BE SURE TO go by the Cisco Intermediate School book fair which is being held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of this week. The hours of this fair are from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Sunday and from 8:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday.

The purpose of the book fair is to bet a library started for the students. The prices for the books start as low as $1.75. The books may be purchased and kept or given as gifts. They may also be donated to the library right then, or kept and donated at a later time.

This will really be a worthwhile project and let's help these students get a library at their school which they truly need.

ANOTHER WORTHWHILE project in progress in Cisco is the Community Chest Campaign. The goal for 1976 is $10,000 and help is badly needed from all citizens in Cisco, in order to reach this goal.

If you have not already given to the campaign and would like to do so, please contact Joe Cooper, at the Cisco National Bank, and make your contribution.

Fee-Esta Park To Transform Into Christmas Tree Forest

by Helen Wallace

The Fee-Esta Park will come alive again Friday, December 10, when it becomes a "Christmas Tree Forest," with bright lights illuminating from the trees.

The lighting of the trees will take place at 6:00 p.m., on Friday December 10, at the Fee-Esta Park (behind the American Legion Hall).

The Cisco Civic League is sponsoring the lighting, and has invited any organization or individual wishing to do so, to decorate a tree in the forest. They may either plant a tree, or decorate a cut one. A spot in the park can be reserved by calling the Chamber of Commerce Office.

"If everyone lit just one little tree," what a bright place Cisco would be. And the Fee-Esta Park should be just that...a very bright spot for all to see and enjoy.

The Fee-Esta Park dates back to 1930, when the land was given for a park by C.H. Fee. The Garden Club, headed at that time by Mrs. Edgar Butts, was the organization instrumental in turning the plot into a park. A very nice bandstand still remains as a reminder of what it once was. The park was named Fee-Esta Park, after C.H. Fee.

The present Garden Club undertook the task of giving the park a "facelift," as their Bicentennial project this year. So, gradually, the park is coming alive once more.

Last year a tree was planted by The Civic League, and will be decorated each year hereafter.

The public is invited to plant, decorate, or come to see the lighting, and hear the choir from the Intermediate School sing carols.

20th Century Club To Meet Friday

The Twentieth Century Club will meet Friday, December 10 at 2:30 p.m. in the Cisco Public Library club room for the Christmas program to be presented by Mrs. Edward Lee, honorary member of the club.

Hostesses will be Mesdames S. E. Hittson, Harry Donica and Lloyd London.

Mrs. Roy Cartee, president, reminds members to bring gifts for the residents in the nursing home.

Book Fair To Begin Sunday, December 5

A book fair originally set for November 7, has been re-scheduled to begin Sunday, December 5, at 1:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. in the Intermediate School auditorium. Hours Monday and Tuesday are 8:00 a.m.-6:00 p.m. Women of the PTO and Industrial Arts Club will be on hand to help with the three day event.

The Book fair is being held to start a library for the Intermediate School. Your support in this event is greatly needed as the school has no library at present. Prices for the books start at a low $1.75. Individuals may purchase the books to keep or give as gifts. Books may also be bought and donated to the library, or taken home to read and enjoy and then donated to the library in the future. Books may be donated in memory of a loved one which will be noted on the inside cover of the book.

What better way to show you really care than by helping to give the children the right kind of reading material. They will enjoy the books as well as putting them to good use in their school work.

OBSERVATIONS FROM...

The River Road

BY VIOLA M. PAYNE

It has been said that the north wind made the Vikings. If this be so, it must have been a raw west Texas sandstorm that brought out the stamina in Charles Goodnight, for he never feared to set his sails against anything that came over the horizon. During his ninety-four years as a Central Texas pioneer, as a Ranger Scout, Trail Blazer and driver, as a cattle Baron and sometimes a failure he battled Indians, outlaws, weather, other ranchers, nesters, and the State of Texas. Now his picture rests quietly in old books, with its steady, dark-eyed gaze. Since he didn't bother to take many photographs until he was old, these pictures usually show him with thick, white hair, unlike the heavy mane of dark hair from his youth. His face is resolute and handsome, and history has recorded the results of the projects and plans behind the light in his eyes. For in the era around the civil war, when Central Texas was producing its share of gunfighters, Goodnight stood on the side of the builders. He was dreaming of a cattle empire, and working to make his dreams come true.

Charles Goodnight was born in Illinois in 1836, and his father died shortly afterward. His Mother then married a man named Daugherty, and the family came to the Dallas area. The Mother and Step-father separated, with the family split into different directions in East Texas. Charles Goodnight once described those days in a few words: "We were devilish poor; had to work all the time just for a living. I was on the frontier carrying a gun when I should have been in school." But from these hard years came an uncanny knowledge of nature and a vitality which would propel him far into the future.

When his Mother married a man named Adam Sheek, in 1856 the responsibility of caring for this brothers and sisters was taken from Charles. Furthermore a son of the Stepfather, Wes Sheek, was his best friend. They began to work in partnership with a rancher who lived in Waco. The boys were supposed to range some wild cattle west of that settlement up the Cross Timbers country north into Palo Pinto County. Before long Wes and Charles built up a herd of cattle for their share, but the conditions of the times were so bad that they had difficulty selling them. But this time the Sheek family had moved to Keechi Creek, in Palo Pinto County, and this became the headquarters of the ranching operation. But Indian raids became so deadly and plentiful that Charles Goodnight had to ride and fight more often than herd cows. When the U.S. Government recalled the soldiers from the frontier forts for the Civil war, Goodnight urged the men of Palo Pinto County to form "home guards." Eastland and other area counties also used this means of protection.

Fort Belknap, near present-day Graham, Texas, was made the headquarters Fort for all Rangers who were supposed to protect the frontier. Charles Goodnight was made a Scout for their expeditions.

During this time Goodnight was with a group which recaptured Cynthia Ann Parker, the white woman stolen as a child by the Comanches. He later expressed regret over this episode, wishing he hadn't noticed "That Indian woman who had blue eyes."

About 1861 Goodnight met an attractive young schoolteacher on the Keechi, and set his head to marry her. He began a courtship which lasted for many years. But Goodnight was faced with financial as well as romantic problems as his stint of Ranger duty ended. When he returned home to round up his cattle, he had lost 4,000 of his herd. He had about 1,000 head left. "The stay-at-home fellows had the cattle," he recalled. "And we poor devils had the experience."

But all the cattlemen had one thing in common—there was no cash market for their product. The cattle had to be trailed out of the State, to where the money was.

Goodnight had an inborn suspicion of doing things just like other people. He always thought of some different way to tackle a problem. He knew there was a market in an army post at Ft. Sumner, New Mexico, as well as the gold fields around Colorado. But the Comanches held all the territory west of the Palo Pinto, Eastland County area.

At last he decided to swing south around the Indians, hoping to dodge the main war parties. He would use the trails to the old forts southwest, and the well-known water-holes as long as he could. From the North Concho river he would trail across the desert to Horsehead crossing on the Pecos, then turn up the river north.

He chose an older cattleman with trail experience as his partner—a friend named Oliver Loving. By May of 1866 they were rounding up their herd of 2,000 cattle to take out on this new trail. They had eighteen armed cowboys, including a black man named Bos Ikard, whom Goodnight described as "One of the best night herders I ever saw."

Behind this group rolled the first real chuck wagon ever seen on the range—designed and built by Goodnight. Its wood was the strongest available, and its axels were of iron. It boasted a back lid which folded down into the cook's work table, with a food-storage compartment behind it. Its design has changed little for the chuck-wagons of this day, and some of its ideas have been successfully adapted into modern-day campers.

As Goodnight and Loving and their rugged cowboys rode out of Fort Belknap on a spring morning, they scarcely realized they were riding into immortality. The trail they were blazing would be named for them, and many men and cattle would follow. Oliver Loving would find death on the trail, but Charles Goodnight would find great fortune, cumulating with a ranch of more than a million acres in Palo Duro Canyon, grazing a herd of more than 100,000 cattle at one time.

But on this day they simply felt the lure of vast, sunswep horizons, and the pull of a hard job which need doing.

"We didn't realize we were making history then," Goodnight commented later. "We just worked along from day to day."

...the end...

DDD Celebrates 25th Anniversary

On Nov. 10, 1951 the first customer-dialed coast-to-coast telephone call clicked along thousands of miles of wire from Englewood, N.J., to Alameda, Calif. The call was placed by the cities' mayors.

That milestone call sparked an aura of magic for the Bell System and its customers. The event was repeated again this month on the 25th anniversary of Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) when another call was made between the two cities.

"In 1951 it took about 90 seconds for an operator-assisted call to connect from New York to San Francisco," says Mrs. Burnice Gorr, local Southwestern Bell manager. "Today, the same call, dialed direct, flashes across the nation in 10 to 12 seconds and can cost as little as 54 cents."

DDD has been a major factor in holding down costs and rates of Long Distance service. It's estimated that for every one percent shift from operator-assisted to customer-dialed Long Distance calls during 1975, the Bell System saved $25 million she explains.

Approximately 86 percent of the more than nine billion Long Distance calls placed in 1975 were dialed direct.

Customers who used their phones without the assistance of an operator shared in the savings.

"For example," Mrs. Gorr says, "those taking advantage of the low night rate can dial direct from the East Coast to the West Coast and talk for three minutes for approximately 52 cents (or for only 21 cents if the call lasts less than a minute)." That same call placed through an operator costs $3.55 for the first three minutes, she adds.

As another example of how low Long Distance rates are today, a call from Dallas to Los Angeles costs only 49 cents for three minutes and 20 cents for one minute or less when dialed direct during the night period - from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily. The opportunity for customers to travel the direct route on Long Distance Dialing is now available to 36 countries

New P.B.C. Officers - Mrs. Bernard Campbell, Secretary and Treasurer; Mr. Arlin Birt, Chairman; and Mr. R.D. Hart, Vice-Chairman.

15 County Building Committeemen Attend Workshop

Fifteen members of the Eastland County Program Building Committee received training in a leadership workshop in Eastland Nov. 22 and 23. Among the participants were the newly elected officers of the committee. They are Arlin Birt of Cisco, Chairman, R.D. Hart of Eastland, Vice Chairman, and Mrs. Bernard Campbell of Carbon, Secretary and Treasurer.

The four Eastland County Extension Agents also participated in the workshop. Speakers included Dr. Burl Richardson and Mr. W.W. Grisham, Extension Service Program Development Specialists from Texas A&M University and Mr. Lynn Copeland, Area Resource Development Specialist from Stephenville.

Extension Agents DeMarquis Gordon and Mrs. Janet Thomas explained that the program building process provides for the democratic involvement of people at the local level in the development of informal educational programs. Eastland County citizens serve on the local committee performing three major tasks - they identify significant problems, determine areas of program emphasis in planning programs to help solve local problems, and evaluate the effectiveness of these educational programs.

The agents said these people serve on the County Program Building Committee or one of the subcommittees and ensure that Extension education programs are keyed to improving the economic status and quality of living for residents of Eastland County. Programs planned and conducted by these committees fall into four broad categories - agriculture, family living, community resource development and 4-H and Youth. But there is a wide variety of programs and activities within each area.

Sherwyn McNair Named Director Of Information Services For WTU Company

Abilene - A veteran West Texas newspaperman and journalism educator has named director of Information Services for West Texas Utilities Company. Sherwyn McNair has resigned as chairman of the Journalism Department and as director of Public Relations at Hardin-Simmons University to join West Texas Utilities Company after the current academic semester which ends December 16.

As director of Information Services, McNair will fill a newly created staff position at WTU. He will report directly to the president and assist the executive supervisors. His responsibilities will include preparation, coordination and dissemination of information.

McNair was reared at Gilmer, in East Texas, and attended Hardin-Simmons from 1940-43. He served in the Navy during ship in the Pacific.

He was released from service as 1 lieutenant (j.g.) and continued his education at the University of Missouri where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees in journalism.

McNair was city editor of the Gainesville Daily Register before joining the staff of the Abilene Reporter-News in November, 1948. He served as a reporter, wire editor, and oil editor before becoming city editor in 1962. He registered in January 1967, to join the faculty at H-Su.

At H-Su he taught journalism, headed the department and was director of students publications until 1973, when he assumed additional duties as director of public relations. Since then he has continued to teach while serving as an officer of the university administration.

Two other members of his family have been linked with West Texas journalism. An older brother, Wacil, is editor of the Snyder Daily News, and a younger brother, Dalmon, was managing editor of the Midland Daily Telegram before joining the staff of Southeast Louisiana

State University eight years ago. McNair wife, an H-SU graduate, is the former Cheryl Livington of Marfa. They have two children, Nancy (Mrs. Jim Jones) of Lampasas, and Mindy, a sophomore at Hardin-Simmons. The McNairs attend the First Baptist Church of Abilene, where he is a deacon. The family lives at 3133 Sayles Boulevard.

by HELEN WALLACE

Mary Latch Carey, formerly a Ciscoan, and her husband, Dick, had their plans well in order in the spring of 1962. Mrs. Carey was teaching journalism in Dallas, and husband Dick worked at Texas Instruments. Time and money had been put into the building of a cabin cruiser. The cruiser was to take the Careys on an extended adventure to Alaska, via Panama Canal, and up the West Coast. Before the dream became reality, Mr. Carey suffered a heart attack, and died.

With her husband died all the dreams that Mary Carey had. What was there left to do... what could she do alone?

The Careys had talked of going to Alaska for so long, that it seemed the only thing left worth doing. That's what she decided to do. Taking the boat would be out of the question, so Mrs. Carey drove the 5,000 miles, alone.

Mrs. Carey, a teacher for some years now, was sure that there would be a teaching job in Alaska for her. The trip went well, although people did smile when they saw all the emergency equipment that Mary had brought along. She had enough food, extra tires, and equipment, to outfit an army... and she didn't even have one flat on the way!

Things became progressively more exciting for Mary, though. She found herself in the village of Talkeetna, for it offered one of two possible teaching positions open. It was isolated. It had no roads, no telephones, no regular mail service, and only natives lived there. The school was not even a school yet... it was in the making. And there were only eight pupils. Quite a challenge, though, the kind that might help a grieving woman.

A plus for the village was the fact that one Don Sheldon the veteran and renown glacier pilot, lived there. With Mary's writer's mid, she could see the stories ahead. And she was not disappointed.

Mrs. Carey is a graduate of Cisco High School, and Cisco Junior College, and has her bachelor's from McMurry in journalism. She has taught in Lubbock, Washington D.C. Dallas, Houston, the Indiana University, and in Alaska.

Teaching in Alaska was different, no beating around the bush about that! The temperature sometimes got 100 degrees below freezing, the night becomes day, and snowshoes are an accepted and expected thing.

Mrs. Carey and the grade school teacher eventually lived above the teacherage, and didn't have far to go to their jobs. Quite an advantage in Alaska.

Don Sheldon left quite often to take mountain climbers up on Mt. McKinley, which was visible in the village, or he was going to throw packages out to them, or pick them up. Eventually Mrs. Carey persuaded him to let her accompany him on one such trip. After he was convinced that she could take it, he began allowing her to help him with the transporting and throwing of the food and supply packages, and of course, she got to write and take pictures! It wasn't too long they were dependant on her stories and photographs, etc. the mountain climbers, polar bear hunting, homesteaders, etc.

Don Sheldon left quite often to take mountain climbers up on Mt. McKinley, which was visible in the village, or he was going to throw packages out to them, or pick them up. Eventually Mrs. Carey persuaded him to let her accompany him on one such trip. After he was convinced that she could take it, he began allowing her to help him with the transporting and throwing of the food and supply packages, and of course, she got to write and take pictures! It wasn't too long before she becomes a columnist for four of the Alaskan papers, and they were dependant on her stories and photographs of the mountain climbers, polar bear hunting, homesteaders, etc.

Several years went by before Mrs. Carey found the "perfect view" of Mr. McKinley. It was far from the beaten path, and people thought she was a little crazy in the head. Today she has a lodge built on that spot.

Mrs. Carey is the daughter of the late W.C. Latches and is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Lela Lloyd, and Mrs. Annie Rendall of Cisco.

"Alaska - Not For A Woman," is the book that Mary has written on her Alaskan adventures. The book came out last year, and is doing quite well. Mrs. Carey disapproved the title, which came about because the bush pilot Sheldon continuously told her, "No! It's not for a woman!" He told her this about mountain climbing, flying the summit, polar bear hunting, photographing the Alaskan earthquake victims... whatever she wanted to do, he would tell her "No, not for a woman." He finally changed his mind though, for Mrs. Carey is no ordinary woman, as she has proven, time and time again. Alaska is not for all women, but it was for Mary Carey, and after Christmas, she'll be off for her homeland, now Alaska, once more!

THE CISCO Community Chest needs about $2,000.00 to complete the 1976 fund drive-the budgets of 12 organizations that work for all of us in Cisco. This represents about 40 cents per person.

President Billy Wright and his Community Chest board of directors are rightfully concerned. Cisco must raise the full quota. If you haven't done your part, drop by the bank or the CoC and leave a check. The 1975 drive (for 1976 funds) went over the top, an there's no reason why the current drive shouldn't succeed.

The obligations of good citizenship include supporting the Community Chest.

QUAIL HUNTERS report that the new season is off to a pretty good start. We went with a party up north of town, and, hunting without a dog, we must have seen 200 quails on opening day. Can't remember ever seeing so many.

The crisp, cool weather has been good for hunting, and it's always enjoyable regardless of whether you fill up the game bag.

ENJOYED THE monthly breakfast gathering at the Church of the Nazarene early Saturday. Some 50 people turned out, and they represent most of the churches of our community. The Rev. Gene Allen, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, was the speaker.

Mr. Roy Cartee served as master of ceremonies.

THE E.L. GRAHAM Hospital Auxiliary earned some $125.00 when they held a bake sale recently. Funds from the event will go into the Auxiliary's project-a chapel for the hospital. This is a commendable project, and you can have a part by sending them a check.

The chapel is needed, an Auxiliary member told us, so they'll have a place where friends and relatives of hospital patients can go and pray and meditate.
