BIG GAS BAG RIPPED OPEN BY EXPLOSION

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 12. — Man's most ambitious attempt upon the stratosphere ended in failure today when an explosion ripped to shreds the great gas bag of Explorer II, the United States Army National Geographic Society craft, before ever it had mounted from the earth.

None was injured as the huge envelope, capable of holding 370,000 cubic feet of gas, tore open near the top and permitted vast blue-grey clouds of helium to escape.

Although some 20 men were trapped under the bag but four escaped unharmed and these four were found unharmed but half smothered in the folds.

It will be impossible to determine what caused the explosion until the dew has dried off and the huge bag can be stretched out.

Although none would be quoted, it was the general opinion at the stratosphere bowl that too much strain had been placed on the top fabric of the balloon, causing the bag to rip open.

State Is Promised Break From Heat

LONDON, July 12 — The United States and British governments were understood today to have concluded arrangement for cooperation in evacuation of nationals from Abyssinia in the event of war between Ethiopia and Italy.

Prison System Hit by Woman Board Member

SAYS WORKING HOURS LONGER THAN LAWFUL

HOUSTON, July 12. — Texas prisoners are worked as much as 14 hours daily and are given hard labor in the sun, perhaps when they are unfitted for such work, Mrs. C. A. Teagle, newly appointed member of the prison board said today.

Mrs. Teagle's statement came after W. A. Paddock, chairman, said there would be no investigation of the deaths of five convicts from sunstroke this week.

"They should be a system of selecting men for the labor they are fitted for. Men from cities and towns are put to hard labor in the sun when perhaps they have never done manual labor," Mrs. Teagle said.

Mrs. Teagle said she had received many telephone calls and letters recently regarding the prison system and that she spent 17 days inspecting the various camps.

"The prisoners are worked as long as 14 hours a day, when only 10 hours is permitted by law in cases of emergency," she said.

Leak Fails To Stop City Water Service

The city water department Thursday afternoon was called to repair a leak in a main line between Lake Bernie and the city.

The repairs required about an hour and a half, during which time the city water service was not interrupted. The leak was caused by a break in lead caulking.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 12. — Police are searching for a polite burglar who writes notes thanking his victims for leaving their doors open so access to dwellings is easier.

His latest deprecation was the theft at the home of Clifford White when the family returned they found the following note:

"I was looking for something to eat; I found the back door open and walked in. Thanks!"

3,000 Jobless With Boulder Dam Strike

BOULDER CITY, Nev., July 12. — Three thousand men engaged in completing the $49,000,000 Boulder Dam were thrown out of work today by a strike which halted operations on the project.

Between 500 and 1,000 men were on strike. Officials would say nothing and it was not possible to determine the exact extent of the tie-up. The men on strike were carpenters and iron workers who quit in an argument over whether time off for lunch should be their own or company time.

Dog That Bit Woman Sought by Officers

Police today were looking for a dog which last night bit Mrs. R. R. Mancill, East Cisco resident, it was reported.

The dog was ordered killed, but inasmuch as the order was issued today and the biting took place last night, the animal was not available for his part in the performance.

It was feared that the dog was mad, police said, and they were told it should be killed and the head sent to Austin for examination.

COMMUNITY IS GAME WINNER OVER LOBOES

Community pushed into the win column last night and gained a tie with Garner's for the top place in the city softball league by defeating the Loboes, 13 to 12.

The game, one of the best seen this season, almost ended in a victory for the Loboes, who led until the seventh, with the gasmen knotted the count. Community forged into the lead in the eighth and held it to share the top spot of the league with the winners of the first half season.

Both the Community and the Lobo clubs showed marked improvement over their early season form, when they were rated out of the running by the stronger teams.

The Loboes are scheduled to take on the Humble club in tonight's game. Each club has lost a game in the single start for the second half, and tonight's affair will decide which moves up to the half-way mark.

Tomorrow night the Community will take on Graham, it was announced. The Community club imported the Putnam All-Stars Wednesday night and handed them an awful shelling to the tune of 34 to 2.

MUSSOLINI HEADED FOR PROTECTORATE OR FULL SOVEREIGNTY OVER ABYSSINIA, SAYS ST. LOUIS WRITER AFTER INTERVIEW WITH HIM

EDITOR'S NOTE: Frank W. Taylor, managing editor of the St. Louis Star-Times, interviewed Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome. He came away from the interview convinced that Mussolini is headed toward a protectorate or complete Italian sovereignty over Abyssinia. Taylor's report of his unique conversation with the Italian dictator is carried by the United Press by arrangement with the St. Louis Star-Times.

By FRANK W. TAYLOR

ROME, July 12 — Benito Mussolini's goal is either a protectorate or complete Italian sovereignty over Abyssinia, and he intends to accomplish his purpose by arms, if necessary. He would, however, prefer to negotiate.

That was the definite impression I gained during a 30-minute talk with Il Duce in the Venice palace, where he received me in his office in the famous Mappapoulo hall, overlooking the historic square of Venice.

Mussolini considers the proposed invasion of rights which Abyssinia has for centuries regarded as sovereign entirely justified by circumstances.

When I put to him the question whether, should he cross the Abyssinian frontier, it would be considered a breach of international law and an act of war, he looked squarely in the eye and replied: "Invasion of sovereign rights has been in progress for centuries. Where is there a nation today which during its history, has not invaded the sovereign rights of others? Take the United States. How did you push your frontier back?"

Defense Rests After Mrs. Waley's Story

TACOMA, Wash., July 12. — With dramatic suddenness, the defense of Mrs. Margaret Waley rested today after taking only the testimony of the 19-year-old defendant in an effort to prove her innocence in the kidnaping of 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, timber fortune heir.

Despite Mrs. Waley's fears that she was intimidated into an active part in the kidnaping by the threats of William Mahan, fugitive kidnaper, will kill her if she is released, defense attorneys sought to gain her acquittal by presenting both the 19-year-old Utah girl and her husband, Harmon Waley, as their star witnesses.

Waley, who has been waiting two days for the chance to vindicate his bride, will follow her on the witness stand.

He will corroborate her story that she was intimidated into an active part in the kidnaping by the threats of Mahan, a former bank robber, named as the brains of the $200,000 plot and now hunted all over the United States as a public enemy.

War Area Actions Are Agreed Upon

DALLAS, July 12. — Cooler weather is expected to sweep down over Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle tonight, Dr. J. L. Cline, federal meteorologist, said today.

Thundershowers are forecast for some sections this afternoon. Palestine reported .38 inch of rain yesterday.

The scorching heat wave settled down over the midwest and southwest Thursday with a vengeance. Phoenix reported a peak thermometer reading of 110 while Dodge City, Kan., suffered under 106 degrees of heat.

MAN WHO GOT DILLINGER IN FIGHT QUILTS

CHICAGO, July 12. — Melvin Purvis, the man who got John Dillinger, resigned today as America's number one crime fighter.

Purvis laid aside the mantle of office without ceremony, leaving behind him a record unapproached in modern law enforcement history. He gave up his position as special agent in charge of the Chicago office of the department of justice bureau of investigation to "settle down in Chicago."

"I'm going to set a pipe and sit on someone's front porch," Purvis said in his formal announcement of resignation, which he said had been accepted by J. Edgar Hoover Wednesday to be effective today. He will be succeeded by Daniel Ladd, who has run the local bureau intermittently while Purvis was working away from here.

Swank Night Club Destroyed by Fire

FORT WORTH, July 12. — Fire of undetermined origin early today completely destroyed the Sylran club, swank Dallas pike night club, with estimated damage of $100,000.

Caretakers were able to save only the instruments of the orchestra as the fire swept through the structure.

Fire companies from Fort Worth and Arlington were powerless to aid and by daybreak the club was reduced to smoldering ruins. A 10,000 gallon water tower was badly charred but did not fall as the flames licked at its foundations.

New Orleans Mayor Is Asked To Resign

NEW ORLEANS, July 12. — A resolution asking the resignation of Mayor T. Sims Walmisley was presented in the old regular caucus today by a committee representing leaders of every ward in the city.

The resolution provides for redemption of gold bonds and notes in cash on a dollar for dollar basis until Jan. 1, 1936. The secretary of treasury at his discretion, however, may order cessation of this redemption after Sept. 1, 1935.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns expected the resolution would be brought to the house floor next week, probably Monday. The bill is high on President Roosevelt's list of "must" legislation for this session.

7 Persons Drowned In Colorado Flood

LAMAR, Colo., July 12. — At least 7 persons were drowned and 3 missing today after Wolf creek went on a rampage at Granada west of here.

Bodies of two women and two children were recovered.

The drowned members of two families were trapped when the flood rushed down the creek and washed away their homes. Property along the creek was damaged.

How to Break "Death Grip"

A lesson in lifesaving that may aid swimmers in cutting down America's dreadful annual drowning toll of 8,000 is graphically pictured in the above under-water scene. Here, a "drowning victim," left, has his would-be girl rescuer in a front chest stranglehold. To break the "death grasp," a life-guard places his right foot against the "drowning" man's neck, grasps the girl's chin with his left hand, and proceeds to pry the two apart.

J. J. Collins and Clarence Tune Will Attend Fire Fighting Short Course

Fire Chief J. J. Collins and Clarence Tune will leave Sunday for College Station where they will attend the firemen's short course at Texas A. and M. college, the chief announced today.

The short course is held annually at A. and M., firemen from cities all over the state attending.

It was pointed out today that Cisco will save approximately $1,800 by having the two men attend the school. The city gets a three per cent or that amount reduction on the insurance key rate for having representatives from its fire department at the short course.

HOUSE GROUP FOR OUTLAWING OF GOLD SUITS

WASHINGTON, July 12. — The house banking and currency committee voted today to report favorably the administration's bill outlawing suits for payment of government obligations on their former gold basis.

The resolution provides for redemption of gold bonds and notes in cash on a dollar for dollar basis until Jan. 1, 1936. The secretary of treasury at his discretion, however, may order cessation of this redemption after Sept. 1, 1935.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns expected the resolution would be brought to the house floor next week, probably Monday. The bill is high on President Roosevelt's list of "must" legislation for this session.

No Report Made On Highway Relocation

Status of the highway project through Cisco is exactly as it was some time ago, J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said today after a conference with Robert J. Milligan, Jr., assistant district engineer of the highway department.

Milligan informed him, he said, that the department has not been allocated money even for such prominent projects as the relocation of Highway 80 here.

"He said, however, that when the allocations are made, they will come all at once," Spencer said.

The Chamber of Commerce secretary recently worked up a short history of Cisco for a Centennial pamphlet the highway department is publishing.

Mineral Wells And Cisco Play Sunday

The Mineral Wells colored baseball team will meet the Cisco Red Sox at Chesley park Sunday, it has been announced by J. J. Jenkins, the Cisco manager.

The Mineral Wells club has four shutouts to its credit and will be trying for a fifth Sunday. The Red Sox have never been shut out, however, and will be battling for a win.

PROBE OPENS WITH GADSDEN AS WITNESS

WASHINGTON, July 12. — Public utilities companies have spent $301,000 to the committee thus far and utilities bill, the senate lobby inquiry revealed today as it started hearing with breath-taking speed.

Chairman Hugo Black, dem., Ala., summoned the newly appointed committee of public utilities executives.

Gadsden testified his organization was formed in February "to protect our interests against the bill."

He said 18 or 19 holding company groups had contributed about $300,000 to the committee thus far and a call had been sent out for $50,000 additional.

"Is it true that letters were sent out asking stockholders to contribute 25 cents a share to defeat this bill," Black asked.

"Certainly not by my committee," Gadsden replied, adding that if anything of that was done "I should think it might have been the Federation of Utilities Investors of Chicago."

Speed of Plane Is Increased 4 Times

NEW YORK, July 12. — Lengthening the mileage of an overnight flight from 700 to 2,700 miles has been accomplished in the past 15 years.

As a youthful pilot, W. D. Williams required all night to fly a single-engine mail plane from New York to Chicago in 1920. He piloted the plane recently, inaugurating overnight service from New York to nine Pacific Coast cities by United Air Lines.

The transcontinental route touches Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne and Salt Lake City. Three lines radiate northward to Canada and southward to Mexico.

Wind Rips Through Town In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 12. — A high wind ripped through the town of Eldon, 32 miles southwest of here today, demolishing buildings and injuring several persons. Communication with the town was not possible. Telephone and telegraph lines were down and roads were reported to be blocked.

SOCIALISM IN U. S. CHARGED BY CHANDLER

WASHINGTON, July 12. — Secretary George Chandler of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce charged before the house ways and means committee today that "numerous conspirators" close to President Roosevelt sought to replace capitalism in the United States with socialism.

A bitter part of the row among committee members developed during heated questioning of Chandler. Democrats charged Chandler had insulted the committee and republicans retaliated by saying that the witness had been insulted.

Chandler appeared to oppose President Roosevelt's tax-the-rich program.

He was the first member of commerce witness to appear before the committee since launching of a nationwide drive against the program by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

He assailed the tax program bitterly and charged the administration was trying to "delay recovery and thus discredit operation of the private profit system in this country."

Reducing the Drowning Death Toll

On Tuesday of this week three Eastland county girls were drowned in two different tragedies that occurred in different pools. The accidents cast a shadow not only over the families and friends of the girls themselves, but over parents of boys and girls who feared that their own children might be next, and over the summer picnic and swimming season itself.

Every year drowning takes hundreds of lives throughout America and the rest of the world, many of which could have been saved by proper methods and precautions.

First of all, everyone should be taught to swim. Not only is swimming perhaps the most beneficial as well as one of the most delightful forms of exercise, but it is one which may pay dividends in terms of human life.

But swimming is not enough. Even the best swimmers, without knowing something of life saving, may drown themselves or others, or may be drowned in attempting a rescue. Proper life saving methods are necessary. It takes little time to learn them, and one never knows when they may be needed.

The American Red Cross is doing a great piece of work just now in teaching life saving to all who will learn it. Divided into classes of juniors, seniors, and instructors, the persons holding Red Cross life saving certificates have aided greatly in reducing the death toll, not only from drowning but from hook as well.

The Red Cross teaches how to treat a drowning person, physically and from a psychological standpoint. The strangle hold, once the terrors of swimmers, may be avoided by the proper approach to the drowning person by the rescuer; or, if the victim should manage to secure the hold in his "grasping at a straw," the life saver can easily break the hold and return to the surface of the water with a proper hold on the victim to begin a carry to the shore. The fact that the victim has stopped breathing means only to the life saver that his work is about to begin. He immediately applies artificial respiration and continues it until the victim begins to breathe or until he is definitely pronounced dead.

There are a number of Red Cross life savers here, swimming in the Lake Cisco pool, as well as the pool's professional lifeguards. There should be even more of them, not only to protect themselves, but to aid in emergencies and help promote a general atmosphere of safety. As Red Cross Life Savers, they are duty-bound to serve, and should at all times be ready to do so. They should wear their life saving emblems for the purpose of identification should the need for their services arise.

Great Demand for Farm Implements

Farmers are said to be the backbone as well as the mainstay of the nation. They have many years of distress but the coming of Franklin D. Roosevelt and his administration with its powerful financial relief problems have been a Godsend to the tillers of the soil who are the growers and not the makers of things. Now the growers of things appear to be having an inning and the loyal recognition of a Federal

Behind the Scenes in Washington

RODNEY DUTCHER

Service Staff Correspondent
ASHINGTON—When an administration bites a lobbyist, that's news.

This one sank its teeth into several lobbyists when it signed the new tariff treaty with Belgium. Their yelps of dismay coincide with astonished gasps from many cynics who had been saying that pressure had stymied Secretary of State Cordell Hull's dearly beloved program of reciprocal tariff treaties.

tariff lobbyists who used to get their log-rolling done by Congress must now vary their technique. They begin, when suspecting that duties on certain foreign products are likely to be reduced by treaty with another nation in return for similar concessions, by spreading propaganda indicating that the entire duty will be removed—though law limits Roosevelt to a 50 per cent change.

Then they attempt to contact individuals in the state and commerce departments who are preparing the treaty. If they can establish social relations, so much the better.

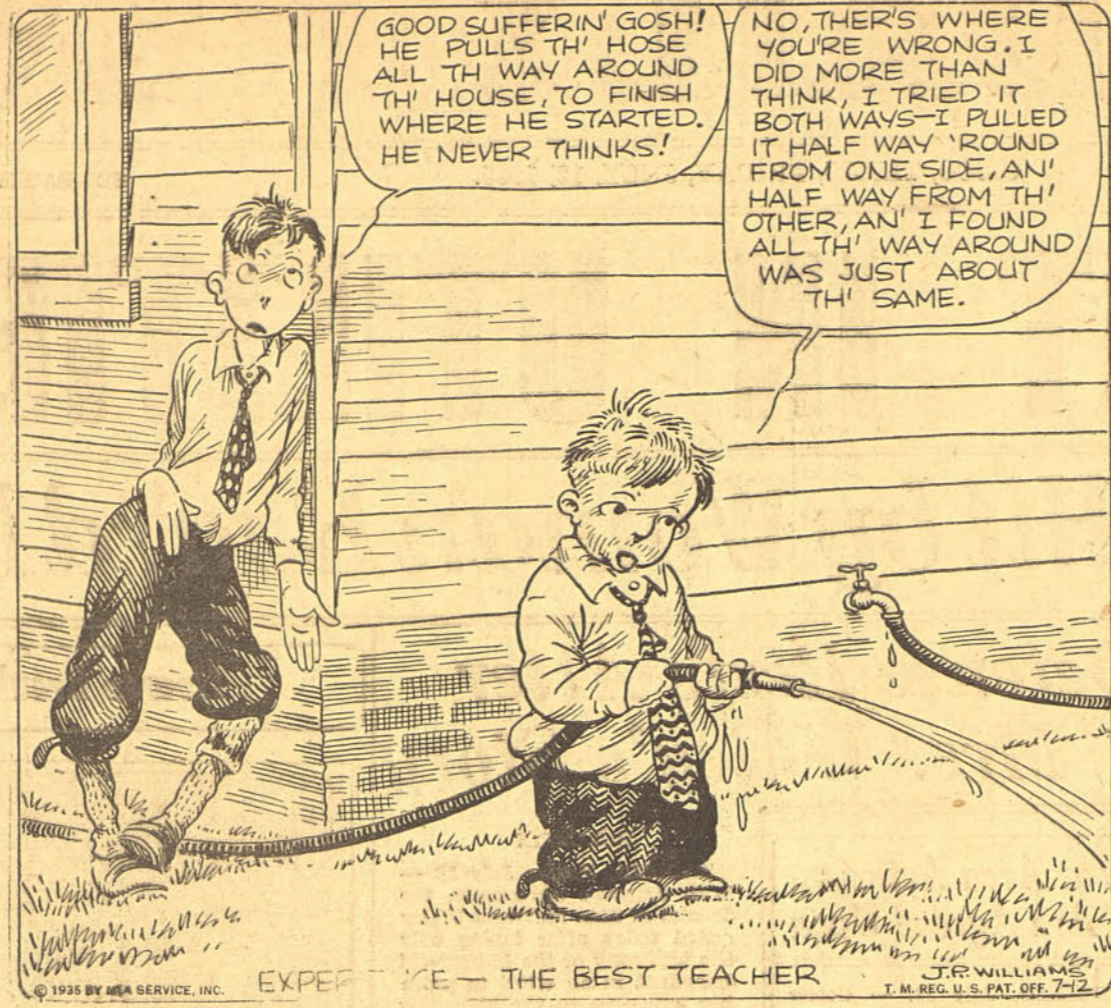

If they haven't any channel into the White House, as some have, they try to get congressmen to take them there—as a California congressman recently took lobbyists for the wine industry who were worried over possible treaties with Italy and Spain.

LAST fall the AAA adopted a policy of suppressing forecasts by its economists as to forthcoming booms in food prices as a result of fourth and AAA programs. The idea was that such publicity would lead to price increases by middlemen and retailers before the increases would otherwise be made. The idea was that such publicity would lead to price increases by middlemen and retailers before the increases would otherwise be made. The idea was that such publicity would lead to price increases by middlemen and retailers before the increases would otherwise be made.

OUT OUR WAY

EXPERIENCE—THE BEST TEACHER

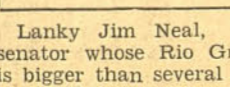

administration. This is a Chicago story carried by a press service. "While one army harvested a nation's crops another estimated at 60,000 strong by the trade authorities worked at top speed to supply the heaviest demand for farm implements in five years. Continuing the big gains registered last year the farm equipment industry was termed by its institute to have approached currently to between five and 10 per cent of normal employment. This is a marvelous showing, to say the least. Be it known that the farm equipment industry, meaning the manufacturers of farm implements and tools, regards the average for the year 1928, 1929 and 1930, the year before, of and following the industry's recent sale peak, as its normal. This is the verdict of the chiefs of the farm implement makers of things:

"Our employment is 45 to 50 per cent in excess of that a year ago. Haymaking and grain harvesting machinery are in special demand." There is another reason for the remarkable upturn: "The splendid prospects over most of the farming area, the replacing of drouth conditions by plenty and even an excess moisture and better prices for farm products have contributed to the speeding up of production by implement makers."

Texas farmers are facing a bumper harvest of all food-stuffs and feedstuffs. It is said that the corn yield this year will be the largest in Texas history; that the supply of feedstuffs for domestic animals will be the greatest in years. Cotton promises a very abundant yield and all the small grain crops are in keeping with the record made by the main staples. Wool prices are most encouraging; mohair is in great demand in the Eastern buying centers; and all in all the outlook for Texas and Texans is more than stimulating and there promises to be a vast deal of new money in circulation when the harvesting season is over.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

Lanky Jim Neal, Texas state senator whose Rio Grande district is bigger than several of the states, has achieved an election reform that is as important as anything since the original Terrell election law, or adoption of the primary system.

The abuses that Senator Neal hated personally, the abuses which have affected the whole state, are those that outside of cities of more than 10,000 population anybody could claim exemption and vote without having secured exemption certificates or had their names placed on the poll lists. In many communities there were more votes cast than there were adult residents, in recent elections.

Senator Neal struck out the exemption: Attorney General William McCraw has ruled that after the next poll taxpaying period, all persons will be required to secure exemptions, regardless of the size of the community in which they live.

That will mean an end to local election abuses in many counties, and the system of petty political dictatorships, many of them sustained through open fraud in illegitimate voting.

Texas has felt in the past few weeks some of that effect which is arousing protest in many parts of the nation—the frequent change of administrative organization or setup or agency in dealing with the various federal programs.

Texas relief administration has been decimated. The new rural settlement organization has risen. The works progress administration has cut into functions of both the work-relief and the public works. Not long ago, the civil works program had its feverish day.

NRA went through half a dozen permutations in its career. The people were kept so busy setting up and tearing down organizations and building new ones, that the ultimate of the job was often obscure. Much delay has ensued. The new organizations often have not been evolutionary developments, but fresh agencies, disregarding the products, the achievement and the experience of earlier ones, and cutting squarely across the plans that had built up but failed to reach fruition.

So much of the picture that may be drawn from the selection of the Texas Centennial advertising and publicity commission confirms the prospect that the $575,000 appropriation in the Centennial bill dedicated to advertising and publicity largely will go outside the state or go to the free-space publicity stunts so extremely prevalent. Three excellent men, Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, former publisher, more recently the head of the democratic national campaign organization in Texas; Arthur L. Kramer, Dallas merchant, and Gen. John A. Hulen, Fort Worth railroad executive, were chosen as this commission.

The 100-odd Texas newspaper publishers, the several prominent newspaper editors, various men in the news and advertising business, all are conspicuously absent from the brief roster of this advertising and publicity commission.

Mr. Miller, a member of the Centennial board of 100, a man of great influence in democratic and national administration affairs, has ample reason for recognition in the Centennial set-up. The other men, of well-established business and executive standing, are excellent allies to have in the Centennial organization. But nobody has advanced any remote idea for the selection of the three as the exclusive and total personnel of an advertising and publicity commission.

One should not be critical: The Centennial movement has been dogged by the hoodoo of discord, blunder, bad luck and adverse fortune and unhappy situation and course first to last. Two bright spots stand out: The final selection of an able, disinterested commission of control and executive secretary, and the choice of the ablest historical advisory commission that could have been chosen for its particular task.

That business concerns never know how much they can sell until they try the right way.

The right way is through the advertising columns.

A broadened business with lessened overhead and clean stocks is part of the gain made by firms who advertise continuously. Advertisized quality goods increase sales because once bought, they are always wanted again.

When a merchant fails to carry a line of well advertised goods, it is just another lost opportunity. Selling quality goods makes your customers boost for you. Keep them boosting!

New customers cost too much to get; don't take chances on losing them by selling them inferior goods.

They should be told about it by continuous newspaper advertising.

HUNGARY WILL PAY HONOR TO KING STEFAN

BUDAPEST, July 12.—The 90th anniversary of the death of the first Hungarian king, Stefan the Holy, will be celebrated by Hungary with a pomp and ceremony probably never before witnessed even in this land of celebrations almost unparalleled for gorgeous uniforms and impressive ceremonies.

This anniversary is still some three years distant, but preparations for the celebration already are under way.

By 1938, the anniversary year the government intends to have concluded the excavations of the site of the palace of the former Hungarian rulers of the Arpad dynasty and to have restored the most important parts of this palace in its original splendor.

Accompanied by his minister of education, Premier Julius Goemboes recently visited the site and made the decision to expend 300,000 pengoes on the excavations immediately so that the work might be hastened.

The palace to be restored was that built by King Bela III on the site of an earlier palace which had been destroyed by fire. It was prepared as a home worthy of Princess Margit, daughter of the then king of France, whom Bela brought to Hungary as his bride and queen.

Restoration has been rendered possible by the discovery of foundations and plans which clearly revealed the nature of the original structure.

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARLEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo gets a job as bookkeeper in a small marine supply store. She is engaged to BRET PAUL, athletic star.
DOUGLAS MARSH, handsome, wealthy, comes to the store to buy equipment for the summer colony he is establishing at Crest Lake. Jo works overtime, mastering with the order, and Marsh asks her to have dinner with him.
She accepts the invitation, later regrets this, because she knows so little about Marsh.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V

As Jo sat at the lunch counter endeavoring to justify the sudden turn of events which had given her, all in one day, a new job and a dinner engagement with a millionaire bachelor, her woman's mind shot into the practical question, "What shall I wear?"

She had not yet even unpacked her trunk at the Fendale apartments, and it was now almost 3 o'clock. Hurriedly she finished her coffee, wondering whether her blue dull-silk would be fit. She hadn't worn it since the last sorority dance and it had been on its hanger in her wardrobe trunk ever since. And her dark blue slippers—if she remembered rightly she had stepped into a puddle in front of the gymnasium that night, and never cleaned them. It was the last dance of the campus season, and she had simply tossed everything into her trunk, thinking she would take them out at home.

When she reached the Fendale she ordered her trunk sent up at once, and when it arrived she hurriedly examined the clothes in question. Thank Heaven, the slippers could be made presentable by a little scrubbing with a stiff brush! And her silk jacket which would make the blue dress correct for dinner wear was presentable enough. But the blue dull-silk dress needed pressing.

"I won't have time to send the dress out," Jo thought. "And besides, it would cost too much in my state of affairs."

When the clerk telephoned that Mr. Marsh was in the lobby Jo was ready.

"Dear Daughter: Your Mother has just shown me your letter in which you say that you are not coming home, but are going to find a job for the summer. I wish I might have had the chance to explain to you face to face the predicament I find myself in, but perhaps it was best that you know before returning. It's probably just as well that you did not come home, for I must confess that right now we don't feel very gay, and I'm afraid the house would be no place for a young girl."

"I wish you all kinds of luck in finding a place, but I want you to know that you are welcome here any time, and that we are anxious to see you. I am sure that everything will turn out for the best. I have made a living for you and Mother for a good long time, and I certainly hope to keep on doing it."

"Mother sends her love, and so do I—Dad."

If Jo had owned the money for a ticket to Weston she might have started immediately for home—just to try to comfort her mother and father, to make them see that, as far as Jo Darlen was concerned, they were still the finest and most lovable persons on earth. Poor Dad! There was so much his letter didn't say, so much that came through to Jo without words.

"I'll be expecting you tomorrow night then," Jo said.

When she replaced the receiver she stood staring at the telephone. Why had she lied to Bret so glibly? "It wasn't a lie, really," she tried to tell herself. "It really is helping Mr. Brown on a big order." But as that thought passed through her mind she had to laugh bitterly at herself. "You lied to Bret. Deliberately. Tomorrow you've got to tell him the truth."

A glance at the clock stirred her out of her uncomfortable thoughts. Six-thirty—just time for a shower and getting into her clothes.

But when the clerk telephoned that Mr. Marsh was in the lobby, Jo was ready. Marsh was standing by the door of the automatic elevator when Jo descended, hoping that her dress wouldn't smell of recent ironing. Smilingly, he drew back the door and exclaimed, "You looked like an angel descending to earth! I do hope the angel enjoys her evening with the mortals."

Jo laughed. "I'm sure she will."

At the Fendale curb was Douglas Marsh's sleek black roadster. Its smart hood long and streamlined, "I left the top down," he explained, helping her into the cushions. "I remembered your hair was the kind that would be all the more charming for a little blow."

The car moved noiselessly away from the curb and into the traffic. "There's a new place opened this week," Marsh told her. "It's called the Olympic Bowl—we can have dinner there, and dance. If you like. Like to try it, or do you have some favorite rendezvous?"

Jo shook her head. "I don't know the town at all. You see, I've been here only one winter, and that was spent pretty close to the university."

"So I'm out with a freshman girl!" Douglas Marsh laughed pleasantly. "I'm afraid I've graduated as a freshman," Jo told him. "It looks as if the rest of my education will be in the School of Experience."

"Not a bad school, either," Marsh assured her. "My father was a graduate, and he knew more in a minute than I'll know all my life. . . . Shall it be the Olympic Bowl, then?"

Jo nodded. "I'd like very much to go there."

The sleek roadster brought them there in quick time. The green-uniformed doorman saluted Marsh as if he were a major-general; and when they were inside, the head waiter, with that sure instinct of head-waiters, sized up Marsh with a glance and led them to an excellent table which gave Jo a full view of the dancers and diners.

Marsh's gaze traveled about the long room with its quiet wall drapes and its clever indirect lighting. "Not bad at all," he said. "And that music is inviting. But suppose we start with cocktails. Would you like me to order?"

"Please do."

She did not say that she had never before been out with a man who could order a dinner.

NEW BUILDING OF 196 FLOORS BLUEPRINTED

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—Erection of a 196-story building, 2,000 feet high, covering four city blocks, able to house 250,000 persons, and costing $223,000,000 has been described to architects here by Henri Rush, architect and former chief engineer for the building and the rest of the working on the plans for three years.

ists from all over the world would be attracted to the United States to see it and transact business in it.

He believes the building, or mart, would furnish a way for America to control world trade through a sort of "international clearing house."

No attempt has been made to get backing for the project yet, Rush said. He has considered taking the plans to President Roosevelt.

Provides Air Terminal

enter the basement. Within the building would be 126 passenger and 72 freight elevators.

Big Shovel Bites Through Coal Hill. CADIZ, Ohio, July 12. — Employing electricity as its power and using the intelligence of four men for "brains", a 1,600-ton shovel bites through hilly land at Apex, near here, and uncovers coal beds in a few hours that would take days to accomplish by construction of drift mines. The enormous electric shovel is one of five such monsters in the world. The others are operated in Kansas and Illinois. The shovel is "fed" by a rubber-covered, movable cable that carries 4,450 volts of electricity to its half dozen huge motors. Four men are needed to operate the digger. Each has a different job to perform. Shovels built to dig the Panama Canal were considered giants in their day, but they would be mere pygmies beside this mammoth machine, which towers more than 100 feet skyward. The huge excavator is one of the largest single pieces of mobile machinery ever manufactured in the world. Under favorable conditions, the shovel will cut into a hillside and remove a swath 40 feet deep, 60 feet long and 80 feet wide every eight hours. The only preparation preceding the digging is the blasting of heavy rock. The boom on this modern miner is 97.5 feet in length, and the dipper handle is 64 feet long. The dipper, which has a 20 cubic-yard capacity, easily would hold a large automobile. SPRING MAY BE TAPPED. VALE, Idaho — Hot water, piped into every home, may become a reality in this city. The city fathers are planning to pipe natural hot water from springs into a municipal system serving all householders. Let us figure your next job of printing. Our job printing department is equipped to serve your needs.—Phone 80.

ANSWERING THE ETERNAL QUESTION "What to Serve?"

DESDEMONA

The Methodist Missionary Society met at the church Thursday afternoon for the regular business meeting and program of Missionary news items from the Bulletin. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Charles Lee. The roll was called by the secretary, Mrs. S. E. Snodgrass, and the responses were answers to questions on the book of Genesis. The leader of the program was Mrs. H. H. Nance and others taking part were Mrs. G. S. Bruce, Mrs. W. C. Bedford, Mrs. Gifford Acree and Miss Mollie O'Rear. At the close of the program Mrs. Charles Lee served ice cold lemonade and delicious home-made cookies to the members who enjoyed the surprise treat especially as the day was very warm. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis spent a few days this week with relatives at Dalhart.

Fred Stover of Conroe visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Stover, Friday and Saturday.

Many friends here were delighted Monday afternoon to have a visit from G. H. Rieger and daughter, Miss Jane Rieger, Mr. and Mrs. Rieger and daughters, Jane and Billie. Tom lived here from 1919 to 1926, when Mr. Rieger was appointed deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division of the State Railroad Commission and was stationed at Houston. At the time of Mr. Rieger's appointment he was serving as mayor of Desdemona, being one of the youngest mayors in the state. Translation of Bexar County Archives Sheds Light on History of Early Texas

SAN ANTONIO, July 12 — Slide-lights on the military and civil life of persons living in the Spanish province of Texas in 1804 are reflected in translations of the Bexar county archives received recently by County Clerk B. L. Ladon.

About 1,000 pages of material were translated by students at the University of Texas. Much of the material is in the form of military reports which are prosaic reading, but now and then there is some information given which gives an insight into the life of the people.

In one document, Charles Y. king of Spain, urged his representatives in the provinces to see that certain pamphlets on agriculture published in Spain, be distributed in the provinces.

The king, according to reports of his viceroys, believed that the "farmer was the backbone of the country."

Plantation owners with slaves had many troubles, among them the problem of capturing run away slaves. The Spanish government cooperated with them, and in one report from Naacogoches to the governor at Bexar, it is noted that Alexo Cloutie, a planter, was in the Naacogoches territory Oct. 23, 1804, "hunting four negroes—two mulattoes, a negro woman and a negro child two years old."

Slaves Returned

They had runaway, taking with them 11 horses, five guns, 30 pounds of powder and 100 pounds of bullets. Later they were reported found and turned over to their owner.

There were also numerous reports of desertions from the militia. One deserter from the East Texas garrison was arrested at Saltillo. He was accused of having taken his weapons, clothes and horse with him. They were not found when he was captured, and his explanation was that he lost them, horse and all, while swimming across a river.

The king, however, was disposed to show mercy upon deserters. In a decree from Madrid published in Bexar April 15, 1805, was the following:

"The king's paternal heart is touched by the unfortunate conditions to which deserters from his army are reduced." Henceforth, he ordered, deserters were not to be sent to prison, but were required to serve an additional term in the army.

HOMEs supplied by COMMUNITY are never in doubt about their gas NEEDS

Community's Future Gas Supply is Assured!

How far can you see beyond your gas burner? This is an important question. It deserves your serious thought. Can you see hundreds of employes standing back of your local gas company ready for any emergency to keep your gas supply constantly ready, and delivering it to the burners of your appliances for immediate use? Can you see the extent of engineering talent which has developed the gas production of West Texas and kept your Gas Service up to the high Standard you require? Can you see many giant compressor stations boosting along your gas? Can you see 4,000 miles of pipe lines reaching out into 31 gas fields and tapping over a thousand gas wells?

If it were possible for your eye to follow a gas pipe from your burner to this inter-connected supply you would see this vast equipment, human and mechanical, being constantly coordinated and controlled to provide you with an unfailing Gas Service.

While Cisco customers of Community Natural Gas Company are served from local fields they are not entirely dependent upon this one source of supply. Standing behind this service is a system drawing upon THIRTY-ONE distinct Gas fields. Thus, Cisco homes on Community lines have a future Gas supply that is ASSURED!

Community Natural Gas Co
