LIVE AT HOME DAY.

Saturday, November 19, has been designated West Texas Live at Home Day, by the United Campaign for Better Agriculture, with which the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is cooperating, says the Abilene Reporter.

It is urged that every farmer, banker and business man of every cotton producing county meet at their respective courthouses at 1 p. m. on that day to discuss agricultural problems and to take steps for a sensible farming program for another year.

The purpose of the campaign for better agriculture is set forth in the following language:

To maintain and increase the extent of diversified farming as practiced this year.

Against any increase in cotton acreage in 1922.

For increased acreage in small grains.

For the production of an independent living at home, by an increase of home gardens and orchards, livestock and poultry on each farm.

For the planting of better seed, with intensified cultivation, thereby increasing the quality and quantity of production per acre at the same labor cost.

There is no doubt about the need for a campaign of this sort in West Texas, where one man is apt to try to cultivate a couple of hundred acres instead of confining his efforts to a smaller tract to which he can do greater justice. Diversified farming has been proved a success in many sections; West Texas farmers are adopting it slowly but surely.

STATE FORESTER URGES PROMPT ACTION TO SAVE FOREST OF STATE TO LUMBER INDUSTRY

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 5.—Immediate action on a program to save the forests of Texas, which are largely in the eastern part of the state, is necessary to save the state loss of her lumber resources and a great expenditure of money, E. O. Sleske, state forester, declared in a statement to the Associated Press.

"It appears that our forestry work has already been too long delayed," Mr. Sleske said. "The three points in the program of the state forester are:

First.—Eliminate, or reduce within reasonable bounds, the huge damage resulting from forest fires and from grass fires in the timbered region.

Second.—Proper forest taxation legislation should be enacted at the earliest possible date.

Third.—The state should purchase as speedily as possible and at a fair valuation the non-agricultural cutover lands of the companies or corporations that do not desire to practice forestry on such lands.

"While efforts to secure renewal of timber on non-agricultural lands in East Texas will be the major work of the office of state forester during the next two years," Mr. Sleske said, "activities along the lines of encouraging tree planting by farmers in the treeless agricultural sections of the state and the planting of trees for shade and ornamental purposes in towns and cities and on the farms will be carried on as usual."

"Texas along with the nation and other timbered states is gradually waking up to the fact that something must be done about our forestry problem," Mr. Sleske declared. "First hand evidence of this fact is found in the action of the last Texas legislature in increasing the appropriations for the forestry work, from $12,000 to $21,000. The appropriations made available heretofore have sufficed only to maintain a small office without making it possible to do constructive forestry work. Increased support indicates that the members of the legislature are convinced the state must take action in saving our forest industries and that the work warranted encouragement, pending the time when the state shall have decided precisely the program to be inaugurated. While the friends of forestry are gratified because of the increased funds made available for the office of state forester, they realize that Texas, as soon as its program is determined, must invest ten or even twenty times as much money annually before this problem is settled.

"The great forestry problem which now concerns our federal government and our timbered states is that of increasing commercial forests on our timber growing land. Our production of wood material is less than 25 per cent of the amount removed from our forests. Texas magnetics pine resources are valued at more than 2,000,000 cords. More than 80 per cent of the large lumber mills in Texas will be cut out by 1930 and the mill equipment will be scrapped because of lack of raw material to keep it running.

"In a few years, therefore, Texas citizens will be compelled to import the bulk of their lumber needs from the Pacific northwest states and the extra freight alone will amount to from $10 to $12 per thousand board feet than if our lumber supplies were grown and manufactured in Texas. Certainly, it does not seem wise to deliberate in the face of these facts and have in East Texas over 4,000,000 acres of cutover pine lands not adapted for agriculture upon which 'lumber forests' could be renewed at a cost amounting to less than the freight bill on one year's lumber importations from the Pacific northwest ten or fifteen years from now. Even though these idle acres were made productive immediately, the young timber would take 25 to 60 years, depending upon species, to attain sawlog size. Therefore, do what we may from now on to renew our forests in Texas, we will certainly be compelled to pay millions of dollars excess freight in importing lumber before our renewed forests are ready for utilization.

"The problem of what steps to take in order to secure the renewal of the valuable forests on land fitted primarily for this purpose has been discussed for a number of years. National and state forestry departments and constructive statesmen in the timbered states are pretty well agreed that the suggested program should be carried out in each timbered state.

"More timber has been burned in the United States than has been manufactured. Therefore, it is absolutely essential to eliminate, or to reduce within reasonable bounds, the huge damage resulting from forest fires and from grass fires in the timbered regions.

"Annual taxes should be levied on very nominal soil valuation and a compensation tax should be levied on timber when it has reached merchantable size and is marketed. Louisiana has enacted a law under which the lumbermen can list their lands with the state forester and enter into a contract whereby the assessed valuation of such lands will not be raised for a period of years specified in the contract, provided that such lands are managed for the production of other crops of lumber trees in accordance with the regulations promulgated by the state. Many Louisiana lumbermen are taking advantage of this contract provision with the result that thousands of acres of idle lands are being put to work producing a commodity necessary for public welfare. Taxing young stands of timber presents the same situation as would exist in the case of lands taxed annually at gradually increasing valuation every third year during the growing season. Private capital can not be expected to engage in producing a crop requiring from 25 to 60 years to mature, unless their investment is protected against confiscation through indiscriminate taxation.

"State forests should be managed for continuous lumber production and when the timber thereon reaches sawlog size it should be sold to operating timber companies and cut under forestry safeguards. The state would, of course, always retain title to such areas and the logging operations would be conducted in a manner so as to insure continuous timber growth.

"The three steps outlined represent the things that should be accomplished without loss of time, in order to renew lumber forests on the non-agricultural cutover land of East Texas. Some areas of this character have in spite of neglect come back to timber. Most of this second growth timberland is owned by thousands of farmers and the state should co-operate with them through advising them as to the proper method of managing their woodland and marketing their products.

"It has been stated that the task of eliminating the fire nuisance must receive first attention, for fires not only damage mature timber, but they also prevent renewal of timber and retard the growth of trees everywhere.

"After showing the great loss from forest fires, Mr. Sleske said, "in the light of these facts it must be admitted that Texas must first eliminate the fire menace before traveling further along the road of forestry progress.

"Our legislature, therefore, specified that the timbered lands be managed in co-operation with the lumbermen and citizens of East Texas in the work of forest fire prevention. The federal forest service, recognizing the importance of this work, has allotted to the office of state forester the sum of $10,500 to make it more effective. Twenty patrolmen are employed for about eight months each year. Their work has a dual purpose, the prevention of fires through educating the public as to the evil results therefrom, and, second, the suppression of such fires as occur. The

Cows and Cotton. (Abilene Reporter.)

West Texas Today, the organ of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, quotes Mr. T. O. Walton of the extension service of the Texas A. & M. college to prove that it is more profitable to use any given three acres of land for dairying purposes than for cotton production.

Mr. Walton figures out that three acres devoted to cotton would result about as follows:

Planting and cultivating, $63; hauling, $16.80; rental, $15; seed, $1.00. Total cost of production, $95.80.

Ginning, wrapping, picking, hauling and marketing, $45.60. Total cost to produce one bale, $141.90.

The return on this cotton would be as follows:

Lint cotton at 18.44 per pound, $92; seed, $15.43. Total $107.43. Net loss per bale, $34.47.

Mr. Walton then figures what three acres planted to cow feed would produce, with the result that he estimates it would cost $121.85 to handle one cow on three acres of land, for one year.

He estimates that the produce of this cow will net $122.10 for the year, which is a slight profit and when added to the generous wage which the man allows himself, it shows a profit in favor of the cow as compared with cotton.

Their Yankee Wives. (Temple Telegram.)

The Philadelphia Ledger recalls that:

"Bismark was a firm believer in the theory that a diplomat could invaluably serve his country by marrying a woman of another nationality. No fewer than four outstanding foreign figures at the Washington conference have American wives—a circumstance believed to have contributed in no little extent to their assignment to the parley. Three British representatives are married to American women—Lord Lee of Fareham, a designed delegate; Ambassador Geddes, who will sit on the side line for emergency use, and Admiral Beatty, who will be the chief British naval adviser. The fourth conference delegate from abroad whose wife is American is Ambassador Jusserand of France."

This augurs well for the conference for men who pick out American girls for wives are something more than diplomatists. They are wise—and it is well that wise men should sit together to discuss such important international affairs as the paring down of armament.

And having American women for their wives these foreign envoys will be in better position to understand America. They will know that when we advance a proposition we mean business, and they will know that if anything they suggest doesn't meet with our approval we will speak out our objection. Perhaps the girls who married foreigners now have their opportunity to render this country and the rest of the world a material service.

However, the limited work being done is making conditions favorable for nature to reforest large areas of timber growing land with valuable pine. WORKING MEN WILL NOW FEATURE MAGAZINE ADS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The farmer boy, the printers' devil and the workaday clerk are going to have their pictures on the billboards and magazine pages this winter. They will replace some of the swagger young men who have been posing several seasons for the artists hired by collar and clothes manufacturers. Not a few of these concerns have concluded that the orchid is not the flower of young American manhood, and they are going in for sunflowers.

"They say the buying public doesn't like the pink-cheeked men who have been showing the readers of advertisements what to wear. They seemed to have nothing to do but watch polo ponies, indifferently peer at yachts in the cove or ignore the football players on the field below them in order to swap small talk with girls in vivid sweaters and sport skirts.

People began calling them pretty boys, cake-eaters, lounge lizards, sissies. Humorists poked fun at them among the good old common people who bought most of the collars and suits said, "if that's the kind of a face you have to have to be well dressed, I'll go through life a slouch."

But now they are going to show the public that one can be a regular every-day fellow with a job and still be smartly clothed. Last winter there was a warm discussion within the National Association of Retail Clothiers as to the public attitude toward the "pretty men" in advertisements. This fall the result of this discussion is apparent. Recently the new catalogue of a nationally-known clothing house was published without a single ballroom scene, bridge party or clubhouse etching. Virile settings supplanted them.

There was a drawing of an old tar talking to two sturdy youths beside a ship, a freighter, it was not a palatial passenger carrier. Another showed a well-dressed office worker working. He was within sound of a printing press. A third pictured a farmer dressed up for a trip into town. He bore a business-like mien and apparently was just giving some final instructions to the hired man on the tractor when the artist happened along.

FOUR CAPTAINS ON ONE SHIP RESULT OF JACK SHIPPING

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Four captains on one ship, each of them qualified by experience and sense to navigate unlimited tonnage any waters, but three of them serving mates, is not an uncommon occurrence now, due to the low tide of world ocean commerce.

On a ship which recently sailed from New York for round trip voyage to the West Indies the master thereof had under him as mates two men under whom he had formerly worked when conditions were reversed. His third mate, during the war, commanded an American ship which made numerous trips through war zone carrying supplies for the American army in France.

It is to the lasting credit of these American masters, ship owners say, that they accepted reduced rank cheerfully and in their service they rendered a very high degree of fortitude and obedience to the officers temporarily above them. This applies nobly to their periods of actual duty but to the traditional sea discipline when off watch.

The laying up of one ship after another until practically one-half of American coast ship fleet made numerous trips through war zone carrying supplies for the American army in France. The records show that but comparatively few are in actual financial distress through enforced idleness. A man who has reached the bridge through long years of hardwork has generally learned to be thrifty and in the good years to lay aside something for the lean ones.

Hundreds of American captains are now scattered all over the New England and eastern states doing a period of shore duty on farms which they purchased as a safe harbor in which to weather the stormy seas of old age. Generous to the last degree, these men keep track of and aid their less fortunate associates.

Sailors, deck hands, fire room forces and stewards to the number of thousands are sharing with the officers the effect of the shipping depression. Many of them have been forced to depend on their unions and semi-charitable institutions for keep.

DECEPTIONS.

Some merchants advertise a few items at cost or less than cost as specials to attract attention and try to make you believe that all their goods are sold on the same basis. They seldom ever run these special or BAIT prices on more than ten items and the other 990 items are from 10 to 100 per cent higher than Piggly Wiggly prices. Check them up and see what they want today for last week's special or BAIT items. You will notice they will sell 10 pounds of sugar for less per pound than they will sell a full sack and often they will sell 20 bars of soap at less per bar than the price per bar on a full box. Some specialize on running these specials for a few hours or a day and then try to sell you job lots and off brands of goods on which they get a big profit. These specials and limited sales are for the same purpose as a fisherman's BAIT.

Piggly Wiggly has no specials. Goods are advertised at the regular every day price. Come in any day and you will find Piggly Wiggly prices lower than competitors' prices on 990 out of the 1,000 items carried. Piggly Wiggly gives no credit, delivery or clerk service and the customers reap the benefit in lower prices.

ARMISTICE DAY NUMBER.

VOL. III.

CISCO, TEXAS, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1921.

NUMBER 7

THE EDITOR'S CORNER.

A Timely Reminder.
The Gusher is calling this issue "Armistice Day Number," because, in addition to the regular news, it contains two special articles dealing with events of which will be celebrated this week.

"LEST WE FORGET."
Although it has been three years since the whole world was electrified by the news that Germany had agreed to the terms of the armistice, the whole world is still in a seriously disturbed state, as shown by the fact that representatives of all nations are now gathering at Washington for the disarmament conference.

This is a very appropriate time at which to recall in detail the events of early November, 1918. On Nov. 11, 1918, all of the citizens hoped, and most of them believed, that the signing of the armistice meant not only the end of the great world war, but also meant the end of all war for all time.

The armistice, which practically ended the world war, was concluded by the allies and the United States with the new German government at Compiègne on November 11, 1918. Negotiations began on October 5, and ended November 5, when President Wilson informed the Germans that Marshal Foch had been authorized to conclude an armistice with authorized German agents, and that the allies were ready to make peace according to the terms laid down in the president's speech to congress of January, 1918.

The Germans, upon hearing the announcement of President Wilson, took immediate action, and on November 8 sent envoys who met the generalissimo of the allied armies and listened to the hard conditions of the armistice. Three days later, at 5 o'clock in the morning, the terms were accepted and signed.

and all troops withdrawn from these countries. Germany was to pay an indemnity for all damage done to the civilian population of the allied countries and their property by the aggression of the destructive German on land, sea or in the air. Germany was to surrender her submarines, warships, 5000 locomotives, 5000 motor lorries, and 150,000 railway cars in good working order.

COMING HOLIDAY RECALLS STIRRING TIMES IN CISCO
The public schools of Cisco will close on Friday, November 11, 1921, the third anniversary of the signing of the armistice terms by Germany at the close of the world war.

Side lights on the Game.
Because of injuries and inelegibility the following were not in the game: Turner, Tucker, Wilson, Howell, Erwin, and Gentry.

Ernie Wilson missed the plaudits of the multitude. He was heard to remark that the rosters should have cheered the head linesman.

C. H. S. IN THE WAR.
The celebration of Armistice Day reminds every high school student of many things, especially of events connected with the war, which seem almost like a bad dream now.

Although no official record was kept, there were about 11 alumni of the Cisco high school who served overseas in the world war. The high school had its service flag, with 11 or 12 stars. One teacher, Miss Julian, served her country during the war as a Y. M. C. A. worker in France.

about the cow's jumping over the moon. If a boy doesn't care enough for his team to do 70 per cent of his school work, we wonder how anxious he really is to play.

That last remark is a reference to ancient history. It refers to the dim and distant age when Cisco high school thought enough of its girls to support them in having a basketball team.

One thing sure, W. H. departed from the text when he exclaimed (as Melius): "No, not nothing!"

Wine Roast.
The sophomores of the high school enjoyed a pleasant outing Friday evening when they went out to Bacon's farm. Here a big bonfire was lighted and wienies roasted. These, with sandwiches, apples, candy and marshmallows, completed the feast. After the supper, games were played. About 35 students were in the party.

PERSONAL MENTION

HOT MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK ENDS TODAY; HYLAN AND CURRAN LEADERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—New York's mayoralty campaign came to a whirlwind close today. Tomorrow more than 1,250,000 voters will have the opportunity of going to the polls and casting their votes for one of eight candidates for mayor and other municipal officers.

The candidates for mayor are: Mayor John F. Hylan, democrat, who seeks re-election; Major Henry H. Curran, republican-Coalition; Magistrate Jacob Panken, socialist; Jerome de Hunt, Farmer-Labor; George K. Hinds, Prohibition; John P. Quinn, Socialist-Labor; George D. Miller, Single Tax and Benjamin Gitlow, Workers League (Communists).

Gitlow's name was ordered stricken from the ballot because he is serving a sentence in Sing Sing prison for anarchy. Officials of the communist party, however, said his name would be written in the ballot.

In addition to city officers, 66 assemblymen are to be chosen to represent the city in the state legislature and a special election will be held in the sixteenth state senatorial district, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Martin McCue.

Seven proposed amendments to the state constitution are to be acted upon. The most important of these is the proposal to give former soldiers preference in civil service positions.

The main battle, all observers agree, will be between Mayor Hylan and Major Curran. Both have conducted vigorous campaigns, in which the lie has been passed frequently. The mayor has charged his opponent with representing the "plunderbund," "the interests" and "the traction crowd." In denial, Major Curran has accused the mayor of gross inefficiency.

Of the many issues, the subject most talked about has been the five-cent fare on the traction lines. Mayor Hylan has claimed he prevented the fare from being raised. Major Curran, asserting that he too is for the nickel fare, has charged that the fare question isn't an issue—that it is a smoke-screen used by the mayor to cover up maladministration.

Mayor Hylan's admirers have used the slogan "Honest John, He is Fighting for You." He was elected chief executive four years ago on a Tammany Hall tidal wave. He received 312,774 votes, against 155,376 for the late Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, running on a Fusion ticket; 144,973 for Morris Hillquit, socialist and 57,299 from W. M. Bennett, republican.

The mayor was born on a farm in Green county, New York, in 1868. Orphaned in early childhood, he worked on the farm and then came to New York, where he was employed as an engineer on the elevated railroad. He studied law nights and received his degree from the New York Law school in 1897. He became a member of Tammany Hall, was elected a municipal judge in 1905, a city magistrate two years later and became a judge of the Kings county court in 1915. He was practically unknown to the general electorate when he was nominated for mayor four years ago.

Major Curran was born in New York in 1877. He was captain of his high school football team. At the age of 15 he was a reporter on the Englewood, N. J. Times. He worked his way through Yale university as a clerk and waiter. After graduation he was a reporter on the New York Tribune and studied law when he had spare time. He was admitted to the bar in 1901. He entered politics in 1911 when he was elected an alderman and served a number of terms, attracting attention as an expert financial analyst.

He was appointed a city magistrate but held his position only two months, resigning to enter the Plattsburgh camp when the war broke out. He was commissioned a major, assigned to the 77th division and saw active service on the Vesle river and in the Argonne Forest. After the war he was elected president of the Borough of Manhattan.

The other candidates for mayor have conducted quiet campaigns, the socialists being the most active.

WILL CLOSE SUNDAYS.

DALLAS, Nov. 7.—Gasoline filling stations and retail automobile stores in Dallas will close all day on Sundays under an agreement reached at a recent meeting of about 35 representatives of filling stations and larger oil companies. Uniform closing hours is another goal to be sought by a committee appointed at the meeting. Several dealers declared they were losing money by remaining open late and on Sundays.

Everybody knows Terry. Ask your friend about him. Expert auto repair and welding at half price and honest work. Close to C. & N. E. R. R. shop.—(Advertisement.) 229

AMUSEMENTS.

Broadway.
The Roy E. Fox players will be the feature attraction at the Broadway for the first three days of this week, opening tonight with a three-act comedy drama, "Dollar Power" and closing Wednesday night with "The Ku Klux Klan." Mr. Fox has been on the road with stock companies for the last twenty-five years and during that time has visited Cisco on several occasions.

In connection with the Fox stock productions pictures will also be shown.

Judia.
Viola Dana stars in "Puppets of Fate," the Metro special which comes to the Judia theater today for three days as the feature attraction.

"Puppets of Fate" promises to stand out among all the previous pictures of Viola Dana, for here she has an opportunity to strike out from flapper roles into a characterization that permits her to show emotional heights and depths. For this reason it will be well worth seeing.

The picture, from an original screen story by Donn Byrne, novelist and short story writer, tells of Sorrentia Palombra, the wife of Gabriel. Both run a marionette show in Venice; the husband goes alone to New York, and becoming a wealthy gambler, forgets his wife, and marries an adventuress. Sorrentina comes to America, broken-hearted. Then she finds herself a success on the stage, and steps in at the eleventh hour to save her husband from the plottings of his erstwhile friends.

Victory.
The Selznick pictures revival of the popular Norma Talmadge production, "The Moth," shows this most popular star to the greatest advantage in the title role of William Dana. Woman's story of a young society woman who wastes her time seeking diversion and flirting with fate until sharply brought to her senses by a dramatic incident calculated to thrill the most blasé person.

The photoplay appears tomorrow at the Victory theater, pictures a wilful girl bereft of all parental guidance and provided with more money than is good for her. A society waster marries her to help himself out of financial difficulties and then shamefully neglects her while he carries on an "affair" with the wife of another.

The outcome of this situation is that the young matron in retaliation decides to "go the pace" in some very swift society. She is studying a dangerous course when she comes into her life the love of a man who is really worth while.
