DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

PETITION AND ANSWER: — This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles.—Psalm 34: 6.

HEED PREVENTS NEED.

During 1931, the life insurance industry paid out more than $2,500,000,000 to policyholders—$50,000,000 for every week in the year. Commenting on this, President Walter Crocker of the John Hancock Mutual, vividly portrayed the work of insurance when he said:

"The age-old truth that heed in time of plenty is plenty in time of need is here pictured in strong, bold strokes.

"Of these policyholders, those who died left something beside memories and debts to their dependents.

"Those who matured endowments left saved capital.

"Those who were forced to borrow were enabled to carry on and still retain the insurance protection.

"Those who were forced to surrender after a substantial period as continuing policyholders received their just portion of the accumulated funds.

"And those who continue as policyholders have the assurance that the life insurance institution remains in a high state of financial stability. As the strength of our country is, so in a broad measure is the strength of its life insurance. It has not yet begun to be seriously tested."

THE NATIONAL TRAFFIC SAFETY CONTEST.

The National Safety Council has announced that on January 1 the number of cities to enter its Traffic Safety Contest had passed the 125 mark.

Six of the 13 major cities—those with more than 500,000. Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Baltimore and Pittsburgh are among the competing metropolises, and at the last report local parties were working to obtain the entries of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Cleveland. When all entries are in about one-fourth of the entire population will be directly affected by the safety drive.

The contest is of inestimable benefit to the communities participating. It demands an accurate check of fatal accidents, and stresses the importance of adequate traffic law enforcement. It does an immense amount of good by making the public generally conscious of the responsibility every motorist should feel and live up to.

Last year 35,000 people lost their lives because of carelessness, incompetence or recklessness at the wheels of automobiles. This mounting record of death and accident has just forced an increase of automobile liability insurance rates in 14 states, based on the average loss cost per car from 1927 to 1930, inclusive. Now responsible motorists are promising themselves to do their part to lower the rate in 1932—and the National Traffic Safety Contest will do much to keep this pledge fresh in their minds.

WHERE GOOD ROADS ARE NEEDED.

Good roads are as essential to farm prosperity as good facilities for transport are to industrial prosperity. They are agriculture's arteries of progress.

The farmer who is able to take his goods to market, at any time of year and over weatherproof surfaced highways, will always be far ahead of the farmer who is cut off from communication with the outside world by unimproved, often impassable roads. Modern use of asphalt and road oil has made the low cost farm-to-market road dream possible. The lack of roads, of course, is not alone responsible for bad farm conditions. But it is an important contributory cause, as is demonstrated by increasing agitation for good farm-to-market roads in all parts of the country since economical construction methods have been developed.

OTHER OPINIONS

NOT CAUSE FOR A "BOOM"

Hysterical reaction, exaggerated expectations or any interpretations breeding faith in an immediate "boom" would be the worst that can attend the prompt action in congress on President Hoover's program for an economic reconstruction. In a few days we have seen the creation of the Emergency Finance Reconstruction Corporation, with Charles G. Dawes at its head. It backs the banks, insures companies, railroads and the basic structure of our finance and business with the enormous sum of two billion dollars.

If the terms of the act creating the corporation did not prohibit it as they do, the naming of Dawes, a Chicago man, would be enough guarantee that this huge reservoir of money will not be used to protect bad cases in New York due to bad foreign loans. This is a domestic measure purely, and we can believe that the two billion will be spread through the country fairly.

Then the bill adding the $125,000,000 to the immediate resources of the Federal Land Banks also at once has become law. Companion measures for bank depositors' relief and home loan discounts through other corporations to be set up on government credit, seem in course of prompt enactment.

This showing of broad, courageous action, wherein Democrats and Republicans in congress, for the most part, have co-operated, justifies an abiding confidence in a certainty. We shall see a gradual return to "good business," an end of "hoarding" and the protection of the true values in multitudes of "frozen assets." Yet another thing nevertheless true. No assurances whatever are given of a sunrise over another radiant day of jazz prosperity.

The whole depends upon calm and general public confidence. Towards that, the next support must be the proof by congress and the administration of steps which will reduce federal expenditures to such an extent that a balanced national budget can be foreseen within a definite time.—Paris Morning News.

"AM. PLAN" HOTELS

MOSCOW, Feb. 10.—In its new plan for reorganizing tourist hotels Russia has resurrected the time honored "American plan" in charging for all meals. The guest is charged a lump sum for breakfast, luncheon and dinner which is added to the cost of the room, with however, the special European touch of "afternoon tea" included.

"Why Mothers Get Gray"

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—The unattractive results achieved when Gov. Ross Sterling had his business office rearranged in an effort to provide better working arrangements and better handling of his callers emphasizes the extreme need for general reconstruction of the interior of the state capitol.

Gov. Sterling's office is making the best possible of a bad arrangement of office space and the former mild trace of impressiveness in the physical appearance of the executive business office has been sacrificed to provide places where his secretariat may work to the best advantage.

The capitol is impressive outside by inside Gov. Sterling himself when he first came to Austin, declared that the state would have to spend at least $1,000,000 on renovating the capitol, removing its fire traps and generally improving it, before he would approve any appropriation out of the general revenue for putting up new state office structures. And he has approved no new building from this fund.

The building soon to be erected will be paid for by the highway department.

The capitol still needs its repairs; and the governor's having to receive official callers in a small, crowded dingy reception room, emphasizes the fact.

Despite the loo-ely-accepted idea that "there isn't any money any more," the state treasury of Texas recently set a high mark for all time in receiving $2,500,000 of tax remittances in a single day. The money found a big deficit waiting to eat it up very promptly.

Work of converting the 55-year-old Travis county court-house into a state office building is half-completed. By yearly April the state banking department, state game commission, barber board and several capitol bureaus will be located in this building thus relieving the state of a considerable rent cost, and also providing more space in the capitol for other departments remaining there.

The attorney general's department now using the worst overcrowded quarters in the building will get three large rooms used by the banking department. The board of control will likely get more space; and room will be provided for its new bureau of child welfare, not yet set up.

Two of the veterans in state service at the capitol are the brothers Bob and Fred Connerly. Bob Connerly is clerk of the third civil appeal court, and Fred Connerly is clerk of the supreme court. Probably no other officials in the state government are known to so nearly all the lawyers of Texas as are they.

Adrian Pool, board of control member, will soon start on his six-month tour of detailed inspection visits to all the state hospitals and eleemosynary institutions, for the collection of data and a study of their needs as the basis of building a biennial state budget. After this survey, hearings will be held for all eleemosynary, educational and departmental agencies. The board's recommendations will be made, and this year, for the first time, the governor will exercise pre-enactment review, by following up with his own recommendations to the legislature.

NEVER FAILED.

BLACKPOOL, Eng. Feb. 10.—Miss Kathleen Rushworth, 21, has never failed in an examination, and has just become probably the youngest woman lawyer in England.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer!

THEY ALL LAUGHED WHEN HEINIE MUELLER fooled the bleacherites but lost a ball game. That is, all but Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals and Pitcher Bill Doak. The Cardinals were playing the Giants in St. Louis. Mueller, in left field, was instructed to advance toward the infield on the signal for a slow ball and play deep on the sign for a fast one. As he ostentatiously tramped in and paraded back, the smart Sportsmen's Park sun fans got wise. "Slow ball," they chanted when Heinie crept in. "Fast ball!" they yelled when he retreated. Suddenly Mueller marched in on the sign for a fast one and the Giant batter smacked one over Mueller's head. It broke up the ball game. "What seemed to be the difficulty?" asked Rickey as Heinie came in. "Aw, that gang in the bleachers were hep to the signs," said Heinie, "and I decided to cross them." "What chance have I got?" yelled Bill Doak. "All I have to do is cross up the batters, but Heinie crossee up the customers."

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—George Washington, of whose birth this year is the 200th anniversary, has become one of the first victims of federal economy.

No member of Congress yields to any other member in his veneration for the great George, but when Director Sol Bloom of the Bicentennial Commission came with a plea for an additional $427,000 to finance his gigantic attempt to get Washington back into the hearts and minds of his countrymen what did the House do but slash that deficiency estimate to $250,000 and what did the Senate do but lop off $50,000 more!

Although the $227,000 cut means that fewer persons will learn all about the father of their country from Sol Bloom's mass of prepared literature on the subject, it was in no sense a victory for those critics who sneer at the organization as the "Sol Bloom Bicentennial Commission" and charge that Sol, a Tammany congressman, has sought to ballyhoo himself through all his recent blatant ballyhoo for George Washington.

ON the contrary, Sol received many fine tributes to his zeal and work from other members and wide commendation on the way he handled himself under fire. The trouble was that he had already received more than $500,000 from Congress for the commission's work of informing people about Washington and getting them to celebrate this year. A million dollars in these days of Washington deficits seemed quite enough for the purpose.

Among items mentioned by Sol before the House Appropriations Committee were $55,000 for "Honor to George Washington" pamphlets—a million copies, $32,500 for "George Washington Pageants and Plays" $47,200 for programs for groups showing them how to celebrate, $62,500 for material for newspapers and magazines, $80,000 for an "appreciation course" on Washington for school teachers and $27,000 for publication of the music of Washington's period. In all, some $312,000 for printing and binding plus $115,000 for celebration and dedications in this vicinity. In addition, there's a request for $452,000 for commission expenses in the next fiscal year.

Huddleston of Alabama compared the Bloom "hullabaloo" over Washington with "an effort to draw a crowd into a circus, by lulling to Washington and to the country." He called the Bicentennial "a sort of racket." La Guardia of New York said something, meaning Bloom, was "exploiting Washington." Other members made mean remarks.

BUT when Treadway of Massachusetts charged that the commission had misused the franking privilege and the learned Beck of Pennsylvania charged inaccuracies in its Washington pamphlets, Bloom refuted them both. And in both House and Senate various members rose to praise George Washington and Sol Bloom, who had made the Bicentennial such a prospective success.

Attention was called to the fact that Sol supplies members with portraits of Washington and booklets about him which they can send out to their districts in their own names. Also, they get free busts and pictures of Washington for themselves. And all members will receive free copies of the 25-volume set of the George Washington definitive writings which will cost about $125 apiece for the people who buy them.

But the House cut out the money for celebrations and dedications providing that the $250,000 it gave Sol should be used for printing George Washington literature. And the Senate Appropriations Committee decided that the country could survive with $50,000 less of such literature.

Penny Girls Fail To Woo in Leap Year

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 10. Erie girls don't take advantage of the "leap year" tradition to propose marriage to their bashful or otherwise silent swains.

It just isn't being done, one of the girls explained, although she admitted that perhaps there were many who would like to.

Figures bore her out, too, to show that marriage license totals in leap years fall short of the number granted in the years immediately preceding and following the one with the extra day.

In 1928 the license clerk issued 1,436 wedding permits, as against 1,458 for the year before and 1,466 for the year after.

In 1924, licenses totaled 1,417, and for 1923, 1,626.

The girl of 12 years ago may not have been so reluctant for licenses that year reached a high mark of 1,762, whereas there were only 1,626 issued in 1919.

FAILURE ENDANGERS BOY

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 10.—An infantile paralysis victim, William Hatings, 11, nearly lost his life when electric power failed here temporarily. The "artificial lung" in which he had been several weeks ceased pulsating. A quick-witted attendant removed him from the respirator and applied artificial respiration until the power was resumed.

The dime-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Beautiful Ellen Rossiter, who works by the day as a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, lives with her mother, Molly Rossiter, her elder sister, Myra, and her 12-year-old brother, Mike. Irresponsible Molly has long since spent the fortune left by her English husband and the two girls support the family.

Molly foolishly spends the precious rent money to buy unnecessary clothes for Mike. At her mother's suggestion, Ellen decided to work at night as a dance hall hostess until the sum is made up. She goes to Dreamland and interviews Jacob Salomon who offers her a job on condition that she supply her own evening dresses. She has no evening dress.

Steven Barclay, Ellen's employer, sees her crying and asks her to come to his office. When she tells him the situation he offers to give her a dress. She proudly refuses. He then lends her one of the dresses worn by the store models.

Ellen is half-pleased, half-frightened by Barclay's obvious interest in her. She dines with him and he drives her to Dreamland where he leaves her. Salomon introduces her to the other hostesses. Ellen hates the cheapness of Dreamland. Two of the hostesses, Tony and Anise, wait for her to dress.

CHAPTER V

Ellen sensed the antagonism of the two girls. She ignored it. They were staring at the ivory gown. Let them stare! Her own pleasure in the gown had evaporated. She neither knew nor cared how beautiful she looked in the soft ivory taffeta which swept the floor around her. Tony bright-eyed, small and brunet, was barely covered by a wispy of chiffon which clearly revealed her breasts and young, unformed legs. Her sigh of admiration a purely feminine sigh, turned swiftly to envy as feminine.

"The competition is going to be fierce tonight," she whispered loudly to her platinum-haired companion. "Maybe she thinks she's going to be presented at Buckingham Palace," countered Anise, flipping her cigarette to the floor.

Tony chuckled gleefully. "The queen herself," she giggled. "And in a dress from Chanel or I'll eat my favorite lipstick." The younger jumped to her feet, ran across the room and before Ellen understood her purpose she had pulled down the back of the dress to examine the label.

"It is a Chanel," she confirmed in an awed tone. And to Ellen how come you wear a dress from Chanel to dance in a dump like this?"

Ellen felt like tearing off the dress and stamping on it. She was angry and humiliated. A good part of her anger was directed at her self. She should have known better than to select so unsuitable a costume merely because it was becoming. She had come to Dreamland to work—not to play. Play time was for girls who were protected and cared for—for girls who would have been scornfully amused at the notion of dancing at Dreamland to earn money for rent.

"Go away," she fiercely addressed Tony. "Go away and let me alone. And take your hands off my dress!" "Aw, I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings," apologized Tony, with a contrite, distressed little laugh. "Honest I'm sorry. Don't be sore, you're only fooling. You look swell!" Her small face was puckered with earnestness. She slipped her brown hand into Ellen's hand and grinned at her engagingly. Anyone could have forgiven Tony in that mood, as Tony well knew. Ellen forgave readily. She thought Tony a good-hearted youngster for all her effiant hardness, worth a dozen of the languishing Anises.

Anise was still sulky and aggrieved. Most of the girls had regular patrons. Tony's instructions dealt in many with methods for "rinsing regulars." These men would buy a whole string of rickets for the price of a single one.

She continued talking to Salomon, who had his back to the newcomer, but she was hardly conscious of what she said. While she talked she was aware that all her attention was fixed upon that figure approaching and that she was asking herself the cause of the contradictions in his face, deciding it was due to the sulky, bored mouth beneath such eager eyes. Were they blue or gray?

Jacob Salomon did not observe the young man until he was within a few steps of them. But he understood immediately. "You're right," he muttered, half under his breath. "You should've socked him. Be more careful this time. This bird's class or I miss my guess."

Ellen stepped backward, all thought of leaving Dreamland gone. She had the strangest feeling that she wanted to prolong the moment of waiting. She was like a child on Christmas morning hesitating at the stairway-head before plunging down to the glittering tree. She saw Salomon speak to the young man, saw the two turn toward her. Salomon introduced her and waited for the newcomer to supply his own name. Ellen, with her new and sharpened perception felt that the young man hesitated as he said that he was Larry Smith. She was certain that his eyes were gray, not blue.

The orchestra swung into a waltz. Most of the couples were flocking from the floor. Ellen saw them, heard them, even identified some of the girls, but all this served only as a dim and unreal background for the man who stood before her. He asked her to dance. With that same strange feeling that all of this had been preordained, that all this was something that she would never forget, she stepped into his arms.

"Am I going crazy?" she thought. "A young man I've never seen before waltzes with me and I want to cry."

She fancied that she was trembling. She was sure that if she tried to speak she would find that she had lost her voice. The two tall beautiful young people were almost alone on the floor. They had not spoken since they started dancing. As effortless as shadows they drifted along to the measures of the lightly melancholy tune.

"I haven't any tickets," the young man spoke at last and abruptly. Absurdly he repeated, "I haven't any tickets."

He guided her to the ticket booth. Even as they reached the knot of perspiring men who were supplying themselves with fresh tickets the dance was done. Ellen with drew a few paces, embarrassed, shy, confused.

She was obsessed with a desire to learn the name of the waltz the orchestra had played. As she waited for her partner nothing seemed to matter in the world save that she should know the name of that waltz. Without thinking what she was doing she thumped the clearly player between the shoulder blades. He was tuning his instrument but he stopped to ask indignantly what she thought she was doing.

"What waltz were you playing?" "What waltz were you playing?" "Waltz Romantic." Next time look out who you punch."

Ellen laughed joyously and with a disgusted glance at her, he began to pick at his strings again. A moment later the lights went out—all except a round moon over the orchestra.

As the room filled with misty bluish light and the piano began to tickle, the dancers crowded to the floor. Ellen was wildly impatient to be dancing. What if Larry Smith were unable to find her? Had he noticed that she had withdrawn? She turned to see him coming toward her through the bluish dusk. As he drew near she thought that she had never been so happy in her life.

Succeeds Mellon

Ogden L. Mills, above, under-secretary of the U. S. Treasury, former member of the House and once a candidate for governor of New York, succeeds Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury for 11 years, who has accepted the post of ambassador to Great Britain. Mills conferred with Hoover immediately after it was announced that Mellon would go to London.

New Prison in New Mexico to Be Model

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 10.—The new federal detention home near Anthony, N. M., scheduled to be completed March 1, will be a model prison.

There will be no outside walls, no guard-towers, no machine gun turrets, no alarm siren, and no blood hounds.

E. J. Bradt, architect, said the new prison is to be "somewhat of an experiment," and will be operated on a "sort of honor system."

"Prisoners will be allowed the freedom of cell corridors during the day," Bradt said. "There are only 96 individual cells. Other prisoners will be confined in dormitories. There will be no dark cells for bad prisoners."

Prisoners, who receive ordinary sentences for immigration and liquor offenses, will be confined in the dormitory cells, the architect said. Individual cells will be used for hardened criminals.

Windows of the prison will have no bars. Steel frames, with window panes between squares of steel will be used on all dormitory and outside windows.

There will be six recreation courts—two large shop buildings and a large plot of farm land near the prison. Football fields, baseball diamonds and recreation grounds will be built in the recreation courts.

Dallas Steers Start Training March 10

DALLAS, Feb. 10.—With the best of last year's players returning and new men added to build up the weak spots, Manager Har Morse of the Dallas Steers expects to have a pennant contender from start to finish of the 1932 Texas League race.

The Steers will start training March 10.

"Of the five signed from my school last fall," said Morse, "I am expecting at least two to make good as regular Texas league performers. I personally trained these boys for two weeks and have a good insight as to their ability. Archie Wise from Waxahachie is especially promising."

"We know very little about the other youngsters and they will have to show their wares in spring camp. The other men added to our roster are all experienced and are good class A ballplayers."

Among the men returning from last year listed by Morse are:

Francis Kelly, M. N. Cox, Byrne James, C. Stewart and Ernie Holman, infielders; Leroy (Cowboy) Jones, Sam Langford and George Loopp, outfielders; George Murray, John Whitehead, Oscar Fuhr, Crady Adkins and Jim Minogue, pitchers; and Bill Atwood, catcher.

Following is a list of new men acquired during the winter, and the clubs with which they performed last season:

Ray Radcliff, outfielder, Shreveport; H. Bonura, first base, New Orleans; W. G. Styles, catcher, Cincinnati; L. L. Brewer, shortstop, Kansas City-Detroit; Horace Powers, catcher, Eastern league; Tom Nash, outfielder, Topeka; Frank Garrity, catcher, Chicago White Sox.

Rookies signed from school last fall: Jack McConathy, pitcher, Dallas; Archie Wise, pitcher, Waxahachie; O. Nicholas, pitcher, Denison; John Tobin, third baseman, McKinney.

Other rookies signed for trials: George Hutto, first baseman; Buck Hardwick, pitcher; Archie Peel, first baseman; Irvin Powers, catcher.

Industrial Slump In Mine Report

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—The slump in Germany's industrial production is evidenced by the last trimestral report of Germany's $200,000,000 coal and iron concern, the Vereinigte Stahlwerke.

According to this report, 3,965,350 tons of coal were produced in the concern's mines from Oct. to Dec. 1931, or 1.3 million tons less than during the corresponding period of 1930.

During the same time, pig-iron output dropped from 48,788 to 692,000 tons and the production of raw steel from 1,005,553 to 633,266 tons.

Accordingly, the number of workers employed in the concern's factories and mines declined from 120,954 to 84,512, and that of white-collar employees from 15,854 to 12,659.

DEVELOPS SPEED

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Children and animals of today have developed the quickness of cats and the nimbleness of deer as a result of their environment, according to Miller McClintock, director of the Albert Ruse-Erskine bureau of traffic research at Harvard university. Back seat drivers also receive praise from McClintock, who says four eyes are better than two.

FAINTING SPELLS EVERY MONTH

San Antonio, Texas—"For the last three years I was not well at all," said Miss Beatrice Longoria of 2924 W. Commerce St. "I had fainting spells every month and would often have to call the doctor. I would be very, very nervous so that I hardly knew what to do. My mother had me take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I am so glad I did because it is the best medicine I ever took. I have no fainting spells now. I am glad to tell this because I know it will help other sick women." Ask your druggist for

J. W. COCKRILL ANNOUNCES FOR LEGISLATURE

To the Voters of Eastland county: In this issue of the papers of Eastland county I am announcing my candidacy for the office of your representative from the 106th legislative district. For 12 years I have made my home in Eastland county. I know many of the voters personally, have tried in that time to be a friend to all men and have stood at all times for the right as I saw it or could learn it from my own or the experiences of others. In the time I have been in Eastland county I have studied the problems of the county and its possibilities as much as any man in it. In my line of business I have made a study of the resources and the needs of the people and have never hesitated to speak of them as I believe they should have been.

I am the publisher of the Gorman Progress, one of the many newspapers serving this county with its multiple interests in all things. I believe that my experience as a business man and my experience in other walks of life has put me in touch with the thoughts of all classes of people and with the needs and motives that actuate them.

In my candidacy I shall stand for economy in government; efficiency in office and loyalty to the constitution of state and nation. I pledge myself, if elected to put the interests of the people above that of my own self or any group with which I may be associated—that I will have in mind only those things which will advance the interests of the people which I shall represent.

Among the things for which I shall stand will be: the enactment of a law which will lift the road board debt off the shoulders of the county tax-payers and place it where it belongs; I shall favor the consolidation of any departments of the government or any public offices which may be feasible and the restoration as far as possible the best strength of the people—local self government—and the use of as few laws as possible for the enforcement of the needs of the people for a safe and sane administration of the government. Of the making of laws there has been no end and in their multiplicity is their evil. It is time for common sense and judgment to prevail.

These and other matters of general and special interest I will be glad to discuss with you as issues of the coming campaign.

I ask your earnest, thoughtful consideration of my candidacy during the coming months and court your fullest investigation of my ability to serve you, my standing always for the right and my faithfulness to the trust that has been reposed in me in the past. — Yours — J. W. Cockrill.

RELATES HIS EXPERIENCES WITH LINCOLN

EL PASO, Feb. 10. — Clinton T. Flynn, 75, who as a boy romped with President Abraham Lincoln today recalled his experiences with the president whose birthday is observed this week and discussed the latest stories on John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin.

Flynn, a retired civil service employe, does not believe that the John St. Helen mummy in Chicago is that of Booth and scoffs at the idea that Booth lived years after Lincoln's death.

"Booth was buried to death in a barn near Richmond, Va., which was set on fire by a mob to force him out," asserted Flynn. "They hung that sweet innocent woman, Mrs. Surratt, just because Booth lived at her house before he shot Lincoln. She was a fine woman. She and her daughter went to the same church that I did.

Incidents in connection with Lincoln's assassination are still fresh in Flynn's memory. He recalled that he marched with thousands of other school children in the funeral procession. He lived across the street from Ford's theater where Lincoln was shot.

Flynn's father, a Washington carriage maker, was an intimate of President Lincoln and as a result young Flynn had the run of the White House.

He says he used to play in the big rooms of the White House, beg a piece of bread and jam from the White House cook and inquire of Lincoln:

"Say Mr. President, when are you coming over to our house again?"

Flynn was about nine years old at the time.

"Lincoln would drop into my father's shop two or three times a week for a chat," Flynn said.

"Lincoln smacked my cheeks frequently, telling me each time to be a good boy."

Flynn, who served 20 years in government posts, was in charge of the Fort Bliss utility warehouse until his retirement in 1930.

Booth of Cisco, presiding elder of the Cisco district will preside and reports will be given from all the churches in the district.

Groups from First church and Twelfth Street churches of Cisco will attend.

Blasting on Highway Reveals Large Cave

LANGTRY, Tex., Feb. 10. — Blasting on the new Highway No. 3 grade has revealed a great underground cave which has the appearance of a second Carlsbad Cavern. Stalactites as large as their bodies rained about investigators who climbed 60-foot cliffs and threaded strange tunnels to explore the cavern for 1000 feet. They had been dislodged by more blasting.

The newly-discovered cavern is not far from where Judge Roy Bean "the law west of the Pecos," dispensed his world famous justice many years ago.

ORDERS EARS FOR PISTOL

AUSTIN, Feb. 10. — Steers have ears as well as horns, so Adjutant General W. W. (Ranger Bill) Sterling has sent his "forty-five" to a jeweler. A New Mexico Indian friend sent him handles for the pistol. They are silver, with a steer's head, and ornamented with a turquoise setting. When Bill discovered the carved steer heads had no ears, he ordered ears engraved.

THREE TURNIPS IN ONE

ATLEE, Va., Feb. 10. — A three-in-one turnip, grown by H. D. Borkey, is a typical dry weather turnip. Starting normal growth, a dry spell checked it, then came rain and the turnip took on new life. Another dry spell again halted its growth, followed by rain, which rounded out the top of the turnip.

Commissioners Elliott and Fee opposed further extension on ground that they had "run it into the ground" last year, and that people would hold off just as long as they were given a chance to do so. Commissioner Donovan, however, sided with Commissioners Burnett and Clements in this matter, holding it was a necessary move for the largest number of the taxpayers.

P. L. Ulom was elected as a director of the chamber of commerce to fill out the unexpired term of Homer Slicker.
