Blues Have It in Spring Footwear

Blue will be the feature color for millinery's footwear during the early spring months. That, fashion hunters, comes from the men who make the styles, as well as the shoes. I. Moldave of the Boston Store, who has just returned from Fort Worth where he attended the shoemakers' convention, reported that blue will be the standout color for women, along with the blue-white and brown-white combinations. Heels will be modified and white will predominate for summer wear, while sandals will be the fashion for both men and women during the later summer months.

.7 Inch Rain Falls Here Wednesday Night

ENTIRE STATE IS DRENCHED BY SHOWERS

Ciscoans who have been watching the skies and grumbling because of lack of rain, today were smiling after more than a half inch of rain fell here last night. The city hall rain gauge last night recorded a precipitation of seven tenths of an inch. It was the first rain of the month. Last month's rainfall was 2.1 inches, according to the records of the Daily News, taken from the city hall rain gauge. This brings the rainfall for this part of 1935 above that of last year. During 1934 only about 17 inches of rain fell, 10 inches less than the average yearly rainfall.

By United Press Light to moderately heavy rains today were falling over almost all sections of the state. The only section where skies were clear was the panhandle where no rain had fallen. Amarillo reported no rainfall in the past 48 hours and continued fair skies were seen. Heaviest rainfall was reported at Abilene, where 1.4 inches was measured. Abilene reported it was still and there was no let up in sight.

GOV'T READY FOR DECISION IN GOLD CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—After conferences with Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and other federal officials, Attorney General Homer Cummings announced today the government would be ready "for any emergency" in connection with the supreme for the coming gold decision. Since the gold cases were argued before the high court, Cummings has held conferences with President Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau, and others concerning steps to be taken by the government should the decision be adverse. At his press conference today, Cummings said, "We are ready for any emergency."

GARZA SHERIFF CHARGED WHEN OFFICER SLAIN

LUBBOCK, Feb. 7.—Spencer Stafford, federal narcotic agent of Fort Worth, was shot and wounded fatally at Post today. Sheriff W. F. Cato of Garza county, who surrendered following the shooting, said he shot Stafford in self defense. He was charged with murder. The shooting occurred in front of a veterinary hospital near the Post business district. Stafford and V. C. McCullough of Dallas, agents of the narcotics division of the federal treasury department, were in Post investigating reports of extensive narcotic traffic in this area. Stafford was shot through the heart, twice in the chest, once in the abdomen, and in the right hand and forearm. An inquest was set for this afternoon.

Berkshire Hog Is Not Merely A Pig

DUBOIS, Pa., Feb. 7.—When John O. Minetti says he raises hogs he means just that. His latest contribution to Clyde Snyder's butcher shop was an English Berkshire type, weighing 747 pounds. Minetti revealed he had put the hog on a daily diet of five gallons of sweet corn. The hog was three years old.

Happy as She Mines Coal Again

"Back to the mine" isn't the punishment for Miss Ida Mae Stuhl that the term implies for most people. A state bar imposed a year ago has been lifted and she's shown here, back on the job near Cadiz, O., working at the trade she followed for more than 20 years. "I'm happy to make some money to pay off the debt on our house and get off the relief rolls," declares Ohio's only woman coal miner. "Housekeeping'll be only a sideline for me from now on."

Search For Raymond Hamilton Nears End; "No Quarter" Given by U. S. Men

DALLAS, Feb. 7.—Raymond Hamilton continued to evade officers today but the search for the outlaw was believed to be drawing nearer to him. "It will be only a matter of time," U. S. District Attorney Clyde Eastus said confidentially. "We'll get him." He made it plain "no quarter" would be given. He said the government was determined to take Hamilton promptly and would brook no interference from any source. City police ushered a man into jail during the morning and their briskness indicated their belief the arrest was of major importance. They indicated the man's alibi absolved him of the connection with the robbery of a Carthage bank Monday, attributed to Hamilton, but declined to say he ever had any connection with Hamilton. He was held incommunicado.

Cotton Conditions Said 'Beyond Words'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The agricultural adjustment administration, already on edge by wholesale dismissal of left-wing officials, today was presented with a report that its cotton program was bringing scenes like those of war-torn Belgium to southern share-croppers. The report was filed by Mary Myers, AAA legal official and former Chicago justice agent, after a survey of cotton regions west of Memphis, Tenn. The red-haired woman agent said conditions among poor tenants and share-croppers was "beyond words." She charged wholesale violation of acreage control provisions supposed to protect tenants from eviction.

New Orleans Port To Be Reorganized

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7.—Clifford W. Pollock collector of customs here who is being transferred to New Orleans, is expected to reorganize the port of New Orleans. Twenty-seven years in the customs office here in various capacities, Pollock is recognized as the country's outstanding authority on customs matters. Pollock rose to his present position on civil service promotions and once refused the collectorship appointment in order to protect his civil service status. He later accepted.

ARGUMENT IN RAIL HEARING IS PRESENTED

Arguments of the M.-K.-T. railroad, seeking to alter the schedule of Delco-Cross Plains branch of its Texas Central division were heard before the Texas Railroad commission at the Laguna hotel this morning. The railroad is seeking to change its daily schedule over this branch to tri-weekly service on the grounds that its business does not justify maintenance of a daily service. Commissioner Lon A. Smith of the commission presided at the hearing, which recessed at noon. Representing the railroad was Judge G. H. Penland, Dallas, counsel for the Katy. Witnesses introduced by the railroad were O. H. Bower, Dallas, Katy auditor and H. W. Davidson, Waco, trainmaster. Representing Rising Star were W. E. Tyler, mayor, and J. F. Robertson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce there. Tom Bryant and Charlie Hemphill were Cross Plains representatives, and F. B. Joyce from Pioneer was present for his city. H. G. Hamrick of Amarillo and Ed Bryant of Denison represented the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. It was brought out at the hearing that the proposed new schedule would not interfere with the service maintained over the rest of the Katy system. At the same time, the Katy interests pointed out, practically the same quality of service now offered would be continued under the new schedule. With Commissioner Smith was C. F. Petet, secretary of the railroad commission, Omar Burkett of Eastland and Ca Murray of Abilene were present.

RELIEF BOND BILL PASSED BY SENATORS

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—The $3,500,000 relief bill budgeted to relieve unemployed until next December was finally passed by the Texas senate today, 29 to 0. It exhausts the $20,000,000 bond issue voted two years ago for relief of destitute families in Texas. Efforts to reduce the maximum rate on the fourth series of "bread bonds" to 3 per cent was tabled. The senate's bill is patterned after the bond act of the legislature. The bonds are made general obligations of the state, payable from all funds received by the state.

Dwarfish Lapps 'From Fairy Tales' Live On Reindeer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Most of the Lapps are bow-legged and appear top-heavy, the National Geographic Society reports. Lapps are dwarfs ranging from four and a half to five feet in height, usually stout and very strong. Undefined by actual political boundaries, their land extends across the northern part of Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia. They are believed to be Mongoloid people who originated in north-eastern Asia, not far from Lake Balkal. They speak a Finno-Ugric language probably adopted more than 2,000 years ago from neighboring forefathers of the present Finns. Their population numbers about 30,000 "Sea, River and Mountain Lapps." Because they walk early, the Society said, most of the dwarfs are bow-legged and appear top-heavy. Norwegian Lapps are described as fairy tales "come alive." They wear fantastic, colorful clothes, gayly embroidered tunics and belts, white fur shoes, and fur leggings bound in scarlet. Lapps depend almost entirely upon their reindeer herds for subsistence. A 250-mile fence soon will be constructed along the Norwegian Finnish border to prevent the reindeer from straying.

Ailing Juror Aided to Court

Most closely watched in the Hauptmann trial these days is the health of Juror Liscom Case, who suffered a mild heart attack. The retired 60-year-old carpenter is pictured above at left, being assisted from the hotel in Flemington, N. J., to the Hunterdon County Courthouse by a court attaché. Were he to become seriously ill or die, a mistrial would result.

Texas Oil Men Ask Congressional Action Upon Connally Hot Oil Bill

DALLAS, Feb. 7.—Sixteen prominent East Texas oil men will leave by plane late today for Washington where they will present their plea to congress to pass the Connally hot oil bill. A strong resolution directed to Rep. Sam Rayburn, chairman of the interstate and foreign commerce committee and Chairman Cole of the congressional sub-committee considering the bill was drawn up by oil men at their meeting here. The resolution pointed out much hot oil would be thrown on the market if the bill to stop interstate shipment of untendered oil were given effect immediately.

Dean Law Will Face Constitution Test

DALHART, Feb. 7.—Texas prohibition statute, the Dean law, will be attacked as unconstitutional in two cases coming up in the district court this spring. It was announced by Art Schlofman, Dalhart lawyer. The law will be challenged on grounds that proper publication was not made before it was voted upon throughout the state. Schlofman, who is handling the cases, said the Texas constitution requires that proposed amendments be published three months before they are voted on he claimed, and such publication was not made in all the 254 counties in the state.

Hauls Body Across American Continent

TRUCKEE, Cal., Feb. 7.—A former convict's 2,500 mile flight with the body of a Kalamazoo, Mich., man whom he had slain, ended early today at the California border here. The crime was discovered when police opened the trunk on an automobile driven by Clarence Frechette, 25-year-old Pontiac, Mich., truck driver. In the trunk they found the body of 28-year-old Robert Brown, Kalamazoo trucking contractor. He had been shot twice in the head. Frechette admitted the slaying and said it had been accidental.

DEFENSE PINS HOPE ON TALE OF FUR BUYER

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 7.—Henry Uhlig, who was Isador Fisch's "best friend in America," today began a recital of the activities of Fisch, which the defense hoped would clear Bruno Richard Hauptmann of charges of kidnaping and murdering Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. Uhlig was on the stand only a few minutes before the noon recess interrupted his story of a trip to Germany with the "poverty stricken fur buyer." Fisch died in Germany four months after he and Uhlig arrived. Uhlig testified to various enterprises, including a pie business, in which Fisch had a hand. Hauptmann, who insists Fisch left with him the Lindbergh ransom money later found in his garage, looks to Uhlig to prove his statement that Fisch had all the ransom money in 1932. The witness remarked that Fisch had a "very bad cough" in 1932. Dr. John Condon described the man who negotiated with him for the ransom as having a cough. Fisch borrowed large sums from his friends to use in various business enterprises, the defense showed. The evidence was used to support Hauptmann's assertion that he, too, lent Fisch considerable money and Fisch owed him $7,500 when he left the United States for Germany.

WORK RELIEF BILL TO PASS SAYS LEADER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Majority leader Joseph Robinson has assured Pres. Roosevelt the senate bill will pass the senate administration's $4, 880,000,000 works bill in a form acceptable to the White House, it was announced today. Robinson gave this information to the chief executive at a White House conference. Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, did not appear worried over the rebellion in a senate committee where a move is being made to scrap work relief in favor of the dole. Yesterday a move to substitute a direct relief or "dole" form for the work system sought by the president failed in a committee vote in which the balloting was 10 to 10. A majority vote was necessary for adoption of the amendment.

Woman Fish Expert Never Landed Fish

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—A scientific knowledge of fish doesn't make a fisherman, according to Miss Louella Cable, who has a record of "many casts, but no catches." Miss Cable is regarded as Washington's outstanding woman authority on fish. She is secretary to Elmer Higgins, scientific division chief of the Bureau of Fisheries. In addition to her scientific work, Miss Cable draws and paints sea life scenes for the department. She knows thoroughly the lives and practices of practically every type of fish, but hasn't discovered the means to fishing success. After a recent fishing trip, she said: "I couldn't catch anything."

POPULARIZED HAWAII

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Amelia Earhart's recent successful flight from Hawaii to the Pacific Coast has caused commercial air transportation companies to offer tourists attractive round trip inducements. As result, the Interior Department said, two National Parks Death Valley, Cal., and Hawaii have become increasingly popular with the air-minded.

Europe's "Gold Bloc"

Seven European nations have formed a "gold bloc." They are resolved to maintain the gold standard, believing that when the present monetary experiments have come to an end, the world will be grateful to them. Since with two exceptions the members of this group themselves previously abandoned the gold standard and depreciated their currencies very considerably, their stand seems based not so much on loyalty to the gold-standard doctrine as on economic expediency.

At present the moneys of the group—Belgium, Luxembourg, France, Italy, Holland, Poland and Switzerland—are more or less freely convertible into gold. The emphasis is on "less." Their convertibility is extremely relative.

They have been endeavoring to reach economic agreements. If they can work together, it will be easier for them to keep the value of their moneys unchanged. Great pressure exercised upon them by the economic competition of states which have more recently devaluated their currencies and who therefore possess trading advantages over the states in which stabilization has brought wages and rents and prices up to higher levels.

Unless the "gold bloc" states can adjust to some extent their commercial exchanges, they may be forced, sooner or later, to abandon gold. If they can find sufficient compensation among themselves, the solidarity of these European nations will, it is argued, eventually oblige the nongold standard nations, which desire to enter the European markets, to return to monetary stability.

The object of the "gold bloc" countries is, however, beset with difficulties. As Lucien Romier, the well-known French economic writer, says: "Within the gold bloc itself, each participating state must sacrifice certain of its protective measures and renounce more or less its liberty of trading with nonparticipating states. The most timid steps in this direction will encounter strong resistance."

The arguments on both sides are not wanting, but it would be unfortunate were an economic conflict openly to declare itself between the "gold bloc" and the countries whose currencies are still fluid. Probably there will be no such clash, and compromises will be found necessary. But it is obviously impossible, in the interest of international commerce for rival systems of monetary values to continue for an indefinite period. In one way or another the financial duality of Europe and the Anglo-Saxon countries should be ended.

President Asking What Business Wants

"The administration is preparing to pay more public attention to what business wants," writes Thomas W. Phelps, Washington Correspondent of the anti-New Deal Wall Street Journal. "Whether this means that business will get what it asks for depends on how far it attempts to go, but administrative experience with 50 leading business men on the Business and Advisory Planning Council over the last year has encouraged it to turn its well-oiled publicity spotlight on business men's recommendations, with the idea that these can be followed often enough to Scotch the idea that the administration is anti-business."

That, coming from so conservative a newspaper as the Journal, is highly significant. It has become increasingly radical—that it is planning to eliminate some of its leftwingers in favor of right-wingers. The administration has lately even gone so far as to hold out the palm of peace to the industry which it has attacked most aggressively in the past—electric utilities. Plans are now on foot which, if completed, will lead to rate reductions on the part of leading private utilities, a let-up in the administration's government electrical development campaign.

If the administration actually takes serious notice of the opinions of business men, the inevitable result will be an increase in confidence on the part of those who have money to spend for developing industry and employing labor. It is no secret that the administration's more or less left-wing recovery program has failed to do what its sponsors hoped—perhaps the president has decided that another and different fact must be tried now.

American organized labor warmly resents what it regards as the worst blow it has received under the New Deal. President Roosevelt extends the automobile code to June 15 and states that changes in it assist labor by spreading the production period and increasing overtime wages. President William Green of the A. F. of L. replies that the changes are sops to mislead the public. He says labor was not consulted in the new arrangement, protests inclusion in the code of the automobile labor board headed by Dr. Leo Wolman, now disliked by labor but formerly its champion, and threatens to fight back—He says labor will use its most powerful weapon, the strike.

Produce Prices Soar With Cost of Feed

BASTROP, Tex., Feb. 7.—Because of the extreme high price of feed, butter has gone up to between 30 and 40 cents a pound here. Eggs are selling at 30 cents a dozen, the highest price in a long time. Farmers are forced to sell their hogs even at the prevailing low prices, because of the cost of feed.

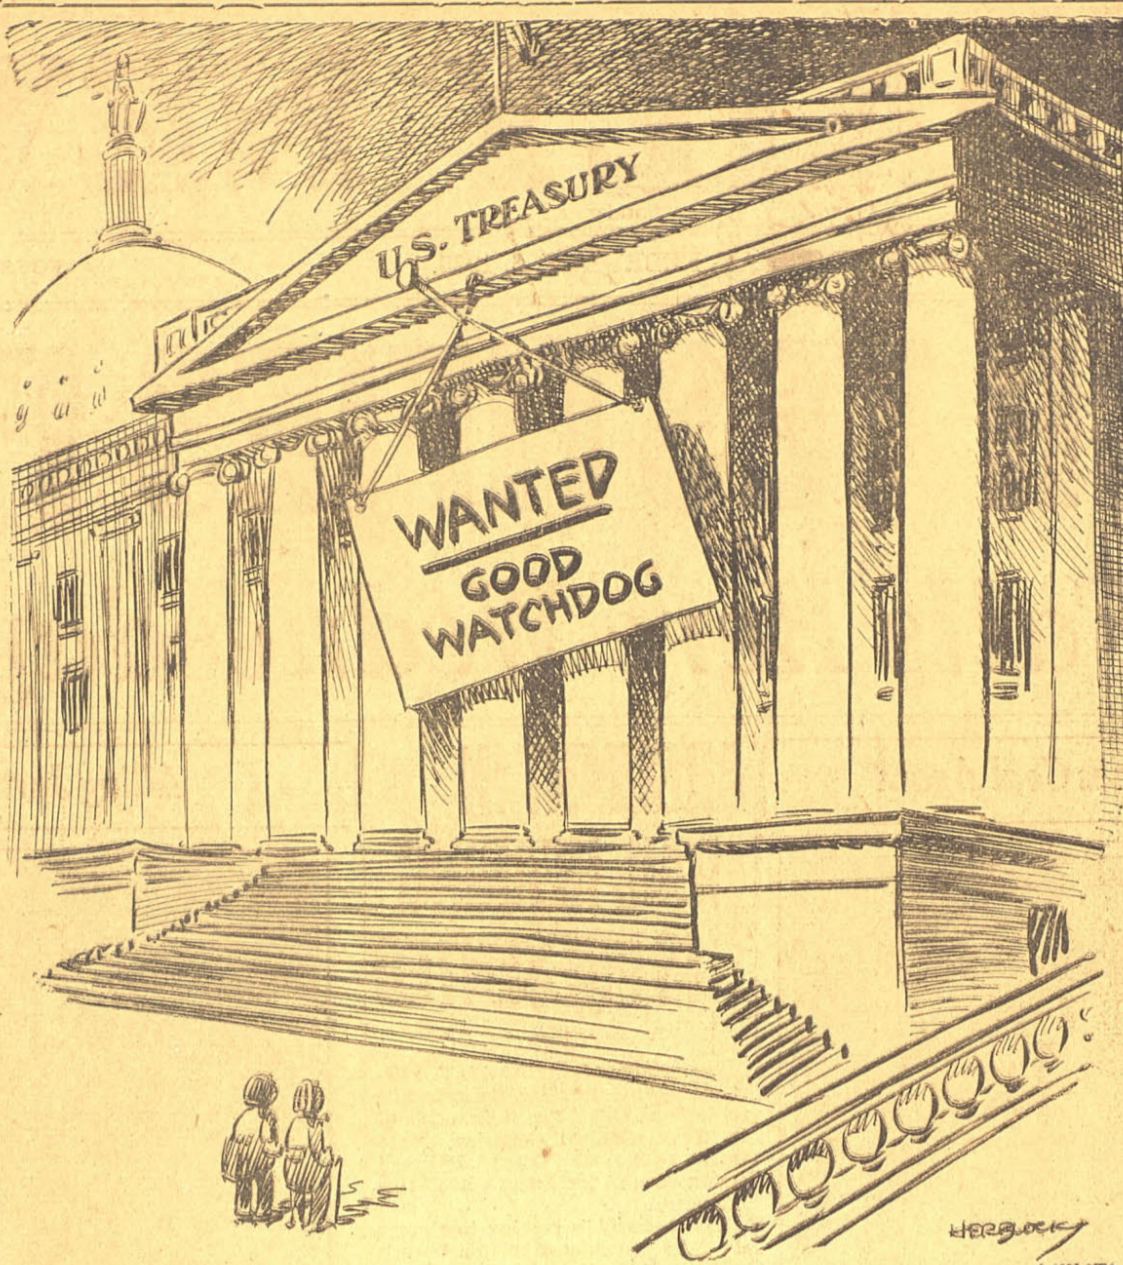

Most of the farmers have killed hogs for household consumption and are selling off what they have left instead of holding for higher market prices.

"COMPLY" WITH LAW
SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 7.—Ostrich law enforcement has been adopted here so far as liquor is concerned. Bar keepers have complied with a notice that "flagrant violations" would not be tolerated by placing formerly displayed liquors out of sight.

The average electric rate in Texas is 6.2 cents per kilowatt hour. Dr. R. H. Montgomery, collaborator on Gov. Allred's utility regulation bill, has determined. Dr. Montgomery expects to see the rate halved, giving Texas householders current at 3.1 cents per kilowatt hour.

Gov. Allred is too wary to pin himself down to a fixed pardon policy.

No Particular Breed

UNDER THE DOME AT AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—State employees were "placed on the spot" this week.

Each employe received a questionnaire containing this embarrassing question: "Are you satisfied with your present salary?" How to answer the question was a puzzler. "I can't expect to get a restoration of any salary cut that was made last year."

"If I say I'm not satisfied I may be told that the department in which I work will find some one who will be satisfied with my present salary." One employe, incensed at the questionnaire, threatened boldly to write the didn't this answer: "No one is satisfied with his present salary. But that does not mean he does not want to keep it if he can't get more."

The questionnaire was traced to Sen. John S. Redditt of Lufkin, chairman of the Senate Finance committee. This committee is gathering information to use in making a departmental appropriation bill which will fix salaries to be paid for two years, beginning Sept. 1.

Former Governor "Alfalfa" Bill Murray of Oklahoma made a hit with Texas legislators when he addressed them, but battled 600 with newspaper folk. "In this small community," P. L. Craddock wrote to the committee, "practically every family on relief rolls now has from one to four dogs, while a year ago they had practically no dogs."

"If the dogs are properly fed, they are fed at the expense of the taxpayers. If they are not fed properly, they are a menace to game and to people." "Your committee will do well to foster a tax on all dogs or to insist that the relief commission bar dogs from relief, as Kentucky does."

The average electric rate in Texas is 6.2 cents per kilowatt hour. Dr. R. H. Montgomery, collaborator on Gov. Allred's utility regulation bill, has determined. Dr. Montgomery expects to see the rate halved, giving Texas householders current at 3.1 cents per kilowatt hour.

Gov. Allred is too wary to pin himself down to a fixed pardon policy.

News Want Ads Bring Results.

Allred realizes that circumstances alter cases. He discourages personal appeals for clemency, but qualifies his attitude with the statement that he does not intend to slam the door against relatives of convicts.

The governor said, however, that relatives' appeals will be futile to make an appeal to them to recommend clemency when it in effect trenches the verdict they gave in the case.

As a general rule, he said, he will follow recommendations of the state board of pardons and paroles. That rule, too, is subject to exception.

Texas legislators believe the state interscholastic league should pay more attention to the heroes of Texas and the Southern Confederacy.

By resolution the legislators have asked for patriotic essays and declamation topics in league contests.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—Scores of letters are reaching state officials at the capitol urging J. R. Pennington of Abilene for appointment as a member—chairman of the Texas highway commission. The letters are going both to Gov. Allred and to West Texas members of the legislature. The Abilene friends' campaign for Mr. Pennington seems to indicate that Commr. W. R. Ely whose time expires this month, is not trying to build up any concerted drive for his own reappointment.

How Gerald A. Mann of Dallas might have become a professional football player, rather than secretary of state of Texas, has just been told in Austin by Dr. Harry A. March of New York, president of the New York Giants, pro football organization.

March called on Secy. of State Mann at the Texas capitol. "Do you recall, back there a few years ago, when I wrote you an offer for a place on the Giants' team?" he wanted to know.

Mann recalled it, and said that he had never answered the letter. "You can imagine my surprise," Dr. March said "when I find the man I wanted on the team secretary of state of Texas."

Mann played during his college days on the Southern Methodist university team.

Rep. J. Franklin Spears' bill to levy a production tax of $2 a ton on sulphur has been set by the house revenue and taxation committee for hearing Feb. 8.

It will be shown the present 75-cent sulphur tax runs about 5 per cent on the producers' price for the sulphur, as contrasted with the 2 per cent paid on crude oil plus the 40 per cent tax paid on the manufacturer's wholesale price of gasoline.

The suggestion has been given thought by legislators that a state division of natural resources, one concerned with the production of oil, gas, sulphur, potash, sand, gravel, quicksilver cement and stone and all forms of minerals and natural resources should be set up to supervise production and administer production taxes. The idea has been advanced that instead of piling higher the levy on oil for administrative purposes, that the increased tax on sulphur should be applied to paying the administrative costs of such a natural resource bureau so that the oil and gas taxes could continue into the funds for benefit of the state treasury funds.

Mrs. St. John Given Attendance Prize

Mrs. Will St. John was awarded the attendance prize last week at the high school adult sewing class. The prize for the week was material for a slip furnished by the Garner Department store.

Large crowds are attending the class from 1 to 4 p. m. each day. Every woman in Cisco interested in general sewing is invited to enroll.

War Raging In Jugo-Slavia Over Use of Alphabets

BELGRADE, Feb. 7.—War is raging over the alphabet in Jugo-Slavia. Two alphabets are in use. Serbians employ Cyrillic letters, while the Croats use the Latin alphabet.

All official announcements are written in both alphabets. In the schools both alphabets are taught. Fundamental differences between the Serbian and Croatian languages are very small. Young Croats understand Serbs and Slovenes without difficulty, and vice versa.

The older generation in all parts of the country however, know only the alphabet. The average middle-aged Serb is unable to read Croatian or Slovene newspapers and books, while Croats and Slovenes are helpless when confronted with Serbian literature.

Serbian nationalists now demand adoption of the Cyrillic letters throughout the realm. They point out that the history and civilization of the Slav peoples is connected closely with the script which St. Cyril and St. Methodius created.

Latin Script
They also maintain that the Latin alphabet does not lend itself to Slav languages because of their many consonants. They see an advantage for their viewpoint in the fact the Poles and the Czechoslovaks, who use the Latin script, have had to adopt numerous supplementary signs.

Against these arguments advocates of the Latin script maintain that throughout the world the Latin alphabet constantly is gaining ground and that its adoption is necessary for the sake of international traffic. Both parties are engaged in a feud in which a third group so far in vain is trying to mediate.

BOOM IN YOAKUM
YOAKUM, Tex., Feb. 7.—This city finished the first month of 1935 with a building boom. The state highway department announced plans for two district divisional buildings. A tanning and leather firm is constructing a hide house. A packing company is planning a large hatchery. A gap on highway No. 72 west of here will be paved.

MAY OUTLIVE PYRAMIDS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—If the Washington Monuments were scrubbed and overhauled every 50 years, it may outlive the pyramids of Egypt, National Park Service officials believe. The monument recently was reconditioned thoroughly. Seven tons of lime, sand and cement were used in a "patching up" program. Workmen then scrubbed the entire surface.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lu Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Gale Henderson, pretty and 22, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father.

JOEIE went on speaking. "Gee, if you let anything slip you'll be sorry for it!" she prophesied. "I'm sure I didn't," Gale told her. She thought it was better not to tell Josie any more about the conversation with Leota. There was still a possibility that Josie might be wrong about the other girl.

"Whether she is or not," Gale assured himself, "I won't take chances. I won't go to the meeting with her."

Thus she dismissed the whole affair. It never occurred to Gale that the incident might have more serious consequences.

She had no time to think about Leota Boller when she reached home. Her father lay back against the pillows and Gale noticed with a stab how old he looked.

He greeted her cheerfully. Yes, Mrs. O'Connor had come in and brought him some food at noon and she'd been in twice since.

"Here's your medicine," Gale told him. "You're to take it three times a day after meals. And here's the evening paper. I'll turn the light on and you can read it while I'm in the kitchen."

But Tom Henderson said he'd rather not have the light on. And anyhow he didn't feel like reading. Gale glanced at him anxiously but the glance told her nothing.

She went to her own room and changed the mill uniform for a house dress. In the kitchen, in place of the soiled breakfast dishes she expected to find, there was a pile of clean cups and saucers, plates and knives and forks.

"Mrs. O'Connor!" Gale thought. "Bless her! I'll have to find some way to make up for all this—"

She busied herself scraping carrots and chopping cabbage and cutting slices of mush to fry. Phil liked fried mush and it didn't cost much. She set the table as soon as the vegetables were on the stove. Then she made toast and poured steaming hot milk over it. She set a bowl of the milk toast on a tray with a cup of tea and was just ready to take it to her father when Phil came in.

"I'll take it," he offered. "Oh, thanks, Phil!"

Gale went about getting the meal on the table and when Phil returned it was ready. They sat down, facing each other, each aware of the vacant place at the foot of the table.

Phil said, "He seems better tonight. Don't you think so?" "Yes. Only he looks so tired." "I noticed that," Phil agreed, "but he told me he didn't feel tired." "You know he never admits anything is wrong." "Yes, that's true," Phil talked of other things then.

A little later he arose and went into the front of the house. Gale gathered up the dishes and put on water in the kettle to heat. She was on her way to her father's room when there was a knock at

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Ordinarily, you wouldn't any more expect to find an A. F. of L.-sponsored company union in the AAA than you'd expect a speckled Shetland pony out of your clam chowder. Some things just don't seem to go together.

But all things are possible in the era of the New Deal, so don't be too astonished when you hear about Local No. 116, American Federation of Government Employees. Its president happens to be E. B. West, acting chief of the AAA, the rental and benefit audit section, boss of about 3000 employes in the controller's division, which keeps track of farmers' contracts and benefit checks.

About 430 of the union's 500 members are employes of the controller's division and maybe you don't think they vote the way Mr. West wants them to vote? Not there any suggestion that Mr. West would ever cross the wishes of his own superiors.

What further distinguishes this union and the bulk of its membership from others is that the controller's division is the one AAA area not protected by civil service. These low-wage employes all had to have some political endorsement to get their jobs—at a time when the patronage racket wasn't as grim as it's been since the last election.

HUNDREDS live in fear that under new pressure, they haven't enough political pull to hang on. They are terrorized by persistent rumors that 500 or more are to be laid off to provide new patronage opportunities for new senators and representatives. Most of them are anxious to find favor in the eyes of the boss.

About 70 other AAA employes, including many of those well paid joined the union largely out of pro-labor sympathies. "Left-wingers" sought to make the union take stands in support of labor movements outside AAA, which was painful to West and to E. Claude Babcock, president of the A. F. of L. The result was that the intimidated majority, with Babcock's approval, recently steam-rolled through at a union meeting two resolutions which definitely made Local 116 a "company union."

ONE resolution confined new union membership to employes of the controller's office and the other forbade union members to meet together except at formal union sessions. From the standpoint of trade unionism, this was rather raw.

But the A. F. of L., which collects from AAA union employes has plenty of company unions outside AAA to worry about.

WHEN you get outside official conversation manages to ignore the national issues. There's far more talk about the price of beans than about the gold case. Chairman Mary Norton of the House committee on District of Columbia affairs is promoting a survey of crime conditions here. She has statistics purporting to show that the murder rate here is higher than that of Chicago or New York. You have been started, as I was, you'd seen Anna Dal (just before her marriage) and her celebrated dogs, Jack and Jill, enter the White House the other day. They came tumbling out of her car, leaping all over each other. But as they reached the White House steps, Mrs. Dal called sharply to them whereupon Jack and Jill fell into line and marched, shoulder to shoulder and in perfect step through the White House front door.

ing she had promised to go to. "I'll tell Leota I can't go," she decided.

"I'm sure I didn't," Gale told her. She thought it was better not to tell Josie any more about the conversation with Leota. There was still a possibility that Josie might be wrong about the other girl.

"Whether she is or not," Gale assured himself, "I won't take chances. I won't go to the meeting with her."

Thus she dismissed the whole affair. It never occurred to Gale that the incident might have more serious consequences.

She had no time to think about Leota Boller when she reached home. Her father lay back against the pillows and Gale noticed with a stab how old he looked.

He greeted her cheerfully. Yes, Mrs. O'Connor had come in and brought him some food at noon and she'd been in twice since.

A little later he arose and went into the front of the house. Gale gathered up the dishes and put on water in the kettle to heat. She was on her way to her father's room when there was a knock at the door. Gale hurried forward and opened the door. She said, "Good evening—" and then stopped. Steve Meyers stood on the threshold. He said, "I heard your father was sick. How is he tonight?" "Better," Gale told him, "but the doctor said he should stay in bed for a few days." "Could I see him?" Steve asked. "Why, yes, of course." He came into the house then. Gale turned and Steve put out a hand, as though to stop her. He said, "Wait a minute, Gale. There's something I want to talk to you about." She hesitated, waiting for him to go on. "I didn't mean what I said the other night," Steve's voice was self-conscious. GALE'S eyes were lowered. "I said things I shouldn't have, too," she told him. "Steve—I wish we could go on being friends again." "Do you mean that?" "Of course I do." "Then it's all over," Steve said eagerly. "I mean about these last few days. I've been nearly crazy, Gale. It's the first time we've ever quarreled and it'll be the last. I won't be such a fool again. Look—I brought you something—"

He held out a package, a long white box. Gale took it, looking up in surprise. She untied the cord and drew off the cover. There were six pink rosebuds inside the box. "Oh, Steve!" she exclaimed, "you shouldn't!" "I thought you'd like them." "I do like them—they're lovely Steve! But you shouldn't have done it; you shouldn't have been so extravagant!" She lifted the roses and held them in her arms. The perfume of the flowers filled the room and their warm color seemed to bring a flush to the girl's cheeks. "They're not much," Steve said. "Not as pretty as you are, Gale. Not nearly. You ought to have flowers all the time. I wish I could buy them for you." She was smiling and, yet, just for a moment, he thought there were tears in her eyes. "Why, Gale," he said, "what's the matter?" "Nothing. There's nothing the matter, Steve." The dark lashes were lowered so that he could not see her eyes. He went on then, "You said we could be friends again, Gale. Does that mean I still have a chance? That maybe some day—"

She raised her eyes and met his over the roses. "Let's leave things as they have been for a while, Steve," she said. "Let's just be friends—at least for a while." There was a moment's pause and then she went on quickly. "Oh, but I must find something to put these flowers in. They ought to be in water!" She turned away to find a vase. Later Gale Henderson was never to see pink roses without a tightening about her heart. But that was much later after a great many things had happened. (To Be Continued)

CHILD ART IS ON EXHIBIT AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—The first international exhibit of children's art opened here recently in the galleries of a large department store. The exhibition includes illustrations done by children of 46 countries. Two years were spent in collecting the paintings for exhibition. More than 400 works are in the group. Those instrumental in gathering the paintings from the four corners of the globe showed no interest in works that showed signs of careful execution, but the rough drafts which would normally be relegated to the waste basket and never occupy a place of honor in a proud parents album. They devoted their search to pictures of the world as small children see it before they are taught what they are to see. During the search in the interior of Bell some difficulty was encountered when the youngsters wanted to eat the crayons instead of drawing with them. Those pictures which the officials were able to obtain, critics described as amazing. The youthful artists show no technique, but the sincerity of the works embraces a wide range of subjects.

DR. DITMARS FINDS LEGENDS ABOUT VAMPIRES ARE MOSTLY ERRONEOUS

READING, Pa., Feb. 7.—Speaking here recently Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of the Bronx Zoological Park, New York, discussed the characteristics and habits of the vampire bat, famous in legend and literature. Dr. Ditmars said that there have been so many misconceptions and erroneous ideas about the supposedly gruesome bloodsucking creature, and very little actually known of its habits, that he set out on an expedition to the Chiriquillo caves in Panama, a known habitation of the mysterious creature. Two years ago he was successful in bringing back with him one of two bats he had captured. "One requisite in keeping these bats alive is a plentiful supply of fresh, defibrinated blood," Ditmars said. "They are blood-lappers—not blood suckers—and in order to obtain their favorite food are equipped with a pair of lancet-like teeth which make a shallow wound, thus providing them with an abundant supply of their beverage." Enlisting the aid of films, Ditmars showed the results of inducing a captured bat to drink from a supply of beef blood brought along for that specific purpose. He obtained a film of the creature lapping up the blood in the same manner that a domesticated cat would use.

APIARISTS IN DANGER FROM DRY WEATHER

TEMPLE, Feb. 7.—Beekeepers of Central Texas, who have become famous for the quality of honey they have produced, are facing ruin as a result of the drought. The story of George Gresham, old timer of this section, is typical of others. Last May Gresham had 108 swarms of bees which he valued at $10 a swarm. Some of the swarms he had for many years. "Then about the last of May when the drought set in," Gresham's troubles began. One by one the swarms began to leave as the vegetation became more and more sparse with the increasing drought. It wasn't hunger but rather lack of work that was troubling the bees, Gresham said. They had plenty of food because he did not rob the hives the year before. Some of the swarms too, sealed their hives before leaving for parts unknown. Gresham bought 20 new queens and thought maybe they would help keep his swarms contented. That failed to work, however, and after a short getting-acquainted period the new queens and all but four of the swarms departed. Another farmer living in Bell county reported that for generations there had been five bee trees in his pasture. Last summer all of these swarms suddenly left. For a while apiarists had hopes their swarms might return. Now, however, they have become reconciled to the fact that they will not come back.

RANDOLPH NOTES

By CRYSTAL JACKSON

Fame in the making: We enjoy ourselves at Randolph, but all of the time some people take time out to do a little serious thinking. One of the products of one of these time outs follows. It was written by Vernon Van Fleet, a senior of Randolph College.

BE YOURSELF

By VERNON VAN FLEET
If you're down in a rut, put your head in the air.
If it's up in the air, pull it down.
You're never too good to wear a broad grin.
But you're always too good for a frown.

If you feel puffed up for the success you've attained

You have much in your life yet to learn.

For true success measures not what you have done

But into what greater things you will turn.

If you've something to say, that the world wants to hear

Then say it and after keep still
Men do not judge alone by the things that you say

But more by the place that you fill.

In the great social wall there are many such bricks

As good as and as bad as you
So knock off your edges, fit into your place

And see how much good you can do.

If you would get to the top of the ladder of life,

You must do so, round upon round.

For you're never too good to wear a broad grin.

But you're always too good for a frown.

Negro Baptists To Hold Meeting Here

Cisco negro Baptists will be hosts next August to what had been termed "one of the most benefitting and inspiring meetings in the history of negro life in West Texas," it was announced by Rev. O. B. McKinney, pastor of the St. Mark Baptist church here.

The annual meeting of the West Texas Negro Baptist association will be held here at that time, he said, with the best brains of the negro race from all sections of the state present. There will be 22 regular churches represented, with 100 trained voices to lead in the singing.

"We solicit in advance the cooperation and good wishes of Cisco people," the pastor said, "especially of our white friends, that the meeting will prove to be a blessing to our town."

BOSTON IS MORE "ARTY"

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Boston, which has been dubbed "the Athens of America," is getting more and more "arty." The Boston Museum of Fine Arts reports that its attendance during 1934 was the largest in its long history. A total of 526,738 visitors entered its doors during the year.

MEMBER FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM.

The significance of "values" is best understood when we call them to account. For instance, we place a value on Service only when we have need of Service. Or again, we come really to know Courtesy and Confidence as having potent meaning particularly when we seek them and, noting their absence, demand them.

Realizing this, the First National has set up a scale of values which you desire and can use. They combine the best we have to offer with those qualities most useful to you. They are: Service, Efficiency, Friendliness, Confidence and Courtesy.

These qualities are found in our Scale of Values.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor of one of the Baptist churches of Dallas. After the marriage the happy couple visited with the groom's relatives who live in Dallas then came here and stopped for about two hours with the bride's parents and left about two o'clock for their home at Abilene. The bride is one of the two attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Roe and has made her home here since she was a small girl. She graduated from the Desdemona high school and then attended Simmons university at Abilene and later took work at the State Teachers' college at Denton. For two years she taught in the grammar grades of the Desdemona public school here being one of the most popular teachers. She resigned this summer to accept a position in Abilene in an insurance office where she could be with her sister who has had a position for more than a year. The

to think that to have your apparel Dry Cleaned and therefore serviceable much longer is a sign of ultra economy or indigence? Nothing of the kind. Many of the best and most prosperous people are constant patrons of ours. As a matter of fact not to employ our services is real extravagance.
