PALMER'S CLEAR THINKING.

Probably the best known of all American war correspondents, Frederick Palmer, says he is through writing about war. From his new book, "The Folly of Nations," these paragraphs are taken:

"Will the veterans of the world war, as they become older, gild their experience of the trenches with romance for the new generation, or tell the truth? Do they want their sons to endure worse than they endured? In an age which will have far more interesting pastimes than going to war, we may still honor our war heroes as brave men who went to immortal sacrifice, and we may still read stories about fighting men.

"But if we will only think so, we may find more glamour in the prospect of storing sun rays to light our houses, and in pressing a button to set the washing machine to work by electric power drawn from the mighty forces of wave and tide, than in a bomb full of poison gas which can kill a thousand people.

"I have heard the national anthem played in many lands, and when I heard it I have always been conscious of a large lump in my throat. What the anthem stands for to me is the wonder of our achievements in farmhouses and city office.

"There are signs that the soldiers of the late war are thinking it over as they look back at their experiences. That young child, democracy, is in their keeping.

"We might find our way for sixty or seventy years without another great war and still feel we had not missed much.

"The patriotism which holds that, because you are born of a given nationality, you can lick three men should have received its final quietus in the world war.

"When we know that courage has become the inalienable instinct of all classes, why should we be lured into hell to prove that we have courage?"

American Politics.
(Marshall News.)

The United States and Germany are at last at peace theoretically as well as practically. It has been three years since the armistice was signed. The only reason for the delay was that Woodrow Wilson had drafted a treaty that was perfectly acceptable to the entire world except a little partisan crowd in the United States, headed by Senator Lodge and George Harvey. Just what the delay has cost the world will never be known. We only know that business has halted all over the world for three years long. Just how much suffering and hunger has been caused cannot be known. We only know that the commerce of all the nations has languished—capital has hesitated, unemployment has multiplied because the terms upon which we were to make a treaty were not known. And after all there is only one divergence from the Versailles treaty in the one finally adopted. The Versailles treaty fixed the responsibility of the most cruel war on the German kaiser and his counselors. The one that this country signed with Germany is silent on that point. But the Wilson treaty was adopted almost in its entirety and in order that nothing might be overlooked, the present treaty closes with the statement that the United States is to receive any and all benefits that might have resulted had we adopted the Versailles treaty. Truly we have too much politics in this country. Possibly one party is at much at fault as the other but the people and the world suffer while the politicians fiddle.

League of Nations.
(Gainesville Register.)

With nearly all the other countries enrolled in the League of Nations it was inevitable that America and the league should come into contact sooner or later. It was hardly expected, though, that the first close contact would come so soon and so near at hand. It is observed that six of the eight nations represented on the league council are represented in the present arms conference at Washington. If the United States had not refused to join the league, this country would make it seven out of nine. When the mountain refused to come to Mohammed, Mohammed decided to go to the mountain. In this case it looks as if the mountain has come to Mohammed. Geneva has come to Washington. The situation is all the more striking because so many of the foreign statesmen acting as delegates to the arms conference has borne a conspicuous part in the organization and deliberations of the league. The United States might be described as undertaking, in the attempt to limit armament and eliminate causes of future wars, just such a job as it might have tackled at Geneva if it had joined the league, and doing it largely by negotiation with the same men.

West Texas Irrigation.
(Wichita Times.)

Developments are coming so rapidly in the irrigation project that we almost have to pinch ourselves to know that we are awake. The news seems almost too good to be true. Within a few weeks announcements have been made of an agreement for the sale of the bonds, of the purchase of the reservoir sites and only yesterday that bids within the estimates and within the money that will be available had been received. Here we are about to begin actual work on a project about which we have been dreaming for more than twenty years. To those who are unfamiliar with the history of this project the most recent developments seem almost like magic. But behind them are years of vision, planning, expense and effort some of it as painstaking as it has been herculean. It all began twenty-five years or more ago as a dream of J. A. Kemp, who has worked year after year for the culmination we are about to see. Federal engineers made surveys and many other surveys have been made, first one bill and then another has been gotten through the legislature, the detail work of organization has been perfected. Detailed surveys have been made. The approval of many experts engineering, chemical, legal and financial has been secured. Months of negotiation for the sale of the bonds, the purchase of the reservoir sites and other details have occupied the time and efforts of a number of our leading men. At least it is all coming to a head with such rapidity that it is almost startling.

Bootleggers Should Pay.
(New York Telegraph.)

The New York Times, a conservative newspaper, informs us that action will be taken by the government against several Manhattan bootleggers for collection of the income tax. By what process of reasoning the government can contemplate such action we are unable to surmise. That great fortunes have been made by violators of the eighteenth amendment nobody can doubt; but can the government take official cognizance of it and share in the profits as if they were the fruit of legitimate business? Would this not be a confession that the amendment is a dead letter so far as underground transactions are concerned? We ask for information. In the larger sense such action would merely emphasize the failure of prohibition to prohibit and would be an argument for a modification of the drastic and contradictory Volstead act, but actually it would be winking at a class that holds the law in contempt. There may be some way in which to regulate bootleggers, some way as yet undiscovered; but it is not to be found by pursuing a course that in effect recognizes the industry as a permanent feature of internal commerce.

DAWSON CITY, Nov. 21.—Sturdy miners in the bleak Yukon whose thoughts centered heretofore chiefly in the hunt for gold and silver have turned to politics with a zeal. Ireland Grateful for America's Aid

This wall, once a portion of a chemists' shop, is the only wall left standing in Patrick Street, Cork, Ireland, following the conflagration which left the city a mass of ruins. (Insert) James Douglas, treasurer of the Irish White Cross.

JAMES DOUGLAS, treasurer of the Irish White Cross, is in this country with a message from his country with a message from his Catholic, Jews and Gentiles, have people for their contributions to the effort to relieve suffering, and Mr. Douglas says that the White Cross Ireland of which Justice Morgan J. O'Brien is chairman, and Thomas F. Ryan, E. L. Doherty, John D. Ryan, Nicholas F. Brady, and other prominent Americans have taken an active part. The White Cross has charge of the distribution of the American Committee's funds.

According to a statement made by Mr. Douglas immediately upon his arrival, relief from this country arrived at a time when the Irish people were in most desperate straits. Without funds from the American Committee, the relief work could not have continued, he said, and widespread desolation of whole sections of Ireland would undoubtedly have followed. Mr. Douglas is a Quaker and has taken no part in party politics. The work of his organization, begun a year ago at a time of the most bitter warfare, has been conducted on a non-partisan, non-political basis. Relief

There are but thirty paid workers in the White Cross. All overhead expense is borne by the Irish. Every cent contributed by Americans goes directly for relief work.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF CISCO HIGH SCHOOL

VOL. III.

CO, TEXAS, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1921.

NUMBER 9

STUDENT OPINION.

Students, attention! Are you going to let the Cisco Occidental be a failure this year? The seniors, of course, are expected to manage the financing of the annual.

But the financing of the annual is not the greatest responsibility connected with it. There are other things which are the life of a school yearbook.

Second, there is the matter of contributing material such as will make an interesting annual. There may be a freshman, or a sophomore who has talent which is needed by the Occidental.

Do not "hide your light under a bushel." Remember what happened to the man who took his talent and buried it!

KOO KOOS' KOURT A KLIMAX TO 'BETTER ENGLISH WEEK'

The high court of the Koo Koo Klan convened in the Cisco high school on Friday, November 18th. Judge Wallace Eastman, chief of the Klan, presided over the trial of a certain Willie Fish, who was charged with murder in the first degree—murder of the English language.

The entire court wore conventional Koo Koo costumes, except the judge and the prosecutor, who left off headgear. The lawyer for the defense was gaudily dressed as a typical backwoods lawyer.

In the early part of the trial, the defendant lost for a time his fear of the court, and acted saucy to the honorable judge, whereupon three giant sergeants-at-arms advanced so menacingly as to reduce him to a state of abject fear, bordering upon imbecility.

proachable people as Mr. Godbey and Mrs. Kean had been accomplices. However, insufficient evidence was produced to prove this point.

When the judge asked: "Are you guilty, or are you innocent?" the unhappy defendant replied: "Ignorant, judge, ignorant." His truthfulness on this point disarmed many of the onlookers, who from this time were observed to be profoundly sympathetic.

When all the evidence had been given, the judge charged the jury not to be moved by pity or any emotion, to give any but an honest verdict. The jury was out only one minute and returned with a verdict of "guilty," pronounced in sepulchral tones by the foreman.

The judge then pronounced sentence, which was for Willie to go to school the rest of his life, to sleep on encyclopedias, with a dictionary for a pillow, and to live on a diet of grammar and rhetoric for 14 years.

The part of Willie Fish was ably played by Byron Lovelady. Some of the jurymen were: Rea Dill, Henry Mood, Sherman Watson, Miché Carroll.

BREVITIES.

Mr. LaRoque, in chemistry class: "Yes, I have some gold dust in the laboratory and we will have an experiment tomorrow."

As the class looked as if it would stampede the laboratory, he added: "I meant to say Gold Dust washing powder." Three girls fainted from the reaction.

Mr. LaRoque says he never makes any grammatical errors because he never finds himself making any.

Melvin Beard must be a good English student; Miss Robbins told him to find 20 grammatical errors in his theme and he found only four.

We certainly have some bright students at this high school. "Speak" Magazine is so bright it hurts your eyes when you look at him.

Mr. Wells gave his geometry III-2 class the easiest problem in the book the other day and no one could work it. Times have changed, haven't they?

Miss McCarty: "You know, that talk Brother Monk made in assembly this morning sure did make me feel queer."

Mr. LaRoque: "Is that so? Why?" Miss McCarty: "Yes, the students seemed to think he was talking about me, just because I've been running around with some old-maid school teachers."

Edward Mancill: "Mrs. Kean, may we report teachers for using slang?" Mrs. Kean: "Yes, I would be glad if you would report me for it. I learned it from my sons. All boys use slang, you know. I have learned a great deal from you, Edward."

Wesley had just placed one of McCormack's great songs on the Victrola, when Alie McWhorter shouted: "I wish you would stop that; I'd rather listen to a donkey."

Wesley: "Well, you see, that's all according to the way you are raised."

Some of the Debating club members are wondering if they could be in a dignified debate with W. H. Magnus.

We are glad to announce that Mr. Williams has found the valuable drawings which he lost recently. Someone left them in his desk, which shows they weren't altogether lost. At last, they were not lost at all. Somebody in C. H. S. endeavored to get rid of a guilty conscience.

A junior said Mr. Wells did you send me to jail for hitting that girl in the hat?

Mr. LaRoque a very interesting and instructive talk to the physics students last Friday on "The Origin of Music."

Heard in these one evening last week (a member of the football squad talking): "Wait to have _____ for coach. He coach us to play dirty if anyone could've such sentiment prevents it up to the Gusher as 'me to quit ill."

Lerma Bates, young lady at C. H. S., well known her preciseness in the use of the English language, made a terrible blunder in grammar last Wednesday. C the crimes committed against unvoiced language, heers was the most, for of all the poor mortals at C. S. she would think that she would be the one least likely to make such an error. Here is what she said: "Joint and got unpatriotic."

Mr. Herndon a new Ford. The library is a wider range of history referencoes.

Mrs. Kean, American history class: "An idit is one who sees heaven, and either fellow sees the opposite."

"His first name Jack; his last name is Godbey, and going to make a quarterback on him," was the way Mr. Godbey anced the arrival of a son. The Gus extends congratulations and risks ask if he will be eligible next season.

Frank Fee evidently out late Monday night, sing from the yawns he delivered Tay morning in history class.

Members of solid geometry class were much chined to find that the problem they saw understood was trigonometry ind of geometry.

We wonder Mrs. Kean's second period class thit the physics students were "talk voice" last Wednesday.

The Debating club is rumored to have been the use of several zeros the other day.

Some people I turn a deaf ear to Miss Runmsey's for the return of books.

In giving our colors for Better English week, Miss McCarty gave Wightman Moo blue. He had just been sent out class. Very appropriate.

Did you ever hear of a group of one? Here's what a teacher said: "Pupils congregated in groups of one and two." Answer: Welbes. Anyhow, sometimes Porter look like a group picture.

Georgia Mae leader has been absent from school several days because of an attack appendicitis. She underwent a successful operation in the Stamford sanitarium last week and is now recovering nicely.

The school wadedighted to have the Rev. Alonzo Mot, pastor of the First Methodist church of Arlington, Texas, speak at assembly Tuesday morning. He used for a subject, "Getting There," and gave the adents some pointers which, if follow, will materially aid them in life. ev. Monk has made himself popular ith the young people of the city by his activities in the Epworth league and by his kindly, friendly manner. It is hoped that he will have another opportunity to visit the school.

Wednesday morning Oliver Cook made a short talk to the students preceding the lecture Wednesday night.

The fifth period Spanish class sang Spanish songs Wednesday instead of reciting, according to the fifth period geometry class.

Miss Robbins: "Dick, why is 'Julius Caesar' a piece of poetry? Dick (dignified): "Well, you see it looks this way to me: Every line begins with a capital letter."

Eugene Smith was absent from his classes Monday morning on account of being ill.

Low sophs had a meeting Monday afternoon in Room 16, and had an attendance of 93 per cent.

Teacher: "What can you tell about Casca?" Dick: "He was born and died on the same day and lived 37 years."

Helcn Holmes was absent from school Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, on account of illness.

Billie Bacon was absent from school Monday.

If you want to subscribe to a talking newspaper, go to Fannie Floyd for information.

Barto Ramsay was absent from school Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and part of Thursday.

A petition was signed by 39 low sophomores and afterwards taken to Mr. Wells, which read thus: "We, the undersigned low sophomores, do earnestly desire the privilege of receiving the banner pennant in our class colors, which we earned raising funds for the Athletic association."

The H-Y met yesterday and discussed the first lesson in the new books on "Cheating—Getting By." Elroy McCann had charge of the meeting. Many forms of cheating were taken up and discussed. Mr. Wells gave a short talk on the subject. It was decided to have a business meeting Monday.

Joe Carrothers was sent to the board in English to write the names of some delegates to the Washington convention. He wrote several, among which was Pearce (the Australian delegate). His instructor, wishing to test Joe, to see if he knew the countries which the delegates were from, asked: "Joe, by the way, who is the Australian delegate?"

Joe: "I don't know." She thus gained the desired result.

Nellie Mae Tune, coming into algebra class, was heard to whisper to Anita Simpson: "Does my hair look straight?"

Some of the newly subscribed for magazines are Harper's Monthly, Scribner's Magazine, American Magazine, Current History, Mentor Magazine, National Geographic Magazine, World's Work, Pathfinder and Correct English.

Mr. Herndon and the manual training boys have made a case for periodicals that come regularly to the library.

Mabel Tucker was sent home for her report card. "She told Mr. Wells she would not come back until after dinner if he sent her. Mr. Wells replied, "Oh, yes you will." Mabel returned before the close of the period, but she declared she would not have been back if she had not gotten a ride. Oh, the "never-say-die" spirit of the girls!

IN OTHER HIGH SCHOOLS. It is noticeable in the Bremond high school news that the Bremond high has a press club. It would not be a bad idea for C. H. S. to adopt a similar plan.

There was a battalion parade of the Tuleton Cadets at Stephenville on Armistice day. The J-Tag also stated the cadets had received only six weeks of training and made a wonderful showing.

Some of the papers that the school receives regularly are: The Daily Texan, Bremond High School News, The Tuleton college and The Thresher from Rice Institute.

SOMETHING TO LOOK FORWARD TO. Look out for "The Kentucky Belle."

Not an old-time Kentucky belle of colonial days, but a play. This play will be given at the city hall sometime between the 10th and 15th of December. It is a regular three-act play, but there will be an element of musical comedy throughout.

The cast will consist of about 30 characters, who will be chosen from the Dramatic club, as that organization will present the play. At the present time it has not been fully decided where the proceeds are to be applied, but they will go where the need of the school is the greatest.

The admission fee has not been determined yet. If you paid a dollar, you would receive your money's worth. Singing and dancing will not be omitted because the chorus girls will be there in full array. There will also be music furnished by a male quartet.

The play has not arrived yet, and further particulars will be announced later. In the meantime everyone should talk and dream about "The Kentucky Belle."

PEDAGOGUES' PET "PEEVILES." Sayings of Students That Get Teachers' "Goats."

Miss McCarty—"I ain't got my theme." Miss St. John—"I don't know."

Mr. Herndon—"I didn't know you wanted us to do that." Mr. Kelley—"I don't care."

Mr. Gaitner—"I understand that one, but can't get another like it." Miss Soderstrom—"That is as far as I translated."

Mr. Turner—"Well, I didn't know we had those problems." Miss Tucker—"I forgot my material this morning."

Mr. Wells—"Who reported my name?" Mr. Hilgenberg—"I don't know."

Mr. Godbey—"She's just got it in for me." Mr. LaRoque—"Oh! I know that."

Miss Runmsey—"It says." Miss Robbins—"I ain't got nothing."

Op student: Study well this schedule. Opposite each teacher's name is the one thing he hates worst from the lips of a student. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

C. H. S. REALLY HAS AN INFANT MUSEUM—WATCH IT GROW. In viewing the museum of the public schools of Cisco in the high school library Tuesday afternoon, it was discovered that many exhibits of practical educational value have been added since last year. Very little has been contributed by local people, and a decided improvement can be made in the museum if the schools can secure the co-operation of the various business firms. The museum would appreciate any old relics not wanted by the owner, such as arrowheads, flint hatchets, stone axes and other historical relics.

Some of the collections that have been contributed are: Samples of oil, from crude to the finest of oils, presented by the Texas company. Complete exhibit of Hammermill paper, showing the steps in the manufacture of paper from birch chips through the pulp stage to the finest bond paper. Walter Baker educational exhibit of chocolate and cocoa products. Dr. Price Extract company, showing the vanilla bean, giving a detailed account of its culture and manufacture into extract.

Washburn-Crosby exhibit from their flour mills, showing the various stages in the manufacture of flour. Exhibit from Postum Cereal company, illustrating the manufacture of Postum, Grape-nuts and Post Toasties. Exhibit from Armour & Company, showing by-products from cattle, sheep and hogs. The exhibit from Eberhard Faber Pencil company illustrates the manufacture of pencils. Other exhibits are: Stuffed crane, rosewood and pine from California, contributed by Mrs. Olson.

FAST AND FURIOUS ARGUMENT. The Debating club met last Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. A business meeting was held to elect a new vice-president as the former one was forced to give up the work. Bert Waters was elected to this office.

The meeting was begun with a piano solo by Helen Gould. Joe Carrothers, who was on for a declamation, was not present at the meeting.

The debate was on the subject, "Resolved, that all immigration should be prohibited for two years." Affirmative: Gilbert Glascock and Lela Latch; negative: Marion Olson and W. H. Magnus.

The speeches of the speakers on the negative showed more preparation than in any debate this year. (One speaker on the affirmative was not the one named on the program, and had had no chance to prepare a speech.) The negative won the debate by unanimous vote. In the decision for the two best speakers the voted varied, but Marion Olson was declared first best speaker, and W. H. Magnus, second best speaker.

The Moran Debating club will come here on November 26 for an informal discussion on the subject, with the club, Marion Olson and W. H. Magnus will lead the discussion for Cisco.

There were six visitors present. The club wishes to have more in their future meetings.

EAST WARD NOTES. Last Thursday afternoon the Triple L Literary society had a patriotic program, which the fifth grade visited. The sixth and seventh grades went out on an expedition that was interesting to all, measuring boxcars, tanks, telephone poles and yards.

Marie and Emma Denison of the high first have withdrawn from school on account of moving to another community.

The Industrial Arts club donated to the east ward this week a first aid kit. This is very much appreciated and fills a long-felt need as accidents frequently occur around school.

Thursday a photographer took pictures of the pupils of the various rooms of the east ward.

Last week the high and low seventh arithmetic classes, accompanied by their teacher, Mr. Isaacks, went forth on an expedition to measure and compute the areas and volumes of anything they could find. They found the number of bushels of corn a barn would hold, the number of gallons of water a cylindrical tank would hold, the number of barrels of oil a tank car would contain, the number of cords of wood on a truck, the height of a telephone post by its shadow, the length of a guy wire on a post by the use of square root and several other practical problems.

The "Sweetest Club" is about to disband, but it looked for a while like all the school would belong to it.

Dramatization in reading was the order of the day in Miss Kittrell's room the other day. From the costumes and through the rest of the school thought that Christmas was being observed. In observing "Better English Week" the pupils in the English classes have all made posters to help correct grammatical errors, such as, "Don't say 'I seen the dog,' say 'I saw the dog.'"

THOSE WHO ASSISTED IN ENTERTAINING THE CONFERENCE THANKED

At the last meeting of the chamber of commerce directors the president was instructed to draw a suitable resolution expressing the appreciation of the chamber of commerce for the cooperation of the citizens of Cisco in entertaining the recent Central Texas Methodist conference.

merce could not have made the Methodist conference what it was and could not have cared for the people but for the services of numbers of our citizens, both men and women. "Be it Therefore Resolved, That we, the directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce in regular session assembled on the 15th day of November, 1921, do hereby thank and express our appreciation for the assistance rendered the organization in securing homes for the numerous delegates by the committees from the various churches and all others who assisted in securing homes and quarters for the visitors.

delegates and visitors to the Central Texas Methodist conference." Board of Directors of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce. By CLAUDE C. WILD, Pres.

AMUSEMENTS

The spectacular Fox special, "A Virgin Paradise," by Hiram Percy Maxim, which created a furor in New York, is coming to the Broadway theater Friday and Saturday for a two day's run. It is the story of a half wild girl who grew up in the jungle, with wild animals as her only companions, and then was brought into civilization, where she found much to displease her. J. Searle Dawley director of the production.

Victory.

In all the length and breadth of fiction there is no more picturesque a character than Hajj, the beggar of Bagdad. Edward Knoblock, the playwright, made Hajj famous in the stage version of "Kismet," and Otis Skinner, perhaps the best known and most popular actor in the country, immortalized Hajj during the years he gave life to this characterization on the stage.

The Robertson-Cole company has filmed the famous play, which will be run for two days at the Victory theater, starting tomorrow, and thousands of people in this city are going to have an opportunity to see Hajj, the beggar portrayed by no less a person than Otis Skinner himself.

Judia.

John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels which come to the Judia Wednesday and Thursday have reached the highest summit of perfection, towering above all similar attractions, a monument to the march of progressive minstrel enterprise.

It is unequalled, conducted on a broad and liberal basis, the company containing the leading lights of minstrelsy, the very cream of laugh producers, and the pick of high class novelty entertainers, presenting a program entirely different to all other minstrel organizations, and a welcome relief from the old and threadbare methods so long in use by similar enterprises.

MEMOR We wonder at a sudden fall And tears of sorrow fall For them o'er whom we had the pall. But faith, sweet faith, be all. In memory of Mrs. Howard, wife of J. M. Howard, this little tribute is paid by ad of many years.

They came to the p of the way Nov. 14th, 1921; this by and wife, who have stood side by side over 44 years, she leaving behind fond memories of all those years, babyhood blessed their home. So has shared his sorrows, and mad his joys, set sail on the unkn mysterious voyage for the harbor eternal rest and sweet repose, who pure and just shall be forever so, leaving her fond companion at a stormy ocean. Her home life ad; not one act was ever done oing reproach upon her splendid ly of children and 12 grandchildre to mourn her loss.
