Russian Trade Failure Casts Gloom

The outlook for foreign trade is soberly and frankly described as gloomier than it has been since the Roosevelt Administration came into office...

- 1. Collapse, announced Thursday night by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, of the Russian-American trade negotiations.
2. Fear that the senate's rejection of the World Court presages a hostile attitude to specific reciprocal treaties...

Facing this dark picture, Mr. Hull, the courageous crusader for foreign trade, appeared Thursday before the Senate Agriculture Committee and agreed with a suggestion that the United States should sponsor another world economic conference...

Townsend Addresses Ways-Means Body

A gentle, tall, rather fragile-looking man, who might have been a small-town storekeeper and who wore an obviously ready-made brown suit, answered to the call of "Dr. Francis E. Townsend," before the House Ways and Means Committee...

There was no great force in his quiet but well modulated presentation, although here and there a Biblical cast of phrase or a Messianic uplift of his head gave an indication of the power which has stirred an amazing popular support for the new vision of plenty and prosperity for all...

Events of World Wide Interest

Washington sees big events in swift motion. Life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which lends to banks, is prolonged for two years. Secretary Hull regretfully ends debt negotiations with Russia when Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky reports that Russia rejects the carefully worked out settlement offer...

Hungary sees 700 coal miners at Pees abandon a hunger strike after 35 hours. Intense cold causes 75 men to give up and return to the surface and presently the strike collapses and all the exhausted and suffering men emerge...

Louisiana experiences tense excitement as Senator Huey P. Long arrives in Baton Rouge to press charges of a plot to assassinate him. The city, under martial law, overflows with national guards. In Washington new Congressman Jared Y. Sanders Jr. of Louisiana tells the House the "Asiatic dictatorship in his State foreshadows a conflict over continuing democracy that will soon be fought throughout the United States...

NEW WATER PLANT
HUMBLE, Tex., Feb. 6 - A new water and sewage system here, completed with funds from sale of 598,000 in bonds to the PWA...

SCHOOL KEY LOST 15 YEARS
STAMFORD, Conn., Feb. 6 - A Yale Law School Journal key, lost by William A. Kelly 15 years ago in New York City, was found among the effects of Jacob Brown, a suicide. The emblem was returned to Kelly who now is judge of Darien town court.

Chilean Official Is Struck By Prince's Knowledge of Spanish And South America

By HENRY T. RUSSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 6 - The most interesting event during his trip to Europe, according to Lieutenant Hernandez, of the Chilean Carabineros, was his visit to St. James Palace for an audience with the Prince of Wales.

When the Prince visited South America in 1931, Lieutenant Hernandez was assigned to guard him when he reached the Bolivia-Chile border. The Prince was struck by Hernandez's knowledge of English, which is exceptionally good.

The patient's teeth were perfect in appearance and color, according to Dr. J. C. Eselman, demonstrator in radiology, but had no root canals or pulp chambers. A bony attachment and the gum tissue held the teeth in position, he said.

Secretary Learns Collecting Secret

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 - William H. Sanford, secretary of the Engineers club of Philadelphia, has discovered the secret of bill collecting.

Here is his explanation of how he makes one-third of the members of the Philadelphia club pay up before the fourth of every month: "I send their bills so they'll receive them on the last day of each month, instead of the first. When a single bill comes in on the morning of the last day the natural reaction is to pay it and get it out of the way, prior to receiving a number of bills which are always expected on the morning of the first day of the month."

Recalling his visit to Chile, the Prince spoke of well-known Chilean personalities he had met there including President Alessandri and Finance Minister Ross.

NEW FASHIONS GAIN INTEREST AT STYLE SHOW

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 5 - Feminine America will wear satin on the sands, beach pajamas modeled after dinner gowns, much fringed on its evening frocks, and printed alpaca for spectator sports this summer, according to the dictates of the annual Sunshine Fashion Show.

More than 2,500 feminine fans gathered in the Roney Plaza Cabana Sun Club palm gardens to see the last word in 1935 summer styles.

High notes of the beach styles were satin and lace latex swim suits, the Tahitian ensemble, the Seminole Indian suit, dressmaker bathing suits, three-quarter length pajamas and bath towel coats with monks' hoods for sun protection.

Cabana Dress
The cabana dress, of the new Shanghai linen, was seen for the first time here. Styled like a summer evening frock, the dress definitely introduced the picturesque note into beach wear.

Periwinkle blue, wearing the modernized name of Iris, led the color parade in popularity.

One frock for active sports wear was composed entirely of imported scarves, fringed around the neck and at the bottom. Several more luxuriously typed spectator sports ensembles were trimmed with fur dyed to match their pastel shades.

Evening Fashions
Evening wear fashions apparently are mindful that variety is the spice of a successful season and models developed the widest range in many years.

There were printed silks as severely tailored as a shirtwaist frock. There were brilliant starred chiffon gowns and beuffed net dresses. An amusing frock of peach colored lace had a tucked vestee, a boyish round collar and wee bow tie of black grosgrain.

One of the most interesting gowns was of gray chiffon over accordion-pleated chartruese chiffon and accented with sapphire bracelets and clips.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

CASEY STENDEL has an idea that the Brooklyn Dodgers will finish in the first division next fall. "All they have to do is believe that they are as good and play as well as they did during the last two months of the 1934 season," beams the inimitable manager of the Flatbush flock.

Stengel's first year as a major league pilot found him wearing a tear bag like a bib in the daytime, and obtaining little or no rest on hard beds at night. The club had none too much at the outset, and bumped into a series of injuries second only to that which wrecked the Washington Americans.

It will be recalled that it was not until the closing days of the campaign that the Dodgers succeeded in convincing Bill Terry and the New York Giants that Brooklyn was still in the National League.

Builds Staff Around Mungo and Leonard
Of the 34 on the Brooklyn roster, Stengel considers only a half dozen as established first division players.

What makes me optimistic," explains Stengel, "is the progress we made in reconstruction. Pitcher Emil Leonard, first baseman Sam Leslie, shortstop Linus Frey, and outfielders Len Koenig and Ralph Boyle revealed major league ability with a crippled sixth-place aggregation. "Naturally, we must strengthen the time that Applesseed started his mission of planting apple seeds wherever he thought suitable, the tree has a circumference of 12 feet and a spread of 76 feet.

Aged Apple Tree Is Wasting Away

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Feb. 6 - Perhaps one of Johnny Applesseed's off springs a Baldwin apple tree, a century and a half old, slowly is wasting away on Major Hugh Smiley's estate.

BOSTON, Feb. 6 - There was plenty of snow and it was cold but Marshall McLeod left his truck standing on the street recently with 600 pounds of ice. Somebody stole the truck and ice load.

Bordagaray Attempts To Prove Sox Erred

It will be interesting to watch the performance of little Stanley Bordagaray, for whom the Dodgers gave Sacramento outfielder Johnny Frederick and Art Herring.

Bordagaray, an accomplished player defensively, was returned to the Pacific Coast League by the lowly White Sox last summer after hitting .321 in the American League.

However, Stengel reasoned that a player who has turned in marks of .375, .322, .351, and .321 in four successive seasons, must have something besides a stance, and won't be mad just so long as Bordagaray's "bloomers" continue to fall safely.

SILKEN SPINDLES

her. "I'd rather stay here and rest."
Leota applied the powder puff to her cheeks and chin. When the entire surface of her face had assumed a pinky-whiteness she seemed satisfied and put the vanity case back into her pocket.
"You oughtn't to try to work today," she volunteered. "You ought've taken the day off."

"I couldn't," Gale told her. "Even if I wasn't afraid to ask for time off I couldn't afford to. There's another doctor's bill to pay now and I'll have to buy medicine. They're enough bills as it is. I can't afford to miss a single day's work."

The other girl sighed. "Gee, it's tough all right," she said again. Suddenly she crossed the room to a locker, opened it and took something out. A moment later she was back, holding out a chocolate bar toward Gale.

Gale looked doubtful. "I don't believe," she began.
But Leota insisted. "Oh, go ter-honest, you will. Gee, if you don't eat anything you're liable to feel over like that Connie Baum did the other day. Did you hear about that?"

Gale broke off a bit of the chocolate bar and ate it. She said, "Yes, I heard about Connie. Thanks, Leota."
"Forget it! We're all in the same boat here. Gee, the way they work us and the little dough we get! It's a crime, that's what it is!"

SUDDENLY Leota drew nearer. If Gale hadn't been so tired she would certainly have noticed the crafty look that had come into the other girl's eyes. She would certainly have noticed the change in Leota's tone. As it was Gale was entirely unsuspecting.

"That's where you're wrong," Leota said. "All wrong. There's a lot we can do about it."
"What do you mean?"

"I mean I think it's time to do something about the way we're treated here—and the way they cut our pay for every little thing, and let people out and make the rest of us work harder. I heard how Fisher hawled you out this morning. Gee, that was fierce—the big bum! I don't see why you let him get away with it!"

"How could I help it?"
"Where's a way?" Leota said darkly. "I'm telling you—things aren't going to go on like this forever!"

Gale looked at her curiously. "I don't know what you're talking about," she said.
"The other girl's eyes narrowed. "Can you keep your mouth shut?"

"Yes."
"You're sure of that?"
"Why, of course."
"Well, then—I'll tell you something. But you mustn't say a word."

Those going from Cisco were: Mesdames H. H. Davis, Ida Painter, Jim Flournoy, J. F. Benedict, D. F. Tyndall, C. C. Greenshaw, and Jessie Lee and John James Haynie.

North-South Survey Nearing Completion
 KERRVILLE, Feb. 6 — A line being surveyed entirely across the United States from north to south is nearing completion, the work having progressed as far south as Kerrville.

About 100 men and 50 trucks, working under the United States Coast and Geodesic Survey, have been stationed here. The project began in September at Devil's Lake, N. D., on the Canadian boundary, and is to be carried to the Mexican border below Mission, Texas.

The workers move in three groups. The first erects temporary towers, the second makes observation towers, the second makes observations and angle measurements, and the third dismantles the towers.

SIXTEEN PRESENT FOR CIRCLE LUNCHEON
 Members of Circle Three of the First Presbyterian church auxiliary met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. E. Caffrey with a luncheon. Thirteen members and three visitors were present.

LOG CABIN SCHOOL IN USE
 CAMDENTON, Mo., Feb. 6 — A log cabin school house is still doing service for pupils of Chappel Bluff, near here. The one-room structure was erected 60 years ago and still is in good condition, and its facilities adequate for the number of children in the district.

Goose Creek School To Have Celebration
 GOOSE CREEK, Feb. 6—Schools here will hold one of the first Texas Centennial celebrations in the state if plans of Superintendent W. R. Smith are realized.
 The annual exhibit and display of work of nearly 4,000 students of the system here will be held the closing week of school on Elms field. The Centennial theme will be carried out, Smith said.

EDUCATION THESES AT UNIVERSITY ARE LISTED FOR TEXAS TEACHERS

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — For the convenience of Texas teachers and others who are working on advanced degrees at the various higher educational institutions in the state, Dr. Frederick Eby, professor of education at the University of Texas and S. E. Frost, Jr., graduate student assistant in education at the University, have prepared a complete list of all graduate degrees in education ever awarded by Texas colleges and universities and the theses submitted by the various candidates as part of the degree requirements.

The value of this bulletin, published and distributed at a nominal cost by the University of Texas, division of extension, is to avoid duplication in the field of research in education. In other words, any Texas student preparing to write a thesis on some phase of education may, by referring to this bulletin, ascertain whether or not the subject he has chosen has ever been written on previously and what aspect of the subject has been treated.

According to the list given by Dr. Eby and Mr. Frost, there have been 20 students who have obtained the doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Texas by writing dissertations on some phase of education. A total of 41 candidates for the master of education degree have submitted theses on educational subjects, three for the master of science degree in education, one for the master of science in home economics, one for the master of science in journalism, nine for the master of business administration, and 441 for the master of arts.

Texans' Book Leads In British Shops

AUSTIN, Feb. 6 — After having taken America by storm and reigning for nearly five months the "best seller" of the country, Stark Young's novel, "So Red the Rose," has become one of the leading volumes in bookstalls in England, it is indicated by reports from that country. Mr. Young is well-known in Austin and Texas, for he formerly made this city his home while he taught for a number of years on the English faculty of the University of Texas. Last summer he spent some weeks visiting relatives here, and returned for a brief visit during the Christmas holidays.

Among the comments made in reviews of "So Red the Rose" published in English papers were the following: "Unlike 'Anthony Adverse' it has form and structure, a fine sense of fitness and proportion." "The London Evening Standard: 'a profoundly moving and imaginative book.'" by Compton Mackenzie; "a magnificent historical novel." in the Glasgow Herald.

Mummy Post Mortem Shows Many Secrets

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 6 — Dr. Frank A. Riebel and Dr. Norris Lenahan, young Columbus surgeons, have performed a post mortem on Nansi-Khonsun-Pa-Krodou, Theban mummy, a prized possession of Ohio Archaeological and Historical Museum.

The young lady, also known as Nitip, I, has been dead for 2,500 years.

That Nitip was 35 at death; that her death was of natural causes but sudden; that she was childless; that aside from two childhood illnesses, she enjoyed comparatively good health.

H. C. Shetrone, curator of the museum, said the examination sets at rest a notion that Nitip was a glamorous woman of an exotic kingdom. She was a spinster, mistress of her father's household, who spent most of her time keeping house.
