables which were found in cold storage, in many cases frozen hard and in some cases, strange to say, I found boxes of bags of raisins rotting—even in cold storage.

I asked about this situation, and an attaché of the warehouse declared it was not out of the ordinary, that very frequently large supplies had to be thrown away because they rotted even in a temperature near the zero mark. He said this was due to the condition of the apples and raisins and other fruits at the time of the packing.

I am not an expert on food inspection, and do not predict to be able to judge scientifically of the condition of the meats, but if thousands of pounds of the meat that I saw in the corners apparently discarded, in some of the cold storage warehouses of Chicago, are not rotting and laid, then they are certainly being primed for a game, for the labels showed that it had been there for months and months, and an expert on packing house products told me there was no excusable reason for holding meat throughout a year.

At the C. B. & Q. docks, where flour was found moulding and breaking the bags, there was also an abundance of canned goods. At the Graham & Morton docks likewise there were hundreds of boxes of preserved fruits and vegetables. At the Canada Atlantic docks, on East North Water Street one could hardly find a passageway to walk through.

FARMERS STATE PINK BOLL WORM IS HARMLESS

CLAIM DAMAGE NOT EXCEED 10 POUNDS COTTON SINCE 1915; YEAR OF ITS DISCOVERY

Associated Press. AUSTIN, Tex., June 14.—Farmers of Southwest Texas are still unconvinced that there is such a thing as a "pink boll worm menace," according to a statement they issued which placed their interpretation upon the testimony given by experts in the recent legislative hearings on the subject.

The statement pointed out that the pink boll worm may live on okra and several wild plants, and that if deprived of its favorite food—cotton—it would probably continue to exist upon wild plant food.

“WOMEN, WE ARE MAKING FOOLS OF OURSELVES”

WOMEN'S STATE DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS SCENE AMUSING INCIDENTS.

HEAVEN'S SAKE, HUSH

“Look at Those Men Laughing at Us!” Delegate Shouted—250 Are Present.

Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, June 14.—One of the most interesting features of the 1920 democratic state convention here was the caucus of the 250 women delegates. It was the first big political meeting for “women only” in Texas, and was called to name four women delegates-at-large to the national democratic convention.

Harmony was the announced watchword of the caucus, but the hot sun and heat of politics brought the meeting to the boiling point.

In the end the four women were named and with 12 men were elected by the state convention, with one-fourth vote each, to cast the Texas four delegates-at-large votes as a unit at San Francisco.

Thirty-six delegates, with one vote each, also were elected, making the state's 40 convention ballots.

The caucus was exciting from the very start.

“Madam chairman,” exclaimed a delegate after the meeting began to get warm, “there are four motions before the house now and I desire to make another.”

“Women, we are making fools of ourselves,” said the chairwoman, pounding her umbrella on the floor. “The men will be completely disgusted with us.”

Finally the chair was able to read the pre-arranged slate.

Immediately three women were on their feet endorsing their choice for delegate-at-large. Then several addresses were delivered simultaneously in favor of one candidate. This was followed by a confusing debate over one of the candidates.

“Madam chairman,” shouted a woman from Beaumont, “if we can not agree on all four candidates, let's agree on the first three names, and attend to the other later.”

“We will vote on her (the Beaumont lady's question),” the chairwoman said, “but first let me add the name of another candidate, and we will vote on all of them.”

Several voices cried “Question! Question!” and a vote was taken on the “previous question.” The “ayes” won and then it apparently dawned upon the delegates that no one knew what the “previous question” was.

A delegate demanded that all the candidates come forward and line up so the caucus could vote on them. The candidates lined up, but six women began to speak at the same time and the “exhibition” was not taken seriously. Then came cries of “We want six delegates; what right have the men to limit our number?”

A small motherly-looking woman waved her umbrella until the attention of the chair was attracted.

Above the hum of voices she declared the “women ought to be satisfied with what the men gave them. Only five per cent of the women have paid their poll tax, and we don't deserve more than four delegates.”

Out of the confusion another voice said: “The men put the selection of the women on us because they knew what a big job it was.”

The seats were no longer in use and the house was filled with “walking delegates,” each of whom had seemingly discovered suddenly that she had a political opinion of her own.

A tall, gray-haired woman, with a heavy umbrella, towered above the crowd and declared the meeting “a disgrace.”

“This unseemly action will cause the men to have a contempt for everything connected with woman suffrage,” she shouted.

She demanded that a chairman familiar with parliamentary law be elected “so the meeting can be controlled.”

The chairwoman appeared relieved rather than offended at her threatened overthrow.

A vote was taken and she was re-elected.

At this point a delegate got the floor and, tears in her eyes, urged the women to be more “reasonable and Christianlike.”

“We are making history in this first convention of Texas women and our actions at this caucus may give a black eye to suffrage in this state,” she said.

This cooled the meeting temporarily, but the temperature soon rose again.

A close vote was taken on the candidates and the chair called for a di-

PAINTERS' UNION GIVES BARBECUE AT LAKE BERNIE

Lake Bernie, Cisco's popular water resort, was the scene Sunday of a barbecue, given by members of the Painters' Union Local No. 937.

The committee having the barbecue in charge was composed of Messrs. Bowers, Kelly, Wilson, Rupe and others.

That the beef and goat, which constituted the major part of the edibles, would be cooked and ready for the picnickers when they arrived at the feast, several of the above committee betook themselves to the lake Saturday evening, carrying with them in trucks a sufficient quantity of beef and goat to feed the party of 58 odd who were in attendance.

Besides the meat, which was deliciously cooked by the painters themselves, the rural barbecue menu of potato salad, pickles, coffee, bread, cigars and lemonade were provided in plentiful quantities.

A local photographer was a guest of the painters and took a number of pictures of scenes and incidents thereto.

Quite a large number of those in attendance were painters from Humbletown, where they have been busy for many months on the numerous improvements being consummated in that excellent addition to Cisco.

Many of the painters were accompanied to the barbecue by their wives and children, and J. T. Foreman says that the affair as a whole was so complete and well ordered that the visiting or journeyman painters expressed much satisfaction in the treat that was afforded them by their brother Cisco painters.

vision of the house. But the house refused to divide.

It seemed that nearly 300 delegates were engaged in conversation and unable to find a place to leave off.

Suddenly a delegate noticed several newspaper men standing in a doorway.

“For heaven's sake, hush! Look at those men laughing themselves to death!” she shouted.

“Please don't let the public know how this meeting has behaved,” screams of voices shouted.

The confusion, they declared, was caused by the “radical majority.”

After the four women delegates-at-large had been chosen, a Dallas woman walked out the hall shaking her head.

“I believe after all, that our mother's council is a quiet and orderly organization,” she declared.

State Typhoid Rate Is Increasing, Says State Health Officer

Reports reaching the state board of health at Austin show that with the rise of the barometer in Texas, the typhoid rate is increasing and Dr. C. W. Goddard, state health officer, issues a warning against this dreaded disease.

“Typhoid in Texas seems to be a good companion to warm weather and flies,” says Dr. Goddard, “and sanitary precaution and personal hygiene are vital in escaping its ravages.”

“Infection,” he continues, “comes from direct contact with typhoid germs contaminated food and polluted water.”

Here are ways to prevent the spread of this disease, according to Dr. Goddard:

1. Disinfect excreta from typhoid sufferers.
2. Secure safe disposal of all night soil.
3. Assure purity of drinking water.
4. Safeguard all food supplies.
5. Keep down fly production by eliminating breeding areas.
6. Vaccinate against typhoid.

STATE AID FOR CITIZENS TO OWN FARMS OR HOMES

GOVERNOR DECLARES INTENTION TO REQUEST PLANK IN PARTY PLATFORM ON MATTER

Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., June 14.—Governor Hobby has announced his intention of asking the democratic executive committee at its meeting today to place a referendum on the ballot at the July primary to decide whether or not the legislature shall be asked to submit a constitutional amendment providing for state aid to citizens in cities or on farms in acquiring homes.

This is the same amendment that was defeated in 1919, but the governor said that he is of the opinion that it was confused with the five other amendments submitted at that time, and that he believes if submitted by itself it will pass by a large majority.

While Hobby, he said, is based upon the fact that he received a majority against it of only 787 votes out of a total of more than 800,000 votes cast at the election in which it was involved.

“Texas is great enough, resourceful enough and fully capable of establishing a system of rural credits under which the credit of the state may be used and land acquired by small payments down, while the balance is worked out over a period of years,” said the governor in announcing his plan.

He quoted returns from nine large counties, which are also shown to be strongly “wet” as proof that they voted down the home ownership amendment by about 8,000 majority largely because it was confused with the prohibition issue.

We find that the sheriff of this county has in his possession in the county jail a large quantity of intoxicating liquors which has heretofore been seized and captured, and we recommend that the sheriff immediately destroy every drop of such liquor now on hand, and if he should deem it necessary to accomplish such destruction, that the district judge make an order to this effect, authorizing and instructing every particle of such liquor to be destroyed.

We recommend further that all city police, city marshals, constables, deputy constables or any other officers who seize and take possession of intoxicating liquors, that they immediately deliver same to the sheriff of this county and that same be, upon receipt of same, destroyed by him.

We further recommend that all city and town peace officers, all deputy sheriffs, constables or deputy constables of or in this county immediately upon seizure of any intoxicating liquors, that they label each bottle, jug, keg, barrel or whatever such liquor is in, writing on same the date and from whom same was seized, or in whose possession same was found and deliver the same to the sheriff of this county, taking from the sheriff his receipt therefor; and that upon delivery to the sheriff of such intoxicating liquor or liquors seized or captured, the sheriff shall secure an affidavit from the one delivering same to him that the amount so delivered to the sheriff is the entire amount captured or seized by him.

The grand jury recommends that the practice which is so prevalent with the officers known as “paying off,” i. e., finding parties who are violating our laws and saying to them you can “pay off and go on,” the officer taking his

to enforce the collection of all official bonds which have been forfeited or that may hereafter be forfeited and that the county attorney make close examination of each and every bail bond filed in order that it may be absolutely sure that there have been no errors made in drawing said bonds which could in any way prevent the state from enforcing the collection of same and we further recommend that officers whose duty it is to approve bail bonds be more careful in determining that the sureties on such bonds are absolutely good for the amount of the bonds.

We desire to thank all the officers of the court for their services rendered in assisting the grand jury during the time we were in session.

Having investigated all matters which have been brought to our attention, we respectfully ask that we be discharged.

Respectfully submitted, C. L. GASRETT, Foreman.
