WAIT U. S. ATTITUDE IN OIL CRISIS

Picnickers at Lake Cisco Saturday Number Thousands

LONE STAR AND W. T. U. HAVE OUTINGS

Crowds approximating the July Fourth attendance swarmed at Lake Cisco Saturday as attendance upon both the Lone Star Gas company's annual picnic and the picnic for the West Texas Utilities company officials and employees exceeded all expectations. Those in charge of tagging Lone Star company picnickers informed a Daily News representative at 4:30 that more than 1,400 tags entitling those wearing them to all the privileges of the picnic had been given. It was estimated that by 7 o'clock attendance would number at least 2,000 people.

A full day of entertainment was provided and heartily enjoyed. Parking space about the pavilion and the swimming pool was crowded and a force of special officers was required to keep designated areas open for the free movement of the crowds.

The swimming pool, the golf course and the lake were favored places of entertainment during the afternoon. At 4 o'clock approximately 250 passes to the pool were issued to Lone Star picnickers in addition to the tickets sold other customers for swims. The larger crowd, however, occupied the gallery in the shade of the pavilion watching the bathers. Hundreds were scattered throughout the parks, eating watermelons, lunches and enjoying the shade. The golf course of the Cisco Country club, likewise thrown open to the Lone Star visitors, was well patronized both during the morning hours when a tournament was in progress and during the afternoon as groups of visitors spent the warm afternoon in pursuit of the great business man's sport which the Scotch nation generously contributed to the relief of gout, hardened arteries and sedentary worries.

Amusements, a terrapin race, donkey and pony races, contests in swimming and so forth were on the program and carried out as effectively as the mood of a picnic crowd, about which nothing can be forecast, permitted. There was a happy, holiday atmosphere to the scene as the hundreds of visitors abandoned themselves to an afternoon and evening of leisure and entertainment in their own ways.

A band concert by the Lone Star band, a huge picnic lunch and barbecue, a dance at the Cisco country club beginning at 9 o'clock and a bridge tournament at the same place in the afternoon were other features of the day which the Lone Star picnic committee, headed by Hal Hunter, of Ranger, provided for the recreation of the visitors.

Banners hung across the street and across the highway at the lake testified to the welcome with which Cisco greeted the visitors. Cards in the shop windows at town carried similar messages and post cards, printed with a message of greeting, were distributed among the visitors. The West Texas Utilities anticipated 75 for the picnic which was held simultaneously with the Lone Star outing and had fully that number if not more.

Superlative barbecued beef, soured cream—a connection of potatoes, beef, cut cetera, reminiscent of the days when the camp cook had but one pot for his cookery—coffee without cream, beans and other eatables which would shock the tired business man if served by his wife but gives him the appetite of a hibernating bear when consumed in the small of wood smoke in the out of doors, was served not once but twice to the crowd that gathered about the hay-strewn chuck wagon. The picnickers ate heartily at 4 o'clock, swam in the big swimming pool and returned to eat even more heartily. After the second repast dancing occupied the evening for the party. Other events on the program included contests in buck and wing dancing, bald-faced lying and so forth. Prizes were awarded.

On the Merchants Birthday Calendar

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bacon July 3, at 4 p. m., a son, weight 8 and one-half pounds. The baby has been named Joe Ed.

On the Merchants Birthday Calendar, the Cisco Lumber and Supply company offers a gift to the first baby born on the 3rd day of the month.

Missing Stage Beauty

Evelyn Wilson, above, Broadway show girl, walked out of her sister's home to go to a drug store an hour after midnight—and she didn't return. Police found her purse in a gutter in uptown New York. That was the only clue. Relatives said she had feared being kidnaped. Her father, Harry Wilson, sent word from Chicago that she had written him that she was despondent because she could not marry the man she loved.

TWO-WEEKS REVIVAL TO END TONIGHT

A two weeks revival will come to a close tonight at the tabernacle in East Cisco when Rev. H. D. Tucker will preach the last sermon of the series from the subject, "Going Home." Rev. O. A. Morton pastor of the Twelfth Street Methodist church will preach this morning at 11 o'clock.

The revival which will come to a close tonight is one sponsored by the Twelfth Street Methodist church but has had the cooperation of several churches and the crowds have been unusually large. Quite a large number of conversions and reclamations have been noted during the meeting.

Everybody is extended an invitation to attend the closing services today.

To Preach Today in Own Pulpit

Rev. H. D. Tucker, pastor of the First Methodist church will preach this morning at 10:50 in his own church from the subject, "In the Heart of the Sun." He will preach at night at the tabernacle revival in East Cisco from the subject, "Going Home." The congregation of First church will attend the revival at the night service and no service will be held at First church.

Confesses to Killing Grandmother

BRYAN, O., July 11.—Theodore Taylor, 25, of Stryker, O., signed a detailed confession today according to county authorities, that he killed his grandmother with poison because he heard her say she wished someone would give her something so that she could "pass away."

Taylor was arraigned on a warrant charging him with the murder of Mrs. Addie Douglas, and pleaded not guilty.

RIISING STAR GIVES BAND BIG WELCOME

Rising Star welcomed the Lobo band Friday evening on its initial trip of a summer series of fellowship concerts, with what W. H. Shultz said was the largest gathering of Rising Star people that had taken place in years. The band, playing in the open space before the tabernacle of the Christian church, a space which the West Texas Utilities company had generously lighted, entertained the large crowd with an hour of music.

"You folks brought us something we were not expecting," said Mr. Shultz, a remark that was but one of numerous expressions of appreciation of the visit. He joined with other Rising Star business men in praising the band and in expressing a warm feeling of welcome.

The concert, under direction of G. W. Colburn, began at 8:15 p. m. and lasted until 9:30, including a 15-minute intermission. J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce, who was introduced by Rev. R. Neal Greer, Baptist pastor of Rising Star, spoke briefly explaining the purpose of the concert and visit of Cisco people as a means of getting better acquainted with Rising Star and inviting Rising Star people to return the visit. There were, in addition to the 40 members of the band, about 12 cars of Cisco people bringing the total Cisco delegation to number about 80 or 90.

Back to Old Times

Ed Bucey, road contractor, of Rising Star, declared that the visit and the concert was the "finest thing at all—getting back to old times where everybody knew each other."

Dr. Busby praised the band and said that Rising Star "certainly appreciates you people paying us this visit."

Rev. Greer, who introduced Mr. Spencer as the "best Red Cross chairman in west Texas" said that "Rising Star is proud to have you. This is the finest thing that has been done in some time."

Frank Robinson, secretary of the chamber of commerce expressed not only personal thanks but the thanks of Rising Star as a city, Mr. Robinson and the chamber of commerce of Rising Star countered with a surprise of their own when they brought out several large trays of sodas for the members of the band during an intermission. The band's appreciation of the treat was not a moment in doubt.

Will Tyler, mayor of Rising Star, likewise expressed his city's thanks as well as his personal appreciation. Angelo Shultz, son of W. G. Shultz, joined his father, a prominent ranch and oil operator, in praising the band and thanking Cisco for the visit.

Will Koonce, manager of Hugginbotham Bros. Merchandise company, was another who voiced approval of the visit.

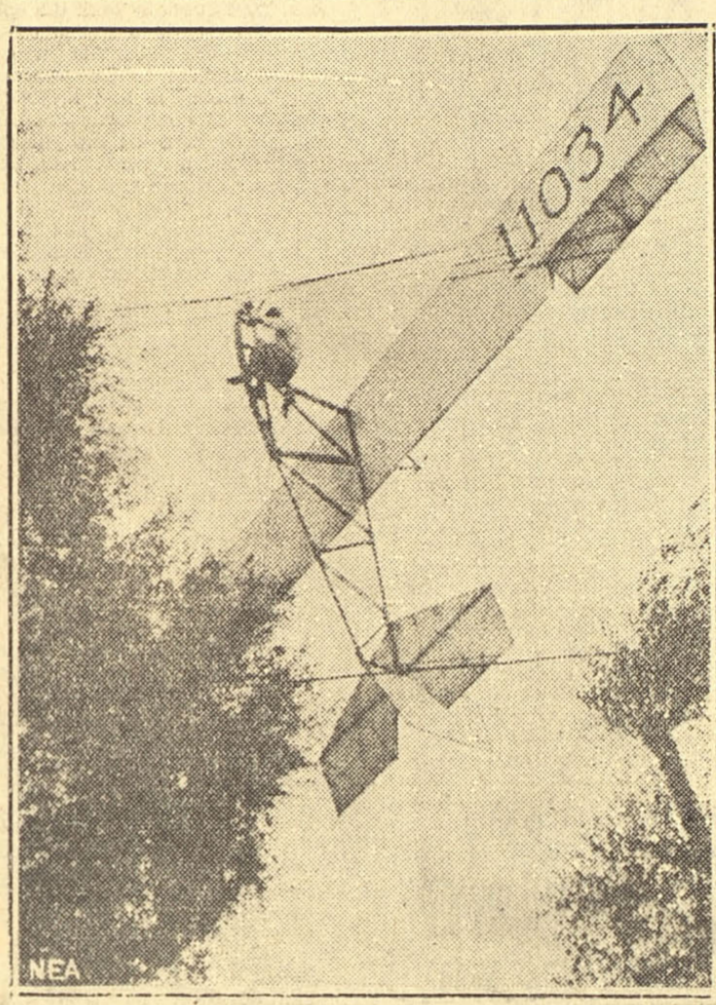

All were unanimous in inviting Cisco to repeat the concert.

The band will go to Gorman next Friday evening for a similar concert. Cisco people who made the trip were delighted with the outing and the chamber of commerce here is expecting an even larger delegation to accompany the Lobo musicians to Gorman, which is only 30 miles from Cisco.

Col. "Dick", upon whom the title of "sage of the Shackelford hills" has been popularly conferred by reason of his vigorous advocacy of progressiveness in the development of the agricultural and natural resources of Shackelford county, and his party stopped by the Daily News office for a brief visit en route to the Lake.

RETURNS TO STAMFORD
Miss Mary Tom Fields returned Saturday to Stamford after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Fields, here.

Line's Busy

This was the unusual ending of 14-year-old Sidney Carlson's glider flight at Sea Cliff, Long Island, the other day. Looking like a big fly caught in a web, the glider is shown tangled in telegraph wires with the youthful pilot clinging precariously to the frame work. The boy, frightened, had attempted to descend after a brisk wind had carried the craft to an unexpected height of 40 feet. The pilot and the glider, both uninjured, were rescued by firemen.

FALL CALM AS CLEMENCY HOPES FAIL

EL PASO, July 11.—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, calmly heard the news today that he had failed to obtain a suspended sentence and must serve a year in jail for allegedly accepting a bribe in the oil lease cases.

Smoking a cigar, Fall talked with newspapermen, laughed occasionally as he reviewed the case but asked that the visit should not be construed as an interview and that he would not be quoted.

"I want to hear more from my attorneys before making any statements concerning the case or what will be the next move," Fall said.

The suggestion was made that as New Mexico was in the same federal district here, there was a possibility that the former secretary could serve the sentence in a New Mexico jail rather than a Texas jail.

Fall refused to comment on such a possibility but members of his family expressed the opinion that an El Paso jail was not equipped to confine a "sick man."

Members of the family intimated that a modification of the sentence, making it perhaps a year and a day, might be desirable in order to place the matter in the hands of the attorney-general.

Fall also refused to state whether he would allow his friends to go forward with previous plans of attempting to obtain a presidential pardon, some weeks ago. Fall had announced he would not appeal to the federal supreme court but would let his friends take the matter directly to the president. Later he appealed to the court which refused to review the case.

Here at Bedside of Their Mother
Mrs. H. E. Grantland of Colorado and S. J. Vaughn of Hillsboro are in Cisco at the bedside of their mother, Mrs. S. J. Vaughn, who is reported to be seriously ill.

B. B. Poe Undergoes Operation Saturday
E. B. Poe, who underwent an operation at the Graham sanitarium Saturday morning, was reported Saturday afternoon to be doing well.

Leon Cagle Joins Ranks of Dodo Makers

Leon Cagle was credited last week with having made the first real hole-in-one that has ever been made on the Cisco golf course. The fact, reported to the Daily News by O. J. Russell, captain of the Country Club Golf team, was made on the No. 2 hole, 168 yards, of the course, Wednesday afternoon. Cagle was paired with L. A. Harrison in a golf match when he performed the unusual feat.

As if it were a gesture of irony toward veteran golfers who have sweated liberally and frequently over their games, Cagle's Dodo was not the product of experience. He had been playing golf only five weeks, Russell said, when he drove off the tee and watched the elusive, and invariably devilish, white pellet end its course in the cup on the distant green.

NEGRO DRIVER OF DEATH CAR SAFE IN JAIL

DALLAS, July 11.—Clarence Stephenson, negro whose careening car fatally struck one man and crashed into another automobile a block away, was held in jail here today safe from the threats of an angry crowd of 500 which gathered around the scene of the accident.

J. G. Dyer, 55-year-old foreman of engines for the Cotton Belt railroad and a resident of Tyler for 21 years, died in a hospital here a few hours after the negro's car had knocked him half-way across the street at an intersection.

A block away the same machine hit a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Dow and Miss Margaret Galley. The two women were severely cut and bruised.

At the second collision the negro fled from his machine. He was captured three blocks away by pursuing citizens and rushed to the jail by two emergency policemen.

Grumbling crowds followed the prisoner to the jail but finally dispersed.

Two Cars Stolen Here Friday Night

Two cars were stolen in Cisco Friday night. Police recovered one of the vehicles after it had been stripped.

A Pontiac 1926 coupe, belonging to H. C. Henderson, salesman was taken from Eighth street near the Palace theater between 9 and 10 o'clock. Mr. Henderson is reported to have left the car only a short while before it was missed, and was conversing with a friend three or four cars distant at the time. License number of the car was C9-5345.

A Ford coupe, belonging to Mr. Milburn, also a salesman, was stolen from before his home on sixth street. It was recovered on a street just north of the baseball park.

Visitors Speak Approval of Facilities Provided for Parties at Lake Cisco

Efforts of Commissioner Joe Clements, under whose supervision they will be, and Commissioners J. T. Elliott and George D. Fee, in cooperation with the chamber of commerce and Lions and Rotary clubs to develop and equip picnic parks at Lake Cisco have been successfully completed. Two large, inviting parks are now available at the lake for picnickers and tourists and these are proving popular even beyond expectations.

The first is the Lake Cisco park of four acres and the second the Lions and Rotary club park of lesser space but even more inviting in other respects than the first.

Thirteen barbecue pits, constructed by the chamber of commerce in the Lake Cisco park and the two clubs in the smaller park, together with 25 tables and 50 benches have been provided and the benches and tables painted. The trees have been whitewashed, water piped to convenient places, lights strung by the chamber of commerce in the playground equipment erected for children, trash containers provided and the grounds cleaned of underbrush and weeds. Toilets for men and women were also built.

KANSAS READY TO JOIN WITH OTHER STATES

WICHITA, Kans., July 11.—Governor Harry Woodring is ready to call a special session of the Kansas legislature to consider relief for the independent oil men providing other oil producing states and President Hoover will take steps to bolster the market.

This was the statement of Thurman Hill, state public service commissioner, when he arrived in Wichita today to confer with oil men holding a mass protest meeting here.

Calling of the extra session would depend largely upon the attitude of President Hoover toward limiting the flood of foreign crude oil and refined products, Hill said.

Hill asserted he believed that under the present Kansas proration law the commission could shut in 99 per cent of Kansas production.

SOLONS, OIL MEN GATHER AT AUSTIN

AUSTIN, July 11.—Members of the Texas legislature and oil men from all over the Southwest gathered here tonight to prepare for the opening of the extraordinary session called by Gov. Sterling to aid the suffering oil industry.

Methods of controlling production and preventing waste of oil are expected to hold the legislature's attention for several weeks after it convenes Tuesday.

Leaders of both house and senate are already in Austin. Many house members have arrived and are expected to meet with independent oil men who plan to hold a caucus here Monday.

Organization of the legislature is not expected to require much time. There was a belief tonight that Gov. Sterling's brief, terse message describing conditions in the oil industry, would be submitted Tuesday afternoon.

Contents of the message and governor's exact requests have not been made public. It was considered certain, however, that the message would ask the legislature to consider conservation of all natural resources. Governor Sterling repeatedly has said that he believes a separate conservation commission could effectively enforce oil proration laws on conservation of water, oil, gas and other resources.

Many bills aiming to solve the oil industry's problems will be offered. Governor Sterling will submit no bills, depending upon the legislature to choose a measure from those offered it.

OPERATORS PLEAD WITH MURRAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 11.—Panic stricken by the decline in oil prices to the lowest levels in history, Oklahoma City operators today pleaded with Gov. Wm. H. Murray to intervene in their behalf.

Not only did they ask for a complete shutdown of the flush Oklahoma City field yielding 250,000 barrels of oil daily, until the price of crude petroleum rises to $1 a barrel, but they entreated the aid of governors of Texas, Kansas, Arkansas, New Mexico and Louisiana to act in a similar manner.

Desperation of the operators was indicated by the statement of Arthur Seligson, of the Slick estate. Seligson said he favored the shutdown to the point of having the governor call out the militia to enforce the shut down.

Cisco Golfers to Play Albany Today

The Cisco Country Club golf team will play the Albany club here this afternoon at the local links. Albany will bring at least 20 players, O. J. Russell, Cisco team captain was informed.

Play will start at 1:30 and Cisco is hopeful of accomplishing what it has been able to accomplish but once this season—win a golf match.

WEATHER

West Texas—Sunday partly cloudy, probably showers and cooler in Panhandle.
East Texas—Partly cloudy Sunday. Probably showers near coast.

MURRAY HEAD OF TEXAS CO-OPS.

Robert J. Murray of Lubbock has been elected general manager of the Texas Cotton Co-operative association by the board of directors. Murray is widely known the state over. He has been for 20 years closely identified with the farming, banking and business interests of West Texas. He is general agent for the Santa Fe railway. He has direct supervision over about 2500 farms, aggregating approximately 400,000 acres. Through tenants he operates about 3300 acres of his own land in five West Texas counties. In accepting the office he predicted that Cotton Co-operative would be practically in control of cotton marketing in the South within five years. He expressed his belief that the cooperative movement is right. He said it has made material progress and has the support of the farmer. He is thoroughly convinced that the diversified farming program is essential to successful farming. He is a diversifier in many directions. His land and farming activities do not engage all his time. He is president and director of the Slaton State bank.

As for cotton and its price levels—well, watch the ticker.

FEDERAL REVENUE LOSSES IN 46 STATES.

According to treasury department figures only two American commonwealths weathered the blast of depression that shriveled federal internal revenue collections more than $500,000,000 since the last financial year. Colorado and Virginia alone increased internal revenue payments as compared with the preceding year. Colorado was able to record a gain in her total taxes due to an increase of $4,511,841 in the amount of taxes paid by her corporations as compared with last year. Greatest decrease in collection was shown in the second New York district which included the financial section. This district returned $382,945,630 in the fiscal year 1931 as compared with $538,872,184 in the preceding year. North Carolina returned the great amount of miscellaneous taxes due to her huge tobacco tax which totalled $249,128,997.

There is tax money in North Carolina tobacco.

According to Pascom N. Timmons federal tax collections in Texas during the last fiscal year fell more than $6,000,000 under receipts for the preceding fiscal year as the national government's tax revenue dropped approximately $500,000,000. First official figures by districts showed internal revenue in Texas during the year to have been $32,803,338.87. During the fiscal year in 1930 collections in the state amounted to $38,924,521.01 or $6,121,182.14 over the last year's total. A proportionate drop occurred in both the Austin and Dallas districts but the southern district maintained its lead in total collections. Counting highway revenue and the cost of state government and federal income tax, Texans dig up more than a $100,000,000 a year for the tax gatherers. Cost of county and municipal government, which is tremendous, is not included in the figures.

ROGERS CALDWELL FACING THE PEN.

Rogers Caldwell, once the financial idol of Tennessee and widely known in investment circles the country over, was convicted by a criminal court jury of fraudulent breach of trust and his punishment was fixed at not more than three years in the state penitentiary. Caldwell is running mate of Col. Luke Lea, a former United States senator, publisher of important Tennessee newspapers, and a financial Napoleon who was wrecked when the financial crash came in 1929. There are many indictments in federal and state courts pending against Lea and Caldwell. They are the close personal and political friends of Governor Horton of Tennessee who narrowly escaped impeachment. They gambled for millions; they lost. Truth is stronger than fiction.

FLOWERS FOR WILLIAM STATES JACOB.

The Rev. Dr. William States Jacob of Houston is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that city. He is the only Texas minister who has preached a $50,000 sermon in many years. He announced from the pulpit that he was remitting to debtors $50,000 that they owed him. This is what he said:

"I want my debtors to consider their obligations cancelled and erased from the book of memory. There is an old saying that we 'should live, and let live.' If we are to be Christians we must do that." And then Dr. Jacobs went on to plead with those with wealth that they be generous with those in financial distress.

Next.

Henry Ford predicts that in the near future all war debts will be cancelled. This will not include the cancellation of the $10,000,000,000 loaned to the allied governments in war time by the people of the United States. It will be impossible for Americans to cancel their foreign loans. It would be repudiation. William Jennings Bryan, in his life time, advocated cancellation. He said that it would add billions to the wealth of the nation; that its foreign commerce would grow by leaps and bounds. Watch the ticker daily. It will tell most of the story.

NO MERCY SHOWN FALL.

Army physicians reported to the government that Albert B. Fall was able to go to jail and the government has asked that the disgraced former cabinet officer and United States senator be imprisoned at once.

Is there one law for all? If so, why mercy for a high cabinet officer who betrayed the American people and brought disgrace and shame upon an administration and is said to have driven a president of the United States to an early grave?

OTHER OPINIONS

READY

In a recent speech at Waco, Col. William E. Taibot revealed the fact that the committee he heads has completed its survey of Texas manufacturers and is ready to place in the hands of Texas merchants complete lists of Texas-manufactured products.

This information is available with cut cost or expense of any kind.

He also recounted some experiences which despite the fact they disclose an amazing lack of knowledge as to the extent of present Texas industry, have their amusing aspect.

There was, for instance, the Texas manufacturer who discovered a way in which the use of Texas cotton could be materially increased provided a certain cotton fabric could be obtained. The Taibot committee instituted a search for a mill which did, or could, produce this particular fabric. A search of several weeks was concluded when a mill making the fabric was found within three blocks of the manufacturer who had requested the information!

The value of this experience lies in the fact that it so aptly demonstrates the necessity for further education, not only of the people of Texas, but of the manufacturers themselves. — Editorial Digest.

EASTERWOOD BRINGS SUIT FOR $1,000,000

DALLAS, July 11.—Col. William Easterwood, millionaire Dallas aviation enthusiast and sportsman, today filed suit in federal court asking $1,000,000 damages against the William Wrigley, Jr., Chewing Gum company and the Orbit Chewing Gum company.

Easterwood charged the companies, for whom he formerly was distributor in eight southwestern states, were guilty of breach of contract.

The petition which was filed shortly before noon, said Easterwood had a contract with the two companies in which he was given option of renewing at the end of the first four years.

When the contract expired in August, 1929, the petition continued, Easterwood notified the companies he would renew the contract for another four-year period.

The petition alleged the Wrigley and Orbit companies were guilty of breach of contract when they refused to renew Easterwood's contract as distributor.

RAIN KEEPS FORT WORTH FLIERS DOWN

NOME, Alaska, July 11.—Rain and low hanging clouds kept Reg. L. Robbins and Harold Jones, Fort Worth fliers, and their refueling team of Jim Matter and Nick Greener in Nome today but they expected to start back toward Fairbanks and Seattle as soon as possible.

Robbins and Jones, whose projected non-stop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokio came to an end here because their little monoplane, Fort Worth, was too slow to be maneuvered successfully when it had a heavy load of gasoline, plan to install a larger motor and make another attempt.

Youth Probably Fatally Shot

LINDALE, Tex., July 11.—Jack Craft, 20, was probably fatally shot here today at the farm home of Johnny Armstrong, six miles north of here.

Armstrong surrendered to officers after the shooting. No charges have been filed, pending the outcome of Craft's condition. The wounded man was rushed to a Tyler hospital.

AGED LOTHARIO

FCMEROY, C., July 11.—When Nat C. Cook, 83, Syracuse, O., Civil War veteran returned home after dealing with Mrs. Anna Lallance he was surrounded by 150 of his neighbors. The veteran and his bride won their honeymoon in an automobile which he gave her for a wedding present.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Andrew W. Mellon is a man of the hour under foreign skies. He appears to have made possible the adoption of the principle of the Hoover moratorium plan by the representatives of the French government. All concerned in the signing of the protocol are expressing the hope that the agreement will assure the success of the American plan for aiding Germany and rehabilitating the financial structure of the entire world. It is admitted that cancellation saved the day and that Secy. Mellon, "the gentle speaking, ancient and aristocratic appearing, fiscal chief of the United States," exercised it.

New reparations moratorium is a reality. It will last for a year. According to cablegram from Berlin, Germany was on the verge of either bankruptcy or revolution within the past four or five years. The German republic has been compelled to pay back about $500,000,000 of short term credits in gold and foreign exchange, after a similar amount had been drained out of her economic life by credit withdrawal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON PREACHING OF THE APOSTLES

Text: Acts 5:1-14.
And as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them.

Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jesus the resurrection from the dead.

And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now eventide.

Howbeit many of them which heard the word believed; and the number of the men was about five thousand.

And it came to pass on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and scribes.

And Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high priest were gathered together at Jerusalem.

And when they had set them in the midst, they asked, By what power, or by what name have ye done this?

Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Israel.

If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man by what means he is made whole; But it know unto you all, and all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raised from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you whole.

This is the stone which was set at naught of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.

Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus.

And bemoaning the man which was healed standing with them, they could say nothing against it.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 12. The Preaching of the Apostles. Acts 4:1-14.

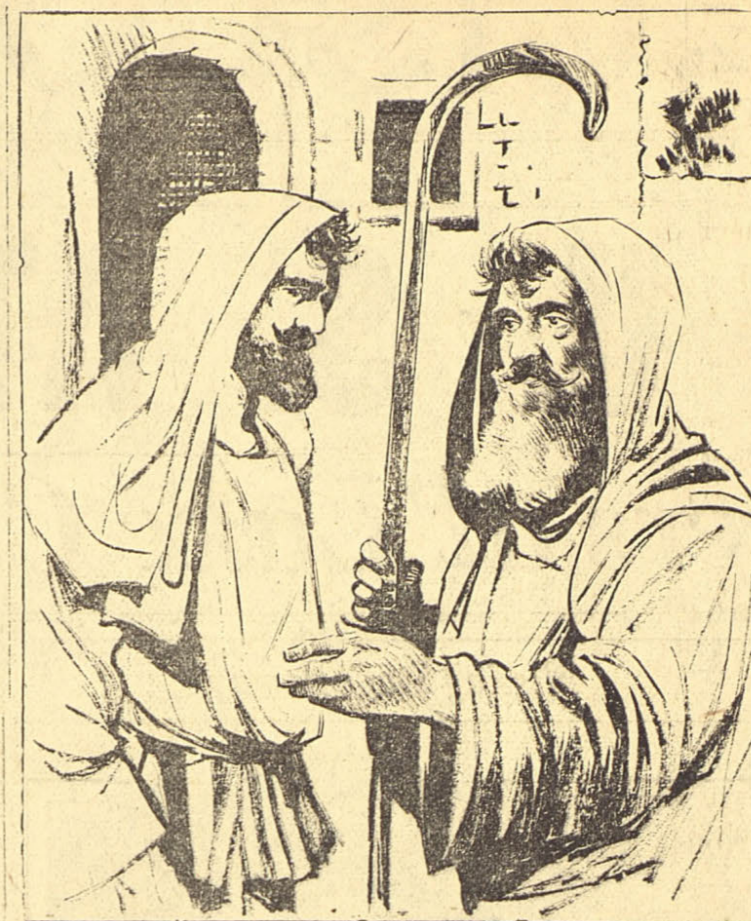

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

The golden text for this lesson, "We ought to obey God rather than men," links it up very closely with recent events, particularly with the decision of the supreme court denying American citizenship to Professor D. C. Macintosh of Yale university on the ground that Professor Macintosh would not assert his willingness to fight in a war under every conceivable circumstance in which his country might order him to do so.

The ground of Professor Macintosh's conscientious scruples was precisely that of the Apostles in this ancient conflict with authority. Professor Macintosh was not a pacifist in the ordinary sense of the term. He did not take the Quaker position of being unwilling to fight under any circumstances. He had, as a matter of fact, served as a chaplain at the front during the World War. He was willing to act as a good citizen of the United States, and his high character and intelligence assured the fact that he would be a desirable citizen. But there was a point at which he felt a crisis might arise in which if he were ordered to participate in a war that he believed to be unjust he would feel that he ought to obey God rather than the government.

Attitude Not New

We are interested here in the ethical and spiritual aspects of such an attitude rather than in its legal side. But it ought to be pointed out that Professor Macintosh's attitude is not at all new in history. It has been virtually the attitude toward law of the great Baptist body to which Professor Macintosh has belonged, and of various other free Christian groups who have repeatedly in history suffered for conscience sake where they were asked by laws that they could not conscientiously obey or to refrain from courses that they felt were a matter of Christian privilege. This was true of the Pilgrim Fathers, who went first of all from England to Holland because of their conflicts with the law in England, and who came to this country seeking to establish a home in America where they could have religious freedom.

Such a Christian attitude is not inconsistent with the highest conception of citizenship. It is only, in fact, where citizens have a strict and keen sense of right that there can be in general a high response to duty and it is only somewhere at that margin line where Christian and non-Christian interests conflict that conscientious scruples would be likely to operate.

Conflicting Principles

However, whatever one thinks of such a case, we are being compelled anew to consider the nature and obligations of the Christian life in much the same way that these early Christians had to consider above all things their duty toward God. Here in our lesson we find the Christian church growing up under adverse conditions of authority. The church is inherently in conflict with the Roman empire because it represents a different principle—a principle of love instead of the principle of force. The church is in conflict with the religious authorities of the time because it represents a free movement of religion in which earnest men are acting according to the dictates of their conscience and not in formal obedience to ecclesiastical authority seeking to impose its will regardless of inherent right.

Under these conditions the Christian church was founded in conviction and courage. Something always happens in the world when men dare to open their minds and hearts to God and then dare to follow in the way in which his spirit leads them. Christianity in its reality was a vital force in the ancient world, and it is always a vital force wherever its reality is brought to bear upon any life or any environment. To assume that Christianity had power to change the ancient world but that it will not affect great changes in our modern world is to disregard either the actual nature of the world or the actual nature of Christianity. The spirit of Christianity lays the supreme stress upon goodness and truth. All that is out of harmony with the plumbline of righteousness and love represents a disordered world to be brought under the orderly sway of spiritual impulses and facts. To emulate these early Christians is the highest task and privilege for any Christian of today.

Police Stool Stolen

WESTERLY, R. I., July 11.—Someone apparently is determined to keep Westerly traffic officers "on their toes." The stool in the police booth in Dixon Square was stolen recently.

Mrs. W. F. Keough Hostess at Party for Mrs. Simpson

Among lovely affairs on the social calendar for the latter part of the week was the party given Thursday morning by Mrs. W. F. Keough, the honor guest being Mrs. G. M. Simpson, who is leaving soon to make her home in Tyler. Novelty gifts were given as prizes to Mrs. F. D. McMahon, winning high score. Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, winner of the cut prize, and Mrs. Simpson, honor. At the close of the games, a delicious salad course was served.

The guest list included: Mesdames George Atkins, Jack Cabiness, Tom Hanrahan, S. E. Hittson, G. B. Kelly, M. L. McGannon, F. D. McMahon, F. W. Murphy, L. B. Campbell, D. C. Sadler, G. M. Simpson, J. E. Spencer, W. J. Armstrong, W. W. Wallace, Chas. Meroney, T. F. O'Brien, F. D. Wright, I. J. Henson, T. M. Quinn, P. R. Warwick, Pete Booth, J. R. Slaughter, O. W. Shepher, W. W. Moore, Miss Mary Jane Butts, and Miss Myrtle Augusta Simpson.

SEWING CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. JAMISON

Mrs. J. E. Jamison was hostess to the Happy Thimble club at the regular meeting on Wednesday. A most delightful afternoon was spent socially. Refreshments of succulent salad, cheese sticks, cookies, and punch were served.

Members and guests present were: Mesdames C. F. Hickman, Ernest Lennon, C. H. Parish, Rudolf Schaefer, H. A. Crosby, George Wild, Reford Cramer, George Sazna, W. F. Evans, John Hestaco of Brownwood, and the hostess.

GARDEN PARTY GIVEN FOR FIDELIS CLASS

Members of the Fidelis class of the First Baptist church were most delightfully entertained at a garden party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. R. Q. Lee on West Eighth street. Much merriment was derived from the very interesting games and contests which were played. A delectable picnic lunch, consisting of sandwiches, pickles, olives, potato chips, vegetable and fruit salads, punch, angel food cake, and ice cream.

Present on this occasion were: Misses Nell Blackburn, Blanche Mathews, Louise Karkkila, Marguerite Reynolds, Virginia Fox, Mattie Lee Kunkel, Wilma Mason, Lucille Blitch, Lillian Jobe, Dalis Surles, Leta Deel Surles, Mona Skidmore, Willie Mathews, and Letha Maud Eager of Austin.

MRS. COLE HOSTESS TO BAPTIST S. S. CLASS

Mrs. C. P. Cole, entertained the Euzelian class of the First Baptist church at her home, 709 West Thirtieth street Wednesday afternoon. After the opening prayer led by Mrs. Barton Philpott, a business session was held during which Mrs. W. F. Elliott and Mrs. Roger DeStiegner were elected officers of the class. Games were played and a guessing of Bible names contest was won by Mrs. Philpott. Music was furnished by Billie and Luc Cole.

A refreshment plate of sandwiches potato chips, and punch was served to: Mesdames C. O. Meek, Roger DeStiegner, Jay Warren, Alfred Green, R. S. Tucker, W. F. Elliott, Barton Philpott, E. M. Burge, B. Montgomery, B. B. Gregory, C. P. Cole, John Hudson, and Eldon Anderson.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

HONOR CISCO GIRLS:

The following story was taken from the Mineral Wells Index:

"Misses Jewel and Mercer, Ely of Cisco, who have been visiting relatives here for the past week, have been the inspiration for a number of delightful social courtesies.

"Miss June Lawrence entertained a group of friends at her home on Tuesday evening in their honor and they were the honor guests for a luncheon given by their aunt, Mrs. LaRue DeBuck, at her home Wednesday at 1 o'clock, and a number of outings and picture show parties have been arranged for them.

HUMBLE BRIDGE CLUB HAS MEETING

Mrs. I. J. Henson won high score and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong low score Wednesday evening when Mrs. Ted Mullinnix was hostess to the Humble bridge club. A lovely color scheme of pink and green was used, and refreshments of lime sherbet and cake were served. A beautiful bouclier lamp was given as a parting gift to Mrs. J. C. Hanrahan, who is leaving soon to make her home in Longview.

Present were: Mesdames W. J. Armstrong, J. R. Almond, W. W. Wallace, J. C. Hanrahan, M. L. McCannon, I. J. Henson, G. M. Simpson, F. D. McMahon, Pete Booth, C. G. Meroney, W. C. McDaniel, L. C. Moore, and the hostess.

MISS BROWN HOSTESS AT BRIDGE PARTY

On Friday evening, Miss Ova Brown entertained with three tables of bridge at the Country club honoring Misses Blanche and Maltrana Perciful of Christoval. Prizes were presented to Miss Agnes Bearman, winning high score, Miss Margaret Crawford, winning the cut, and lovely gifts were given to the honorees. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Der Schmiling Schmeling

He was the title-holder before but is a real champion now. So despite a swollen and discolored left eye, Max Sigried Otto Schmeling was a happy warrior when he returned to New York from his 15-round battle with William L. Strubling in Cleveland. Joe Jacobs, left, manager of the German fighter, and Max Machon, right, his trainer, were smiling too as they escorted their protegee.

Clara had a portable phonograph as well as her suitcase. The phonograph ground out "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" all the way across the continent. And when anyone complained that it was annoying, Clara just answered: "Aw, g'wan, you oughta enjoy music."

Two hundred miles of the long journey had not passed before Clara knew everyone on the train. She possessed a strange magnetism that attracted men — young, old, married, single.

The dining car was a revelation to Clara. She ordered so many salads and desserts at each meal that the table would hardly hold them. Her manager tried to show her how to use a salad fork.

"That's nonsense," Clara said. "Why dirty up another fork when one will do for everything?" Her manager had bought her a couple of cheap dresses in New York. They were brightly colored and delighted Clara. She wore them out in a day and had to go back to the sweater and skirt.

The arrival of Clara Bow in Los Angeles, doorway to Hollywood, was to have been a gala affair. But when her woman companion saw the formidable array of publicity men, cameras and executives, she knew that she could not let them see Clara. She looked at the faded sweater and the skirt that once had been pleated. They slipped out of the station by a rear route.

B. P. Schulberg, who held Clara's contract for his independent company, telephoned the manager, and he was in no jovial mood.

"I planned a big publicity break at the station." "Come on over to the hotel and take a look at the girl and you'll see," said the manager.

Schulberg arrived. "Is this the girl?" he demanded. "Why, she's impossible." "Give her a test—give it to her right now," the woman pleaded.

They took Clara Bow into a barren studio stage. It was a silent, grim place. Thousands of girls have had the experience and many have failed because the tenseness of the moment got them.

But not Clara. She didn't even know she ought to be worried. She was to primitive.

"Laugh!" ordered Schulberg. She did. "Cry!" he commanded. Tears dripped her cheeks.

"You win," he said, and the career that was to skyrocket was started.

Paper Mache Bag Carried Clara Bow's Clothing on First Trip to Hollywood

By DUANE HENNESSY United Press Staff Correspondent HOLLYWOOD, July 11. — When Clara Bow was 17 she never had ridden on a train.

She was an untamed, almost primitive person in those days, a graduate of a poverty - shadowed home in Brooklyn. Before her stretched the promise of a career in the films, a promise that came true.

Clara had a few independent pictures behind her and a contract that was taking her to Hollywood. All her belongings were in a paper mache bag. She wore a sweater and a skirt that once had been pleated.

This was the Clara Bow who met her manager in Grand Central station in 1925. Her parting with her father was rather lacking in sentiment. As for the father, Robert Bow, he had little to say, no word of caution to give. He trusted blindly as his daughter started West with the woman she had chosen as her manager.

It must not be forgotten that

THOROUGH GREASING

A thorough Greasing Job regularly is the most important thing for your car outside of crankcase service—WE DO BOTH.—But speaking of grease jobs—there are two kinds—one that applies the grease in an indifferent way—if it lubricates the joint, well and good; if it fails to penetrate as it should, just so bad for your car—

We do it differently—Care is taken to see that every joint is thoroughly lubricated—if a joint is "frozen" (stuck) we give it special attention until it works freely—in short, we make it our business to take the same care as though the car were our very own—

"More cars are junked through lack of proper lubrication than through usage."

Heart of Liane by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Liane Barrett, just out of the convent, is delighted when her mother, Cass Barrett, an actress, goes to play summer stock in a fashionable Long Island colony.

Shane McDermid tells her the speakeasy victim is recovering much to Liane's relief. Elsie Minter, the ingenue, introduces Liane to Clive Cleespaugh, Muriel Ladd, debutante, invites Liane to a party and there she meets the handsome stranger, Van Robard.

Then she receives a telegram saying her mother is desperately ill in a Philadelphia hospital. Clive takes her to the train. At the hospital Liane is told Cass's condition is grave.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

She searched the faces of the nurses and doctors for a sign. "They're monsters, all of them," she thought stonily.

Poor child, thought the tall nurse, as she moved briskly, capable about. Poor child, she has a lot to learn.

Liane shuddered at the thought of food. Food when her darling mother was so removed from the urgencies and necessities of daily living?

"Oh, God—oh, dear God," she prayed wildly, bitterly, "spare her to me this time, at least. I'll be so good, so awfully, awfully good. What you want of me, I'll do. I've been vain, selfish. I've not given her what she ought to have. Give me another chance to show her that I love her!"

"I'll live," she said tearfully. "Just around the corner. It was all agony. There was no relief. Even the pavements were unfriendly. The fall day seemed unfriendly. The fall day seemed ominous with the hush of unshed tears. She found a little restaurant, one in which the day before she had wept unashamedly into a bitter cup of tea. She did not weep now. Even that was beyond her."

She saw, as one sees flashes in a cinema, pictures of her life and her mother's together. Herself at 12, in blue serge, being brought to the convent. Her mother's mobile, eager face. Sister Blanche. "She'll take good care of her."

That was the year mother had gone on tour with the Shakespearean company. Liane wondered numbly what life would have been like for both of them if Tom Barrett had lived. She scarcely remembered him. He had died when she was 6. She had vague memories of a tall, brown-haired man who carried her on his shoulders. How she had envied girls who spoke of "my father" at school. She longed for her father now, for someone to keep this fearful vigil with her.

Somehow Liane swallowed the hot, salty broth, crumbled a cracker and left it untasted. Then she fairly ran the short block to the hospital in a fever lest she had stayed too long. Something—anything—might have happened.

She was afraid to open the door. Dread had swept over her again like a scorching flame. But Miss Nesbit sat, quiet and relaxed, watching the sufferer, listening to the labored breathing.

"Doctor's due," she whispered. Liane nodded. She was counting the seconds.

She took up her place by the bed. In the silence came a sound, low, sibilant, like a sigh. Cass was beginning to moan again. Fragments of words tore out of her delirium.

Liane bent nearer. "Darling, I'm here," she kept saying over and over.

Cass said suddenly, clearly. "Liane wouldn't want her to know. Anyhow, she's mine. I've earned her. My little girl."

Then she began to toss again. The doctor came and went. Long shadows crept over the walls. Liane crouched, unstriving. "He says the crisis will come tonight," Miss Nesbit whispered to the night nurse who entered, rustling and fresh, at 7.

to be quiescent. And she was very grateful.

Liane came in from her morning errands in the village, all rosy and sparkling. "What's all this?" she asked.

"It's a conference," Mrs. Cleespaugh informed her, "but it's ended now." She swept out of the room.

Liane sat down, regarded her mother with a fond and anxious gaze. Cass opened her eyes once more.

"Tell me, darling," she asked quickly, irrelevantly, "did I talk a lot of nonsense when I had the fever?"

"Oh, just a lot of gibberish," Liane said with great carelessness. "Why?"

"I just wondered," Cass looked relieved. "I—oh, I seemed to have the most frightful dreams all that time."

"Isn't it time for your milk?" Liane wanted to know.

"Miss Wilson has gone down for it." "Don't talk then. Just rest until she comes. The doctor said you weren't to tire yourself."

Liane sat there, quietly companionable, until the nurse came back.

A little later Cass fell asleep again, in the middle of her drink, like a child. As Liane tiptoed out she thought uneasily of the small fib she had told.

"Change has come," the little floor nurse told Liane calmly, "but don't go in now."

She touched the young girl on the arm with compassion. "Be brave," she said. She, too, was young. She turned away that Liane trembling on her laces.

Ages passed. Glasses clinked at the end of the corridor in the diet kitchen. A tall, middle-aged nurse went by with a glass of orange juice in her hand.

"Oh, God," prayed Liane again, deeply, wildly. "Oh, God, remember me now."

She wanted to go into that room and she dared not. She stared unseeing at the hands of the little watch she carried. Thirty minutes past 12. Night clubs somewhere were just beginning to take on life. People were dancing, laughing. Young girls with painted mouths were flirting across white table-cloths. And inside that quiet, orderly room a grim struggle was going on.

Liane put her hand across her eyes.

When she opened them the young intern was standing there. Was he—oh, God, was it possible?—was he smiling at her? She reached out, snatched at his hand. Something to hold to.

He said, "Yes. It's good news. She's over the top—we think."

Liane went down on her knees. She said, "Father, we thank Thee—just before the black faintness swirled around her."

ecstasy. The first cup of broth she had been coaxed to take had been held in Liane's firm hands.

"You look down into the big hall. 'You look happy anyhow,'" said a quiet voice at her elbow.

Clive stood there in his riding things, his hair tumbled as usual. There was a dog at his heels. He brought with him the odor of wood smoke and stables.

"Oh, I am!" said Liane, stretching out her arms and laughing aloud for the sheer, unmitigated joy of being alive.

a 3-2 victory to help celebrate the glorious Fourth and then they came back next day and proved themselves a real ball club when they again took Fort Worth into camp 2-1 after Fort Worth had jumped into the lead in their half of the eleventh inning.
Little is known of the Hamilton club except that it has been going good all season and is reputed to be a strong club. Neither manager has announced who the starting pitchers will be. Henson, Red Sox ace, is still out with a side injury received in the game with New York and hurt again in the first Fort Worth game. Cotton Phippen who beat Ft. Worth in the second game is ready as is Charlie Bryan. Bryan hasn't pitched in several weeks but has been patrolling center field. It wouldn't be surprising to see him go to the mound Sunday.

Next Sunday the Red Sox will again take on a Fort Worth club that hasn't met defeat so far this season. The Fort Worth All-Stars bring a club of picked players from Cowtown and last week walked all over a strong Corsicana team. The All-Stars like the Night Hawks will show exceptionally good pitching and present a stronger hitting club.
