DALLAS POWDER BLAST HURTS EIGHT New Randolph President to Be Heard at Mass Meeting

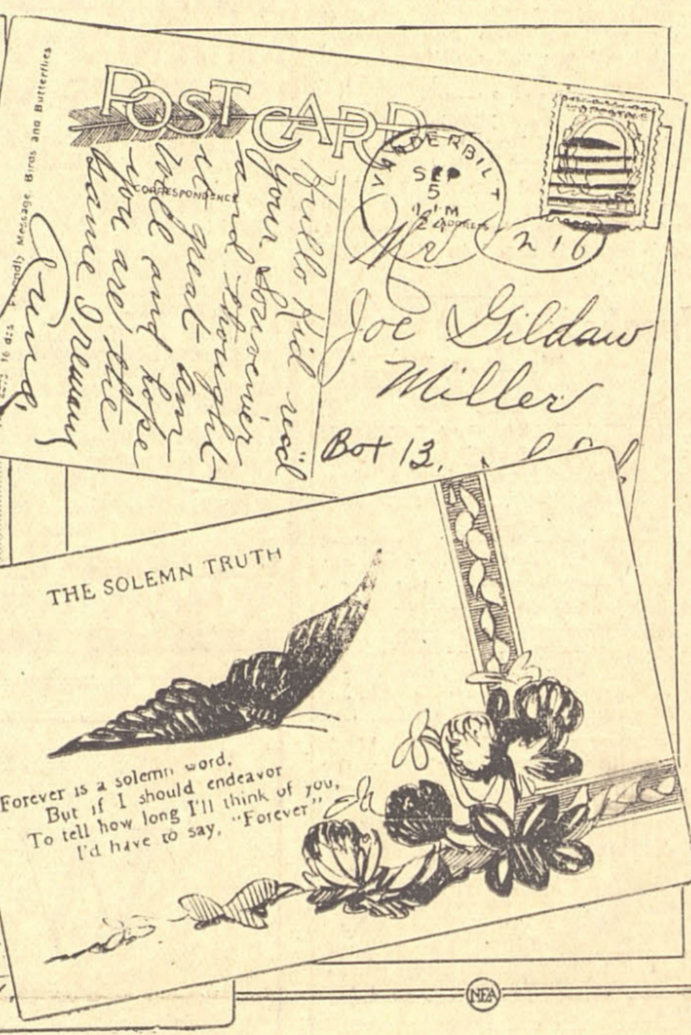

C. C. PUSHES PROGRAM FOR COLLEGE HERE

Efforts to secure large attendance of Cisco people at the mass meeting to be held at the high school auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock were undertaken by the chairman of commerce last night after it had heard an optimistic report of the prospects before the college for the ensuing session. F. D. Wright, a member of the board, reported upon the status of the school and its success in securing Dr. Lee Clark, prominent Texas educator, as its president.

FRANCHISE GIVEN MOORE IS REVOKED

EASTLAND, Sept. 9.—At a meeting of the Eastland city commission held Tuesday Mayor McCullough offered a motion to revoke the gas franchise previously granted by the commission to John W. Moore. Mayor McCullough gave as his reason for offering the motion the fact that he was convinced Moore had abandoned his proposal to the city. The motion was unanimously adopted. All members of the commission were present and voting except Commissioner Tom Harrell, who was not present.

BRITISH PEAK IN POPULATION DUE IN 1950

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The population increase of England and Wales steadily is being retarded, and the population probably will reach a maximum about 1950, 1931 census figures indicate. Reports to the Commerce Department from London state that the 1921-1931 increase—2,061,232—is the lowest since 1861, and but for the World War would represent the lowest rate of increase since 1801, when the first census was taken. The birth rate at present is 16.3 per 1,000, less than half that before 1890, and about two-thirds that in the years just before the World War.

PRESIDENT HEARS COTTON RELIEF PLAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Credits planned for disposal of part of the cotton surplus which bears so heavily on the economic structure of the south were considered by the president today. The program which was presented to President Hoover yesterday by Gov. Eugene Meyer, of the federal reserve board, calls for an extension of credit to planters and to foreign purchasers. Federal reserve agencies would cooperate with local agencies in extending the credit to planters in the form of bankers' acceptances.

PLAN FOR N. Y. CONFERENCE IS RESCINDED

The city commission, meeting in a called session at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, voted three to two to rescind its previous action to send a committee to New York City for conference with representatives of a large pool of Cisco's municipal financial obligations. The motion to rescind was made by Comm'r Burnett and seconded by Comm'r Fee after Mayor J. T. Berry had declared that unless a united commission is behind him he would refuse to make the trip.

FIRST RIFT IN COTTON BAN SESSION

AUSTIN, Sept. 9.—Refusal of the senate to have its agricultural committee sit in joint hearing with the house committee was the first rift in the farmers' session of the Texas legislature, convened to raise cotton prices. Hundreds of farmers, some in overalls and some in their Sunday suits, filled the legislative galleries while other farmers, presided over by A. A. Allison, of Corsicana, met at the state department of agriculture and sought to draft a bill.

DALLAS, Sept. 9.—Eight persons were injured, five of them members of the Henry Schaeferdel family, and widows were shattered over a wide area here when a Du Pont powder magazine exploded today 10 miles south of here.

Harnessed Cow

DALLAS, Sept. 9.—The force of the explosion which destroyed the Du Pont powder magazine on the Schaeferdel farm, 10 miles south of here today, also harnessed the Schaeferdel cow. The blast set a set of harness hanging in the barn, neatly across the cow and Henry Schaeferdel did not notice it until some time later. Neither cow nor calf was hurt.

Work for Cut-Off

FALL TRADE.

Cisco's fall trade campaign seems to be languishing for want of a united interest. As yet no definite effort to get this movement under way has been taken. There has been much talk and a universal agreement that such a campaign is needed but the necessary action is lacking.

It will not be long before it will be too late to do anything about it. Farmers will have gathered their fall crops, sold them and carried their business elsewhere. And that will be the end of it so far as this year is concerned. If Cisco merchants didn't need the business, if times were as flush as they were a few years ago there would be an excuse for not pushing this campaign. But changing times have brought with them changing conditions and Cisco, if it prospers, must recognize these changes and take advantage of them.

It is well known that Cisco has been half a century the traditional trading point of this section. Until the oil boom it was unrivaled in this distinction and business came to it naturally, as water flows toward a lake. The oil boom, erecting overnight towns and cities the equal of Cisco in population, brought with it a local prosperity that blinded us to the significance of the change. There was too much money at home, business was too good to cause our merchants and our chamber of commerce to stop and consider the fact that large, opulent sections of our former trade territory was being effectually sliced away. We are just now beginning to realize that significance. The painful economic readjustment that is following the over-flush boom period, has called us forcibly to account for our neglect. With oil-supported prosperity subsiding, we are turning back to our first love—a broad agricultural trade territory—to find that newer towns have sprung up and taken the most of it away from us. What was once measured in a hundred miles is now measured in ten.

We cannot sit idly down and wait. This, as never, is a critical period in Cisco's economic history and it is going to depend upon the energy and ingenuity of our business people, our chamber of commerce and our other civic and commercial institutions as to what solution we make of the problem.

"The survival of the fittest" is a law as true of cities as of animals and men. This is no time to complain. It is time to work, to roll up our civic sleeves and meet the issue with a grim determination to take advantage of the opportunity to establish ourselves firmly at a time when depressed economic conditions are threatening the well-being of sister cities and towns as well as Cisco.

IT SHOULD BE DONE.

The chamber of commerce in its meeting last night discussed the advisability of placing a sign at the intersection of the Cisco cut-off road with the Eastland-Breckenridge highway near Leeray. The cut-off is not a state road and its junction with the highway is not marked by any direction that will assist motorists wishing to come to Cisco. The sign will naturally follow highway 23 to Eastland with the result that 10 miles is lost.

The junction of Highway 23, now a federal route, with Highway No. 1, (U. S. Highway No. 80) at Cisco makes Cisco an important junction point for motor traffic and greatly increases in importance the cut-off from Highway 67. Motorists unfamiliar with the routing of highways in this section are entitled to the information that a sign at the cut-off junction would convey, for that information means a saving of miles that is valuable. By all means a large and easily readable sign should be erected at the junction.

Incidentally the development of Highway 23 here, by increasing the importance of the cut-off, makes more imperative its improvement. It is by all odds the worst stretch of paved road in the county and its condition not only inconveniences through traffic but actually is turning a great volume of trade away from Cisco. The quicker some action toward improving this road is taken that much sooner will Cisco begin to realize its due advantages in the section of trade territory it traverses.

OTHER OPINIONS

THE FIGHT ON THE MARRIAGE LAW

The Texas Weekly continues a bitter fight against the "anti-gin" marriage law, but goes to some pains to point out that it is not influenced by the "dollar motive."

If all financial considerations are set aside, what objections to the "anti-gin" statute can possibly remain? It would be interesting, were Editor Molyneux to elucidate.

Does he object to the law because it establishes a three-day interim in which parties to a proposed marriage contract may ponder the seriousness of a step that contemplates a life-time of association and the rearing of a family? Does he object because the law prevents the marriage of men whose physical condition is such that their wives are condemned to leathsome disease and suffering and death? Does he object because the law throws an obstacle in the path of men who would populate the world with blind and maimed and imbecile children? Or does he object because the income of a county clerk here and a Justice of the Peace there may have suffered some decline?

If healthy Texas boys and girls choose to marry in Oklahoma, and return to swell our population figures, certainly no permanent injury is done the state. But if the anti-gin-marriage law prevents one unfortunate marriage, or forestalls the birth of one poor, imbecile child, it justifies its place in the statute books.

There is no good reason (unless it be a "dollar" reason, and that may not be good) for the repeal of the anti-gin marriage statute. If the Texas Weekly desires uniformity of marriage laws, it would do better to urge enactment of a similar statute in Oklahoma. Oklahoma's remissness is no reason for retracting one of the Lone Star state's most progressive social steps. — Editorial Digest.

Keeping Up With the Boy Scouts

THREE EAGLE AWARDS.

Bill Allison, Richie Lee Davis and Lester Clark received their Eagle badges at the Breckenridge Court of Honor held at the high school auditorium last Friday night. The high school band furnished a concert before the court of Honor started. Scoutmasters Banes, Dunham and Duvall had the scouts perform several demonstrations of scouting, which was well received by the audience. E. R. Maxwell presided over the Court of Honor assisted by Mr. Brown and Mr. Faunt Le Roy. Mr. Maxwell called on several of the parents for expressions of what they thought of scouting. Russell Jones, chairman of the Breckenridge district committee, made a talk on scouting in general stating that the campaign for financing the Oil Belt council was to take place during September and that the Breckenridge committee hoped to complete Breckenridge's part by the first of October. Mr. Maxwell congratulated the scoutmasters for the wonderful work they were doing with the boys of the community. The next court will meet sometime in October.

Troop 3 Have Swim.

Troop 3 of Eastland went to Lake Cisco Friday night for a swim and test passing. Scoutmaster Horace M. Conley was in charge. All reported a good time.

Eagle Scout Writes.

The council office is in receipt of a letter from Carl Rotramel, a first Eagle scout of the Oil Belt council. Carl is now at Cumby, Texas, where his father is superintendent of the schools at that place. Carl states that he will finish high school this year and attend Texas University next fall. He sends greetings to all scouts of the Oil Belt.

Carbon Scouts to Exhibit.

The Carbon scouts report that they will have an exhibit at their fair this year that will outnumber the one last year, which was a good one. They also expect to put on some entertainment for the Friday night of the fair. Scoutmaster Wood who has been attending school at Denton this summer is back and is planning the fall and winter program for his troop.

Scoutmaster Wood is principal of the Carbon school. Several of his boys will be in John Tarleton college this winter.

Scribes Wake Up.
The council office asks that the scribe of each troop please send in the troop news each Saturday so that we may get it out to the papers each Monday. The office is sending out postal cards that are all ready addressed and stamped so that you may drop them in the office after the meeting each Friday night or early Saturday morning. Please help by doing this. Thanks.

Scouts to Help at Fair.

The office has a letter from M. S. Sellers who is chairman of the troop committee at Rising Star to the effect that they are going to have an information and first aid tent at their community fair. They are also going to put on a program Friday night of the fair. Mr. Embury is scoutmaster of the troop and is planning for the fall and winter program.

To Have New Scoutmaster.

Troop 4 of Cisco will have a new scoutmaster this week. Prof. O. L. Stamey, principal of the grammar school, will take the troop over. Mr. Lennon who has been scoutmaster for the past four years has resigned as scoutmaster due to not being able to make night meetings as he works at night. However, Mr. Lennon has promised to assist in any way he can and we do not anticipate dropping him from the roll of assistants. He has done much toward scouting in Cisco and scouting in general at camp. We are sure that the troop will continue to win honors and progress under the leadership of Mr. Stamey.

To Have Meeting.

All Scouts of Ranger are to meet next Friday night at the Methodist church. Several important things are to be done. Plans for the fall and winter are to be discussed. Each scout is urged to attend this meeting.

Insane Negro Expert Pianist

HASTLING, Neb., Sept. 9—There's music in the soul of "Mac" McPherson, 70-year-old negro in the state hospital for the insane here. And it's good music.

Twenty-seven years' confinement in the sanitarium has not taken from McPherson his love for the piano, his ear for music and the nimbleness from his fingers. He suffers from paranoid insanity—an incurable disease. He is violently insane on all subjects except music, and on this he can talk constantly and intelligently. He is a master at the piano, playing the classics mostly and overtures from the world's famous operas. Jazz, he doesn't like.

A wealthy woman sent him to college at Oberlin when he was a young man. He studied and became an accomplished musician. Following graduation he went on the stage making concert tours of this country and Europe. He has played for several kings and queens, it is said.

When McPherson went insane, in 1902, he lost all interest in music. His art vanished. Gradually it returned until today he can play the piano almost as well as in the days when he walked out into the glare of stage footlights in famous theaters of his day.

GUILTY LIPS

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of 'MAD MARRIAGE'

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place. Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Christine Saunders, with whom Norma shared an apartment, and Bradley Hart, Chris' employer, are witnesses at the wedding. Before this Norma has refused to marry Bob Farrell, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon. He and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs, where the young man takes delight in surrounding his bride with expensive luxuries. One afternoon Mark introduces Norma to Hollis Stone, an old friend. It is evident from the girl's discomposure that she has known Stone before. She excuses herself and goes to her room. Mark believes Norma is ill. She endures a day of suspense and misery, but when she sees Stone again he is politely formal and makes no mention of their previous acquaintance. One night Mark joins some friends at cards. It is 3 a. m. before he returns.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII

Slowly Mark Travers closed the door and faced about. A lock of dark hair fell rowdily over one eye. The collar of his shirt was open, his necktie loosened. In the dim light Norma did not see the shadows beneath the youths eyes or notice that his cheeks had an unnatural tinge.

The girl was out of bed instantly. She had forgotten her lonely evening, forgot all reproaches. "Are you ill, Mark?" she cried, rushing to him.

Travers rested his weight against the door, looked at her as though she were a stranger. "What you talking about?" he asked. "I'm all right. Fine! Never felt better in my life!"

He was certainly not himself. Abashed, horrified the girl stepped back.

Mark noted the movement. "Think I'm tight, don't you?" he challenged her. "Well, I'm not! Had a few drinks but I know what I'm doing all right. Oh, yes I do. Have a right to take a drink if I want it. When a guy's flat broke he's got to celebrate, hasn't he?"

Norma had found her voice. "Mark—here, sit down. You're tired. It's so late—"

He would not take the chair she thrust towards him. Instead he started across the room. There was a slight stiffness in his gait. Suddenly he turned, straightened.

"Who's going to stop me from taking a drink if I want to?" he demanded. "What'd you expect me to do when the money was gone—sit down and cry about it? If Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Travers want their son and heir to go hungry and be turned out for not paying bills—that for them!" Loudly, with exaggerated solemnity, he snapped his fingers. "Mr. and Mrs. Travers' son and heir says they can go to the devil!"

He turned his back on the girl again.

Norma was thoroughly frightened. She followed Mark, slipped her arms about him. "What do you mean?" she begged. "What do you mean about the money being all gone? You haven't—oh, Mark, you don't mean—"

The youth whirled. "Sure I do!" he interrupted. "That's what I've been celebrating. You've got your flat broke! Not a penny in the world left. Not a penny and a couple of L. O. U.'s—Why, Norma! Oh, gee, Norma, don't take it that way!"

She could not keep the tears back. They had started suddenly without her meaning in the least to give way. His hands were stung her cheeks. They would not stop. She hid her face in her hands.

"Aw, sweetheart—please! You mustn't feel badly, Norma! Sight of the girl looking so miserable seemed to clear Mark's brain. "Why, it's going to be all right. We aren't going to go hungry or anything like that. I'll get some money tomorrow—"

She tried to tell him that it had been the hours of waiting and anxiety, seeing him suddenly transformed into a stranger that had worn her nerves beyond endurance. Mark was overwhelmed with regret. He scarcely gave her a chance to explain, he was so penitent, so humble in his self-abasement. Mark called himself a heartless, selfish brute. She was an angel and far too good for him. He swore events of this night would never be repeated.

They were sitting in the huge chair that was a favorite place for confidences. Her head rested comfortably against his shoulder. Norma's temple touched Mark's cheek. She was such a little thing!

He spread his two hands to indicate flight of the $400.

"Any that's really all that was left of all that money you had two weeks ago?"

Mark nodded gloomily. "Not to count the hotel bill which isn't paid," he told her. "Oh, there're lots of ways to spend money! Don't ever be surprised when it's gone. When Haloran spoke of this game tonight, I thought I'd have chance to run the $400 up. I generally win at bridge but this was poker. Added to what I've lost on emergency. Anyhow, it won't be necessary. You're to sit right at this table and not move until I come back. Those are orders!" Mark had swung to his feet and was reaching for his hat. "I won't be more than 10 minutes," he promised.

It was a wider margin than he needed. In a little over half that time he was back at the table, smiling, the entirely, self-confident Mark whom Norma loved.

"What's the secret?" she demanded. "You're like a cat licking cream from its whiskers!"

"No secret!" Mark sat back and helped himself to a lump of sugar. "But I'm predicting you and I will be in funds again before sunset. Sooner than that probably."

"But what did you do?"

"Oh, wired Mother the usual distress signal. She'll come back with a thousand berries by return telegram or I'm a blue-faced baboon!"

He was as pleased with himself as if he had just earned the $1000. Norma, noticing this, felt a twinge of disappointment. But of course they must have the money. Probably it was better to borrow from his mother than anyone else. Norma did not like accepting favors from the Travers family though.

All afternoon they loafed about the hotel waiting for the telegram. It did not arrive and as the hours passed Mark grew increasingly restless. By evening, when no message had come, he explained the situation by saying his mother must be out of town. Of course the message would be forwarded. The servants would see to that. The money would probably reach them in the morning.

It had not come by noon next day, nor by 4 p. m. It was just before the dinner hour when a bell boy approaching Mark, standing in the lobby:

"Telegram for you, Mr. Travers," the boy said.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS.

WELL, IT DOESN'T LOOK LIKE ANY PLANE HAS COME IN RECENTLY—WE'RE HERE AHEAD OF THEM!!

THERE'S MR. CRENSHAW, THE AIRPORT DISPATCHER... WE'LL GET THE DOPE FROM HIM!!

HAS LIEUT. RILEY COME IN YET? HE'S BRISING BACK FRECKLES, TAGALONGS AND OSCAR FROM PARADISE LAKE...WE THOUGHT PERHAPS THEY'D ARRIVE BEFORE WE GOT DOWN TO THE FIELD!!

NO... HAVEN'T SEEN HIM SO FAR TODAY—DO YOU HAVE ANY IDEA WHEN HE LEFT PARADISE LAKE?

I HARDLY THINK SO... RILEY'S ONE OF THE BEST... STILL, IT SHOULDN'T TAKE HIM THIS LONG TO FLY IN HERE!

AND JUST THEN A PLANE IS SIGHTED HIGH OVER THE HORIZON HEADING FOR SHADYSIDE....

WUPPRAH!

Refreshments of punch and individual cakes were served during the social hour. Present were Mesdames E. H. Varnell, F. D. Wright, Webb, E. A. Murrell, P. L. Ullom, and Leon Maner.

FORMER CISCO GIRL MARRIES HOLLYWOOD MAN.

The following account of the marriage of a former Cisco girl was taken from a recent issue of the Big Spring Herald:

"Miss Louise Moss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack S. Moss, of Fort Worth, was married Saturday morning at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Jake Bishop, to V. H. von-der-Lin, of Hollywood, Calif. She chose Big Spring, the town of her birth and her home until she was almost through high school, as the place for her marriage.

"The Rev. W. G. Bailey was the officiating minister. The beautiful ring ceremony was said at 9:30 in the presence of the immediate members of the family. The young couple left immediately afterward for their home in Hollywood.

The bride was attractively gowned in a brown traveling frock with harmonizing accessories.

Mrs. von-der-Lin graduated from high school in Cisco where her parents had moved from Big Spring. She attended T. W. C. in Fort Worth for two years and was going to school in Hollywood when she met Mr. von-der-Lin.

The groom is a native of New York state. He was a member of the University Royalties Continue to Decline

AUSTIN, Sept. 9. — There was a still further decline of the receipts of The University of Texas from royalties on oil production from its lands in West Texas during the month of August, the total sum received from that source during the month being $35,602.54. This was slightly below the total amount received in July. The falling off is due to the low price of oil and the decrease of production in the Big Lake field of Reagan county where the deep wells have been more or less pinched in to conserve the natural gas which had been going to waste in enormous quantities.

The monthly royalty receipts at this time are small as compared with the peak sum of around $200,000 in one month two or three years ago. It is expected, however, that with the improved condition of the industry the price of crude oil will again advance to something like former figures and that the university will benefit accordingly. The biggest roy-

"My sweetheart smokes 'em ..."

"NOW, you know, Bob was raised in a tobacco country. He has worked in two cigarette factories; and I have heard him say all of them are just the same. He says there are a lot of pipes and things like that running through the roofs of the factories and sometimes they look different, but that the way cigarettes are made is all the same.

"Bob says all tobaccos receive the same sort of drying—heat treatment, he called it. In one factory, he says, they may talk about 'baking' the tobaccos and in another they call it another name. He says what they actually do is to 'dry' the tobaccos—reduce the moisture in them—and that the machine that they all use is called a 'Dryer.'

"But when it comes to the quality of tobacco, that's quite a different story, so Bob says; some factories use mild, ripe tobacco, while others think that thick heavy tobacco is good enough. Bob knows tobacco and he tells me that it takes good tobacco—mild and ripe—to make a cigarette as good as CHESTERFIELD.

"You know how it is when a piece of fruit tastes just right—not raw or sharp or too ripe or tasteless—just pleasing and satisfying. Well, that's the way it is with CHESTERFIELD—they just suit me right down to the ground—they satisfy."

— And HIS sweetheart smokes 'em too!
