Family Trouble Culminates in Shooting at Cleburne

ONE WOMAN NEAR DEATH; ANOTHER HELD

CLEBURNE, Jan. 21.—Climaxing trouble of more than a year's standing between the two women, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, 34, lies at the point of death in a local hospital and Mrs. Leona Vaughn is free under $2,500 bond in assault to murder charges after a shooting this morning on a residential street. Six bullets were fired into Mrs. Campbell's body. Little hope is held for her recovery.

A 32 automatic pistol was used in the shooting.

Officers said that the trouble which culminated in today's shooting began when Mrs. Vaughn secured a court injunction in January of last year restraining Mrs. Campbell from talking to Mrs. Vaughn's husband, since divorced. The divorce was granted February shortly after the injunction was secured, and the following May 6 the injunction was dissolved.

Mrs. Vaughn had made no statement today. The shooting took place about 11 o'clock.

The two women were said to have met while at town this morning.

CHOIR REHEARSAL

There will be a choir rehearsal tonight at 7:30 at the First Baptist church.

GAS COMPANY IMPROVEMENT WORK BEGINS

The Community Natural Gas company this week started actual work upon its improvement of Cisco's gas distribution system after several weeks of preliminary work. Thirty-two Cisco men had been put to work by today with the prospect that this number would be increased to 40 within a short while. This is the largest crew that the company can keep engaged on the project at one time, H. L. Dyer, manager of the company here, said.

A plan of prorating the work, so as to afford employment to the largest number, has been adopted, however, and by the time the present program of work is completed at the end of 60 days as expected, the company expects to have given work to about 200 men. The proration plan is to employ a crew of 40 men for about 10 days after which another crew of 40 will be given work. By this means the work to be done will be distributed among the largest number of men.

Four skilled workmen of the company, including welders, are engaged on the project. They are the only out-of-town men whom the company will use on the construction. Preliminary work, such as making surveys to determine what is to be done, testing lines, spotting pipe and welding it, has been under way for several weeks.

It is probable that as the present program of work progresses additional reconstruction or improvement will be decided upon and undertaken so that no definite time for completion of the overhauling of the system can be set. Some of this work will likely be outside the city limits on pipe lines of the company. In instances it is contemplated to remove pipe lines from under the highways while many feet of new line within the city limits will be laid to enable the company to give constant 24-hour service of the character to which its patrons are entitled. Leaking lines will be replaced, also, and by the time the improvement project is completed the company hopes to have the Cisco plant in first class condition, with leakage at a minimum and service at a maximum of efficiency.

Later they were transferred to cages built in the bluff where the zoo is now located. The deer died four years ago and the bear was poisoned by an unknown person. But by that time the zoo had grown to something near its present proportions.

Methodist Census To Be Made Sunday

The workers will be served with refreshments at 5 o'clock at First church, Rev. H. D. Tucker announced.

Rev. Mr. Tucker announces that he will discuss why Methodists believe that Christ was sprinkled, Sunday night at 7:15 at his church. He will also tell why Methodists believe in baptism by immersion and why.

The next Sunday night his subject will be "Why Methodists can lose their religion."

Mr. Tucker is extending an invitation to everyone who would like to hear this discussion to attend this service.

STARTS SEVENTH YEAR AS SUPERINTENDENT OF ZOO

Dr. Charles H. Hale, who has been superintendent of the Cisco Zoo since it was first organized about six years ago, and who has been responsible for its development into a modern, small city menagerie, is starting his seventh year as superintendent. This year however, the zoo is under direct city control, having been transferred from the chamber of commerce through which it has been until this year maintained.

No institution that has been developed in Cisco has proved as attractive to visitors as has this. During the warm months of the year each Sunday and many of the week-days has found hundreds of people sightseeing about the zoo and at the lake, swimming pool and state fish hatchery which are near by. It is a peculiar fact that the majority of these people are from out of town. They are people who come here from cities throughout this section both for the drive and for the pleasure of watching the animals during leisure hours. There is no other zoo in this section and nothing like animals attracts the interest of people, particularly those with children. It has been a common thing to count more than 400 visitors during a Sunday afternoon at the grounds.

Started Under Dam

The zoo was started under the Lake Cisco dam, with the partitions under the big structure serving as a shelter for the cages. The Menagerie was begun with the contribution of a deer by a Gorman man. This was the first animal received by the zoo and instantly interest in its development became warm. A Caddo woman contributed the first bear. The deer and the bear and other animals subsequently collected, were kept under the dam for a year.

Organization of a zoological society to provide funds for additions and replacements of animals is being strongly advocated both by Dr. Hale and by others, particularly women's clubs, interested in the development of Cisco's recreational facilities at the lake. Such a society is in prospect. It would take of the burden from public finances and at same time enable the zoo officials to develop it to the fullest extent.

Cisco has no other attractions more than surrounding cities. It is pointed out, and consequently it should develop its zoo and Lake Cisco amusement facilities to the utmost. Dr. Hale said today that the expense of operating the zoo would be cut considerably this year through economies that have been instituted.

DR. CHARLES HALE

The latest addition to the cages is a large monkey cage which Keeper John McCleskey is building. Much of the material for this cage was contributed by E. M. Walker, of Cisco.

FIVE SCRANTON YOUTHS FACING CHARGES HERE

Trial of five boys, ranging in ages from 16 to 18 years, was to be held in justice court here this afternoon on charges of malicious mischief growing out of depredations committed against property at Scranton. The boys were charged following investigations by Justice J. H. McDonaid, Constable R. L. Wilson and Scranton citizens after complaints of damage to the Oddfellows hall at Scranton had been made.

The trial was set for 1 o'clock this afternoon at the city hall where the justice court is located. County Attorney Joe H. Jones or one of his assistants will have charge of the prosecution.

The boys facing charges are J. W. Warren, Melvin Bailey, Bernard Holder, J. D. Sprawls and Autra Holder.

Charges recite that the building owned by L. G. Haislip at Scranton, in the upper story of which, above his store, the Oddfellows hall is located, was damaged or injured by the breaking out of window lights, defacing of doors and door facings, destruction of a table and so forth. The damage occurred about three weeks ago.

Denver Business Man Kidnapped

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 21.—Reverend mounted into the thousands of dollars today for the safe return of Benjamin P. Bower, 60-year-old Denver business man, kidnaped and held for $50,000 ransom.

Bower's bakery firm offered $1,000 for any information resulting in Bower's return, or to the kidnapers direct—no questions asked.

Mayor George D. Berole offered $500, the Rotary club $500 and the Elks club $100 as the failure of the kidnapers to indicate where ransom should be paid heightened fear that the victim had been slain as the abductors threatened.

JAPS TO FIND JOBS FOR MANY IN MANCHURIA

TOKIO, Jan. 21.—Thousands of new jobs will be opened to Japanese because of consolidation of the Empire's "special interests" in Manchuria and Mongolia, according to reports in the press.

The Tokio Asahi says the electrical department of the South Manchuria Railway company already has informed a number of universities, including the Tokio Imperial university, that it will be prepared to employ scores of the school's graduates this spring. The company has asked the University authorities to submit names of students who will be graduated next year, with recommendations for their employment.

Meiji University of Tokio already has submitted a list of 200 students of the class of 1932 for service in Manchurian projects affiliated with the S. M. R. A. A majority of the students to graduate from Waseda, another of the big Tokio universities, also expect to seek careers in the Four Eastern Provinces of China and in Mongolia.

The development of Manchuria will be vastly accelerated during 1932, the Tokio press believes and Japan will not worry if Chinese emigration into the Four Eastern Provinces is stopped because of the anti-Japanese movement in China. Emigration from Korea and Japan will more than make up for any slackening of the movement of population from China proper, it is said.

Worry hastens death. SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21.—Worry accelerates the march of humanity to its grave, believes Mrs. Pilar Arzanga de Diaz, who recently celebrated her 107th birthday. She was the first to learn of the defeat of Santa Anna in the Texas war of independence, and was an eye-witness to the march of Mexican troops to retain Texas.

IS 20 HOURS OVERDUE AT BIG SPRING

EL PASO, Jan. 21.—Otto P. Graff, New York business man aviator, was 20 hours overdue at the Big Spring, Texas, airport today and presumed lost in the desert east of El Paso.

The desert in which he was lost is sparsely populated, dotted with dry salt lakes and high barren mountains.

NEW ATTACKS STIR UNREST IN HONOLULU

HONOLULU, Jan. 21.—Public alarm over an outbreak of rioting and terrorism was aroused again today when a young woman was attacked and her escort waylaid and robbed.

The attacks, latest of a long series of violent crime which have thrown the "paradise of the Pacific" into a turmoil, spurred a search for Daniel Lyman, 22, murder convict who escaped from prison New Year's eve.

Both of the victims, Mrs. Taka Okazaki, 29, mother of two children, and Takeo Horamoto, 24, her escort, assertedly identified Lyman as their assailant from a police photograph.

Railroads Are Uniting Europe

CORVALLIS, Ore., Jan. 21.—European athletes and railroads are showing the way to a United States of Europe—not the statesmen.

Herr N. Fischer, noted Hungarian railway executive and sports enthusiast told Oregon State college students that as far as railroads are concerned, a United States of Europe is already an actuality.

Freight handling is carried on as though international boundaries did not exist. International freight time tables and free interchange of railway cars is a reality. Freight losses are not a subject for bitter bickering any longer. Railroads have agreed to allocate the claim equally according to mileage that particular shipment traveled.

Sports are breaking down national prejudices, said Fischer. As an example, he said: "Some time ago a Hungarian team was to play the Rumanians. Authorities forbade the contest. The Rumanian Football association went directly to the King and made such a protest that the ban was lifted and the game played."

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

ABUNDANTLY SATISFIED:—How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures.—Psalm 36: 7, 8.

SAYS MR. COOLIDGE.

The blame for the depression cannot properly be laid at the door of any group or class, declares former President Calvin Coolidge in an article in the American Magazine in which he defends the national banking system, attacks hoarding and urges more home-building.

The former president asserts that the present banking system is an sound as generations of banking experience can make it. "While absolute safety has been impossible to secure," says Mr. Coolidge, "it is probable that the records of money deposited in properly regulated banks in this country would show over a series of years that it has been in the safest place to keep funds."

Two tendencies encouraged by high taxes, low rents and the general economic situation have been noted among the mass of American people, both of which, as Mr. Coolidge points out, in their final analyses threaten chaotic conditions. One is the practice of tucking money away into socks and other places of hiding out of circulation.

Wise Mr. Coolidge says of this tendency: "If all the people attempted to draw their money from the banks, all commerce would be reduced to barter and universal bankruptcy would prevail. While particular banks may become unsound, we can feel adequately certain that our banking system as a whole will not become unsound. If it ever did, we should find that the money we had hidden away had become unsound also."

"Those who are engaged in hoarding currency are probably no safer as a class than those who keep their funds in the banks. They are injuring themselves and everybody else. They are in the position of not taking their part of the risks of life and are trying to make themselves safe by letting others carry their risks for them."

The desire to own a home is one of the primal human instincts, says Mr. Coolidge, in pointing out the dangers of the present age of hotel apartments and flats. "Suppose," he suggests, "that everybody followed their example." Indeed, the whole nation would be without shelter by the time the present buildings have fallen into decay and uselessness.

Speaking of the depression Mr. Coolidge declares: "We were riding too high. We shall have to keep nearer the ground. We may not feel so elated but we shall be much safer."

Conservative Mr. Coolidge. The nation during his administration was riding high. People were making money at a rate that seemed impossible to halt. A lot of sadder but wiser people will realize with Mr. Coolidge now that making money is one thing, keeping it another.

A BOY OF THIRTEEN.

A lad, 13, pack on back, hiked through Cisco this morning. He was en route to Austin, penniless, hungry. He appeared to have been on the road long, covered with dirt, pinched with lack of food. One charitable Cisco business man gave the lad breakfast, sent him on his way, if not rejoicing, at least more comfortable.

The fact that this boy is on the highways alone, depending upon the bounty of generous citizens, upon whom he has no claim save for their humanitarian instincts, is due to the criminal negligence of somebody. If he has parents or other relatives whence he came these people are to blame. If he has no parents then the blame is certainly to be laid at the door of the community which allowed him to leave.

A boy, 13 years of age, no matter of what fine promise and character, who tramps the highways is a public liability. Such a boy is in a fine way to lose all sense of responsibility, to develop unsocial traits that sooner or later will lead him into thorny ways and perhaps crime. A boy 13 years of age is not supposed, in the scheme of human things, to support himself. He is still a dependent and he should be of all places in school, learning the tenets of honest citizenship and the means of supporting himself when the time comes that he must take his place in adult society.

In a nation that annually spends billions upon the education of its young the spectacle of a hungry child tramping down highways that cost other billions to build, by churches maintained by contributions of millions of consecrated dollars is a travesty on our wonderful civilization.

THIS SHOULD INTEREST MONEY HOARDERS.

An exchange asks what has become of the $611,500,000 of old series currency, the large sized bills, which according to recent treasury reports, are still outstanding. Well, the American economy committee for women's activities has furnished the answer. This vast sum is to be hoarded in old stockings, behind mantle clocks, and in deposit boxes. There are money hoarders in America. The wise ones of the treasury department estimate that more than $1,500,000,000 has been placed in safety deposit boxes or other hiding places by those who have lost confidence in their fellows. Fear is a fatal malady at times.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF A CHRISTIAN SOLDIER.

"Forth from its scabbard, pure and bright,
Flashed the sword of Lee—
Far in front of the deadly fight—"
What Dixie youngster hasn't thrilled to "The Sword of Lee?" The bloody shirt of sectionalism is in the discard, but Now Then, Up and At 'Im!

Texas, southerners, and for that matter, all Americans, are proud of the memory of the West Pointer who for four years kept the outnumbering armies of the north at bay with a display of generalship admittedly not rivalled in history. Who smashed general after general that the north sent against him till Grant hammered a defeat through sheer force of men and guns?

Tuesday, January 19, was Lee's birthday. "Forth from its scabbard all in vain
Flashed the sword of Lee.
'Tis shrouded now in its sheath again,
It sleeps the sleep of the noble slain
(Defeated, yet without a stain)
Proudly and peacefully."

The foregoing tribute to the Christian soldier of the Confederacy from the editorial pages of the Waco Times-Herald. The "Sword of Lee" is a gem from the collection of Father Ryan, the poet priest of the Confederacy. Tuesday was the birthday of a great commander who fought for a cause that was lost, a flag that was furled forever, a Christian soldier who in war time taught his soldiers how to fight and when peace time came taught them the ideals and traditions of the fathers of the republic and whose name and fame has been enshrined in the hearts of all Southerners.

Cox Says Acreage Law Tends to Full Governmental Control of Cotton Industry

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. — If the new cotton acreage reduction law is held constitutional by the courts, and is adopted as a policy, complete governmental control of the cotton industry is inevitable. This is the opinion of Dr. A. E. Cox, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research and world noted cotton expert, expressed in an article, "Recent Changes in the Cotton Situation," in the international edition of the Cotton Trade Journal.

"The world's cotton industry is in the midst of a crisis," Dr. Cox said. "It is not the first one it has faced for in the beginning of the Eighteenth Century its struggle for recognition in Europe was dramatic in the highest degree. DeFoe, in describing the situation in 1708, said: 'The general fancy of the people runs upon East India goods to that degree, that the chins and painted calicoes, which before were only made use of for carpets, quilts, etc., and to clothe children and ordinary people, become now the dress of our ladies—and in short, almost every thing that used to be made of wool or silk relating either to the dress of the women or the furniture of our houses, was supplied by the Indian trade.'"

"At this time cotton was the aggressor and won its place because of merit. Wool and woolen goods with all the backing of strong trade organizations and governments were unable to prevent the rise of the cotton industry in Europe. From that day to this the story of cotton has been a record of achievement. During the Nineteenth Century America, because of its natural advantages, became the great cotton empire. The South produced such a large per cent of the world's supply of medium staple cotton that one frequently heard it asserted that the South had a natural monopoly in the production of medium staple good quality cotton. The rest of the world is now beginning to challenge that claim. On the other hand, Europe and especially England had begun to feel that they had a sort of monopoly in the manufacture and world's trade in cotton goods, and the Orient has challenged their supremacy."

Quality Product
"In this struggle the only way for the south to hold its position in the production of cotton is to deliver a quality product at as low or lower cost than its competitors. Any palliatives administered by either state or federal government are liable to do far more harm than good." Likewise, if Europe with all its skill, experience and capital advantages cannot match the Orient with quality and price then eventually the world's trade

Gov't Participation
"Another fact which has had some bearing on the relative slowing down of consumption of American and Egyptian cotton is the increasing participation of these governments in cotton marketing. This may be over-emphasized but the fact remains the spinners of the world hesitate to buy these cottons because it is felt that the government holding established a fictitious, unstable price which may cause serious losses. The rapid growth of cotton manufacturing in the Far East is greatly shifting the source of demand for American cotton and may bring about significant changes in cotton marketing methods and the personnel of merchants.

"It is entirely possible that the South may find the challenge to its supremacy as a cotton producer a most valuable asset. It will be so if the leaders face the facts and they are and go about remedying the situation by giving the world a superior product at the lowest price and with ample volume without attempts at artificial regulation. Attempts to cure the present ills by political means whether federal or state if continued, may retard sound adjustments indefinitely."

Hopeful Signs
"Some of the most hopeful signs back of all the political dust storms are that constructive forces are quietly taking stock of the situation and planning a program which will restore profitable cotton production on an even lower price parity than prevailed in 1914."

"One of the most significant developments in the last year or two is to think of cotton production in terms of regions and not state. of types and no count of varieties, and their adaptability to particular soils and climatic conditions. In other words, varieties are coming to be associated with regional characteristics of soil rainfall, length of growing season and other important factors."

"The quality of the 1931-32 cotton crop of the United States is the best for many years. This has been due first of all to an unusually good season both for the maturity and the harvesting of the cotton. In the second place those regions which grow the better cotton had as a rule extra good yields. On the other hand, there are localities where the improvement has been due to planting better seed but for the Belt as a whole this would have but little effect on the general average. Moreover, the per cent of 'gin run' seed planted this year, is even greater than last year. The point is, there is no ground for believing that the good quality crop this year represents permanent improvement. The figures issued by the Grade and Staple, Estimates section of the United States Department of Agriculture bring out the point that in every state the staple length of the cotton this year is better than in 1928 but this alone is not ground for concluding that the quality of the United States crop is improving. The fact is that in a majority of cases the publication of the figures as mere states averages means very little, and may very easily be misinterpreted entirely. To be of real value these figures must be gathered and published by cotton growing regions."

Climax
"Efforts of state governments this year to control cotton acreage by law marks the climax of government participation in business to date. The attitude of government toward business is amply illustrated in the history of cotton. Cotton goods fought their way into Europe from India in the face of the severest sort of government opposition and regulation. The invention of cotton manufacturing machinery between 1780 and 1785 marks a period of radical change in the attitudes of governments toward business. It went from extreme regulation and participation to as near absolute noninterference as possible. Insofar as the United States is concerned, this policy of freedom maintained itself until after the beginning of the Twentieth century. In fact, the change of policy toward cotton began to appear about 1909. At first government participation was in the national and state governments such as the licensing and regulation of warehouses, gins, railroads, etc. The primary business of government in business at this state of participation was to supervise the making of rules of business conduct and to umpire the game, or to see that the game was played according to the rules."

Third Stage
"The third stage of government participation came in 1929 when congress passed the Agricultural Marketing Act. This act put the government in business as a competitor. It became the biggest player in the game it was supposed to umpire. During 1931 the fourth step in government participation has been taken by state legislatures as a sequel of the Agricultural Marketing Act and under more or less pressure from the Farm Board in the passage of laws dictating the percentage of crop land which may be planted to cotton. As a result of the failure of its stabilization operations the Board came to the conclusion that acreage control was the solution of the so-called agricultural surplus and the success of the Farm Marketing Act. Its campaign of voluntary acreage reduction in 1930 failed, and also the 'plow-up every third row' proposition so that it appeared that the only alternative left was compulsory acreage reduction which had to be accomplished by State law. This stage will necessarily open up a still much larger flood gate of similar legislation to protect other commodities. In other words, once this is adopted as a policy complete government control of production is inevitable. It seems impossible for the government to do justice without either going the full length of control or retreating to the second stage listed, or back to the position of umpire. To go forward means a radical change in our philosophy of government and the organization of economic society."

Speaking of the Weather--

by CHARLES TALMAN of the U.S. Weather Bureau

Only way to judge weather is by the past—That's why millions of weather records kept in Washington. Statistics of climate are merely digests or summaries of past weather, but they indicate, in a general way, the weather of the future.

There is a common impression to the effect that conservative meteorologists do not engage in long-range weather forecasting, except, perhaps, in an experimental and academic way, without reference to any direct application of their forecasts to human affairs. This idea is hardly consistent with the fact that nearly every big meteorological establishment in the world compiles and issues climatic statistics, which are used as a means of anticipating the weather of the distant future and are intended chiefly for that purpose.

For example, the department of agriculture published few years ago, as a section of the beautiful Atlas of American Agriculture, some elaborate charts showing the average dates of the last "killing" frost in spring and the first in autumn in all parts of the United States. These charts are merely a record of what has happened in past years. They enable farmers and fruit growers to know approximately when, in any locality, frosts are due.

In a similar way, engineers, in designing sewers, assume that heavy rainfalls in the future will not greatly exceed in intensity those of the past as recorded in the climatic statistics of the locality; doctors send their patients to places where beneficial climatic conditions have hitherto prevailed on the assumption that substantially the same conditions will continue and so on. It is chiefly because of such practical considerations that meteorologists maintain weather observations on a vast scale throughout the world and public records or digests of all these observations. There are many places in Europe and a few in our own country where weather records have been kept continuously for more than a century.

Some of these records are of formidable size. One of the startling sights to be seen in the weather bureau library at Washington is a file of volumes containing daily measurements of rainfall made in India. Each volume, presenting the figures for a single year, is as big as an ordinary abridged dictionary and weighs about 12 pounds.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

NOMADIC MAN OF ICE AGE IS TRACED BY CUP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. — Some sanitary ice-age man who carried his drinking cup around with him or, perhaps some boy who had a hankering for carrying a big-brac around in the pockets of his leopard skin, has given archaeologists a clue to the travels of ancient races.

J. Townsend Russell, of the Smithsonian Institution, just returned from an archaeological expedition to the finding of an out-of-place sea shell in a cave at the foot of the Pyrenees Mountains. This crustacean skeleton, he asserts, could not possibly have been transported to the section in which it was found by the life that once inhabited it.

It is a relic of the ice age, conchologists determined, and during this epoch even the Mediterranean was a cold sea in which such an animal could never have survived. This, Russell concludes, some early pilgrim with the wanderlust migrated, possibly from Africa, to the region, carrying with him the shell.

The particular cave in which the shell was found is one famous for its polychrome paintings of European bison and for its wall engravings. Plates of these paintings appear in many ancient history texts. Negotiations have been completed for the cave's continued excavation under the joint direction of the University of Toulouse, France, and the Smithsonian. It was first exploited by archaeologists in 1886-87 but has remained almost neglected until Russell resumed work last summer.

Of one of the paintings, Russell commented on the unique manner in which the cup had been done — the artist having applied the paint in dots formed by his dipping his finger into wet paint, then pressing it on the wall.

League Adds Security Link

GENEVA, Jan. 21. — Before the International Disarmament Conference meets, the League of Nations expects to forge one more link in its chain of "security" agreements.

This will be the official proclamation of the coming into force of the League's latest international convention on "The Strengthening of Means to Prevent War."

To date, 14 signatures already have been affixed. They are: Germany, Austria, Belgium, Colombia, Greece, Lithuania, Holland, Norway, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Uruguay, and Sweden.

The League expects to have the signature of at least two other major powers, England and France, before putting the convention into effect.

The idea for the convention was first launched by the German delegation to the League's Preparatory Disarmament Commission. The fundamental idea was that signatories should agree to accept in advance any recommendations which the council might make for the settlement of a menace of war between them.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION NEWS

From the Office of the County Agent and The Home Demonstration Agent.

Gardening.

By J. F. ROSSBOROUGH, Extension Horticulturist.

Lovers of the soil to whom the first breath of spring brings an irresistible impulse to dig in the dirt, to feel the rich loam beneath plow or hoe or hand and to drink in the perfume of fresh turned soil, need no arguments as to the value of a garden. Such person, whether they live on farms or in town, are natural farmers and are bound to have gardens.

To that larger group of persons of the more calculating sort we would offer two solid reasons why gardens should be made even if it be at the expense of considerable manual toil and mental anguish. Gardens cut living expenses amazingly, either in town or in the country, and garden produce furnishes many of the essentials for a healthful diet. Indeed it is doubtful if most housewives, even though they appreciate the importance of vegetables in the diet, can find means without a garden to provide the great abundance of green stuff demanded by Nature as the price of health.

He who limits himself to bread, meat, potatoes and sugar is bound to suffer certain bad results. "All vegetables contain minerals and for this reason are of great value as foods. They help to build bones, teeth, tissue and blood. Milk and fruit and vegetables furnish the large share of the phosphorus, calcium, and iron in our food. When combined with eggs, meat and grains they form a balanced diet."

Fresh vegetables are much preferred in the adequate diet, but canned or dried vegetables are wholesome and should be eaten when it is possible to obtain fresh ones.

When planning the garden it is well to keep in mind the adequate diet and make plans to provide fresh fruits and vegetables as well as to can, dry, brine or preserve some for the winter months.

It is then, for the family health and for dollars and for sheer love of the job that we garden. That this effort may give the most bountiful returns we offer some suggestions.

Locate the garden in the vicinity of the house if possible, that the housewife may not be compelled to walk an unreasonable distance from her kitchen to secure her vegetables. Choose a place that has slope enough to be well drained, and where there is sufficient air drainage to prevent a possible pocketing of frost.

Practically any type of soil can be used for a home garden, if properly fertilized, but a sandy one is preferred. Sandy loam soils are more easily worked, warm up more quickly in the spring, respond more readily to fertilizers, and are not injured by tramping when wet. The heavier clay and black land soil types are usually more fertile, but are harder to work and the crops growing on them do not respond to commercial fertilizer as readily as do sandy soils. The gravelly soil types are usually deficient in organic matter but when supplemented with stable manure or green manure crops, to increase fertility and water holding capacity they become satisfactory garden soils.

Heavier soils that do not wash badly should be broken in the fall not less than eight inches deep, and lighter ones that are subject to washing should be plowed to the same depth as soon after January first as possible. It is important to completely cover all weeds and plant refuse so this material will quickly decay and not interfere with planting or cultivation. The garden soil should be harrowed until thoroughly pulverized and level for planting. Freshly broken and harrowed soil should be allowed to settle for at least ten days before seeds are planted.

Before breaking garden land make a heavy application of well rotted barnyard manure at the rate of 4 to 10 tons per acre. Fresh manure may be used but should be applied in fall or winter and turned under early to decompose. Since manure is usually lacking in phosphorus add fifty pounds of super phosphate per ton of manure. As a substitute for stable manure or in combination with it use such light grade fertilizers as 15-5-5 or 12-6-4 at the rate of one to two pounds to each 25 square feet. Work this thoroughly into the soil before planting. For early and leafy crops nitrate of soda or ammonium sulphate may be applied as a side dressing at the rate of one pound to 200 square feet. Serious burning of plants may result if this material is applied when the foliage is covered with dew or moisture.

Beef Canning.

A beef canning demonstration will be held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Crawford southeast of Cisco, Saturday, January 23rd. The demonstration will start at nine in the morning and will be completed by one-thirty p. m. Any one interested in beef canning are invited to attend this meeting.

SMALL AUTOS FIND FAVOR WITH BRITISH

LONDON, Jan. 21. — The new year will see a boom in the small automobiles of eight to 12 horsepower and another drive by private owners for a gasoline tax instead of a horsepower tax.

Economy is the reason for the still greater popularity of the "babes." In a country where automobiling is still considered a luxury, there is little consideration for the middle-class owner.

With a high horsepower tax, high gas prices, costly repairs and other running expenses, many British motorists, economizing in most other ways, are exchanging their 13, 16 and 20 h. p. cars for the smaller type.

Demand and Supply

Auto traders declare that few existing cars of 20 h. p. and upwards, will be seen in 1932. Even now, in the worst selling period of the year, they say, small cars are not coming from the factories fast enough to meet the demand.

Essential Items

Tax, insurance and gasoline are the three essential items if the car is to be put on the road. The most important of them is the tax.

The tax of $5 on every horsepower is considered by many to be an anomaly. They declare that it had its good points when first introduced and brought return in the improvement of the roads. But there were fewer cars on the road then; now that they number a million and more (and of this total about four kinds, the eight h. p., nine h. p., 10 h. p., and 15 h. p., number something like 800,000), it is declared that the tax has become unfair in its application.

Divorce Made Easy Mexico's Inducement

EL PASO, Jan. 21. — Divorce made as easy that one can be obtained in one day by mail was the inducement held out today in Chihuahua, Mex., to those couples who just can't get along.

The state of Chihuahua, Mex., became a rival of Reno, Nevada, and Hot Spring, Ark., for America's lucrative divorce business by passing a new divorce law which this week became effective.

"Mail order divorces" that can be obtained in some cases in one day are provided under the new law at $50 a decree. These single day divorces are obtainable when both parties agree to a separation. But if the application does not show mutual consent, a 20-day delay is required until the second party can be legally notified.

In any event, residence is not required, thus making it easier than the 90-day residence requirements of Arkansas and Nevada. Consent decrees can even be obtained by proxy. And what is more, Gov. Robert F. Roy, Mexican aviation hero who sponsored the law, and signed it, claims the Chihuahua divorces will stand legal tests in both the United States and Mexico courts.

While priests rapped the law as a de-troyer of love, attorneys welcomed it as they saw new sources of revenue.

By radio, mail and other means, nine El Paso and Juarez lawyers who are licensed to practice before the Juarez divorce court, publicized the easy divorce law.

The motie colony at Hollywood was the target for much of the publicity and a directory of the actors and actresses was a possession of some of the lawyers who were circulating the colony telling about the advantages of a Chihuahua divorce.

The first American to file suit under the new law was Theodore R. Barton, of Los Angeles. He filed against Dorothy P. Barton through an El Paso attorney.

The easy divorce law developed among Juarez and El Paso attorneys for the rich divorce business that is expected to develop. Attorney Jose L. Navarro and Attorney Salvador Franco Urias, are disputing as to which lawyer should be known as the author of the new law.

"I am the principal author," Attorney Urias claims.

"That is not true," Navarro replied. "Camile Carranca Trujilla, secretary of state in Chihuahua wrote the law originally. I suggested the principal amendments."

AMERICAN OFFERS TO PUT ON SPECTACLE

EAGLE PASS, Jan. 21. — Sidney Franklin, who has won fame as the only American bull fighter has offered to stage a bull fight at Piedras Negras, across the line in Mexico as one of the features of the three day celebration of the Maverick County's Giant Canal Opening.

A definite date for the celebration has not been set but it is expected to be held the latter part of March or the first of April.

The committee in charge of the celebration is expected to accept the offer of the American matador to appear in the arena of the neighboring city. Another offer by Dr. Ed Armstrong, music professor at Hondo, to bring a glee club of 75 high school girls to Eagle Pass during the celebration has been accepted tentatively.

A rodeo, two carnivals, dancing nightly, a canal-opening pageant, fireworks display, two bullfights in Piedras Negras, military revue aerial show and grand ball and banquet for celebrities are listed on the program.

The celebration will mark the completion of the first 32-mile section of Maverick county's 90-mile irrigation canal. The big 80-foot wide ditch, which will carry 10 feet of water by gravity flow from the Rio Grande, will irrigate when completed, 67,000 acres of land lying in a section north of Eagle Pass and two sections south of the town. Already the first section has been opened for colonization and nearly 3,000 acres have been sold to farmers.

The power feature of the canal will make its cost to the taxpayer negligible. By a contract with the Central Power & Light company, the irrigation district will receive $275,000 a year for the first ten years and $250,000 for thirty years through the rental of 1,500 cubic feet of water a second for operating the big power plant. This will pay back all of the cost of the project and a million dollars more in the 40 year period.

Proposal to Name Building for Udden Will Be Taken Up in 1937 Under Ruling

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. — Under a five-year rule long in effect, the University of Texas likely will take up in 1937 for its first consideration the naming of a building as a memorial to Dr. Johan A. Udden, late director of its bureau of economic geology, who died recently.

Proposals have been made in the West Texas area whose oil and gas developments were based on his studies and reports that his name be memorialized in one of the campus structures devoted to geology. A new geology building is so far without name. The bureau of economic geology will find its permanent name in the reconstructed old Engineering building now being refitted for future use.

The university has followed a rule with but one exception of taking no steps toward naming a memorial within five years after the death of the faculty member or official honored. Wagganer hall recently was named after the first president of the institution, dead nearly a third of a century.

The exception was in naming Sutton hall for the late Dean W. S. Sutton of the department of education, who served as acting president of the university.

Dr. Udden's life work was responsible for the development that led to discovery of oil on university lands, from which royalties of $16,000,000 have been paid, and huge values established in university lands in Reagan and other counties. His surveys led to steps which promise now to make the oil and gas industry in Midland and other counties an important one.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

Roy Anderson, editor of the Ketchikan (Alaska) Chronicle, says: "Publicity is not advertising. Publicity made Alaska a glamorous land of ice and snow and Eskimos. Rationalized advertising, even within the modest means available to 60,000 Alaskans inhabiting a country one-fifth as large as the entire continental United States, has made Alaska a land of beauty, industry and great future promise.

"Advertising has sent to all parts of the world the canned salmon that furnishes Alaska its largest industry. Advertising has brought increasing numbers of sightseers, fishermen, hunters and yachtmen to a land once known through publicity as 'Seward's Icebox.' Advertising has brought near to fruition giant projects for the establishment of pulp and paper mills in a coastal forest open to easy development and accessible by water the year around — a forest capable of supplying in perpetuity a quarter of the American newspaper demand at the present rate of consumption.

"Advertising has brought to Alaska itself a keen appreciation and extensive use of exceptionally complete local newspapers, of modern schools, of rapid transportation and of aggressive business methods.

"Advertising is investing Alaska with an unlimited future of industrial development without robbing it

DROP IN POUND HITS ENGLISH CHURCH HARD

LONDON, Jan. 21. — The country's financial situation has hit the Church of England, and is forcing it to economize.

Many big schemes have had to be abandoned while missionaries have had cuts in their small salaries as the result of the drop in the pound.

Jan. 3 was set aside as a national day of prayer in all churches and chapels. There were special prayers for the restoration of credit and prosperity; settlement of the future government of India; the disarmament conference; restoration of commerce; co-operation of all classes in labor for the common good.

Official Review

An official review of the year issued by the Church of England called attention to the financial position.

"The general financial situation," it said, "especially during the latter part of the year, has added considerably to the normal anxieties of those responsible for the finance of the church. In many cases it has been found necessary to postpone, or modify, schemes which were about to be inaugurated for raising funds to meet the urgent need for church extension in dioceses affected by migration of population and the growth of new housing estates."

"Although the general and diocesan boards of finance also have been obliged to review their commitments and to reduce expenditure even in what would, in ordinary circumstances, be regarded as urgent and necessary developments there are, fortunately, indications that in many quarters the present situation is being regarded by church people as a challenge to self-sacrifice rather than a reason for diminishing their support of the work of their church."

Lambeth Conference

The review mentioned that the declaration of the Lambeth Conference, 1930, "that war as a method of settling national disputes is incompatible with the teaching and example of our Lord, Jesus Christ, has been affirmed though with varying degrees of emphasis, at many diocesan and other conferences during the year."

"Many leaders of the church have been insistent on the paramount importance of the grave issues for world peace which are involved in the forthcoming Disarmament conference."

Fat Girls! Here's A Tip For You

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free from fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses and does it SAFELY and HARMLESSLY.

In the morning take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

"It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat" and "brings that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

But be sure for your health's sake that you get Kruschen. A bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but little. You can always get Kruschen at Moore Drug Co. and money back if not satisfied with results after first bottle.—Adv.

THREE KINDS of LOVE by KAY CLEAVER STRAHAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY Ann and Cecily Fenwick have for years supported themselves, their younger sister, Barry Frances, and their grandparents, known as "Rosalia" and "Grand." Because of this financial responsibility, Ann, who is 28, is unable to marry Phil E. Roy, young lawyer to whom she has been engaged for eight years...

Mary-Frances, 15, and still in school, strikes up an acquaintance with Earl De Armoant, candlestick actor, and meets him secretly. He tries to persuade her to become his stage partner.

Ann and Phil quarrel when she hears Letty King, who works in Phil's office building, address him with endearments. Ann tries to forget Phil by going around with Kenneth Smith, rich and attentive. Cecily is disturbed when she learns Barry has left town without telling her about it.

Mary-Frances falls in an examination and urges De Armoant to marry her. Again he urges her to become his stage partner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVII "But, Earl," breathed Mary-Frances, "you don't honestly and truly think that I—that we—"

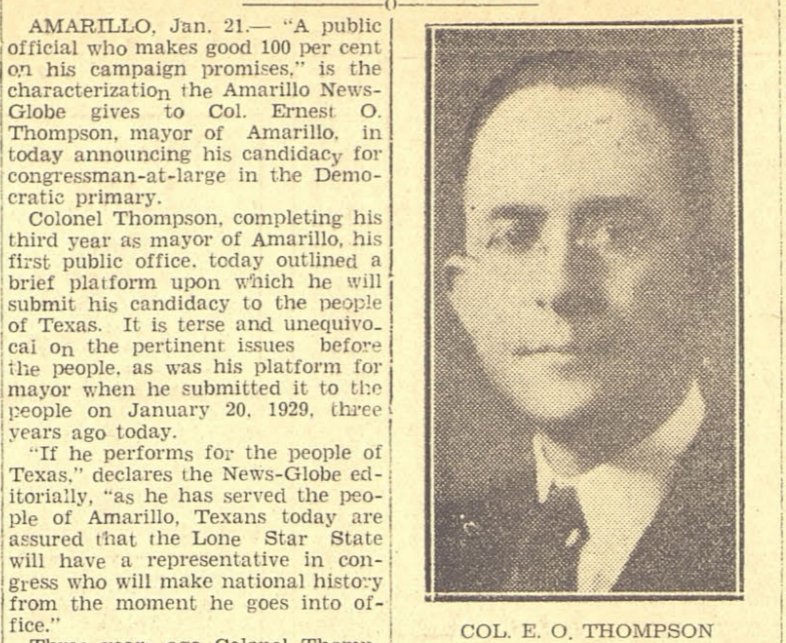

"Think! Say, I do better than think," Cecily said. "You've heard the crack, maybe, about opportunity knocking once on the door? Well, it's knocking right now, and I'm knocking hard. Offering up some kind of fortune on a silver platter. Will you take it? Now—you want to stick here and go to a lousy camp with a bunch of kid girls?"

"Why, Earl De Armoant! I don't either," Cecily said. "I've waited around here more than a month on your account. It's eating my mind. I can't stick around any longer—see? Snap out of it, Frankie. That's my last word."

"Well—demured Mary-Frances. Earl repeated masterfully, "Snap out of it." "I was just wondering," and Mary-Frances, "what my family would do when they found out I'd gone."

"Do? Say, listen now, hon. Try and be sensible. In the first place, what can they do? Nothing—absolutely nothing. And from what you tell me I don't know as they'd even try to do much. And in the second place, if I start in to get you out of here and away from your family's interference and all, I'll do it—see? Now, listen, hon. After supper tonight you tell your folks that you're going over to stay all night with your chum again—see? And then you put what you'll need in a suitcase and sneak out of the house, and I'll meet you—well, say down about Fenwick and Sprague. I'll talk around the garage and say I'm going to make a Blue-mont tonight. Fact is, well go in exactly the opposite direction—see? Throw 'em off if they did start anything. But they won't. Not them. Now leave me see—He took a road map from his pocket.

AMARILLO MAYOR ANNOUNCES FOR CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE

AMARILLO, Jan. 21.—"A public official who makes good 100 per cent on his campaign promises," is the characterization of the Amarillo News-Globe gives to Col. Ernest O. Thompson, mayor of Amarillo, in today announcing his candidacy for congressman-at-large in the Democratic primary.

Col. Thompson, completing his third year as mayor of Amarillo, his first public office, today outlined a brief platform upon which he will submit his candidacy to the people of Texas. It is terse and unequivocal on the pertinent issues before the people, as was his platform for mayor when he submitted it to the people on January 20, 1929, three years ago today.

"If he performs for the people of Texas," declares the News-Globe editorially, "as he has served the people of Amarillo, Texas today are assured that the Lone Star State will have a representative in congress who will make national history from the moment he goes into office."

Three years ago Col. Thompson told Amarilloans that it was time the tax-payers "had a new deal." In setting out some of the things he believed should be done he said:

"We deserve cheaper utility rates, lower taxes and reduced cost of city government. I will immediately start action," which will get results, and it will be done openly and in a manner that will have the sanction of all our progressive citizens."

"What Has He Done?" "What has Mayor Thompson done?" asks his home-town newspapers. "He has effected a saving for his people," the papers declare, "totaling $1,000,000 a year through reduced light, water, gas and telephone rates, and lower taxes. He has reduced city taxes 25 per cent and has slashed city government costs $240,000 a year, at the same time maintaining an unprecedented program of public improvements which kept the people of his city employed and which gave Amarillo natural distinction as a city remaining at the top of the country's business condition map into and through the darkest months of the depression. "He made good on every campaign promise. He will do for the people of Texas what he did for Amarillo when Texans send him to Washington."

In presenting his candidacy to the people of Texas, Mayor Thompson pledges himself: "To fight the cruel concentration of the wealth of our nation in New York City, where it has been used for wild and reckless gambling and speculation. "I will stand unalterably against any further meddling in European affairs," he frankly states. "I am opposed to any further reduction or moratorium on foreign debts. We have been the sucker long enough." A student of finance and politics all his life, Mayor Thompson believes the paramount need of the country today is a definite policy on international affairs, especially in its financial phases.

"Instead of sending money to Europe," he declares, "we had better do some constructive work at home. Our government should give no aid whatever to the international bankers who have bled our country dry to make fabulous commissions in working off doubtful bonds on a trusting public."

He believes it is time "our congress should again begin to look after the interests of the common working people. The rich and powerful people of America have received more than their just due at the hand of congress."

"If elected I shall bend my efforts to the end of giving relief to this class of our people through a study of corrective legislation to take the privilege from the few and restore Democracy."

FARM BOY GRINDS HOGS INTO SAUSAGE FOR PROFIT

By grinding his pigs into sausage for which he has found a ready sale, Harold Cockrell, Shackelford county 4-H club boy living six miles from Moran, has decided to increase his income from two brood sows purchased last winter. Hog prices were so low in the fall that he butchered one of the cows valued at $18 and ground the meat into sausage which brought him $50.86. He now plans to butcher all of the two litters fed out except two hogs which he is saving for brood sows. Valuing home grown feed at market prices he spent $66.59 in feeding the two litters which added to the $40 purchase price of the two sows brought the total expense to $106.59. Hogs sold and on hand are worth $165.36, leaving a profit to pay for labor and equipment of $59.27. He expects this to be much increased by the time all the hogs are butchered and sold.

Young Cockrell, who is 18 years old, has been in club work for four years conducting demonstrations with dairy cows, beef cattle, rabbits and poultry in addition to hogs. In cooperation with O. G. Tumlinson, county agent, he has shown in the last two years that there can be money in dairying by making eight cows pay $441.49 in the drought year of 1930 and $409.51 in 1931 when cream prices were down. He keeps careful records on each cow to find that they averaged 303.3 pounds of butterfat in 1930, with one cow reaching a high mark of 461.7 pounds. Because he had records he was recently able to sell a cow for $100. Rabbits paid him $16.25 in 1930 and $31.77 last year. From his poultry flock he made $77.43 a year ago. He has an indicated profit to date of $14.27 on two baby beeves he is feeding out. Harold handles his own affairs by himself besides aiding his father to manage the farm.
