SECOND ALBANY BLAST VICTIM DIES

"Hunger Marchers" Demand Roosevelt Fulfill Pledges

SAY ANSWERS OF GOVERNOR "TOO VAGUE"

ALBANY N. Y., Nov. 18.—A demand that he carry out immediately his campaign pledges of unemployment relief was presented President-elect Roosevelt today by delegations of "hunger march army" now forming in New York state to march on Washington.

After an hour with the governor the delegates departed, declaring Roosevelt was "too vague" in regard to their demand.

Roosevelt listened patiently for nearly an hour to a long recital by the unemployed delegates. A secret service man stood at his side during the entire conference.

A $50 dote from the government for each unemployed man was asked.

"I am in the same position as you gentlemen, at present so far as the federal government is concerned," Roosevelt told them. "I am just a private citizen."

MAKING SCHOOL FIT NEEDS IS ASS'N THEME

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18.—Making Texas' public school system fit a changing economic and social order will be the theme of the Texas State Teachers association in convention here Nov. 24-26.

"Retrenchment in education, or must we liquidate intelligence too?" is the title of scheduled address by William T. Foster, economist, Newton, Mass.

Approximately 7,000 delegates are expected at the convention. The association has a membership of nearly 20,000.

The convention program begins Nov. 24 with a Thanksgiving service featuring a sermon by Dr. George W. Truett, Dallas, and a bicentennial address by U. S. Senator Tom Connally, Marlin.

That afternoon Lee Simmons, manager of the Texas State penitentiary, Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of S. M. U., Dallas, and other speakers will discuss the place of education in the life of the state.

Thursday night two nationally known speakers will appear before the convention. Harold Rugg, educator from Columbia university, New York will speak on "The new education and the present crisis."

Lorado Taft, noted sculptor from Chicago, will speak on beauty in American life.

Nominee are H. W. Stillwell, Texarkana school superintendent for 13 years, former teacher at Waxahatchie and University of Texas president of both the West and East Teachers associations; and Wylie F. Parker, Dallas, Parker is a former editor of the Plainview News and now is principal of the Forest Avenue High school, Dallas. He has had 28 years experience in the schoolroom.

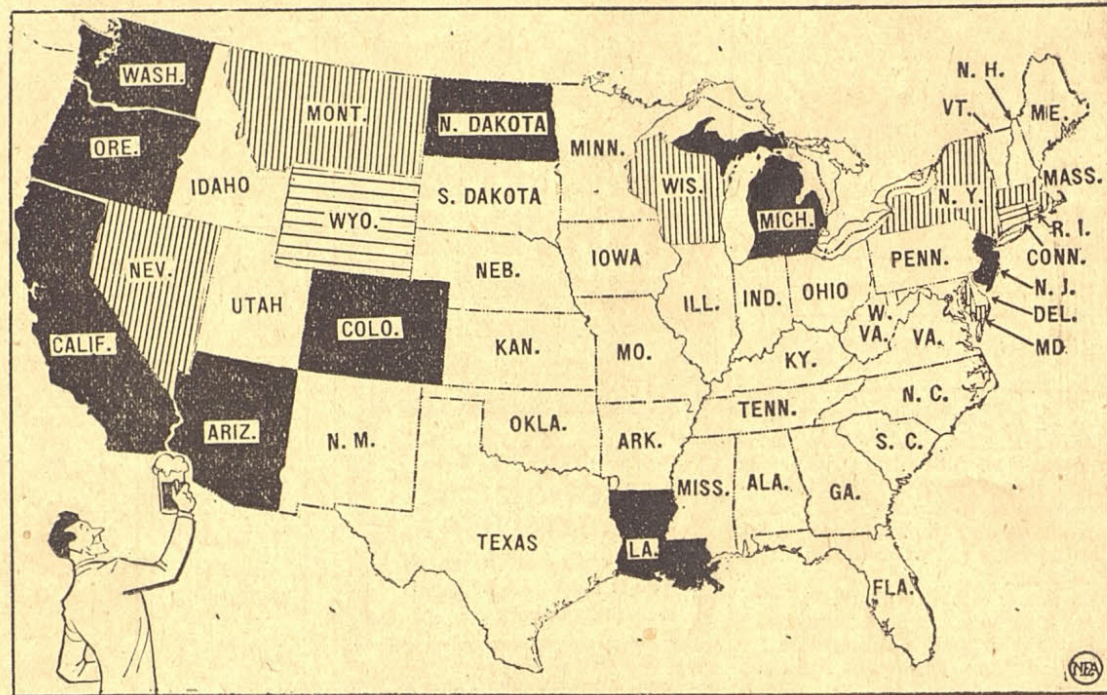

Friday, Oct. 25, organization of public education and the state's ability to pay for a system as good as the average in the United States will be convention themes. Dr. H. Y. Benedict, University of Texas president, Bonner Frizzell, Palestine school superintendent; State Superintendent L. W. Rogers will be among the speakers.

A business session concludes the day's program.

The convention closes Saturday with an all-negro program. Such negro educators as A. W. McDonald, Galveston, president of the Colored Teachers State association, and W. R. Banks, president of Prairie View Normal Institute, will address this group.

LARGEST AIR LINE
CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—What company can boast of the largest air line? A recent check credits this distinction to an American company United Air Lines, which flies more miles, carries twice as many passengers and nine times as many pieces of mail as the largest European competitor, Deutsch Luft Hansa.

Map Shows New Trend Away From Dry Banner

By NEA Service.
The rising tide of wet sentiment, as indicated by the attitudes of the states toward local prohibition law, is illustrated by the above map.

The nine states shown in black are those which in the recent elections repealed their dry laws. The six-shaded by vertical lines are states which previously had repealed, except in the case of Maryland, which never has had an enforcement law. The horizontally-lined states, Rhode Island, Wyoming and Connecticut, are those which have passed bills petitioning Congress to submit a repeal amendment to the states. Wyoming and Connecticut passed these bills in the last election.

Thus there are seventeen states now officially committed to some form of repeal. Before the Eighteenth Amendment was ratified there were only eighteen states which did not already have state-wide dry laws. Eight of the latter states still retain the enforcement acts which they subsequently passed. On the other hand, Arizona, Colorado, Washington, Michigan, North Dakota, Oregon, Nevada and Montana which had been in the dry column before 1919—now have reversed their stand. North Dakota had been dry since it entered the Union in 1889. Arizona's dry law was 18 years old. Colorado had voted for prohibition since 1914. Michigan and Oregon since 1916. Washington, also dry since 1916, repealed its enforcement act and elected a wet in place of Senator Jones, author of the extreme "five-and-ten" law.

New York, in 1923, was the first state to refuse to help enforce the Eighteenth Amendment. Montana and Nevada repealed their dry laws in 1926, Wisconsin in 1929, and Massachusetts in 1930.

CONFERENCE AT WHITE HOUSE SIGNAL EVENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The forthcoming war debt conference between President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt, the first of its kind in American history, today overshadowed all else at the White House.

An unparalleled flood of gold and credits exceeding $10,000,000,000 flowed from America to Europe between 1917 and 1920, and swept the allies to victory in the World war.

Now the world is wallowing about in the quagmire left by the flood. Once prosperous nations pray for relief from debt payments. The United States is asked to be a lenient creditor as it was a ready lender.

Whether Mr. Hoover will recommend that congress agree to a postponement of payments due December 15 which European nations claim they cannot pay was believed to depend largely on Mr. Roosevelt's attitude.

Sec'y of Treasury Mills will sit in with the president at the meeting. Professor Raymond Moley, long a close friend of Roosevelt will be at the president-elect's elbow.

Dr. Truett to Make Final Address

The closing session of the Texas Baptists general convention at Abilene will take place this evening.

Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, will deliver the final address at the evening hour.

R. W. Turner Back From Hospital

R. W. Turner, of Cisco, who has been undergoing treatment at the Baylor hospital at Dallas for several weeks, was returned to his home here yesterday. He was reported much improved.

Two Killed in Auto Collision

LIBERTY, Tex., Nov. 18.—Two persons were dead and three others suffered from injuries today following a head-on collision between two automobiles near here.

The dead were Mrs. A. M. Rutan, 70, of Houston, and J. S. Bailey, a rice planter, of Raywood.

Pastor to Begin New Year Sunday

The Rev. O. O. Odom will preach his first sermon of the new conference year at the First Methodist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He has announced as his theme, "How to Face Life With Courage."

The Rev. Mr. Odom was returned to the pastorate of the Cisco church after having succeeded H. D. Tucker, resigned, six months previously.

Regular services will be held throughout the day.

Monday evening at 7:30 a combined meeting of the board of stewards and the Sunday school council, has been summoned. This meeting has business of considerable importance before it and it is urgent that a full attendance be present.

City Hall Meeting Brought to Close

The meeting conducted at the city hall by the Rev. Leonard M. Evans and the Rev. A. N. Davis has been terminated by the sudden death of Mr. Davis' brother and by sickness in his family, it was announced today.

They expressed appreciation of the interest and the cooperation they met in their efforts.

They said they would probably return at some future date when a meeting can be held under more favorable circumstances.

Third Is Charged in Counterfeiting Case

A third person from Cisco has been arrested and charged at Fort Worth in connection with the possession and passing of counterfeit federal reserve bank notes of $10 denomination. E. D. Anderson, second-hand automobile dealer here, was arrested near the Comanche jail.

Several days ago H. L. Reeder and Miss Viola Matthews of Cisco were arrested on the same charge. Bond for Reeder and Anderson was set at $2,000 each and for Miss Matthews at $1,500.

SHORT TERM OPENS

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 18.—The Montana State college short term agricultural course, offered for those who cannot afford to enter school for a four year study course, opens Jan. 3, continuing to March 24. Diversified farming, livestock production, and tractor grain farming will be taught. Any state resident over 17 years of age who can write and read English may enroll.

WATCHMAN IS HELD IN DEATH OF HOTEL MAN

CORPUS CHRISTI, Nov. 18.—Isaac Davis, former night watchman at the Nueces hotel, was held today in the slaying of Arthur S. Dowd.

Dowd, manager of the hotel, was shot to death last night by a man who entered his office and fired upon him without warning.

Employees arrived in time to see the assailant fire the last shots into Dowd's body as he lay on the floor after falling from the first wound.

The man being held was reported to have complained about the dismissal of his wife, a hotel employe, a few hours before.

A special session of the county grand jury convened at noon to investigate the killing.

Special Verire For Tunnell Trial

DALHART, Nov. 18.—A special venire of 108 men will be summoned for the C. C. Tunnell murder trial here Nov. 30. The case, transferred from Channing, grew out of the shooting of M. A. Edgerly, 30, at the Tunnell home west of Dalhart last May 30.

It promises to furnish the sensation of the criminal docket. The fatal affray is alleged to have resulted from attention; said to have been paid Mrs. Tunnell by Edgerly, but another account is that an argument over some corn started the trouble.

Tunnell, it is claimed, made ostensible plans the night before the shooting to come to Dalhart but apparently never left the farm. Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Duke of DeLeon, and Mattie Lee Kunkel, Blanch Matthews,

Special Service For Thanksgiving

Regular services will be held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening, Dr. J. Stuart Pearce, pastor, announced. The pastor will preach at both hours.

A Thanksgiving service will be held at the church Thursday evening, with a special program.

Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach at that service. The program will begin at 7 o'clock.

PURIFICATION PLANT PLANS ARE DROPPED

The city commission last night abandoned, at least for the present, consideration of plans to construct settling basins at Lake Cisco.

The abandonment action was taken negatively in that no motion was presented, the commissioners simply expressing individual views that at present it appeared to them extremely doubtful they could undertake to purchase the needed materials with a prospect of meeting the obligations.

It was pointed out that at the first of the year the city may have enough money on hand or in sight to go forward with construction of the basins in cooperation with the federal emergency relief aid. The commissioners said they feared, however, that if they undertook the project at this time, they would force the city onto a scrip basis which would be very detrimental. It was explained that to undertake the project the city would have to spend $2,500 of the approximately $5,000 now on hand and also that the prospect for the collection of city taxes is not reassuring.

One salesman for a pipe concern was present to put in a bid on sale of pipe and fittings. When it was determined the commission was not in a mood to go forward with a consideration of the plans for the purification plant he did not submit his figures, but asked an opportunity to do so in the event the matter is again taken up.

$500 Per Month
Payment for the materials over a 12 months basis would require monthly installments of about $600. It was suggested that the city could raise $300 of this by restoring the meter rent charge, but the commission quickly threw cold water on this suggestion.

"There are lots of things we could do if we were in a mind to do them," said Mayor J. T. Berry.

"I want to build these basins," said Comm'r Henderson, "but I'm against going into it until we can be sure beyond a doubt that we can pay for the materials."

Similar expressions were heard from the other commissioners.

The plan was to build the basins in cooperation with the federal emergency relief committee here, using the fund at the disposal of that committee to furnish the common labor with the city purchasing the materials. The materials, including cement, pipe, fittings, tiling, structural steel and so forth, would cost approximately $8,000. The total cost of the basins would be between $12,000 and $14,000, it was estimated.

Cash Basis Prospect
Prospect that the Cisco Banking company would be able soon to pay off some of the deposits tied up there with its closing last year was mentioned. The city has some $28,000 in the general fund so held. Release of this fund would enable the city to go ahead with the construction of the basins on a cash basis. With that eventually in mind the commission indicated they would probably take up the project again about the first of the year. The outlook for beginning of construction upon the new post office in January was also mentioned as a possibly favorable factor in the chances for building the basins then.

Letting the settling basin matter drop, the commission then authorized purchase of materials for the construction of a stone fence about the cemetery which will be built with common labor supplied through the federal emergency relief committee. These materials were estimated to cost between $500 and $700. Work was directed to begin today.

Street Comm'r Clements was also authorized to give employment to a number of men upon street improvement projects. Those employed on the cemetery fence and the streets through the emergency relief fund are being asked where at all possible to furnish their own tools. The city has not sufficient tools and is unable to purchase those needed for such a large number of workmen.

The scale of wages for those employed by the committee will be fixed definitely at a meeting of the county committee at Eastland this afternoon.

PAY SCHOOL TAXES NOW.

The Cisco school board this week issued an appeal to merchants, other business men and all who can do so to pay their school taxes immediately so that the board can pay salaries of 34 teachers and employes of the school system which are overdue. The payroll now due is $3,800. Another of the same denomination is due twenty days hence.

There is no way to meet these salary payments except from taxes. If the taxes are not paid the checks must be withheld, to the injury of the teachers who have already endured much in a heroic way for which Cisco people should be grateful, and to the injury of the business interests of the city.

It has been difficult to operate the local schools unhampered during this period of financial stress. The same is, of course, true in other towns. THE PATRIOTISM OF THE SCHOOL TEACHERS, WHO HAVE GIVEN THEMSELVES TO THEIR WORK WITHOUT STINT AND WILLINGLY IN SPITE OF SLOW PAY, AND THE CONSCIENTIOUS EFFORTS OF THE SCHOOL BOARD HAVE BEEN RESPONSIBLE. Cisco tax-payers who are able to meet their obligations now will not only confer a favor upon these by paying their taxes, but they will be SHOWING A CHARACTER OF COOPERATION THAT WILL KEEP THE SCHOOLS GOING and make the efforts of the board and the teachers effective.

Paying school taxes now simply means joining hands with the schools in a program for the common good. CISCO HAS NO RIGHT TO ASK OF THE TEACHERS MORE THAN CISCO IS WILLING HERSELF TO DO.

ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE OF IRELAND IS AMBITIOUS GOAL

By W. G. QUISENBERRY
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Nov. 18.—Great Britain has dealt a staggering blow to the Irish Free State's trade, but she has failed in her first objective of the economic war.

That objective was to collect through tariffs the £3,000,000 annual payment known as the land annuities which President de Valera's government is withholding until it is convinced of Great Britain's right to it.

The first month of the British tariffs yielded but £125,000 only half of what was counted on. The second month, September, yielded £208,000, still considerably under the expected amount. Britain will never be able to collect the annuities at this rate. Raising the tariffs would only further retard the process of collection.

Lost Trade to Free State
While Britain was collecting £208,000 through tariffs in September, moreover, she was losing £639,262 in trade to the Free State, that being the difference between the 1931 and 1932 exports for the month.

There are still two further items that Britain must put down on the debit side of the ledger. They are the tariffs that the Free State is collecting against British goods, and a sum of £275,000 yearly that the Free State has now decided to withhold in addition, to the land annuities. Altogether, the Free State is now keeping £5,750,000 a year that used to go to Britain.

President de Valera's government is expected momentarily to remove this £5,750,000 from the suspensory account where it was being held, pending a possible settlement with Britain, and use it for domestic purposes, principally his economic reforms.

Ultimate Aim
The ultimate aim of these reforms is to make the Free State a self-sufficient unit, no longer dependent upon the British market. The chief criticisms of the program are that it will take many years to complete and that it will amount in the end to state socialism. De Valera does not shy from state socialism. There is nothing sacrosanct to him in the existing economic system.

As a temporary program to tide the country over the economic war, the Free State government soon will announce a large sum to be lent to farmers on easy terms to re-stock their farms.

De Valera's big program, however, involves plowing up a large area of the prized grass lands for wheat and other grain. The government's tariff on grains was raised the last week in September to encourage the sowing of grain, which will absorb surplus farm labor and cut down grain imports from Liverpool. Only 30,000 acres of wheat were grown last year. Next year, with the aid of the tariff and a government subsidy, it is hoped 100,000 acres will be sown.

BURNS FATAL TO SON, 5, OF OIL DRILLER

Explosion of a steel oil tank which took the life at Albany yesterday of Joe H. Dixon, 33, oil driller, claimed a second victim when Dixon's five-year-old son, Joe H. Dixon, Jr., died at a Breckenridge hospital at 6:50 p. m. Thursday afternoon.

The child was with his father at the time the latter was connecting a pipe line to the tank, and when the explosion occurred it was sprayed with the flaming oil.

Dixon was hurled more than 150 feet from the tank and his skull fractured. He died almost instantly.

The tank, of 100-barrel capacity, was located in the south part of the city of Albany. Dixon was connecting the line to convey vapor gas to his residence, only about 200 feet away. The blast, believed to have been set off by a spark, shook the entire south section of the city.

The Albany fire department did quick work in subduing the flames, saving three nearby tanks and several residences.

Dixon came to Albany from Tennessee where most of his people live.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL TO TOM W. SMITH

Tom W. Smith, 56, pharmacist at the Moore Drug company for the past five years, died suddenly of what doctors said was a heart attack at his home on West 10th street last night.

Mr. Smith had gone to his home at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, not feeling well, and went to bed. At 9:15 members of the family summoned a physician. Death occurred within a few minutes after the physician arrived, however.

No funeral arrangements have been announced. Word is waited from a brother in Arizona, it is understood.

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow and a son, Lloyd, 17, a graduate of the Cisco high school last year. He came to Cisco in 1927 from Ranger and joined the Moore Drug company. He was reared at Weatherford and burial will probably be there.

Cross-examination of Lone Star witnesses will be the first step taken when the hearing resumes in Austin or Fort Worth.

ECHOES FROM THE PRESIDENTIAL COUNT.

Pennsylvania was one of the six states carried by Pres. Hoover. His plurality is less than 160,000. Roosevelt polled the largest vote in the history of the state — 1,266,238. Hoover carried Philadelphia by less than 72,000. Boss Vare promised 200,000 majority. Allegheny county is the big Pittsburgh steel county and ever strongly republican. It is the home of all the Mellons including Uncle Andy. It gave Roosevelt a plurality of 36,000. He carried Washington county, the home of State Republican Chmn. Martin. Gov. Pinchot had his revenge.

West Virginia democrats and independents made a clean sweep of all their nominees for office. They elected all six congressional representatives. West Virginia is the native state offices will be filled by democrats. There is a United States senator elected. He is a staunch democrat. Well, the La Follettes had their revenge. They buried the so-called standpatters of the republican party and sent all the standpat nominees to the boneyard.

Wisconsin gave Roosevelt 325,000 majority and elected the first democratic administration the state has had since 1895. Think of the total: Roosevelt 667,737; Hoover 330,420. There is a democratic governor elected. All the minor state officers will be filled by democrats. There is a staunch democrat. Well, the La Follettes had their revenge. They buried the so-called standpatters of the republican party and sent all the standpat nominees to the boneyard.

Rhode Island was swept into the democratic column. The entire democratic ticket was elected. Roosevelt's majority was 30,000. Owing to the infamous redistricting system, the republicans retained control of the state senate but the democrats appear to have captured the house. U. S. Sen. Felix Hebert is a republican. He was the republican campaign manager for the New England states. He is a Roman Catholic. He was not in evidence four years ago. Republicans made him their regional voice this year. Well, Rhode Island democrats and independents had their revenge.

Ohio broke away from the party of the elephant. All the democratic nominees from the president to constable were swept into office. A democratic legislature was elected. It was one of the cleanest of sweeps.

Indiana broke away. Completion of the count shows that Roosevelt had a plurality in all but nine of the 92 precincts. His plurality in the state is 122,000. Indeed, the victory denuded the Indiana state house of republican office holders. Frederick Van Nuys hammered "Slippery Jim" Watson out of the picture. Van Nuys has a plurality of 198,000.

Illinois was the home state of Abraham Lincoln. Illinois democrats and independents and progressive republicans gave Roosevelt an overwhelming majority. They elected a United States senator and many democratic representatives. It was not "a noble experiment." It was a donkey victory most significant to all concerned. Well, in Illinois the political opponents of Big Bill Thompson, Len Small, Charles A. Smith and lesser republican standpatters, had their revenge. They furnished a lot of material for the political undertakers.

South Dakota democrats and progressives swept the platter with the exception of a United States senator. Peter Norbeck, republican and farm labor, was the sole exception. He is not a standpatter. South Dakota farmers and wage earners had their revenge. They amputated the legs of the elephant just above the knees in order that hereafter he would have to roll instead of walk.

Forty-two states were carried by the democrats and progressives. New York, by an overwhelming majority, landed in the democratic column. All states nominees were elected. As for the legislature, the senate will be democratic by one majority and the house republican by three majority. After surveying the returns from the entire 48 commonwealths, Alfred E. Smith had his revenge. Herbert Hoover was given his place in history as the most thoroughly defeated and thoroughly discredited candidate for election or reelection since the inauguration of the republic of George Washington.

Now on with the work of restoring the purchasing power of the tillers of the soil, providing jobs for the jobless, reducing the cost of government at least 30 per cent, and this applies in state as well as in nation.

JOHN BULL AND WORLD EXPOSITION.

John Bull, representing the British Empire, has made all his plans for a huge British exhibit at the coming Chicago exposition. Now he has declared it off "due to the high cost involved." All of which is a reminder that the British Empire and others of the European nations spend $2,500,000,000 annually for the upkeep of their costly armies and navies. And yet the most powerful of these nations admit their inability to pay their war loans to the United States.

FUTURE OF PETROLEUM INDUSTRY ASSURED.

Amos L. Beaty is president of the American Petroleum Institute. He is one of the national leaders of the industry. He is very optimistic. His viewpoint is that conditions are getting better every day; that there has been a vast improvement during the past year; that "we are not out of the woods yet, but that we are headed that way." Pres. Beaty is a native Texan. He headquarters in the city of New York. He came all the way from New York to Houston to attend a meeting of a large number of the leading producers and refiners of the United States. He praised the new law recently enacted by the Texas legislature. He declared it a fundamental step in furthering the oil upturn. According to newspaper dispatches, his business upturn sentiment was not restricted to the economies of oil. Speaking of the recent election, he said: "If everybody who voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt believes his election was the remedy for our troubles and will have the courage to act accordingly, the morale of the country will be greatly benefited. It has had that tendency already." He said something more to the point: with the petroleum industry is leading the way toward economic recovery, "with most oil concerns now making money." Texas is the banner oil producing state. It is a banner natural gas producing state. If recent legislation prevents excess production and prohibits waste of oil and gas, it will place millions of dollars in the pockets of all those engaged in the huge industry in the near future.

Another Big Game Hunter in the White House

ANOTHER JOB FOR CURTIS.

Davis W. Mulvane, a noted republican leader of congress, died the other day. He had been a member of the national committee of his party for many years. Now Kansas republicans are planning to elect Vice Pres. Charles Curtis as successor of Mulvane on and after March 4 of the coming year. Mulvane was a famous lawyer, a clever political strategist, a man of wealth and high social position, and he played the game of politics because he loved the game. Pres. Hoover snubbed him. Hoover selected William Allen White and Henry J. Allen as his advisers in the Sunflower state. What happened to the advisers as well as the president and his administration in Kansas on general election day is ancient history. They were swamped.

MISTAKEN FOR BODY.

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—A report that the body of a man was seen in the interior of the pull pen in old Police headquarters, sent a squad of bluecoats hurrying to the scene. Instead of a body, however, police found a clothing store dummy lying at a weird angle. It was a boyish prank, police said.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Nov. 18 — Persons closely associated with the Fergusons have begun a study of the state budget which is to be subject to review, completion and recommendation by the incoming governor to the next legislature.

In the new budget, Mrs. Ferguson will inform the legislature what salary she considers appropriate for each job whose pay is not fixed by separate statute.

After the incoming governor makes up the budget, based on recommendation of the outgoing governor and the board of control, the appropriations will have to run the gauntlet of a "retrenchment bloc" in the house.

Still a third hurdle will be the recommendations to be made in the next few days by the state board of education concerning the scope of work and the size of faculty of each of the state colleges.

No income tax law can be passed in Texas within less than two and a half years from now, under the present condition of the constitution that would be a graduation of rates between the smallest and the biggest payer. An income tax law will be possible only on the occurrence of two things:

1. A return of incomes adequate to pay the state large revenues.
 2. Adoption of a constitutional amendment for graduated rates.
- Meantime, the best long-range guess now for the new taxes that necessarily will be imposed early in the large include:

1. Higher production taxes on natural resources, particularly sulphur and natural gas.
2. An extension of the stamp tax on cigars to a general sales tax on luxuries and semi-luxuries, and perhaps on the higher-price brackets of cosmetics and many forms of everyday necessities of life, "outside of foodstuffs."
3. A possible levy of ad valorem tax on valuations of property fixed by earnings of the intangible assets basis advocated by Rep. F. C. Weinert of the tax survey committee.

The joint legislative tax survey committee has during the past weeks held exhaustive investigations in collaboration with state officials into possible new sources and means of taxation.

No recommendations have been drawn up as a result of this part of the survey.

Week-end MURDER

GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH
© 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant weekend he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of Linda and Tom Averill, married three years and much in love. Linda announces that instead of three guests over the weekend they are to have five. The guests will be: Cousin Amos Peabody, elderly distant relative of Linda's who was in New York on business and invited himself to visit the Averills; Captain De Vos, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; Mr. Statlander, middlewestern manager of the firm Averill works for; Marvin Pratt, former suitor of Linda's whom she has not seen for several years, and Lin in Shaughnessy, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

The guests arrive and almost immediately there is trouble. At dinner Cousin Amos gets into a heated argument with Shaughnessy whom he denounces as a dangerous rebel for defending Gandhi's work in India. Binky, an old watch dog, is brutally killed during the night and suspicion for the deed turns to Shaughnessy who admits he roamed about after the others had retired.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI
Linda stood up and shook off her thoughts with a visible motion of her slim shoulders. "What's the program this morning?"

"Golf for them as wants it—the boat—anything you say. Best get a dip in before lunch. Tide's high then."

"And the tennis tournament this afternoon; dinner home; and the Fourth of July dance at the club tonight. All right—let's go!"

Tom kissed her quickly. "Good sport!" he applauded. "Our guests wait below. Up and at 'em, Binks, old dear!"

But all day long, Linda's solemn, clear little voice rang in his head, and he found himself at one time or another regarding each guest as a stranger capable of unbridled fury which might find outlet in the mangling of a small, inoffensive little dog. His day was a suspicious and a miserable one.

Statlander and Cousin Amos elected to play golf. Even before they started Averill had cause for apprehension as to how they would mix. For as they collected their bags in the entrance hall the telephone rang and he stooped to answer a call from his real estate agent. While he abstractedly assured the "local wire" that the place was still for sale, that it could be seen at any time, and that he terms still held, he noticed that the two men stood side by side, a little apart from each other and without any attempt at ordinary small talk. Motoring them to the links, he wondered more and more how the combination would work. Statlander he knew for a hard man—with an amazingly retentive memory and a genius for figures, together with the impotence of such aptitude toward its lack in others. Perhaps 47 or 48, he was stockily built, strong beyond an offhand guess and reputed "a hog for work," no easier on others than on himself. What he had said of his favorite amusements—mountain climbing, exploring, big game hunting—led Averill to believe that he would prefer play as arduous as hard work. By the solemnity with which Statlander produced his clubs it was evident that no St. Andrews pro took his game more seriously.

Now Cousin Amos Peabody, as it happened, also took himself seriously and Tom might have said the two would make a perfect pair. But Cousin Amos, though a precisionist, was not, like Statlander, a silent one. Every detail of the greens, the technique of teeing off, the action of other players, the positions of his opponents when he was playing, was subject to fluent and critical comment. His face pink, his eyes shining, he addressed himself to observing every rule and by-law of correct golf—and to seeing that others did likewise.

Statlander, glumly estimating the distance between the 12th tee and the first bunker, paused with the air of one who endures much for a particularly explicit lecture.

"My dear sir, I am sure you will not mind my calling attention to the fact that you habitually drop your club too low. Holding it as you do, you cannot hope to get distance in your drive! Thomas, you too should mark this point well. Always remember, my boy, that your club should be parallel with the ground at the beginning of your stroke."

Sensing the growing fury of his business associate, Tom soon heartily wished that one or the other of them had stayed at home. He could ignore the westerner's sullenness and admire his dogged, even game—or he could play up to Cousin Amos' pride in his passable skill and youthful energy. But to reconcile the two proved more and more hopeless.

When the explosion which he dreaded finally came, for all its violence, it brought the sense of relief which follows a long-awaited detonation.

Cousin Amos of course was its reason. The direct cause was a patronizing comment upon the idiotic carelessness of getting into a sand trap. For some time Statlander had been ominously quiet. Now he stopped his face darkly, flushed as Linda had seen it the night before. His voice seemed almost throttled; it quivered so with repressed, concentrated fury as he damned Cousin Amos for an interfering, talkative old busybody. That worthy, blinking in astonishment, stood with putter hanging from limp fingers. By a roll of his eyes he disavowed any connection with this unexpected outburst. His air of innocent surprise seemed to be the last straw. Before Tom could intervene Statlander raised the club he had been brandishing and by a single passionate exertion of strength snapped it in two, then hurled the pieces into the nearby rough. With a final sulphurous epithet, he turned on his heel and strode away.

For a moment the others stood staring after him, then Averill began groping for phrases that would express his regret for the occurrence.

"Do not apologize, Thomas," said Cousin Amos severely, the ruddy flush fading slowly though his eyes still started from his head in surprise. "It is not your fault that this—um—unmanly person so—er—lost his self-control. Certainly I cannot understand how comment upon such—hm!—such an obviously poor stroke should infuriate him. It was, Thomas, an exceedingly poor stroke. Would you not have said so?"

"Well, ah!—however—! Do you think you should—ah—follow and attempt to—er—placate—?"

"Not at all!" Tom had watched the retreating figure and saw it swing at a brisk pace into the road toward White Haven. "It's not far to the house. He can blow off steam walking. I'm really awfully sorry, Cousin Amos. Shall we—do you care to go on with the game?"

"Most certainly," Cousin Amos stooped with a slight grunt to retrieve the abandoned ball. "Hump! Suppose, young man" (he addressed the gaping caddy), "you take charge of this."

"We'll put his club in the car," said Tom. "All right. Carry on!" He was torn between annoyance.

At the bland old man who saw no personal blame for the situation and more decided anger at the other's inexcusable behavior. And suddenly—no use ducking it!—he knew that most alarming of all was his constant memory of Linda's suspicions. Certainly he had seen a flash of murderous fury. For single horrified second he had expected Statlander to brain Cousin Amos with the club. It had been the sort of anger which only physical violence could express—as witness what happened to that man, strolling, perhaps, around the grounds during the hot night, had been badgered by the watchful little dog? If so, how had he killed her? A stone—one of the big entrance gate urns—some huge, crushing, mangling instrument. Or he might have swung the little body against the stone pillar or a tree. For a moment the picture made Tom almost physically ill. He was recalled by a subdued click and Cousin Amos' self-congratulations.

"My hole, my match, dear boy! Hump! It is something to beat a man like yourself—young, in fine trim and able to keep up your game by constant practice. A formidable adversary, I congratulate myself!" His eyes gleamed. Cousin Amos' self-congratulatory dampened every generous and sportsmanlike impulse. Barely checking the impetuous, "Go to the devil!" which rose to his lips, Averill managed to accede with fair courtesy to the loss of the match.

"My! You feel downcast, I can see. Not pleasant to be taken into camp by an older man? Well, well, well! You young men have something to learn still from your elders. Concentration, that's not taught nowadays. You're a younger man than I am, Thomas, and should be steadier. Yet you, not I, went to pieces after that—er—accident on the—hm!—12th green. I believe, that's bad, Thomas, bad!" he continued as they reached the car and deposited their bags. "At your age your mind should be keener, more controlled. Never let irrelevant thoughts interrupt your brain of thought—don't be easily distracted—stick to the matter in hand, whatever happens. That's been my rule in business and in pleasure for more years than you would believe—"

The stream went on but Tom suddenly applied Cousin Amos' rule and found it worked. By concentration on his own thoughts to the exclusion of the old man's prattle, he succeeded in arriving home in a more normal frame of mind.

"You enjoy a dip, don't you, Cousin Amos?" he inquired. The question gave the other a welcome opening.

"Very much. Very much indeed!"

Of course surf is more exhilarating. A real battle stirs the blood and refreshes the mind. However—! Yes, I will join you very shortly.

"Here or the beach? We usually meet in the hall here but the tide is in and Linda's doubtless waiting impatiently."

"Go down if you prefer but I shall not keep you waiting." The older man was affronted by the suggestion. "My generation was taught not to dawdle."

"Here, then." Tom sprang up the stairs, two at a time. To Linda, just coming from their room, he made a quick gesture that sent her back.

"Whew! What a morning! Gangway, now!"

"Hot?"

"Hot and bothered!" Her husband shed his clothes right and left. "Got to hurry—can't let the old geezer beat me down. Dawdle," says he. Hmp!"

"I take it Cousin Amos has been very much himself?"

"And how! Went on and on and on. Finally drove Statlander out of his mind and there was a scene. Gosh, Binks, you're right about temper. You never heard such an explosion! Short, but, oh, my! I should have knocked the name down."

"I suppose, for talking to Cousin Amos—but it would have been just as fair to take the old man over my knee and spank him. I'll tell you about it later—gets me all steamed up just to think about it. Go on down, then, an angel, and angel, and hold the old boy's hand if he's ahead of me. Others coming?"

"Mr. De Vos isn't back. He took my little car over to Port to send telegrams. I gathered they were too private to phone from here but I shouldn't wonder if he stopped at the Stoners. Fleur made a terrible set at his last night. Marvin's conscience, we're to call up to Mr. Shaughnessy's window when we're ready. I'll do that now. See you later."

"All I can say is," her husband spoke urgently as she turned the knob. "Keep Cousin Amos in line! Shaughnessy behaved badly last night, and Statlander kicked up this morning, but honestly, Binks, the old man is a caution. I can't blame either of the men—and there'll be real trouble if he isn't suppressed somehow. It's up to us. After all, the other are our guests, too."

"The trouble with Cousin Amos," remarked Linda viciously before she opened the door, "is that no one ever had the courage to say to him 'Shut up!' And she went forth to do her duty as a hostess to her unwelcome guest."

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Nov. 18. — When Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson moves to the "Governor's Mansion" in January, the Fergusons and the Dan Moody's will no longer vote at the same place.

Since Governor Moody left office, they have both been residents of Enfield voting precinct in Austin. The Mansion is in another precinct, which has its balloting at the county court house.

During the 4 years they have been registered at the same Enfield precincts the two political foes never have encountered each other at the voting place, nor at the precinct conventions.

This November, the Fergusons voted shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. Dan Moody voted at a different hour. Former Governor Dan Moody did not cast a ballot.

By custom the office of Secretary of State has come to be a woman's place in Texas. The salary of the office is limited by constitution to $2,000 a year. This is believed to one reason why men with families do not seek it. Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum who was appointed by Governor Dan Moody and retained by Gov. Ross S. Sterling is the wife of A. K. McCallum, superintendent of Austin city schools.

Mrs. J. E. King of San Antonio and Mrs. J. M. Loving of Austin are both being mentioned as possible appointees under Mrs. Ferguson's administration.

A glance at the state constitution shows that the Secretary of state goes in and out of office, coincident with the governor. This means that if Gov. Ross S. Sterling should resign before Mrs. Ferguson is inaugurated, Liet. Gov. Edgar Witt would have the appointment of the secretary of state for the interim.

In that event Miss Hazel Avery of San Antonio, Tex., secretary to the lieutenant governor, might become secretary of state for the interim.

Incidentally much speculation goes on under the Capitol dome about whether Governor Sterling will complete his term. It is forecast by some that he will not remain to turn over the office to Mrs. Ferguson who defeated him for renomination but will arrange to leave office by January 1. It is generally expected he will return to the oil business, in which he amassed a fortune before becoming governor.

Should he resign, Lieut. Governor Witt would become governor until January 17. Strange as it may seem Witt does not desire to become governor—in that way.

"I would have to write the message to the legislature," he said, with

AIMS OF MUSIC DEPARTMENT IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

By EMMA CECIL NALLY.

In France, at the old castle of Fontainebleau, is one of the world's most noted conservatories of music. This old castle has been bought by American millionaires, and refitted as a conservatory, where American music students may go and finish under the instruction of the most competent European teachers.

An instructor of mine, who had been admitted, as a great teacher, at Fontainebleau told me that she took advantage of her very unusual opportunity here to check up on American methods of teaching, and learn, if possible, what America lacks in her musical instruction. The answer from all professors was much the same, "The American students are after the often talented. They often have wonderful training in the more artistic phases of music, but they almost invariably lack the proper understanding and appreciation of the simplest elementary principles of music."

From my own experience, I know this to be true. I have sung with men and women who could sing in French, German, and Italian, who were forced to learn their solos by note from the choir director because they could not read music. I have known women with beautiful contralto voices, who were wonderful soloists, but could not sing along with a chorus, because they could not sing independently.

The first and great aim of the public school music department, is then, I should say, to correct these conditions and to place a proper understanding of the simple but important things in music within the reach of every citizen.

Next, I should say, comes an appreciation of what constitutes the worth while in music. The man on the street likes the comic strip, and he would hardly have the timidity to call it art. Still he will listen to noises that have no artistic merit as melody or harmony, and call it music. That man or woman who has missed a realization of the fine things in music has missed one of the greatest joys in life. All the moods of the human soul, may be, and are expressed in music, love, hope, yearning, achievement, mirth, sadness, happiness, despair. And it seems to me, that the man who cannot find his mood sympathetically reflected in music, is to that extent a misfit in God's universe. My father used to say, "there are two things we enjoy through the senses now, that we are promised we shall enjoy through eternity,—music and light."

Another aim of the public school music department is the discovery and development of unusual musical talent. Is it right that the musical ability of the child who is underprivileged should be allowed to languish and die because of neglect? Some of the greatest musicians have risen from poverty and want to success. But who can tell the idle hands and mute voices that crowd the world today, or that rest in forgotten tombs because their owners never had a chance? It is true that the day of the professional musician is on the wane and the day of the amateur is slowly but surely advancing, but there will always be musical genius, as well as other kinds of genius, and this genius will always be in demand. Shall we not always in every way encourage it?

In America public schools during the past twenty years, public school music has made rapid progress and until quite recently the American public tended more and more to become a music loving public. In every school, whether large or small there was likely to be a well organized public school music department. But owing to stress in financial circles, these music departments have had to be discontinued except in the school systems of the great cities, and it is up to the smaller towns to work out its own salvation in this matter or else to lose step with progress, while its children are neglected.

It seems to be true that we have a depression. But is this very depression not the first challenge to the best that is within us, that we have ever met? The time will come when it will be past, and we shall awake some fine morning to see that the depression has passed from the horizon, like clouds in the night. Then how shall we face the future? Shall we be prepared to take our place, ready to advance with those who have kept courage, and never wavered through all life stress, or shall we be like the foolish virgin with no oil in our lamps? Can not each intelligent father and mother afford to continue the struggle a little longer, working with the parents and teachers of other children, in order to give our children the chance to keep in touch with the undoubted progress that the world is making despite apparent misfortune? Let us all work together to preserve our public school music department. It is certainly worth our best effort.—Adv.

KILLS FOUR BIRDS

COURTLAND, Va., Nov. 18. — Henning McLemore has modernized and improved the old adage of "killing two birds with one stone." To be exact, he reported, on passing through Danville, Va., en route to Chapel Hill, N. C., to attend the Carolina-Vanderbilt football game that he killed four partridges when he ran into a covey in flight near Halifax, Va. Two young birds struck the windshield of his car and dropped to the ground. The windshield he said, was not broken.

Few men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

Whatever the real situation or whatever the possibilities may be, there is no question about the state of mind and pocket-book of those thrown out of work by the economy drive.

The methods used by the various political parties in appealing for the support of the public were most interesting. Besides the use of airplanes by candidates and their workers, enabling personal touch with a great deal more of the electorate, the use of radio broadcasting was a great factor. Obviously, the great advantages of broadcasting for propaganda purposes are those of the accessibility of the public and freedom from interruption, although in all matters it is found that the public reads its newspapers no less diligently, for, after all, it is the printed words that form the final and comparatively incontrovertible record.

The real money in business is in getting volume sales, and the only way to produce profitable volume is by continuous newspaper advertising.

In times of depression is not the time to worry so much about balancing budgets. It should be done in good times when there is little chance of sinking the ship.
