ELECTION CONTEST HEARING BEGINS

Two Men Are Injured in Automobile Collision Here

E. R. HARPER RECOVERING AT HOSPITAL

An X-Ray examination of E. R. Harper, injured in an automobile accident here yesterday noon, revealed no bones were broken, the Graham hospital said this afternoon. He is resting well in spite of bad bruises and soreness caused by his injuries.

A collision yesterday morning between cars driven by E. R. Harper and Velgie Penn at the intersection of 11th street and G avenue resulted in injuries to both men. Mr. Harper, the more seriously hurt, was taken to the Graham sanitarium where he was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, which rendered him unconscious for several hours, and back injuries of an undetermined extent.

Miss Hovey Will Conduct Class

Miss Stella Hovey, director of religious education for Fort Worth Presbytery, will begin a class in leadership training this evening at the First Presbyterian church at 7:30. Members of all denominations who desire to take the course are cordially invited to do so.

MRS. SILAS POE SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Ura Reese Poe of Long Branch community, near Carbon, died here early Sunday morning after a long illness of several months at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. E. Spencer, 510 West Eighth street. Funeral services were held at Long Branch 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon with Rev. Sommers of Abilene, pastor of her church, in charge. Interment was at the Long Branch cemetery.

Roosevelt, McAdoo Meet Again

The first meeting between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and William G. McAdoo since the Democratic convention, where McAdoo's California delegation turned the tide for Roosevelt's nomination, took place during the governor's visit to California.

SPAIN'S EXILES MAKE HOMES AT BIARRITZ

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The capital of the French Basque country, Biarritz, once the playground of King Alfonso, who used to go there from Madrid to wine and dine and gamble with his friends, is now the home in exile of most of the boon companions of the ex-monarch.

When the Spanish monarchy fell, followers of the Court hurried to the Franco-Spanish frontier. Those who were poor took refuge in the smaller towns on the French side. Some, but only a few came here and then to Fontainebleau to be near the refugee-king. Most, however, who had a little money hurried to the scenes of their former gaieties at Biarritz to await the hoped-for recall.

Cause of Worry The formation of this exiles' colony so near the Spanish border has been a cause of worry for the new Spanish government, which would like to see the enemies of the Republic moved back from the frontier by the French authorities. The Surete-Generale, of France had when the Spanish anti-monarchists gathered along the frontier in the old days of the monarchy, forced the exiles to move further north, fearing conspiracies in which France might be embroiled.

Despite accusations that the royal exiles on the border plotted the unsuccessful coup by General Sanjurjo in Spain recently, the French have allowed the monarchist refugees to remain in Biarritz. The French are said to have satisfied themselves that the royalists along the frontier are not guilty of plotting against the Spanish republic.

Lack of Wealth Alfonso did not wish his former court followers to establish themselves around him in his exile at Fontainebleau, on the outskirts of Paris. There the ex-king only has a handful of faithful, intimate friends of whom the principal is the Duke of Miranda, who travels everywhere with the former monarch and shares his very secret. The Queen, likewise has very few of her ladies-in-waiting in the hotel where she lives. For one reason, the Queen says, she is not so wealthy as she used to be to keep up a shadow court.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES FLOODED BY RIO GRANDE

BROWNVILLE, Oct. 3.—Fed by tributary streams which are running bank full, the Rio Grande today spread over thousands of acres in its lower valley menacing towns and villages and hammering away at levees.

A break in the levee at McAllen spilled water over 2,000 acres today and drove farmers to higher ground. Ten thousand acres in Hidalgo county are inundated and motor traffic has been paralyzed.

With the exception of that break no new gaps in the levee system were reported during the past 12 hours.

EL PASO TRAFFIC IS RESTORED EL PASO, Oct. 3.—Rail, air and highway traffic was running through El Paso on schedule today for the first time in five days, with this section of the southwest apparently free from further flood danger.

Rail traffic to Mexico City from El Paso, however, is tied up indefinitely by disastrous floods in the state of Chihuahua.

FLOODS WASH OUT FLOODGATE. PECOS, Oct. 3.—Floodwaters in the Pecos river today washed out a gate in the dam ten miles north of Pecos but no serious damage was done.

COX CAMPAIGNS BY AIR CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—When General Cox was a presidential candidate he led his unemployed army on foot, but the 1932 candidate for the presidency on the Jobs ticket uses the airplane, for the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Pittsburgh, has been using United Air Lines' planes while campaigning through the middle west.

125 EXPECTED FOR SMOKER TOMORROW

"Everything seems to be working out mighty fine," said H. L. Dyer, chairman of the arrangement committee for the Merchants Smoker dinner to take place at the Mobley hotel tomorrow evening at 7:30. A home style turkey dinner will be served, he said. The price of a ticket is only 35 cents. "We anticipate a crowd of 125," said the chairman. A corps of 27 ticket sellers was at work today contacting 220 business men and women.

CISCO BAPTIST ASS'N MEETS HERE OCT. 5-6

The Cisco Baptist association of churches will meet at the First Baptist church here Wednesday and Thursday of this week, with the First and East Side churches as co-hostesses, according to Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First church. The association is composed of the Baptist churches of Eastland, Shackelford, and Stephens counties. Lunch and dinner will be served in the church dining room by the women of the two Cisco churches.

The Woman's Missionary union, auxiliary to the Cisco association, will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, beginning at 9:30 a. m. and will be called to order by the president, Mrs. R. Q. Lee, of Cisco. After the roll call the various standing committees will report on their work. After lunch there will be an address by Mrs. C. M. Caldwell, of Abilene, and election of officers.

Opens at 9:30. The association will be called to order Wednesday morning at 9:30, after which routine business will be attended to, and at 11:05 H. N. Baldere will deliver the annual sermon. The afternoon will be devoted to reports on Christian education, every member canvass, Sunday school, B. T. S., layman's work, and obituaries. After reports on public morals and religious literature, O. B. Darby will deliver the evening sermon.

L. R. Cole will have charge of the devotional at 9:30 Thursday, following which the rest of the morning session will be given over to missions. G. W. Thomas will preach the missionary sermon at 11:25. After the devotional by J. D. Cheatum at 1:30 Thursday afternoon, there will be reports on hospitals, Buckner Orphans' Home, and a digest of letters. The association will close its convention with a report of the nominating committee and committee on committees, with a board meeting at three o'clock.

Ryal to Be Returned To Ft. Worth Today

GALVESTON, Oct. 3.—Ft. Worth officers who unearched the body of A. G. McGuerty, newspaper circulation auditor, will return to Fort Worth today with William R. Ryal, 22, confessed slayer of McGuerty. Ryal will be held at Fort Worth without bond pending his trial. Bicordained seat covers which fitted the car in which McGuerty's body was carried to Galveston were turned over to officers by a motorist today. They were found near Waco. McGuerty was slain near Fort Worth Sunday night.

13 Charges Preferred Against Ferguson In Impeachment Session August 1, 1917

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—On August 1, 1917 the Texas house of representatives went into session under a double call. One was a proclamation by Speaker F. O. Fuller convening the house for the purpose of preferring impeachment charges. The other was the governor's proclamation calling the legislature to enact a new university appropriation. Fuller, now a Houston attorney, read his proclamation immediately after that of the governor. Fuller's proclamation set out 13 charges—the last one that the governor had sought to influence him in his duty by offering to lend him money without security, coupled with a statement he need never pay it. "Suspecting his purpose," said Speaker Fuller, "I determine to test it, and for that reason only I accepted from him the sum of $500, $100 in cash and your governor's personal check for $400, all of which I have carefully preserved and will tender and exhibit the identical bills delivered to me by Governor Ferguson with his check, to such committee of the house as you may select to further investigate."

Other Charges The other charges included refusal to repay expenditures for food, feed and automobile supplies after a court decision that such expenditures could not be made legally; deposit of insurance money on a burned state school in a bank of which he was a stockholder; misappropriation of $5,600 public money; deposit of state funds in his bank; securing a loan from the bank in excess of statutory limits; failure to make another appointment when the senate declined to confirm an appointee; arbitrary action in regard to location of a proposed "West Texas A. & M. college" and a group of charges based on alleged actions toward the university faculty and regents.

The original charges became of minor interest as the proceedings went forward. The charge of attempt to influence the speaker was not included in the voted impeachment articles. Instead there had come into prominence a loan of $156,000, the source of which Governor Ferguson refused to disclose. Later this was attributed to breweries. Ferguson said in effect: I had a good estate. I had worked like a dog for a lifetime. It was not yet out of debt. Simply because of agitation it looked like I must go on the rocks of bankruptcy because I couldn't raise $150,000. Friends made the loan on condition that I not reveal their identity.

Respected Word "I gave my word and I expect to respect my word. If the price of the governor's office must be that I break my word and disclose my friends' names in a private business transaction, then I must suffer and pay the price," he said. It was one of the charges sustained by the senate.

Nine other of 21 impeachments charges were sustained by the senate most of them dealing with banking transactions in which it was charged he profited by handling of state funds.

Regarding the University of Texas controversy the senate found him guilty on three charges. One was that he attempted to effect his "own autocratic will" by seeking expulsion of faculty members after they had been exonerated of charges by the board of regents. Another was he sought to remove regents without cause, simply and only because he could not dictate to them, and that he sought to use the power of his office to control regents. It was specified he released a $5,000 bail bond a regent would have been required to pay "without good reason but only to influence his action as a member of the board."

Judgment Issued Ferguson resigned. The senate nevertheless issued its impeachment judgment Sept. 25, 1917, a part of which was a bar against holding further state office.

M. M. Crane of Dallas, a former attorney general and of the counsel in Gov. Ross S. Sterling's contest of the legality of "Ma" Ferguson's nomination had been elected by the "Board of Managers" of the impeachment proceedings to appear as its counsel when testimony was taken by the house sitting as a "committee of the whole." Chester H. Terrell of San Antonio, a former speaker of the house and Will C. Harris assisted Crane. W. A. Hanger, Fort Worth, R. L. Henry, Clarence Martin and B. Y. Cummings acted as counsel for Governor Ferguson.

Garner at Funeral

LOBOES WILL PLAY RANGERS FRIDAY AT 3

The Cisco Loboes will play the Texas Rangers, the Ranger Junior College football team at Lillard Field in Ranger Friday afternoon at three o'clock, according to an announcement from Coach Wilson (Bull) Elkins this morning. The Ranger college team will include Murray, Aishman, King, Mitchell, Bumpers, Stephens, Flahe, and a number of other former Ranger Bulldog stars. In case Cisco is not reinstated in the Interscholastic League this season, there will likely be a return game in Cisco, Elkins said. Admission to Friday's go will be 25 and 50 cents.

HOOVER LEAVES UPON INVASION OF WEST TODAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Hoover prepared today to carry his case to the voters. He arranged to leave by special train this afternoon for Des Moines. There in the heart of the corn belt where more than a decade of low prices, heavy mortgages, rising taxes and economic depression have made men and women critical of their public officials, President Hoover will try his hand at a difficult piece of political campaigning.

He makes his main address tomorrow night. This marks the opening of the counter-attack Republicans plan as an answer to the western trip which Gov. Roosevelt has just completed.

Not since 1916 has a president in office gone out on a campaign trip. When Coolidge ran for re-election in 1924 he remained in Washington. President Hoover has consented to make three major campaign speeches.

JURISDICTION IS CONTESTED BY FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—Hearing on the election contest suit which converted the race of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson and R. S. Sterling for governor of Texas into a political mailstrom began in district court here today before Judge W. F. Robertson. Ferguson attorneys presented a plea attacking the jurisdiction of the court to try the case. M. M. Crane, counsel for Sterling, declared that if jurisdictional and other legal points were to be discussed first the case would become moot.

Demo Space IS BLANK. AUSTIN, Oct. 3.—Certification of names of candidates for ballot places in the general election November 8 were sent to county clerks today by Sec'y of State James Y. McCallum with the space for the democratic candidate for governor blank.

The name of the democratic candidate may be filled in later, pending decision in the election contest suit. Luther Nickels, Ferguson attorney, presented their plea in abatement which is a part of the answer filed by Ferguson attorneys last night. It charges campaign expenditures of $500,000 in the effort to renominate Gov. Sterling.

Claimed Illegal. Of that amount $250,000 was illegally contributed by corporations, the answer contends, and $250,000 spent by relatives of the governor and by employees.

Judge Robertson opened the hearing by reading comments on arguments before the supreme court which may act today on an application for a mandamus to require the putting of Mrs. Ferguson's name on the ballot.

Judge Robertson said the arguments before the court touching upon the mandamus injunction against certification of Mrs. Ferguson's nomination were "severe and unjust criticism." He declared the court has power to act at all times.

"Waste of Time." "If members of the bar do not respect the court we cannot expect law and order to prevail," Judge Robertson said. He contended that since the supreme court has a mandamus motion under advisement it is a waste of time for the election case to proceed in district court.

The court recessed until this afternoon without definite action on any of the many legal tangles presented to it.

The Ferguson answer filed last night says that more illegal votes were counted for Gov. Sterling than for Mrs. Ferguson. Of Sterling's vote it is charged that 20,000 were secured through fraudulent employment in the state highway department; 10,000 more through coercion of holding state employment and 15,000 bought. The Ferguson answer for Sterling is alleged to have been cast in 95 counties, among them were Potter, Eastland, Johnson, Taylor and Tom Green counties.

BOND HEARING IN LOBO CASE TUESDAY AT 2

Following an informal hearing in 91st district court at Eastland Saturday afternoon Judge George L. Davenport of that court fixed 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon as the hour for hearing to establish the amount of an appeal bond for defendants in the Cisco football case. Judge Davenport indicated that he would set the amount of the supersedeas bond at $10,000, a figure which defendant counsel protested and requested that a hearing be held.

The judge agreed to the hearing and set it for Tuesday. The agreement came after a full day of conferences.

THREE-CENT POSTAGE STAMP A FAILURE.
Well, the unexpected has happened. The house post-office sub-committee, investigating the postal service, has gone on record as favoring restoration of the two-cent postage rate on first class mail "to provide more revenue and work opportunity." There is a reason for it—falling off in the volume of first class mail since the three cent rate went into effect. All the wise men of the nation are not found on the roster of the United States senate or the house of representatives. There are business men the nation over "who know a thing or two."

GERMANY PUTS OFF PAYMENT.
Germany has formally notified the United States she would have to postpone the $7,800,000 payment due under its debt funding agreement Sept. 30. According to Secy. of the Treas. Ogden L. Mills, inability to obtain the necessary foreign exchange was the reason given by Germany for the postponement. Getting nearer home, the grain farmers of the Northwest, who have borrowed millions from the government in seed loans this year, will have to pay only 25 per cent when their loans fall due in November. For the remainder the department of agriculture will exact only an agreement from the farmer to pay it back "upon whatever terms congress may prescribe." Approximately $23,000,000 of $64,000,000 which the government loaned this year is affected by the action. The remaining funds being distributed largely in the cotton and tobacco regions. Well, if Germany is entitled to a government moratorium, why not the wheat and cotton growers of the United States? Passing the buck is a beautiful political pastime. Our loyal allies on the other side of the Atlantic owe $7,000,000,000 war loans to the American people. They are not pushed for payment. They are permitted to dictate their own terms. They may pay in the far distant future and then again the American taxpayers may be compelled to shoulder the entire load.

U. S. FARM VALUES.
These figures are pathetic as well as interesting. The federal agriculture department has reported that 36.7 per cent of the mortgaged farm in this nation Jan. 1 were indebted for more than half their value. Proportion of farms with high debt ratios was found to be largest in the West-North-Central states where 7.6 per cent mortgaged farms reported debts in excess of their value. Well, the Wall street crash came in 1929, and the slump in farm values has been going on ever since. Inflated values of war time and gambling peace time that followed hit heavily farmers who had purchased high priced land and placed mortgages on their possessions. Property values slumped in the cities and towns. Real values slumped. It was a slumping cycle all around in city and country. Millions of toilers were thrown out of jobs. Thousands of rich men became poor men. There has been a deflation period, and it hit rich and poor alike. Now the diggers are digging their way out of the debris just as diggers were compelled to dig all down the ages; history, both ancient and modern, makes mention of the rock-bottom fact that diggers always dig until they have finished the job. They are going to do it this time.

ANOTHER CHERFUL LITTLE EARFUL.
The federal reserve bank of Chicago reports that meat packing industries improved during August. Meat packing picked up throughout the country. Volume of sales showed a decided increase, while the butter industry was during August, beyond a level of a year ago. Coal mining and manufacturing gained during the month. Payrolls of the furniture industry in Michigan and other states increased more than 25 per cent during the last two months.

CONTROL OF SENATE PASSES TO DEMOCRATS.
In December the congress will be grinding. Democrats will control the house by a slim majority with a democrat handling the gavel. Death of a republican senator from Colorado has given control of the senate to the democrats by one vote. Charles Waterman, republican, died. Walter Walker is his democratic successor. William H. Adams has been the democratic governor of Colorado for three terms. He named Walker to fill the vacancy.

This new senator is a newspaper publisher and editor and retiring chairman of the democratic state central committee of Colorado. He has been in the newspaper harness for many years. He has been active in democratic politics. He is a close personal and political friend of Gov. Adams. Now the political complexion of the senate is 48 democrats, 47 republicans, and one farmer-labor, Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota. Edward P. Costigan, democratic-progressive, was elected to the senate by the voters of Colorado in 1930. It appears that the Centennial state is going to anchor itself permanently in the democratic column in November.

FATTENING THE TREASURY OF TWO STATES.
A year ago Dr. T. Dorrance died. He was the creator of the Campbell Soup company and he left behind him an enormous fortune. Now the supreme court of that state holds Pennsylvania is entitled to collect $21,000,000 inheritance tax from the estate of the soup king. His estate was variously valued at $112,000,000 to $200,000,000. The supreme court's decision set its valuation at $115,000,000.

Pennsylvania claimed that the soup king was a resident of Rabner of that state at the time of his death. New Jersey inheritance tax collectors make the claim that the legal residence of the multimillionaire had been fixed in New Jersey and that New Jersey would assess a tax of $12,000,000 and an issue would be made before the United States supreme court.

Governor Pinchot is in luck. He needed money for his unemployment relief fund. Now the soup king of his estate will contribute a small item of $21,000,000 which will lift a heavy load from the shoulders of Pennsylvania taxpayers in the near future. "Socking it to the estates of the rich" appears to be a popular pastime the world over.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Editorial reaction to the Cisco football suit is not all of the brand that some sports writers would have us believe. Indeed the comments upon which these sports writers base their opinions are not editorial in nature, but simply the ill-considered effusions of a few warm-spirited members of their own clan.

In a strictly editorial character the Athens Weekly Review goes beneath the emotional display and grasps the essential issue in the case—an issue vital to the perpetuation of the Interscholastic League. It should be pointed out that the principle—since the state and district committees profess to be dealing with a principle—upon which Cisco has established its fight for readmission, is a principle as valuable to any other member of the league.

Remarks the Review: A district court at Cisco ruled the football team of that city was entitled to participate in the Interscholastic League after it had been ruled out by the State Interscholastic officials. Just what the decision in the higher courts will be, no one can say, but Cisco has started a move that will undoubtedly result in a change in the management of the league. The Review has long contended that the management of the League should be taken out of the hands of a single institution like the University and vested in a committee composed of members from the various higher educational institutions of the State. In the hands of one institution the league smacks too much of monarchical rule. Cisco may not be admitted back in the league but they have started a fight that will have a wholesome effect in Texas before it is finished. It is ridiculous to say that League officials shall both make and interpret the rules.

Cisco had been previously punished by having to forfeit games in which an ineligible player had been used. Not satisfied by inflicting that punishment the league officials then banished the team from the League. It is equivalent to saying that a person may be fined for one offense and later jailed for the same offense.

It appears that the Cisco case has struck a chord of opinion that has been prominent in a number of considerate minds. The evils of the present system of league management are bound to crop out as the system becomes more and more extended because of the increasing popularity of the activities over which it exercises control. The present league system violates every principle of democratic government because the members of the league have no voice in who shall govern them. Under such a system it is inevitable that the direction of the organization should slip into autocratic hands.

It is not the purpose of this column to be an athletic commentary. But I cannot refrain from speaking words of praise in behalf of Coaches Elkins and Hodges for the work that they have so far done with the Lobes. The team which they placed upon the field Saturday evening was impressive for the thoroughness with which it appeared to have absorbed fundamentals and for the dash and go that characterized its play. It may not win all its games but I am confident it will give the customers the worth of their money every time it does appear and that my friends, is enough to ask of any team.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
William Gibbs McAdoo shot his message to Col. Jouett Shouse right across the political table. He declared that the colonel "and certain financial interests" of New York were opposed to the democratic leader as United States senator from California. He entered an emphatic denial that Col. Shouse was not his floor manager at the New York convention and broadly asserted, "These New York interests are seeking now to restore the open saloon in America." McAdoo went all the road. He clarified the political atmosphere. This is his attitude. "I will never vote for the return of the saloon in America and I have said so repeatedly, but what I will do, if elected to the United States senate, is this. I will not accept dictation from his or any other organization. I will vote in the senate for a submission to the states the repeal of the 18th amendment in exact conformity with the democratic platform. Under the constitution of the United States, this is all any senator or congressman can possibly do. Nothing more. Thereafter, if 36 states vote 'yes' for repeal, the 18th amendment goes out of the constitution. If 13 states vote 'no' the 18th amendment goes out of the constitution."

McAdoo never has been a dodger or a fence-sitter. Speaking of his cause and candidacy at home he says, "The intelligent people of California can decide for themselves whom they want for United States senator. I will not stand for the dictation for anyone in New York or elsewhere outside of California on this issue of their own making."

Away back in 1887 a prohibition amendment was submitted to the voters of Texas. Those who were opposed to statewide prohibition won by a hundred thousand majority. Later along a state convention of the democratic party was held in the city of Fort Worth. Wets had been the winners. Rampant wets declared that what they called a "heart of oak plank" should be incorporated in the state platform. They declared that it was impossible for a man to be a democrat and a prohibitionist. Wise counsel prevailed. These so-called "heart-of-oak" democrats and their plank was tossed into the waste basket. It was the first and the last declaration as to this peculiar test of democracy under the skies of Texas. As for McAdoo he believes in the rule of the people. He is for the voice of the people. He is a dry. He has no use for intoxicating beverages and no use for the saloon. Regardless of this, he is willing to vote for submission of the issue and abide by the verdict along constitutional lines.

There are ultra-drys and ultra-wets in the 48 states who are as intolerant as the witch burners of Salem in the long ago. It would be eminently proper for the ultra-wets to organize a wet party, the ultra-drys a dry party and permit the American voters of the two major parties to settle some of the problems which concern the prosperity of the millions in city and county, who toil for their bread, do their level best to maintain higher standards of living as well as to keep in advance of the peoples of all other nations the high purchasing power of those who help to create the wealth of the American world and who are concerned with the institutions of this republic, the fundamentals upon which they are based and the traditions handed down by the fathers who created the greatest free nation for a free people since the beginning of time.

Let Us Revere The Memory of Texas' Immortal Heroes

*With all despatch — The enemy of mined to sustain myself as long as

Victory or death
William Barrett Travis
St. Cal. evn 8

The appeal of William Barrett Travis from the besieged Alamo to "all Americans in the world," dated February 24, 1836, is one of the most heroic documents of human history.

"If this call is neglected, I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible and die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor and that of his country."
Thus wrote Travis, and he carried out that determination in a manner so heroic as to command the admiration of all men of all time. One hundred years after Travis died that his country might live—shall not Texans show to the world that they revere the memory of his magnificent sacrifice?
Let us revere the memory of all the immortal heroes of Texas by observing the Centennial in a manner worthy of it. Such a patriotic event must have the official sanction of the present-day government of Texas. This sanction must spring from the people themselves. At general election on November 8th, Texas will be given an opportunity to make possible the celebration of a centennial through the passage of the Texas Centennial Constitutional Amendment authorizing it.

SCRAPPING LOBO 11 CRASHES TO VICTORY OVER A. C. C. FISH

By FRANK LANGSTON

Featuring a tight defensive line and brilliant interference on its power plays, Coach Elkins' and Hodges' 1932 edition of the Cisco Lobo football machine swung into action with a 7 to 0 victory over the Able Christian freshmen Saturday night at Chesley Field. The one touchdown came in the second quarter as a result of Barker's 25-yard passes which Van Horn snatched from enemy hands to convert into yardage when it was needed. Barker placed the ball on the four-yard marker for first down, and two plays later McCall hit right guard for the first score of the season. Garrett kicked goal.

The game was marked by Cisco's interference in its drives at the tackles, a feature long looked for by Lobo fans. It was a typical Texas University offense that the Elkins men used, the plays starting from a close double wing-back formation without a shift, and driving straight at the openings in the line.

In the line Aycock and Latch stood out for their defensive play, both boys charging through the ACC line for hard tackles. On the other side of the line H. McMahon and Blackburn more than held their own with the Christians.

At Best Through Tackle

The Lobo backfield, led by the fiery Ray, was at its best in its plays through tackle. Ray showed ability to cut back after crossing the line of scrimmage that was reminiscent of the days of Goober Keyes. Chuck Van Horn, lanky end, snagged two impossible looking passes to count for substantial gains.

For the visitors Johnny Connell, erstwhile Cisco back, was the offensive star. Playing a halfback position, he was always hard to stop when he got under way in returning one of McCall's punts or rounding the Lobo ends. Peanut Keyes, brother of the famous Goober, ran the freshmen team well after going in at quarter. On the line, Morris, right end for the slimes, showed up well, playing a smashing type of game.

The Cisco game was a homecoming for Coach Phippen. The freshman mentor formerly played end for the Lobos, later attending ACC, where he held the same position.

25-Yard Penalty

ACC started the game by kicking to Cisco. After an exchange of punts ACC received a 25 yard penalty for clipping and again kicked. Cisco started a drive, which aided by a 15 yard penalty inflicted for tackling after McCall had signaled for a fair catch, brought the ball to the five yard stripe. Barker and Caffrey each picked up a yard. Then both teams were offside and Barker was held for no gain, and on fourth down Cisco missed a chance to score by passing over the goal line.

With the score 7 to 0 against them in the second half, the freshmen rallied and threatened to score. Connell ran back McCall's punt to the Lobo 49 yard line, only to lose ground on the next two plays. McCall dropped a punt after signalling for a fair catch and ACC recovered on the Cisco 21 yard line, the visitors' only serious threat to score.

Lobes Keep Driving

Connell fumbled on second down and Van Horn recovered on Cisco's 27 yard line. Ray hit left end for 16 yards to start a rally as the third period ended. McCall carried the ball to the 45 yard mark, and after an exchange of punts got loose, only to slip and lose the chance of scoring again. Taking advantage of an ACC fumble late in the fourth quarter, Cisco again started a drive this time from the ACC 29 yard line. Ray gained 9 at right tackle. McCall made 5 and first down. Then Ray carried it to the 10 yard line as the game ended.

First downs: Cisco 11; ACC 4. Passes: Cisco attempted six, three complete for a total of 58 yards; ACC attempted 28, both incomplete. Starting lineups: Cisco: Rutledge, l. e.; Latch, l. t.; Aycock, l. g.; Hanaford, c.; Blackburn, r. g.; H. McMahon, r. t.; Van Horn, r. e.; Ray, q.; Barker, l. h.; McCall, r. h.; Caffrey, f. ACC: Cockrell, l. e.; Carter, l. t.; Brown, l. g.; Wembish, c.; Condon, r. g.; Pyett, r. t.; Morris, r. e.; Jacobs, q.; Connell, l. h.; Baldwin, r. h. Substitutions for Cisco: Garrett, B. McMahon, St. John, Steffey, Cearley, P. Ray.

By MARY KNIGHT

United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, Oct. 3. — Gardens may fade, but their color and fragrance is destined to linger on through the winter for couturiers are seeing to it that this season is going to put to rest the last army of little glooms that have been trying to win the Depression War. Bright colors and gay materials already have begun to do their stuff in velvets, winter wools and fine fabrics with increased warmth and decreased weight. By way of illustration, we take Lanvin's coat dress called "Cosaire," made of a new wool crepe in navy blue. It is trimmed effectively with white pique (no pique is not exclusively a summer fabric by any means) as a sling collar, fastened down with a button at the right side and as a belt with a bow at the left side, and as deep, gauntlet cuffs with a button fastening them on the inside near the wrist. A small wool hat made of the same material and trimmed with a smart, flat bow of the pique is particularly a la mode, and the bow should be poised as if about to take off from the tip of the lady's forehead! When it comes to hat trimming, a good general idea to keep in mind is that whatever you use—pin, bow, buckle, flower or feather encourage it as far forward as possible.

Wales' Shadow Is Back on Job

LONDON, Oct. 3. — Inspector Burt, protecting shadow to the Prince of Wales is back on duty again after a serious breakdown in health. His greatest regret is that illness prevented his accompanying the Prince on the recent Mediterranean trip. Burt is more than a detective for the Prince; he is a general handyman, a large part of whose duties involves having in his pocket whatever the Prince may have forgotten to bring along. It may be cigars, a pipe, a cap, a muffler, or a raincoat. Indeed, "Burt's like a magician," once observed the Prince, who was a great personal regard for his shadow. "There is simply nothing he does not seem able to supply." The inspector's association with the Prince of Wales dates from the days of the war, when he went to France as a member of a small band of Scotland Yard officers detailed for detective duty with British headquarters. He was in due course attached to the Prince's staff. When the war was over, it was at the Prince's personal request that Burt was appointed to his staff as personal detective.

STOCK MARKET KEEPS WITHIN NARROW RANGE

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions the Wall Street Journal says:

The stock market developed a Miesner-like attitude of "waiting for something to turn up" last week swinging irresolutely in a narrow range, with trading interest at low ebb. A modest rally sent prices slightly higher Wednesday, but they sagged off later to around the low of the trading range outlined by the market itself.

During the week, recurrent reports of the possibility of betterment in the prices for wheat were circulated, but that commodity moved moderately downward. The bond market exhibited no very convincing although the Dow-Jones average of 40 domestic corporation issues managed to work slightly higher.

Railroad news continued to overshadow other developments in indicating the course of business. Carloadings figures for individual carriers for the week ended September 24 indicated that the upward trend in traffic is continuing, and that the decline from the similar period of 1931 is growing less. Officials of several of the North western roads, including the Northern Pacific, St. Paul and the Chicago & Northwestern, attested to the very general improvement in their traffic, and the betterment in the prospects for their roads.

Late in the week, anxiety over the outcome of the efforts of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railway to consummate its program of re-financing and stave off receivership, unsettled stocks and the more speculative railroad bonds.

Electric output figures, for the latest week, recorded a lower decline from the like 1931 week than had those for the week ended September 17. Wall Street was interested particularly by the fact that the figures on output in the central industrial area were distinctly better. All in all, the various indices of business were construed as favorable.

The steel industry showed definite signs of progress, after its hesitancy of a week or two ago. The industry's input output advanced to 17 1-2 per cent of capacity, compared with 15 per cent in the two preceding weeks. The United States Steel Corp., which has been operating slightly below the industry in the two preceding weeks, at 14 per cent of capacity, showed the sharpest rate of gain, with output jumping to 17 1-2 per cent. The independents advanced from 16 per cent to 17 1-2 per cent.

The week's range of the Dow-Jones averages follows:

30 Industrials	$73.52	$71.06	$71.56
20 Railroads	35.62	34.70	34.61
20 Utilities	32.58	31.42	31.61
40 Bonds	81.81	81.61	81.69

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE IS BOOMING NOW

By HARRY FLORY
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Denizens of Threadneedle street are happy again. Business on the London stock exchange is booming. Many employees of stockbroking firms, idle for months, have been reinstated. City of London restaurants are doing a thriving luncheon business. Stamp bills and stationery accounts of financial houses are increasing.

The boom started on July 1, immediately after Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain announced his scheme for converting more than 2,000,000 pounds of five per cent war loan into three and a half per cent war loan. Other British government securities immediately became intrinsically more valuable and shot upward.

Two New Factors.

The revival began to wane at the end of July, but two new factors appeared, which started a second revival, which spread this time to industrial and international securities. The new factors were Wall Street's boom and increased commodity prices.

Rises have not been as spectacular as in Wall Street, but they have been steady. The rather gloomy brown marble pillared floor of the London Stock Exchange is not conducive to fireworks.

The Financial News daily index of 30 representative ordinary shares listed on the Stock Exchange shows that on Sept. 8 they were only 33.4 per cent below average 1928 prices. With a few small setbacks they have risen steadily since June 30, when they were 46 per cent below the 1928 average, compared with the record low of 48 per cent on May 31.

Average Yield.

The average yield of 132 industrial shares which in mid-June was over 6 per cent now is under 4 3-4 per cent. During the same period the yield on representative United States industrials dealt in on Wall Street dropped from 10 to under 5 per cent.

The London Stock Exchange does not list the daily share turnover, just the number of "bargains" effected, a "bargain" representing a turnover of an undetermined number of shares at a given quotation. During June the number of "bargains" averaged about 24,500 weekly, during July more than 38,000 and during August approximately 34,000.

Opinion is divided as to whether the Stock Exchange is a satisfactory barometer of economic conditions.

Every day the public is treated to the most conflicting views, with Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express and Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail proclaiming the end of depression, and the Laborite Daily Herald insisting that Wall Street and London Stock Exchange improvements are entirely due to a United States electioneering "ramp to re-elect President Hoover."

Brazilian Revolt Is Ended Today

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 3.—Brazil's costly civil war today was ended with collapse of the revolt and surrender of rebel leaders.

The rebellion began July 29. Rebel and federal soldiers in the field exceeded 150,000. Commerce of Sao Paulo richest state in the union, was paralyzed and the world's greatest port was blockaded, causing an enormous increase in coffee prices throughout the world.

100th Student Is Received at College

Enrollment at Randolph college reached the hundred mark today. This is an increase of more than sixty per cent of the student body over last year's enrollment. Dr. Lee Clark, president of the college, said that he expected more students to enroll before long.

Davis Case Ends In Mistrial Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Trial of U. S. Sen. James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, accused of violating the federal lottery laws, ended today in a mistrial.

The mistrial was declared after defense counsel had given Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman information concerning alleged improper conduct of a juror and an alternate juror.

QUALITY RANCH RULE

REDMOND, Ore., Oct. 3.—Quality and not quantity rules on the George Thompson ranch, southwest of here. Thirteen strawberries raised on this grounds barely can be fitted into a box. Some of the berries are two inches in circumference.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL, an agent for cattle interests, faces ASPER DELO in his office. Ball accuses Delo of having men shot who are sent out to check his timbering activities at Three Rivers. Ball says he is making a personal check. Delo says he will personally see that Ball does not make the check.

Upon leaving Delo's office, Ball saves a girl from kidnapers. She proves to be Delo's daughter, DONA. When Ball learns her name he tells her he is STANLEY BLACK and slips away.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, agrees to go to Three Rivers and get Delo to come back. Dona goes with him and at their first stop Dudley produces a marriage license and urges Dona to marry him, arguing that Delo will not go on a manhunt if they do. Dona barely misses the marriage by meeting Ball on his way to Three Rivers.

At the camp, SWERGIN, Asper's timber boss, tries to make Dona stay in camp. She slips away from men he has ordered to watch her and rides. She sees her father attacked and shot. Swergin comes to her rescue. Dudley and Swergin both warn her not to ride alone as Ball will attack her as he has her father. Dona goes out again and when she starts back finds she is followed. Her pursuer proves to be Swergin, who takes her back to camp in spite of the fact that she lashes him across the face. Asper is much worse. The storekeeper is knocked out and his place robbed. Ball is blamed. Swergin refuses to keep news of the hunt from Asper and Dona finds him in the sick room. Asper is in a rage.

CHAPTER XVI

STANLEY BALL thought he understood how a hunted animal must feel. His shelter was a cave high under the rim of Folly Peak where none but the warriest veteran could find him. The trail to this den led through a slash in a great rock wall and was hidden by spring-fed alders and black birch.

There was a little open shelf for his mare and the cave was fairly comfortable. By using tinder dry and resinous wood he was able to have a fire over which to cook the simple fare on which he lived. He was sitting before a bed of glowing coals, taking stock of the situation in which he found himself.

Ball admitted, as he stared into the embers, that if he had known one-tenth what he now knew he would never have come to Three Rivers to get the low-down on the Delo Timber interests. He was forced to admit that he was in love with Dona Delo, hopelessly in love with her, and that he could not have her.

Love for Dona had made him remain on Folly Mountain until he had been branded a desperate criminal and a murderer. Now, even though Dona had not married the young man he saw riding in the lower country every day, he would still be unable to offer his solaced name to her. Ball kicked dirt over the fire and arose. One thing was sure, he had to have more supplies. Carrying his food on a horse without cutting the animal's speed made it necessary for him to forage often. Then, too, there was the trouble encountered in getting the supplies. He had to steal them.

All the way down the mountain he studied these bitter problems. He was half-decided to turn himself in and take the consequence, which he knew would be a first-class lynching.

The moon was not yet over the rim of Folly Mountain and Ball could move at a fair pace through the blue gloom. His black mare was invisible as ink and as silent as a panther. He rode to the edge of the clearing above the camp and dismounted. Tying the mare in a thicket, he moved swiftly toward the lights of the buildings.

FIRST the commissary was paid a board loose from a back window to gain ready entrance. Within 15 minutes he had secured what he needed while Old Sims sat in the front of the store nursing his bandaged head. Stan smiled to himself grimly as he took a last look at the bandaged figure up in front.

Catching the food, Stan moved along the dark side of the main building. He was looking for a particular room, drawn by a force that he could not resist. He knew the room, but found it dark. Further along the wall were two lighted windows. Stan edged toward them. The nearest window was open and he was able, by flattening himself against the wall, to look inside.

The scene within the room was a tense one. Dudley was standing in the background, Dona sat on the foot of her father's bed, trying to quiet him. Asper Delo was as angry as that day in his office when Stan had faced him. A guilty feeling crept over Stan. He was the cause of all this. He had done it himself.

Asper was fairly fuming. "That confounded Swergin! He's lettin' Ball make fools out of all of us. He'll let that dirty gun-toter shoot up the whole camp. I'm going after him myself!"

"Now, Dad, be reasonable! You'd be no match for a healthy man like Ball." Dona was almost in tears.

"I'm sick and tired of being coddled because of a little puncture in the shoulder. I've packed more lead without even lying down than that skunk ever saw!" Asper roared.

Dona leaped to her feet. She reached into her dress and pulled out a stiff paper. "Dad, please listen to me."

With a rumble Asper settled back against the pillows. His lips were white and he was shaking.

"Dad, Dudley and I have been saving a secret for you. We are married." The words slipped from her lips almost tonelessly.

DUDLEY aroused himself with a jerk and came forward. He seemed unable to speak. Asper took the paper without a word and unfolded it. He stared at it for a full minute before he spoke.

"Sam Dean married you," he said slowly. His anger seemed to have melted and his hand was staking.

"Why, D, you should have told me! This has been a pretty poor honeymoon!"

"Now you see why I wanted you to give all this up and come back with us?" Dona's eyes were clouded with tears.

Asper's gaze rose to Dudley's face. Dudley blushed and stammered, "I sort of overlooked asking for the bride."

Stan Ball tried to pull himself away from the window but he could not. He was fascinated by the stary, tear-drenched eyes of the girl he loved. He felt an urge to leap through the window and shake Dudley Winters savagely. Why didn't he take her in his arms and kiss those tears away? Asper Delo's deep voice broke in on his thoughts.

"I guess I'm an old fool but Swergin's blundering made me see red. Of course your happiness is all that really counts wch me. Now what do you want to do?"

"We want you to stay in bed for a couple more days and then go back with us and help us get a home fixed up." Dona's soft alto was tremulous.

"Sure, that's just what we want." Dudley seemed suddenly to have come to his senses.

Stan Ball pulled back from the window. Dona had been keeping the marriage from her father. One thing relieved him. That was that Asper Delo would be out of the man hunt. He would have only Swergin and his gang to worry with. Stan's anger against Asper Delo had suddenly lost its edge. He determined to get away regardless of whether he was caught making his escape or not.

ASPER DELO'S voice rolled out into the night. It was softer now and held a hint of mellowness. The old timber king was completely taken back by the new twist of events. He cared more for Dona than for all his timber workings. He completely lost his wrath against the two young folks stood before him, flushed and happy.

"You tell Swergin to take care of this hunt and to stay with it until he gets his man. He need not report to me any more. Now you youngsters run along and let an old man think a bit." Asper lay back among the pillows and smiled.

"I'm sorry it came about like this," Dudley stepped to Asper's side as he spoke. "But I'll take care of Dona and make her happy."

Asper raised on one elbow. "You'd better, young man. You'd better!" He sank back and half-closed his eyes as a sign of dismissal.

Dudley caught Dona's arm and pushed her gently from the room. Ball remained flattened against the wall. A wave of loneliness swept over him, a bitter wave carrying with it a vivid reminder of what he had become. He could not even see Dona again or be near her. He would have to strike for the Mexican border and live by his gun. That is the law of the man who is branded killer. He can never turn back. His guns must always swing ready at his hip for he is outside of society.

Stan took a deep breath and edged back along the wall. He did not halt at Dona's window but slid past it. A light shone out from under the blinds and he could hear a voice inside but he did not wish to eavesdrop.

He had reached the corner of the building and was about to turn and retrace his steps to the place where he had left the cache of food when he felt a hard, fingerlike object jab him in the back. A gruff voice commanded, "Put 'em up, Ball, and keep 'em up!"

Twisting his head as he raised his arms Stan could make out the bulky figure of Swergin behind him. In the dim light he could see a fiendish grin on the thick lips of the timber boss.

"A more pleasing Taste and Aroma"

Enough Turkish... but not too much

You can smoke pack after pack of Chesterfields... and never grow tired of the taste. That's partly because Chesterfield uses just the right amount of Turkish tobacco to "season" the mild, sweet Domestic tobacco.

Too much Turkish makes a heavy-smoking cigarette... too little takes something away from taste and aroma. Just enough of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco—that's one reason why Chesterfields SATISFY!
