BRECK CUT-OFF HEARING AUGUST 2

Former Oil Belt Utility Company Manager Is Slain

SALOON OWNER IN MEXICO IS UNDER ARREST

EAGLE PASS, July 15.—Frank Allen, former Texas ranger, was held by Piedras Negras police today following the fatal shooting at mid-night of William Gifford Clegg, 37, Eagle Pass manager of the Texas Electric Service company.

Allen is now owner of a saloon in Piedras Negras, Mexican town just across the Rio Grande here. Clegg was shot once through the left lung and died within a few minutes.

Clegg came here two years ago from Breckenridge, Texas. He was president of the local Rotary club, a director of the chamber of commerce and prominent in business and social life.

Friends of Clegg said he and Allen had an argument in the latter's saloon yesterday afternoon and just before leaving a Piedras Negras cafe last night for Eagle Pass, Clegg, unarmed and sober, said he was going to "square" things with Allen.

HOOPER CUTS OWN SALARY 20 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Hoover today cut his salary 20 per cent and ordered reductions of 15 per cent in the pay of the vice-president and the cabinet members.

Hoover Opposes Publicity Feature

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Hoover today bluntly warned senate conferees on the $2,122,000,000 relief bill that the publicity feature on Reconstruction Finance corporation loans—the portion of the bill that thus far has deadlocked the measure—would do incalculable damage to the nation's credit structures.

Cantaloupe Crop Shows Decrease

AUSTIN, July 15.—Texas' crop of cantaloupes will average about two-thirds of last year's 865,000 crates the federal state crop reporting service forecasts. The 1932 yield is estimated at 584,000 crates.

Wounded Ball Player and Girl Who Shot Him

Like the good infielder that he is, Bill Jurges, shortstop for the Chicago Cubs, made a couple of spectacular stops of bullets, but the error of the play must be charged to Miss Violet Popovich.

21-year-old Chicago brunet. Disappointed at Jurges' lack of response to her affection for him, Miss Popovich went to his hotel room intent on suicide. Jurges intervened and was shot. He is shown above on hospital bed. The girl is at the right.

HYER AND KING IGNORE DRY LAW QUERIES

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, July 15.—Julien C. Hyer of Fort Worth is the only candidate for congress-at-large place three, who has failed to announce his stand on prohibition.

A. H. King of Turockmorton, who also failed to answer the questionnaire of the paper has given his stand to the United Press. He suggests that each congressional district in the state elect a congressman who agrees with the prevailing sentiment in that district and that the matter of submission then be left to the congressman. That he argues, is the logical way to settle the question.

The remaining down candidates for the place have expressed their personal views. Mrs. Fred Real of Kerrville, sole woman in the race, says: "I am a dry and stand for rebusmission or modification."

Ben F. Harigel, LaGrange editor, says he never has been able to understand how a representative can roster such a measure as prohibition. He favors a modification that will permit government-supervised manufacture of beer, wine or whiskey, and thus put a stop to illicit manufacture and sale of a commodity which he classifies as dangerous to health.

Douglas P. McGraw, assistant U. S. district attorney at Houston, classed himself as for rebusmission. The Houston Press quotes him, as looking upon the Volstead act as any other law and saying he is neither prejudiced against it nor biased in its favor but is opposed to any attempt to repeal the 18th amendment.

5 Believed Killed As Tanker Explodes

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—A series of explosions aboard the tanker Rawleigh Warner just after it had taken aboard 40,000 barrels of gasoline and mineral spirits on the Mississippi near Good Hope was believed today to have taken the lives of five members of the crew.

Former Cisco Editor Visits Here Briefly

J. M. Snafer, 89, first publisher of the Cisco Roundup, Cisco's original newspaper, and his daughter, Mrs. J. O. Oswald, both of Plainview, were Daily News visitors this morning.

SHOT DIVORCED HUSBAND FOR LOVE OF HIM

DALLAS, July 15.—Hysterically declaring "I shot him because I worshipped him," Mrs. Rena Greer surrendered today 30 minutes after her estranged husband, Curtis Greer, 40, barber, had been shot to death as he stepped from his car by a woman who sped away in another machine.

She said she had driven aimlessly about planning to take poison since the shooting. She was charged with murder and held without bond. "When my husband told me he was not coming back to me I shot him," she told Andrew Patton, assistant district attorney, when police took her to the district attorney's office.

Cotton Acreage in Texas Is Low

AUSTIN, July 15.—A large part of the reduction in cotton acreage in Texas has gone into increased acreage of food and feed crops, the federal and state joint crop report issued here today said.

SUED OVER FEED

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., July 15.—Even chickens must have their vitamins. Peter Unger, a poultryman, recently entered a counter-claim to a feed bill suit against him in which he charged pillchard oil sold him was deficient in vitamins A and D, causing his poultry to develop rickets. He claimed he lost heavily on his chickens because of this fact.

All desiring to enter this tournament may register with, and pay entrance fees to Hamilton McKee in the Exchange National bank building, who will also gladly furnish all information as to the rules and regulations governing the tournament.

Special Services For New Members

Sunday services at the First Baptist church will be special services for new members. The Rev. E. S. James, pastor, announced. His subject for the morning sermon will be "Forty Days After Baptism" and Sunday night "A Man's Last Prayer."

UNUSUAL BOX

CHEVALIS RESERVE, B. C., July 15.—Bearing black and yellow heliographic markings, a well preserved, ingeniously constructed cedar box, believed from the troglodytic period was recently discovered here. An Indian, Edward Leon, made the find in a cave along the Harrison river. The box was taken from a pyramid of stones in the cave's center.

NEW RAILROAD IS DEDICATED BY GOVERNOR

PAMPA, July 15.—Governor Ross Sterling and an array of notables today formally dedicated the new $4,000,000 110-mile Childress-Pampa extension of the Fort Worth & Denver railroad. The new line, known as the Denver Northern, was the only extensive piece of railroad construction in the United States this year.

A special train carried visitors from here to Childress and back. Another special train brought several hundred persons from Fort Worth and points enroute. The Childress celebration was held this morning and the local one in the afternoon.

Railroad men, here for the opening said the fact that the new line is the only railroad construction project of any note in the United States this year may make it prove to be of greater importance to the industrial life of Texas than the construction of the first trunk lines westward from the Mississippi river several decades ago.

No early railroad construction work outranked this job for novelties in the manner construction nor will any other celebration held in connection with the opening of a new railroad be more enthusiastic than today's.

Record Claimed. A record is claimed in that in 45 working days 85 miles of track were put down. At the peak of the job 300 men were given employment. Machinery seldom used in construction of railroads was brought into use. Two rivers were spanned and hills were bored through. The span over the Red River is 1,900 feet long and the 900 foot bridge over the Salt Fork of the Red River is 55 feet above the water's surface.

The official family of Texas was represented by Governor Ross Sterling. The three members of the railroad commission, Col. Ernest O. Thompson, Lon Smith and C. V. Terrell, and State Senator Clint C. Sural, were members of the governor's party.

DESIGNATION BY HIGHWAY BODY SOUGHT

HEARING UPON A petition that the Breckenridge cut-off between Cisco and Leary where it joins Highway 67, has been set for August 2 at Austin, according to a notification from the state highway commission to J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce.

Coolidge Sees Grave Danger in Policy Of Continued Heavy Taxing of a Few

NEW YORK, July 15.—Excessive taxation of a comparatively small number of rich people is seen as a grave threat to the whole structure of American democracy by Calvin Coolidge in an article which Collier's Weekly will publish tomorrow. He advocates a general sales tax as a counteractive measure, whereby a large number of people should pay a small but certain direct tax.

"If we delegate the paying of our taxes we shall find we have delegated the control of our government," says Mr. Coolidge. "Nothing seems clearer than that if the people are to control the government they must pay the taxes to support these two go together. And secondly, if the people are to have an opportunity to own the property of the nation they must pay the taxes on it. These two go together. Power and responsibility cannot be separated, politically or economically."

"Our system of property rights has been devised out of much hard experience for the purpose of confirming the liberty and independence of the people. It cannot be limited or destroyed without limiting or destroying the opportunity of the people. "If it is necessary to meet an emergency, excessive, high taxes on a few large incomes and inheritances might be made temporarily without great injury. But to adopt such a system permanently and under the pretense of raising revenue, pursue a policy of expropriation and attempt redistribution of wealth would have the gravest consequences. One of two things would be likely to result: Enterprise would be stifled, accumulations of property would be dissipated, and a condition of depression would become chronically progressive, with a falling standard of living, economic suffering and great poverty on the part of the people. The other alternative would be the creation of a class of great wealth who would have a large control of the government because it would be dependent on their money for its support."

Invite Overlords. "Only under some system of privilege and by exploiting the people could such a class continue to pay the high taxes required. That would be the re-creation of the age of overlords. The rest of us would be reduced to dependency. In either case the people lose."

"There is always a temptation in time of adversity to think anything would be better than that which we have. Naturally we ask ourselves why, if our system is sound, it does not work better. The answer is that our system has worked better and is now working better than any other that was ever devised. Under it we have had more progress and more comfort than ever came to any other people. Even in our present distress we are better taken care of than we would be under any other system.

CHEMIST HERE TO FREE CITY WATER OF UNPLEASANT ODOR

Helman Rosenthal, chemist of the Dallas laboratories, arrived in Cisco this morning and announced that it would require about 48 hours to free the city water of its unsavory smell. While treatment of Lake Cisco is in progress he directed that water be used from Lake Bernie which is not believed to be impregnated with the odor.

Pueblo Church To Have Auction

The Baptist church at Pueblo will have an entertainment Monday evening, 8 o'clock, July 18, for the purpose of raising money to pay for church pews. Business men from Cisco, Moran and Putnam have been asked for donations of merchandise which will be auctioned to the highest bidder and proceeds applied as stated above. All county candidates have been invited to attend and make their announcements.

DESIGNATION BY HIGHWAY BODY SOUGHT

HEARING UPON A petition that the Breckenridge cut-off between Cisco and Leary where it joins Highway 67, has been set for August 2 at Austin, according to a notification from the state highway commission to J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce.

At present the road, paved during the boom days, is classed as a county road and maintained by the county. The state highway department has nothing to do with its maintenance. Its present condition is such that it repels rather than invites traffic and as a consequence people going from Cisco to Breckenridge are often compelled to go by way of Eastland, which adds ten miles to a distance of 28.

Various Efforts. Efforts have been made at various times to have the road taken over and maintained by the state but so far those efforts have met with little success, the state department pointing out that the road had no place in its integrated highway system and that its first duty was to eliminate gaps that occur in its important highways. Since the development of the highway to Brownwood and other state thoroughfares to the south considerable importance has come to attach to the nine-mile strip and consequently the commission is in a more receptive mood.

No Funis. However, due to the restriction of the chamber of commerce budget no funis exist with which to push this project, considered by many as more important to Cisco than the Ranger Mountain-Weatherford cut-off, in view of the fact that it is a local road penetrating a valuable sector of the Cisco trade territory. As a result of this condition, it may be necessary, the chamber of commerce indicated, to appeal to citizens for contributions with which to finance representation at the Austin hearing. Absence of any local representation at the hearing will probably result in little progress being made at the hearing and possibly in abandonment of any consideration for the designation sought.

Plans for sending a delegation to the hearing from Cisco in company with similar delegations from other interested towns will probably be made within the next few days.

"HAPPY DAYS HAVE COME AGAIN."

An interesting human interest story is carried from Marshallville, Ga.: "Bountiful crops of feed for livestock and low prices for farm products, which discouraged the buying of gasoline, are restoring the horse and buggy to highways in this vicinity. Mayor J. F. Lyles is one of the prime movers in placing Old Dobbin back in his former glory. He has stored his automobile and bought a buggy to go with a horse he had."

All this should appeal to W. Gregory Hatcher, for several terms state treasurer of Texas and now out on the firing line hunting another state job. W. Gregory was born in Virginia. He was a good sized lad when Grover Cleveland was elected president of the United States. Richmond advertised a great celebration in honor of the democratic victory. W. Gregory was 10 miles away on the farm. All the horses and mules were requisitioned by other members of the family in order to participate in the historic event. There was a big white bull on the place, so the youngest bridled the bull, rode to town, had the time of his life, and returned to the ancestral mansion happiest of all the home contingent.

Ever since the Richmond function the politicians have been throwing the bull but Hatcher is the only one known to have ridden a bull 10 miles in order to show his boyish appreciation for Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson and the prize winner in the nation whose name has come down in history as one of the ablest and most courageous of American presidents.

WILL ROGERS MAKES A POLITICAL LANDING.

Will Rogers won his contest before the Oklahoma state election board. He led in the race for democratic nomination for congressman-at-large in the recent primary. A defeated candidate filed a protest. He declared that the Will Rogers who had led all the rest was William C. Rogers, a school teacher and a former republican; that he practiced deception when he filed for a place on the primary ballot as Will Rogers, another distinguished son of Oklahoma.

What is in a name? Will Rogers is in the run-off and Oklahoma newspaper writers say that he will be a winner. Why condemn him for having been a republican in 1924? Saul of Tarsus did not become a Christian until he saw a great light. Away down here in Texas all republicans who prefer at least a sign of prosperity to the poor house are invited to repent of their sins, enter the democratic primary this month, take the pledge to support the nominees, and in November vote to send the elephant to the jungle and restore to power the ancient party of the people.

Franklin D. Roosevelt knew what he was doing as well as what he was saying in his Chicago speech of acceptance. He invited all republicans to enlist in the cause of regeneration and reform and assist in restoring the government to the democracy. Evangelists go out for new recruits daily. They call their accessions "converts." Away down here in Texas there are thousands of republicans who are in sympathy with the democratic platform as well as very kindly disposed to the cause of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Jack Garner. This is the time for them to cross the bridge and enter the promised land in defense of standard bearers and a platform that should appeal to all thoughtful Americans regardless of party lines.

THREE BILLION BUSHELS OF AMERICAN CORN.

A corn crop of 2,995,850,000 bushels this year compared with 2,557,000,000 last year is the forecast of the federal department of agriculture based on July conditions. Wheat remaining on farms July 1 is estimated at 71,925,000 bushels, or 8.4 per cent of the 1931 crop, compared with 31,865,000 bushels a year ago. This republic is not a land of famine. Those who till the soil are producing and harvesting bumper crops this year. As for the great American hog—he is in demand in the packing house centers of the nation.

WHEN A HUSBAND IS A HUSBAND.

President Hoover signed into a law a bill to exempt husbands of American girl citizens from the immigration quota. This is as it should be. Now an American girl can go abroad, buy a husband with or without a title, and return to American shores with hubby as baggage without fear of deportation. Throw down the bars and give the girls a chance.

OUT OUR WAY

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

When Miss Helen Crawford, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Crawford, was a student in Cisco elementary schools a debate arose between her and one of her school companions.

"A fib," maintained the friend, "is the same as a story, and a story is the same as a lie."

"No, it isn't," protested Miss

Helen.

"Yes, it is, because my father said so, and my father is a school teacher."

"I don't care if he is," exclaimed Miss Helen. "My father is a real estate man, and he knows more about lying than your father does."

Announcement that the state highway commission would lead a receptive ear to the petition designated as a state highway what is now maintained by the county as the Breckenridge cut-off between Cisco and Leeroy has been greeted here with considerable enthusiasm. So long as the benefits of a highway project, or any other project, are intangible, the popular support of such a project is a negligible factor and its prosecution depends primarily upon the energies of a few interested people. Such is the Ranger Mountain - Weatherford cut-off which has generated such a upheaval of sentiment among civic leaders but which the masses of the people have regarded with a certain complacency. On the other hand it takes no argument to arouse an interest in the reconstruction of this unholy stretch of road where paving has proven a curse rather than a blessing. One suffering trip over the thoroughfare is sufficient to make even the prospect of its rebuilding a matter of relief. In order to negotiate that nine miles one must travel in several directions at once and even such gymnastics as these fail to miss more than 50 per cent of the ruts and chugholes that make such a drive a miserable, nerve-racking experience.

Spectacles promulgated herewith the thesis that a community should concern itself with roads leading into it rather than roads leading away. I have the utmost respect for the value of the Ranger Mountain - Weatherford cut-off which is calculated to reduce distance and save millions eventually in travelling expenses for those who elect to follow this route and the policy of the highway commission in eliminating dangerous curves and death-dealing obstacles to highway travel certainly deserves commendation.

But as a project of primary concern to Cisco the Cisco-Leeroy cut-off is in my opinion of more moment that the larger one. Cisco has been denied a rightful share of the trade territory to the north by reason of the disgusting state of this ill-constructed highway. More than that the development of state roads south of this city and leading into it adds an incalculable value to the nine-mile strip we are discussing. By the reconstruction of this road a distance of 10 miles will be saving north-south traffic, not only benefiting Cisco but benefiting Breckenridge and Graham by increasing the traffic volume on 61 north of the junction of the cut-off with that highway.

The Rev. F. S. James, suave and witty pastor of the First Baptist church once preached a rather long sermon from the text: "Thou are weighed in the balance and are found wanting."

So enthused with his subject did the minister become that he preached an hour and a half. Some of his congregation began to get weary, and went out. Others followed greatly to the annoyance of Rev. Mr. James. Another person started, whereupon the pastor stopped in his sermon and remarked: "That's right, gentlemen; as fast as you are weighed pass out." He completed his discourse without further annoyance from this source.

CHICLE HUNTER FINDS ANCIENT MAYAN CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Like to chew gum? Go right ahead — the archaeologists are all for it, too, and the art of crunching a healthy molar in a tasty bit of chicle soon may become a sort of pleasant duty, a sign that you're willing to do your bit for the advancement of civilization.

Elevation of gum chewing to such comparative heights may seem out of line with past teachings of etiquette — but there was a time when tomatoes were regarded as poisonous, pepper was a desert, and spinach was less highly valued than candied greens.

Chewing gum owes its rise in intellectual esteem to the fact that it was the indirect cause of one of the most valuable archaeological discoveries in recent months, deep in the jungles of Guatemala.

A chicle hunter, looking for more chicle for gum hungry Americans, was responsible for the find, Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution, reported. The chicle, whose business it is to locate the chico sapote, a tree from which the elastic ingredient of chewing gum is derived, came upon a section of the jungle which was laid out in regular avenues and sections, with trees following the lines of ancient walls and creepers growing over pyramids and stone shafts.

Investigation revealed an ancient Mayan city, Calakmul, apparently once the center of much of the Mayan civilization, with splendid plazas, broad streets and imposing buildings.

The civic and religious quarters of the city alone were a mile and a quarter in length by half a mile in width, Dr. Merriam reported.

Dr. Merriam is a former dean of faculties at the University of California, and was once president of the American Paleontology Society.

Yale Man Gets French Degree

PARIS, July 15.—Professor Henri Peyre, professor at Yale University and former lecturer at Bryn Mawr college, has been awarded the degree of French Doctorate for work presented in his thesis before Sorbonne officials.

The subject of professor Peyre's first thesis was Louis Menard, a biographical and critical study of the man and his works. "Louis Menard although comparatively neglected today," Professor Peyre told the United Press, "played a great part in the French literature of the 16th Century. A highly versatile genius, he was a poet, a philosopher, a painter of the Barbizon School, a Greek scholar of no mean originality, and a chemist.

"President" Couldn't Fool Messengers

SEATTLE, July 14.—A tall, stately elderly man walked into a branch office of the Western Union Telegraph company and addressed a half-dozen messenger boys.

"Boys," he said, "I am Newcomb Carlson, president of your company. The boys looked slyly at each other. One smaller messenger in another compartment 'shouted' 'Bossfiles.' Several 'Oh yeah's' and 'hossfeathers on youse' were plainly heard.

The boys' ears were burning today, however, because it was the president of the Western Union Telegraph company who announced himself. He was making a tour of the country.

Letters From Our Readers

July 15, 1932. Editor, Cisco Daily News.

Well I see that the Pot and the Kettle (the chamber of commerce and the city commission) are still having it and have had to resort to arbitration as a means of reconciliation.

Isn't it a pity that our city election does not come off with the primary when every thing is warmed up?

Our health and lives are too precious to wait for experiments and we ought to say something about this false economy in our water department. I for one have had to go to the country to get my drinking water rather than risk the consequences of using stink water, or raw water I should say.

"Chico The City With A Personality" was once our slogan. Where is the "Personality" today? I think things have gone from the extreme to the other and it is time for our good people to wake up and make comparisons.

I have been asked by some very prominent citizens to do so, but I do not feel like doing it at this time as a great many will forget. This I do think should be done, when any thing goes wrong or against the public welfare we should come out like men and let our officers hear from us.

I stand for the public welfare regardless of persons or creeds. J. B. BLITCH.

PARIS STYLES

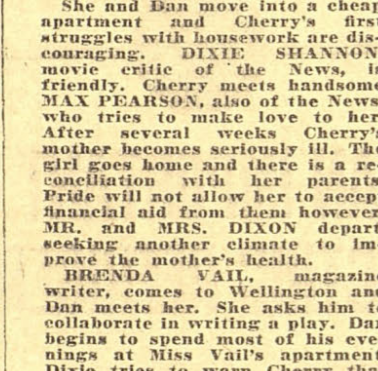

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS, July 15.—To speak of summer fur and bathing suits in line same breath seems almost incredible — not that the fur is actually on the swim suit — but it isn't far from it. In fact, it adorns some of the beach costumes designed more especially for the coast of Brittany and Normandy, where, no matter how hot the sun shines, the wind always keeps a piece of ice in its mitten.

Waterproof capes or crash coats topped with high fur collars are not an unusual sight by any means in the north of France along that strip of beautiful coast cut by cliffs and lays and dotted with smart hotels. Fur blankets, rubber lined, also are a feature of summer equipment here where you come out of the water, run up and down the beach for a bit of invigorating exercise, and then go roll up in the waterproof blanket to bask in the sun.

have complained about the work." But there was the matter of the ring, too. If Dan had made the slightest move toward reconciliation Cherry would have met the venture halfway. He hadn't—and therefore affairs were as they stood.

Suddenly Cherry got to her feet. "This won't do!" she scolded. "There's no use sitting here worrying. I'm a little fool to imagine a lot of things that aren't true. Probably that's the whole trouble—I've been letting my imagination get the best of me. Now I'm going to quit it!"

FOR the rest of that day she was determinedly cheerful. It was not easy but when doubts arose Cherry closed her mind to them. Moreover she outlined a course of action. Something was to happen within two days that she felt sure would restore her happiness.

"I won't tell Dan!" she thought. "I'll surprise him." Cherry said casually at dinner that evening, "I've some shopping to do Saturday. Suppose I come down about 12:30 and have lunch with you. Will that be all right?" Dan did not glance up from the newspaper beside his plate. He said, "Yes, I guess so."

"I'll meet you in front of the library," Cherry promised. "I'll be there at 12:30." The young man nodded agreement. He did not leave the apartment as usual after dinner but flung himself down on the davenport with a new book. Cherry felt this was encouraging. She was happy as she went about clearing the dishes from the table. She washed them and put them away, taking care to be quiet so as not to disturb Dan.

extreme to the other and it is time for our good people to wake up and make comparisons.

I have been asked by some very prominent citizens to do so, but I do not feel like doing it at this time as a great many will forget. This I do think should be done, when any thing goes wrong or against the public welfare we should come out like men and let our officers hear from us.

I stand for the public welfare regardless of persons or creeds. J. B. BLITCH.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT United Press Staff Correspondent PARIS, July 15.—To speak of summer fur and bathing suits in line same breath seems almost incredible — not that the fur is actually on the swim suit — but it isn't far from it. In fact, it adorns some of the beach costumes designed more especially for the coast of Brittany and Normandy, where, no matter how hot the sun shines, the wind always keeps a piece of ice in its mitten.

Waterproof capes or crash coats topped with high fur collars are not an unusual sight by any means in the north of France along that strip of beautiful coast cut by cliffs and lays and dotted with smart hotels. Fur blankets, rubber lined, also are a feature of summer equipment here where you come out of the water, run up and down the beach for a bit of invigorating exercise, and then go roll up in the waterproof blanket to bask in the sun.

have complained about the work." But there was the matter of the ring, too. If Dan had made the slightest move toward reconciliation Cherry would have met the venture halfway. He hadn't—and therefore affairs were as they stood.

Suddenly Cherry got to her feet. "This won't do!" she scolded. "There's no use sitting here worrying. I'm a little fool to imagine a lot of things that aren't true. Probably that's the whole trouble—I've been letting my imagination get the best of me. Now I'm going to quit it!"

FOR the rest of that day she was determinedly cheerful. It was not easy but when doubts arose Cherry closed her mind to them. Moreover she outlined a course of action. Something was to happen within two days that she felt sure would restore her happiness.

"I won't tell Dan!" she thought. "I'll surprise him." Cherry said casually at dinner that evening, "I've some shopping to do Saturday. Suppose I come down about 12:30 and have lunch with you. Will that be all right?" Dan did not glance up from the newspaper beside his plate. He said, "Yes, I guess so."

"I'll meet you in front of the library," Cherry promised. "I'll be there at 12:30." The young man nodded agreement. He did not leave the apartment as usual after dinner but flung himself down on the davenport with a new book. Cherry felt this was encouraging. She was happy as she went about clearing the dishes from the table. She washed them and put them away, taking care to be quiet so as not to disturb Dan.

"Everything's going to be all right," she assured herself. "I'm sure of it!" But there was disappointment ahead. Dan did not come home for dinner the following evening. Cherry would not let this make her downcast, however. She was pinning her faith on her plans for Saturday.

She intended to remind Dan in the morning that she was to meet him at noon. She meant to speak of it the last thing before he left the apartment but somehow he was gone before she realized it.

At 11 o'clock she telephoned the office but Dan was not there. "It doesn't matter," Cherry assured herself. "Dan never forgets anything." It was true that his memory was unusual.

While she dressed she planned how to break the news. They would go to Stanley's for lunch. It wasn't terrifically expensive and besides this was a special occasion. While Dan was reading the menu she would say, "I'd like that special ice cream for dessert—Stanley's special they call it. It's appropriate today."

Dan would be sure to ask what she meant and then Cherry would say, "Why, dear, have you forgotten? It's our anniversary. We've been married six months today!"

That was the surprise she had in store. The anniversary was exactly what was needed to end this foolish misunderstanding. After that Dan could speak without fear of sacrificing his pride. They would recall memories together. He would tell her how happy he had been during those six months and what a wonderful wife she had been. Oh, yes, everything would be as Cherry had planned! They could spend the afternoon and evening together. They could forget the rest of the world. There would only be she and Dan! Reconciliation would be all the sweeter after the bitter loneliness.

Cherry's thoughts drifted. The important thing was to let Dan know she wasn't angry with him, to give him a chance to tell her he had been miserable these last few days as she had been.

SHE bathed and patted on the delicately scented bath powder that was her dearest luxury. She got into brief, lacy undergarments, new hose and her best pumps. As she touched her cheeks with the pink pad from her rouge box Cherry was as careful as she had ever been when dressing for an engagement with Dan before their marriage. She made her mouth into a vivid rosebud with lipstick.

She put on a brown frock, adjusted the little hat smartly and slipped into her polo coat. A bright scarlet relieved the somber monotone. Cherry took a last glance into the mirror. Her eyes glowed with anticipation. Yes, she was satisfied with her appearance. If she met anyone she knew at Stanley's she need not feel ashamed.

The ride down town on the trolley required only 15 minutes but Cherry allowed herself more than that. She left the house promptly at 12 o'clock and 20 minutes later had reached the library. Naturally Dan was not in sight. He would probably be late.

Cherry walked leisurely along the block. The day was colder than she had realized and she pulled the collar of her coat snugly about her throat. A woman wearing a handsome mink wrap passed and Cherry thought ruefully of the beaver coat that had been a gift on her last birthday. The coat was in storage and if Mrs. Dixon had been at home she would probably have insisted on Cherry wearing it. Cherry promptly forgot about the fur coat.

Two young men were crossing the street and for a moment she thought one of them was Dan. He wasn't. The youth turned his head and she saw he was a stranger.

A glance at her wrist told Cherry that it was still too early to expect her husband. Not yet 12:30. She took another turn to the end of the block and back again. The street was filling gradually with the noon day crowd. Business men hurrying from offices. Tall girls, slim girls, fat girls. All of them appeared to be wearing new fall finery. On their way no doubt to meet "dates." Youths who would presently meet these girls or others like them joined the procession. There were older women, errand boys, men with faces worn dull by years of routine. Yet all of these faces showed relief. The half-holiday had brought an air of bustle and festivity to the street.

Still Dan Phillips was nowhere in sight. CHERRY searched eagerly from left to right. The crowd swirled past and new faces came into view constantly. It was after 12:30. Cherry took her post directly beside the library entrance and decided to wait there. The alarming possibility came to mind that in this crowd she might miss Dan. She had never failed to meet him before. Today of all days that would be a calamity!

She stood on tiptoe peering over her shoulder. Nobody seemed to notice her and she felt as though she were at the center of a merry-go-round. The men and women hurrying past might have been carried by some mechanical force.

Twelve thirty-five, 12:40, 1 o'clock. There were fewer pedestrians now. Cherry's eyes were dark with alarm. "I should have reminded him," she told herself. "I should have telephoned."

Still she would not give up hope that Dan would come. It was 20 minutes after 1—almost an hour past the time she and Dan were to meet. Cherry raised one hand and brushed the mist from her eyes. No use to wait longer. No use to hope against hope that the next moment would bring him. He wasn't coming. He had forgotten about her!

Suddenly Cherry felt a hand on her arm. She whirled, her face lighting with happiness. "Oh—!" she exclaimed and her lips moved to form Dan's name.

But it wasn't Dan Phillips who smiled down at her. Max Pearson stood there. He said easily, "Hello, stranger. Where've you been keeping yourself?"

Cherry's reply was a confused murmur. She heard Pearson speak again, without knowing what the words were. She heard him say something about lunch and was surprised to find herself walking down the street beside him, entering the dining room of the Hotel Wellington.

They sat at a small table. Cherry turned her head and suddenly her eyes focused on a figure across the room. For a moment the figure blurred and the room swam before her. Then the outlines steadied themselves. It was—oh, it WAS! Dan was sitting at a table not a dozen yards away, leaning forward in earnest conversation, and the woman facing him was Brenda Vail.

"I favor re-submission because that is the only method of repeal. It follows therefore that I favor and will vote for repeal of the 18th amendment. However, I fear that it will take from two to ten years to repeal the 18th amendment, and in the meantime I favor a modification in the Volstead act that will permit the sale of light alcoholic beverages under government regulation. I favor re-submission and will work for it, and when the question is re-submitted I will work for the repeal of the 18th amendment. I elected to congress, I will vote for re-submission to the states, and will also vote to modify the Volstead act."

TWO HONORED AT PARTY ON BIRTHDAY.

Two members of Circle 4 of the Methodist Missionary society were honored at an "Old Fashioned" party on their birthdays at the home of Mrs. George Winston. The honor guests were Mrs. N. A. Northup and Mrs. J. M. Lane. Decorations were in keeping with the motif. An old water bucket and dipper hung on the front porch and guests were given a drink as they arrived. Inside oil lamps illuminated entertaining rooms, and the old family album was in a conspicuous position. Many of the guests came attired in costumes very appropriate for the occasion.

Mrs. Joe Lovelady, as Miss Peachis Simms, conducted an old time spelling and reading lesson. Each guest brought a baby picture, and guessing who they were afforded much amusement. Mrs. Lula Paschall delighted those present with a number of old songs played on the guitar. A solo by Clara Winston left her audience convulsed with laughter. Mrs. Winston presented each honoree with a beautifully decorated cake, while several of the guests sang "Happy Birthday." A red and white checked table cloth, a relic of fifty years, covered the dining table from which lemonade and "old fashioned" tea cakes were served during the afternoon. A toast was offered for Mrs. Northup and Mrs. Lane.

There were sixteen members of the circle and sixteen guests present for this delightful affair.

CO-HOSTESS AT CIRCLE MEETING.

Mrs. G. W. Troxell and Mrs. Bob Logan were co-hostesses to Circle 2 of the Ladies Aid of the First Christian church Tuesday afternoon at the church. Mrs. James Flournoy led the devotional and conducted the Bible study. During the business period, plans were made to serve sandwiches and tea on Saturday, July 23, in town.

Refreshments were served to the following during the social hour: Mesdames M. E. Holcomb, Hooks, James Flournoy, Alfred McAfee, H. H. Davis, Ida Painter, G. W. Troxell, and Bob Logan.

Tarleton Offers Vocational School

STEPHENVILLE, July 15—Twenty or more teachers of vocational agriculture in the Stephenville area are expected to enroll in the graduate participation evening school courses to be offered by Texas agricultural and mechanical college at John Tarleton college July 18 to August 6. Prof. J. C. Dykes, professor of vocational education at A and M, will conduct the course at Stephenville.

Each teacher of vocational agriculture in whose district such a school is held will continue the work through the year, taking up seasonal problems as suggested by the farmers in each community.

Evening schools form an important phase of the vocational agriculture teacher's service to his community, it was pointed out by the Tarleton agriculture department. In the south, last year's enrollment of adult farmers in evening schools exceeded the enrollment in the regular high school classes.

To the Citizens of Eastland County:

During the past several days, a whispered campaign has been carried on behind my back, in an effort to make the voters believe that my accounts with the State have been crooked. No direct charge has been made against me, but the matter has been intimated as though it were a great secret. I feel that the public and my many friends are entitled to a statement of the facts. Because this veiled charge is an eleventh hour, report coming just before the primaries, I will not be able to see many of the voters in person and explain, and therefore, I am making the statement in writing.

The Assistant State Auditor tells me that similar corrections have been made, or will be made, by practically every county official in Texas, who receives part of his fees from the State. I am one of fourteen District Clerks who have actually refunded cash to cover these corrections.

I have only done in this instance what I thought was right and in keeping with common honesty. My records are here in the court house, including copies of all accounts which have been collected by me from the State, and are subject to inspection at any time. The original accounts are at Austin in the office of the State Comptroller, and are open to inspection there. I do not have a thing to hide from any one. I have no apology to make for obeying the regulations of state officials.

I can not, and have not received one cent above the salary which the law fixes for my job. Each year I have been in office, I have reported to Eastland County, excess fees I have collected, over and above my maximum salary and the salaries of my deputies and other office expenses. I could have no possible motive in collecting illegal or excessive fees because it would be no money to me. I would only have to pay it to the county in excess fees.

On account of the many duties incumbent upon me as your District Clerk, I have been unable to make as active a campaign as I would like to make and have been unable to call upon a great many of you. Therefore, I sincerely trust that you will take this message as a personal solicitation of your vote and influence on July 23rd, and I promise you that if re-elected, I will render you the most efficient, courteous and honest administration possible.

Sincerely,

W. H. Bill McDonald
